Look at Me, Fellas--I've Got an Ulcer!

Proud--But Unhappy

Today's man of distinction is the man with an ulcer. He mentions it proudly while flashing his antacid pills. That's because he's supposed to be made of the stuff that lifts him above the flock. But there never lived an ulcer victim who was happy about his affliction. The writer, New York Newspaper Editor Herbert Kamm, can attest to this. He's had an ulcer for 22 years, and that makes him somewhat of an authority on the subject. In five articles, starting here, he tells about the causes, the "cures" and sundry facts concerning this pesky ailment.

By HERBERT KAMM
Special To The Herald

ONE SNAPPISHLY COLD afternoon in February some years ago, a lean young man entered the office of his doctor and announced, "Doc, I think I've got an ulcer."

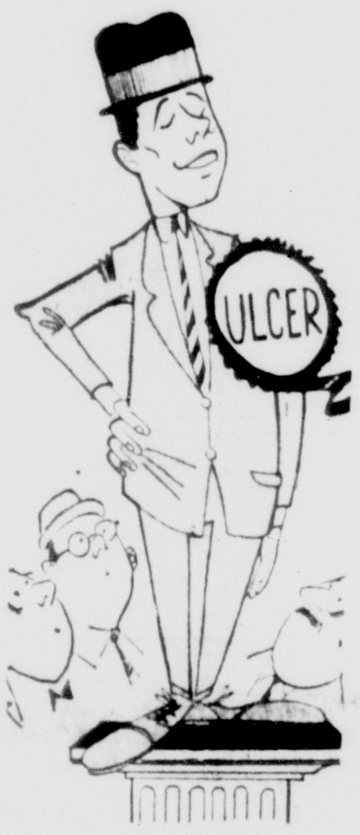
A sour look, much like that induced by a swig of citrate of magnesia came over the doctor's face. You do not, as a rule, endear yourself by walking into a doctor's office and diagnosing your own case. He's supposed to tell you.

But the lean young man was not to be deterred.

"I've had this gnawing in my tummy for several weeks now," he went on. "It comes an hour or two after eating, and I also get it in the middle of the night. If I drink a glass of milk, it goes away. Besides, I've been working too hard and smoking too much, and I guess I haven't been too careful about what I've been eating, either."

"Well," the doctor said grudgingly, "they do sound like the classic symptoms."

So they took the lean young man to the hospital, and they had him drink a glass of white, chalky stuff called barium, and they took a bunch of X-rays, and they found an ulcer of the garden variety — a peptic ulcer of the duodenum, the small, valve-like organ which connects the stomach to the small intestine.



The Sufferer
. . . man of distinction

The case is significant for two reasons. While patients quite often will try to tell a doctor his own business, it isn't often that they score with such accuracy. Also, the patient was me.

I had, in a way, arrived. Not that ulcers are a rare ailment. A fat 10 per cent of the population in this country has them, and new cases turn up at the rate of 1.4 million a year.

Add to this the number of people who are troubled by acid distress, heartburn or general discomfort from eating, and you have a whole legion of people who figure that maybe they're getting ulcers.

Usually, however, there is no mistaking this pesky ailment, and studies have shown that, in the large majority of cases, the ulcer sufferer is a person of extremely high intelligence, of great urging to move ahead in this competitive world, and the stuff that lifts him above the flock.

He Wears Misery Like a Medal

Knowing this, he wears his misery like a badge of honor and takes a strange sort of pride in displaying his antacid pills at social gatherings. He also draws comfort from knowing that he's in pretty fast company.

It should not, however, be assumed that ulcers are solely a disease of modern, fast-moving civilization. In fact, they seem to be as old as civilization itself.

The traditional ulcer type, though, is supposed to be a hardworking, over-conscientious, ambitious, successful person who can't "take it easy."

★ ★ ★

'Thinker' Type Is Likely Victim

Much has been made of the prevalence of ulcers among those with the long, lean "thinker" constitution, their absence among primitives and Asiatics, and the greater frequency of ulcer in the postwar years of prosperity and nervous strain.

But let's keep one thing straight: Ulcers do not automatically confer business success on their victims.

An ulcer is a sore in the stomach or the duodenum caused by the secretion of more acid gastric juices than are needed to digest food. As with most ailments, it is accompanied by pain.

The pain is usually located right under the ribs and occurs in bouts of 15 minutes to an hour's duration. Food generally will relieve it, but the pain will return after the food has passed out of the stomach and those nasty juices can go to work again on your stomach lining.

Sore 'Perforates'-It Even Kills

If neglected, an ulcer can perforate the stomach or the duodenum, and death from such severe cases is not uncommon. Most ulcers, though, are manageable and need not be serious. In fact, living with them can be quite sporting if one is sensible about the things he eats and drinks and, more important, about his state of mind.

Flames Spew from Wing of $2½ Million Eastern Air Lines Luxury Liner
. . . blazing sky giant jolted to stop as landing gear gave way

17 Flee From EAL Plane After Fiery Landing Here

By CHARLES TAYLOR
and JAMES BUCHANAN

An Eastern Air Lines Super G Constellation caught fire seconds after it took off from Miami Saturday but veered back for a safe landing before crumpling into a fiery heap when its landing gear collapsed.

Twelve passengers and five crewmen, bound non-stop for Detroit on Flight 704, slid to safety down a canvas emergency chute as flames engulfed the right side of the four-engine airliner.

More than a dozen pieces of fire fighting equipment battled for nearly an hour before subduing gasoline-fed flames that all but burned away half of the 2.5 million dollar luxury airliner.

An Eastern spokesman said the plane might be a total loss. An investigation began immediately to determine the cause of the engine fire.

One of the passengers, 69-year-old Henry Fiedler, suffering from a year-old back injury, was taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital for observation, and Mrs. Helen Wallace, of Detroit, received minor burns sliding down the canvas chute.

Eleven of the passengers, however, were put on another Eastern flight to Detroit two hours after the spectacular 4:20 p.m. mishap.

Hero of the emergency landing was the plane's pilot, Capt. J. W. Rush, of 6200 SW 133rd St.

Rush, notified by the control tower at Miami International Airport that his right inboard engine was on fire when the plane was barely airborne, wheeled the big ship through a steep 180-degree left turn.

He set it down on a paralled runway in the opposite direction just a mile from the one he used to make his west-bound take-off.

The Eastern plane took off on the same runway and used the same flight path as a Braniff Airways DC7C which crashed into the Everglades last March 28, killing nine of the 24 persons on board.

The Braniff plane, like the Eastern Constellation, had a fire in the No. 3 Engine. But the Braniff pilot turned his plane to the right instead of the left to make his emergency return to the airport, then lost altitude and crashed.

The Civil Aeronautics Board last week blamed the Braniff pilot's failure to maintain altitude during the emergency for the crash.

Bright flames and thick black smoke streamed from the stricken Constellation's right wing and from under its belly as it landed.

His hydraulic brakes burned out and unable to reverse his propellars effectively, Capt. Rush coasted the lumbering plane to a bumpy stop just off the east end of the field's south runway.

There, just as it rolled to a halt on rock-stubbled ground, the right landing gear crumpled, tilting the airliner crazily onto its flaming wing.

While fire trucks spewed chemical foam onto the flames, passengers escaped from the left side of the airplane.

The passengers were on the ground three minutes after the plane was airborne at

Pilot Shrugs Off Hero Tag; 'No Time to Get Nervous'

By BOB HARDIN
Herald Staff Writer

Pilot Jim Rush sat in Eastern Air Lines' "VIP" room Saturday, and shrugged off a hero's tag.

Across the airfield, his giant, hump-backed plane was still tilted crazily on one flame-charred wing.

"There wasn't any time to be nervous," he said. "Were you nervous, Bob?"

"About 15 minutes afterwards, I was," co-pilot Bob Harkness laughed.

The flame-etched action on Flight 704 to Detroit took only four minutes to live. It took five times that long to re-construct.

"We were about 150 feet up when I noticed we were losing power in number three engine," Rush said.

A second later, the tower radioed: his engine was on fire.

"They said to come in on any runway," he said. "I took the quickest way down."

That was a steep, 180-degree bank to the left that brought the big three-rudder plane down in the opposite direction on an adjoining runway. The plane took off at 4:21 p.m. It was down at 4:24.

"I never had any idea we wouldn't get down safely," said Rush, brown-haired, poker-faced veteran of 22 flying years.

"There wasn't any time for me to say anything to the passengers. I told the tower 'to have equipment meet us.'"

RUSH

HARKNESS

Passengers took the news quietly, Stewardess Wanda Carr said. "There was no panic at all."

Rush guided his Super G Constellation down fast, to get as much runway space as possible. That may have been a life-saving move.

"When we touched down, our brakes were gone," he said. "I reversed the engines, but it wasn't very effective."

The plane rolled on, off the edge of the runway, and the right wheel collapsed.

Stewardesses Carr and Pat Tharpe tossed out a canvas escape chute that is not unlike a playground slide. The passengers slid out as siren-screaming fire equipment raced up.

Miss Tharpe, shoeless by now, Harkness and Flight Engineer Russell Eshbach, helped the passengers as Miss Carr checked the cabin.

Rush was the last off the burning plane.

"He sure earned the respect and thanks of the crew," Harkness said.

Ike Declares U.S. Will Never Accept Khrushchev's Plan

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Eisenhower solemnly told Russia Saturday the U.S. never will accept Premier Nikita Khrushchev's plan to turn East Berlin over to the East German Reds May 27.

Eisenhower was reported to have given this notice during a 1¾-hour meeting with Deputy Soviet Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan.

The White House conference, climaxing Mikoyan's two-week visit to this country, ended with no sign of concession by either side on Berlin, Germany or disarmament.

Despite this, informed officials predicted a Big Four foreign ministers conference will be held sometime this spring before the date Russia has fixed for ending four-power Berlin rule.

The 63-year-old Mikoyan, relaxed and smiling, went immediately to the Soviet embassy. Presumably, he will draft a report to the Kremlin on his round of talks. First, however, he went for a drive in Washington's Rock Creek Park.

His morning meeting with Eisenhower capped 11½ hours of talks with administration leaders, four of them directly with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

In view of the continued East-West deadlock, Eisenhower was understood to be banking heavily on Mikoyan's personal insight into U.S. policy, gained by his talks and travel, to pave the way for what this government regards as a more reasonable attitude.

Authorities familiar with Mikoyan's talks said that despite his relatively mild language, he reaffirmed Russia's Berlin plan while disclaiming any thought it should be considered a peace or war ultimatum.

Eisenhower and Dulles were said to have met this by re-emphasizing that the U.S., with pledges of solid backing by its allies, will refuse to accept Soviet moves to scrap international agreements on Berlin's status.

Informants gave this point-by-point summary of the outcome of the confidential discussions with Mikoyan:

A SUMMIT MEETING — Neither side mentioned this, despite Mikoyan's advance public remarks urging a high-level conference without any formal agenda.

A BIG FOUR MEETING — No effort was made to set the time, place, or agenda. But U.S. authorities expressed confidence a foreign ministers meeting would be arranged.

DISARMAMENT — Dulles stressed there is an urgent American desire for an East-West ban on nuclear weapons explosions, provided adequate inspection is included. Eisenhower and Mikoyan agreed that modern armaments impose a crushing financial burden on governments.

GERMAN ELECTIONS — Mikoyan vigorously denounced the idea of free elections.

Sun-Shy Mikoyan Ditches Us

By ELVALEE SWIFT
Herald Staff Writer

Anastas I. Mikoyan, Russia's No. 2 man, abruptly canceled plans Saturday to visit Florida, reportedly because he feared too much sunshine.

An embassy spokesman in Washington said the Soviet Deputy Premier decided he might catch cold if he came here and then went directly back to Moscow's sub-zero winter.

Mikoyan was to be here Wednesday and Thursday after a fast look at Tampa and a tour of the citrus belt of Polk County.

Jubilant members of an anti-Communist refugee group, Guardians of Liberty, ditched plans for protest Miami demonstrations when they heard of Mikoyan's cancellation.

The group, made up mostly of Hungarians, was to meet the Kremlin leader dressed in black, driving cars draped in black and carrying crosses.

They also had fashioned a black coffin to present to Mikoyan.

Mikoyan's fears about balmy Florida weather were well founded, Miami weathermen said. If he arrived Wednesday, as scheduled, the cold snap would have been only a memory.

In Washington Saturday, temperatures skittered down to 10 degrees and the snow was turning to ice.

In announcing his change of plans, Mikoyan also said he will leave for Moscow three days earlier than he had planned. He will attend a Washington reception given by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov Monday and leave Tuesday.

Archbishop Joseph Patrick Hurley of the St. Augustine diocese had suggested mass bell-ringing in defiance of Mikoyan's visit. A diocese priest said Saturday he thought the plans had been abandoned.

Oh, Well, When It's Gotta Snow, It's Gotta Snow

Cold-Numbed East Busy Digging Out

NEW YORK —(AP)— Intense cold numbed much of the eastern half of the nation Saturday on the heels of crippling snowstorms in parts of the Midwest and East.

Emergency crews took advantage of clearing skies to dig through snowdrifts that halted auto production and closed schools in northwestern Indiana and stalled traffic in western New York state. Snow forced suspension of racing for the second straight day at Charles Town, W.Va.

Parts of Michigan were buried under four to 18 inches of snow.

A state of emergency was ended at noon Saturday in South Bend and Mishawaka, Ind. Brisk winds had whipped an 18-inch snowfall into mountainous road-blocking drifts throughout the area.

Stores reopened with the end of emergency status but the Studebaker - Packard Corp. plant and University of Notre Dame remained closed. The main roads and streets were reopened after an all night battle with the drifts.

New York state had at least eight traffic deaths attributed to the storm. An infant died of exposure in Georgia when the mercury fell to 12 degrees at Athens.

Five-foot drifts stalled traffic on South Buffalo's Fuhrmann Boulevard along Lake Erie shoreline. Many cars remained bogged down overnight.

The snowfall was reported 21 inches on the level near Pulaski, N.Y., east of Lake Ontario.

Highways were slippery and travel was hazardous in parts of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Millinocket, Maine, and Tallahassee, Fla., had identical temperatures of 34 degrees Saturday afternoon.

But upper areas of the Midwest bore the brunt of the Arctic blasts. Bemidji, Minn., had an overnight low of 30 below and midday readings in northern Minnesota were 12 to 16 below zero. The subzero afternoon cold extended southward into Iowa.

Sorry, But-- Warmup's In No Hurry

To the discomfort of the natives, chagrin of tourists, and outrage of hotelmen, the Weather Bureau said Miami's cold is in no big hurry to warm up.

"Not quite so cold tonight," was the best the forecaster could say. "Maybe we'll reach respectable 70-degree weather Monday afternoon."

The crop-withering cold expected early today could mean real trouble to farmers farther north.

As the mercury nosedived sharply, the Federal-State Frost Warning Service figured on freezing levels as far south as the lower East Coast farmlands.

The temperature was expected to skid to 15 degrees in pockets and mucklands in North Florida.

Locally, the forecaster pegged the low at 40 on the Beach and 32 to 36 in the suburbs and Dade farmlands.

"Scattered frost is likely," said forecaster Banner Miller, "but it won't be killing."

Telephone Operator Wins $800

Sunny Helps Pay Doctor

By SUNNY FORTUNE

A 50-year-old Miami telephone operator with a broken leg and a collection of doctor bills won my $800 jackpot last week.

SUNNY

Mrs. Mildred Eysmont, of 742 NW 52nd St., said she started working the Sunny Fortune puzzles when she broke her leg nine months ago.

"But I never thought I'd win," said the flabbergasted woman. "I'm so surprised I think I'll drop dead."

I talked Mrs. Eysmont out of any such drastic reaction and praised her for getting the word "NEAR" in last week's puzzle where so many others missed and put "NEAT."

Incidentally, that was the only word missed by Patty Motta, Miami; Edward Zwicker, North Miami, and H. F. Keller, Titusville.

I've been swamped with opinions about the new puzzle as compared to the old, and frankly, readers, so far it looks like a toss-up.

Some of you have complained the new one is too easy.

If that's the case, dig in. I'm willing to give you $300 if you solve my puzzle this week. It's on page 14C.

3 Attempt To Burn Laundry

Fire Fizzles: Guard Bound

By BOB HARDIN
Herald Staff Writer

Three armed and masked men trussed up a laundry night watchman at gunpoint late Saturday, then drenched the inside of a big cleaning plant with gasoline in an attempt to burn it.

But the fire they started fizzled out.

Fire inspectors said there was little damage to the DeLux Laundry and Dry Cleaners, 341 NW 36th St.

The taped-up watchman, Steve Nash, 58, crawled on his side through a back alley to get help.

The owner of the laundry, Henry Hodges, said he had "an idea" who might want to burn him out.

"But I don't want to comment on it now," he said.

Hodges said he had no union troubles.

Firemen found three empty 10-gallon gasoline cans in the building.

The night watchman said the three men, each wearing a bandana over his face and a hat, entered the block-long laundry about 10 p.m.

"They said they didn't have anything against me," Nash said, "but they said they were going to burn down the place."

Nash said the three men carried him to the alley behind the laundry and taped up his legs.

"I asked them if they were going to leave me there," he said. "At first they said they were going to take me with them.

"I was scared of what would happen if the place would have burned up."

Nash crawled and kicked about a quarter block through the alley before he got help at a neighbor's house.

Said Fire Chief N. E. Ward: "This situation is just like burning gas in your car. If the mixture is too lean it won't catch and if it is too rich it won't catch."

On arrival, firemen found the chared remains of what Ward said apparently was a cardboard box.

Plumbing Inspector Arrested

An ex-North Miami Beach City councilman, watched by hiding Metro detectives, was arrested as he accepted marked money, police reported Saturday.

On the complaint of the North Dade Plumbing Co., David Augustus was arrested as he took a wad of $20 bills from M. W. Phillips, who works for the firm.

The official charge as listed by the state attorney's office is "receiving unauthorized compensation."

Phillips told state attorney investigators that Augustus had come to him early in January and asked for $5 for each plumbing application he approved.

Augustus, 43, of 1065 NE 160th Ter., is free on $1,000 bond.

At the time of the arrest, Thursday, he was North Miami Beach's plumbing inspector. Shortly thereafter, he resigned.

Augustus, who was a member of the town's council from 1950 to 1955, could not be reached for comment.

Airport Firemen Wash Down Blackened Wing of Wrecked Plane After Crash

4:21 p.m., an airline spokesman said.

"We took the quickest way down. We couldn't waste time," said the cool-headed Rush.

Co-pilot was R. P. Harkless. The other crewmen were R. E. Eshbach, flight engineer, and Stewardesses Pat Tharpe and Wanda Carr.

The Eastern plane was between 500 and 800 feet off the ground when Rush started his circle back to the airport, standing the plane on its left wing to keep the flames from the right side away from the cabin.

A control tower observer said Rush "didn't say much when he was coming in. I guess he was busy. But he told us to have the fire equipment ready."

Trucks from the Port Authority's fire station at the airport, Miami, Hialeah, Miami Springs and Dade County rushed to the scene of the flaming plane.

Some witnesses said there appeared to be a shortage of foam to douse the fire. They said when the flames were almost out, they suddenly broke out again.

But the Port Authority fire captain said "we didn't use all of the foam we had on hand."

One of the passengers, former Detroit fire commissioner N. S. Shapero, said:

"I never saw the efficiency that was displayed after the mishap by the crew and the firemen. Because of that, we are safe."

33 on Plane Safe After 5-Hour Scare

KANSAS CITY, Mo. —(UPI) — A Trans World Airline Super Constellation screeched to a smooth and safe belly landing over a foam covered runway Saturday after the fate of the 33 persons aboard hung in the balance for more than five hours when the landing gear failed to function.

Sparks spewed out behind the huge craft as it glided along for 2,000 feet with fire trucks and ambulances racing alongside, but there was no fire and no one was injured.

The first passenger off said, "it couldn't have been a better landing if we had been on wheels."

Demos Are Snagged On Convention Site

NEW ORLEANS — Six members of the Democratic Party's site selection committee, stalemated on choosing a city for their 1960 party caucus, recessed Saturday for a night on a town that isn't even in the running.

The committee, headed by Camille Gravel of Alexandria, La., met from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday in a secret session to pick one of six hopeful U. S. cities—including Miami Beach.

They had planned another session Saturday night, but after a hotel banquet, a reception and a tour of New Orleans' French Quarter, the delegates were "ready to call it a night," Gravel said.

Gravel said they will resume their meeting this morning and decide today.

Four cities kicked up their bids to $350,000 cash. In addition to Miami Beach, they were San Francisco, Los Angeles and Philadelphia.

But Gravel declined to say that New York and Chicago have been eliminated from the running. New York earlier bid $300,000 and Chicago "at least" $250,000.

Gravel would not give a hint as to what cities are still in the running—or if any have been eliminated.

Cuba Frees Woman as Informer

MATANZAS, Cuba —(UPI) — Revolutionary justice relented Saturday and freed Juliana Munoz Garcia when persons who accused her of informing for Batista agents refused to testify in court against her.

Capt. William Galves, who rejected her sobbing plea for mercy last week and said, "she must die," personally signed the order freeing her, at least temporarily.

Mrs. Munoz, 42-year-old hospital secretary and mother of two boys, was accused of giving agents of former Dictator Fulgencio Batista information that led to the slaying of two teenage boys in Matanzas. Her accusers said she informed for $15-a-week.

But when investigators sought witnesses to appear before a revolutionary tribunal against her, they declined although they had leveled the accusations earlier.

Her case had brought worldwide attention when a picture of Galves rejecting her sobbing plea for life appeared in foreign newspapers.

Mrs. Munoz returned to her home town of Yumuri after she was released from prison Saturday.

Like 50 others released in Matanzas in the last two days, her only bond was her "word of honor" that she would appear immediately to answer any fresh charges that might be brought against her.

Last Saturday she was brought face-to-face in prison with Capt. Luis Castillo Fornaris, the man who allegedly shot the two teenagers she was accused of exposing.

She admitted knowing him but she cried hysterically that she only had pointed out the house where the teenagers lived and had not informed on them.

Castillo went into the house and shot one boy, according to his accusers. Later, told he had shot the wrong one, he returned and shot the other and then invited the father for a drink at a local tavern, his accusers said.

The incident was reported to have turned the entire city of Matanzas against Batista.

National Summary

Another cold morning is in store for the eastern half of the nation with below freezing temperatures extending over most of Florida and sub zero cold from the northern plains south of the Great Lakes into Pennsylvania and New York State.

Today, however, should find warmer weather from the eastern slopes of the Rockies into the plains and the Gulf States reaching the Carolinas with partly cloudy skies spreading from the southern plains across the Gulf regions.

Snow flurries from the Great Lakes into New England with locally heavy squalls along the lee shores of the lakes will maintain near blizzard conditions in upstate New York.

Fair skies are expected to continue over the southwest but the pattern of scattered rains in the Pacific northwest may spread a few showers into northwest California.

Scattered snows are expected in the high central Rockies with occasional light snow from eastern portions of the plains into adjacent portions of the mid and upper Mississippi Valley.

Temperatures at Tallahassee stood at 34 degrees shortly after noon Saturday for the frigid blast covering the eastern half of the nation was just beginning to fasten its grip.

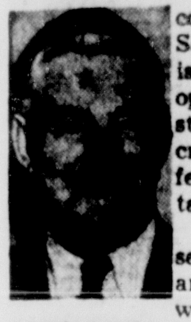
Senator Sees State Opposition to Gas Tax Hike

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Sen. Pat McNamara (D., Mich), newly appointed chairman of the Senate public roads subcommittee, said Saturday there is considerable opposition in the states to any increase in the federal gasoline tax.



McNAMARA

President Eisenhower has announced he will ask for an increase in this levy, now three cents a gallon, as a means of keeping the big highway construction program on a pay-as-you-go basis.

McNamara told a reporter Michigan officials have told him they oppose any such boost, and he said he knew many other states take the same position.

"The states must rely on the gasoline tax for their road financing, and they don't think the federal govrnment should add anything more to the load" McNamara said.

The Michigan senator said he would conduct early subcommittee hearings on progress in the roadbuilding program, particularly the 40,000-mile interstate system of superhighways. Washington pays 90 per cent of the cost of this system.

One of the key problems to be looked into, he said,, is the future financing of the construction program which still has about a dozen years to run.

Landlord Evicting Crying Triplets

CLIFTON, N.J. —(AP)— Because their landlord gets upset at crying children, the parents of newly born triplets have received notice to vacate their apartment.

Mrs. George Famy gave birth to triplets last Tuesday at St. Joseph's Hospital. Now their landlord of three weeks has asked them to leave.

Mrs. Anthony Oswald, owner, summed it up this way:

"When we agreed to rent an apartment to Mr. and Mrs. Famy three weeks ago, we knew she was expecting a child. But three is too many."

She added that her husband, who suffers from a heart condition, "gets very upset when he hears children cry. He'd be back in the hospital in a few weeks."

Deposed GOP Chief Rides High

By Herald Wire Services

REP. JOSEPH W. MARTIN JR. isn't the most important Republican around the House any more, but he has the newest, shiniest, biggest Cadillac.

Congressional sources said it cost the taxpayers $11,000.

The shiny, air conditioned, chauffeur-driven limousine complete with white wall tires purred up to the Capitol during a snow storm. It was something of a surprise to some House members.

Only last Monday the House in a burst of generosity and good fellowship decided that Martin should continue to be provided with a chauffeur-driven limousine even though the Republicans had decided to dump him as their leader.

Royal Driver Bogs Down

Queen Elizabeth
. . . driving trouble

QUEEN ELIZABETH, like any other lady driver, is proud of her prowess behind the wheel and likes to be independent of the sneering menfolks.

She paid for it when she took her son, the Prince of Wales, for a private tour of the royal estate at Sandringham in one of the royal family's station wagons.

She had not gone far when she got stuck in a two-foot snowdrift.

Rock 'n' Roller Hits Hard Times

JERRY LEE LEWIS, rock 'n' roll singer, has fallen on lean days since he was booed out of England, he told a judge in Memphis after being hauled into court by his former wife, Jane Mitcham Lewis, 22, who says he is $1,850 behind in his alimony payments.

Jerry said his income was way down due to the cry of "cradle snatcher" raised in England last May when he took his 13-year-old cousin bride to London on a personal appearance tour.

The former Mrs. Lewis said she was due $600 a month in alimony. Lewis' two children, in her custody, get $50 a month.

Oscar Winner Identified

Flames Sweep China Village; 1,500 Homeless

MACAO — (UPI) — A huge fire has destroyed the barracks homes of more than 1,500 Chinese in a rebellious Communist commune within sight of this Portuguese enclave off Red China. Sources said sabotage was suspected.

Chinese nationalist sources with connections on Lappa Island, the commune on the west river dividing the mainland and Macao, said the Communist authorities arrested a number of residents of the "work factory" after the blaze. Casualties, if any, were not known.

The flames swept through 10 to 12 grim barracks, each of which houses 150 Chinese in the commune.

It was the second known tragedy in the commune, one of the few close enough to the West to allow the outside world a glimpse of life in the ant-colony-style communities decreed by Communist Leader Mao Tse-Tung.

Last month, residents of the Wanchai commune on Lappa revolted against the Communists and a two-hour battle flared between the workers and Communist troops. The civilians were no match for the soldiers. Shortly afterward, Macao residents could see public executions taking place.

Quemoy Hit Again

TAIPEI —(AP)— The Chinese Communists peppered the offshore islands with light artillery fire Saturday—sending more than 193 rounds by Nationalist count.

Justice Has a Heart, Long-Time Fugitive Learns

NEW YORK —(AP)— Joseph J. Hogan has found that leading a good life does pay off. He also discovered that a public agency has a heart.

Hogan, now 52, has been a fugitive for almost 32 years. In 1926 he stole a car in Cleveland. Sent to a federal road camp at Alderson, W. Va., in 1927, he escaped after serving three months of a three-year sentence.

Hogan got a job and married. In World War II he served as a tank driver and was awarded the Silver Star. Five years ago his wife died. Since then Hogan has been both father and mother to his five children.

Last month the FBI seized Hogan as a fugitive. He was sent to the Federal House of Detention.

Hogan appealed to the Legal Aid Society for help. Attorney Bernard Moldow took the case. Moldow went before U.S. District Judge Archie O. Dawson and cited a proclamation issued by President Truman in 1945. Truman granted full pardon to any convict who served honorably in American forces for at least one year during World War II.

Dawson freed Hogan on his own recognizance, pending a hearing on a full pardon Monday. The hearing is regarded as a technicality.

Hogan, a roofer, went immediately to his apartment on the lower East Side to be reunited with his children—Carol Ann, 14, Barbara, 11, Joseph, 10, William, nine, and Margaret, seven.

Donna Marie Noe Gets a Big Hug
. . . from mother waiting surgery in Boston

Reunion in a Wheel Chair

Girl Returns to Stricken Mom

BOSTON —(AP)— Little Donna Marie Noe was restored to the arms of her ailing mother between tears and smiles at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Mrs. Lois Noe, 26, awaiting brain surgery for removal of a blood clot, held out her arms for the child who was taken from her 16 months ago by her estranged husband, Albert Noe, 30.

Then she reached down from her wheelchair and kissed her daughter for the first time since September, 1957.

The Noes separated in 1957 with Mrs. Noe obtaining custody of Donna Marie. The father was given the right to visit her weekends. The weekend of Sept. 5, 1957 Mrs. Noe said her husband took the child and vanished.

Donna Marie's whereabouts was not known until a few weeks before Christmas when a card arrived which indicated Donna was staying in Denver, Colo., with her uncle, Edward Noe, a respected salesman and father of eight children.

By this time Mrs. Noe was unable to travel due to her illness. Her seven sisters pooled their resources and their mother, armed with legal documents from Massachusetts courts which gave custody of Donna Marie to Lois, flew to Denver.

The Denver Legal Aid Society assisted Mrs. Noe's mother when she arrived there Thursday. The Edward Noes, who subsequently said they had not been given the full story by Albert Noe, objected to giving up the child, but a Denver district court judge quickly honored the Massachusetts decree.

Withdrawal Comes First

HARTFORD, Conn. — (AP) — Police and FBI men filled the bank lobby shortly after a hold-up man escaped with $14,376.

Outside, a man rapped on the door. "Let me in, I have business with the bank," he told a guard. When asked what was his business, the man said he wanted to make a deposit.

"Someone just made a withdrawal and you'll have to wait," a spectator in the crowd said.

Barrymores Fail To Reach Pact

SANTA MONICA, Calif. —(AP)—A Superior Court Judge will work out a temporary alimony agreement between John Barrymore and his estranged wife because they couldn't do it.

A week ago Judge Edward R. Brand told the young actor and Actress Cara Williams to try and reach a settlement privately—and if they couldn't, let him know. Saturday they admitted failure. Judge Brand said he'd decide the matter in a few days.

The actress is seeking temporary alimony pending trial of a separate maintenance suit. The couple separated last September after five years of marriage.

Polish Girl Shrugs: 'Things Are Better'

To protect the girl involved, certain identifying factors in the accompanying dispatch were deliberately changed by the writer. However, the basic facts are the same and the story protrays vividly life today in the Russian satellite which enjoys the most "freedom."

Can It Be Worse?

Things are better in Poland now. They could not have become much worse for this Polish girl who fought back first against the Germans, then against the Russians until the 1955 rebellion. She had survived a death sentence in a German concentration camp and 43 months in a Russian prison. She was resigned, but somewhere within her was the longing, without real hope, for the freedom lying to the West.

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT
Herald Staff Writer

WARSAW — The blonde Polish girl shook her head sadly.

"No, there is no more underground resistance movement in Poland.

McDERMOTT

"We Poles are tired. For years we fought back — against the Germans, then the Russians.

"Although we still are under Russian domination, things are better now. They have been since the rebellion in 1955."

This is Poland today, the freest nation in Russia's Iron Curtain domain, yet a country where the people are virtual prisoners.

The girl shrugged her shoulders in resignation.

"Yes, things are better. If they weren't, do you think I would talk to you out in the open like this?"

We were seated in a dimly lit smoky coffee house off the square where the "old city" of Warsaw has been reconstructed just as it was before being wiped out by World War II bombings.

She seemed like a girl. In reality, she was a lady — an attractive, middle-aged woman who had survived a death sentence in a German concentration camp in Czechoslovakia and the ordeal of 43 months in a Russian prison.

Her death sentence resulted from her underground activity. Her brother was shot for his part. The war ended too abruptly for her execution to be carried out.

Imprisonment in Russia was something else. She and her husband had simply been friendly to English-speaking foreigners.

The Polish lady longs for the freedom which she knows lies to the West. She has relatives in the U.S. and friends in England.

Her English friends include two wartime fliers whom she smuggled past the German gestapo after they had been shot down near the Russian border.

"Yes, I would like to leave and go to freedom . . . where life is secure. I tried once. The (Communist) government agreed to give me a passport for a visit. But they would not permit me and my husband and our two little girls to go at the same time.

"They knew we would not come back if we all left together."

Again she shrugged her shoulders, sipped on her coffee.

"Yes, they are better.

"We don't have secret police watching us all the time. We have freedoms. We have more goods in our shops — but most of the nice things are too expensive for us to buy.

"We have our music," she said softly, that same sad smile flashing across her face.

"Our children are being taught in the schools the Communist teachings. My own little daughter — she is now 14 — told me just the other day it is impossible for one store to have all the things which it is said can be bought in an American department store.

"We Poles try to keep our children from being taken in by Communist propaganda. But some of it seems to rub off on them."

She then told of her one-room apartment where she, her husband and the two daughters live. They share a kitchen and bath with another family.

"The future?

"Who knows?" she declared. "We hope for better things. But no matter what happens, they cannot change our desires . . . or our music."

3 Auto Dealers Veto Sunday Closing

By STEPHEN TRUMBULL
Herald Staff Writer

Efforts of the Miami Automobile Dealers Assn. to hold the line for Sunday closing appeared short of success Saturday.

In the face of a 27 to 2 vote of the members of that group to drop from the association rolls all who fail to close Sunday, three major dealers say they will be open today.

In addition to Anthony Abraham, who has refused to close all along, Luby Chevrolet — distributors of the same car, and Tom Caldwell, Studebaker distributor, will be open today.

"We're just a little business and I can't afford to be a little martyr," Caldwell said. "I was for it when I thought all were going to close."

Said Abraham: "We have enough interference in private business by the government without more of the same from a trade association. Sunday is the only day in the week when a husband, his wife and the children can shop together for such a major purchase as an automobile."

Sam Luby, Jr., said his company will be open today but he declined to comment further.

Both Caldwell and Abraham said they have sent in their resignations as members of the association. Luby said that "as of now" he hasn't resigned.

Members who are closing have voted to do "everything possible" to persuade the used car dealers to close.

Frank Edelen, president of the trade association, said there will be no formal expulsion notices. They will merely discontinue mailings of daily sales reports and other bulletins to the Sunday-opening members.

When He Sneezes, Everything Happens

SAN BRUNO, Calif. — (UPI) — Herbert D. Shaffer, 47, sneezed and as a result: his big dirt-hauling truck smashed into a fire hydrant, flooding an intersection; smashed the front of an office building; knocked down two street signs and struck seven cars.

Police said that when Shaffer sneezed his head snapped forward, striking the steering wheel and knocked him temporarily unconscious. No one was hurt.

Inauguration Set

CARACAS, Venezuela — (UPI)—Leaders of Venezuela's political parties have agreed on Feb. 12 as the date of President-elect Romulo Betancourt's inauguration.

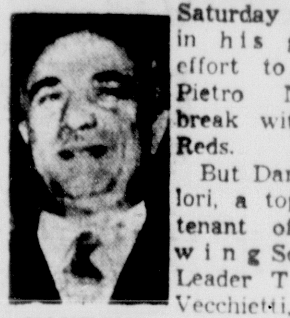
Reds Lose Out in Italy



FANFANI

NAPLES, Italy — (AP) — A leader of the pro-Communist wing in the Italian Socialist Party all but admitted defeat Saturday night in his group's effort to block Pietro Nenni's break with the Reds.

But Dario Valori, a top lieutenant of left-wing Socialist Leader Tullio Vecchietti, indicated his side would not abandon its battle to restore an alliance between the Socialists and communism. The battle could bring a wide-open rift in the Socialist Party, Italy's third largest.

Valori told the Socialist Party Congress meeting here he did "not repent for the fight we started because our aim has been to try to avoid absolute emptiness within the party."

He said it appeared the congress "has decided we were wrong."

"But," he added, "the future will have the ultimate word."

Valori, who has been head of the party's organizational apparatus, said he would leave that post because he could not get along with Nenni. He said he hoped his successor "would be more successful."

There were some at the congress who thought Valori's resignation might be a prelude to a party walkout by the left wing in the event of an overwhelming Nenni victory in the voting today.

The outcome of the struggle could have a major impact on Italian politics.

Amintore Fanfani's coalition government of Christian Democrats and anti-Communists have been barely squeezing by just short of a parliamentary majority.

Air Traffic Up

BARCELONA, Spain —(AP)— Air passenger traffic in Europe increased by 10 per cent last year and the world traffic figures went up 5 per cent compared to 1957, the Air Research Bureau has announced.

At 13, Cary ran away from home and joined an acrobatic troupe. Long one of Hollywood's top movie personalities, the handsome star loves kippers for breakfast, plays right-handed golf and left-handed tennis. Cary was christened Archibald Leach but had his screen name legalized in 1942 when he became a U.S. citizen. The actor, among filmdom's best-dressed men, once owned two haberdasheries. He began on Broadway as a singer in musical comedy.

Goes Down the Line for Ike's Budget

Dirksen to Fight Demo Spending

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen of Illinois said Saturday he is going down the line for President Eisenhower's 77-billion-dollar budget.

DIRKSEN

But Dirksen conceded in an interview that he may not have the full support of Senate Republicans in trying to head off what he said is likely to become a spending splurge by the Democratic-dominated Congress. Eisenhower is sending his detailed budget proposals to Congress Monday.

Dirksen said he will fight against going beyond Eisenhower's budget figures for airport expansion, area redevelopment and housing. He said he will back the administration's views on labor anti-racketeering legislation.

All four of these subjects have been marked for early Senate consideration by Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas.

"It is a fair assumption that these programs, as they are developed by the Democrats, will be very substantially greater in terms of money than the administration will propose," Dirksen said. "I certainly intend to speak for the administration when they are brought before the Senate.

"Once you get away substantially from the President's budget recommendations the tendency is to go even further. Congress is likely to say at some point 'we've already made a big hole in the budget, so why not go further?'

"We face the choice between planned deficits to stimulate the economy or holding the fiscal line and thus giving the greatest incentive to private enterprise to take up any slack in the economy."

Dirksen said the geographical appeal of some of these programs on which Johnson has called for action may make it difficult to maintain solid party position behind the President.

He said, for instance, that the area redevelopment program is of special interest in Illinois, where mining has been abandoned in some areas with resultant unemployment and business stagnation.

Democrats sponsored a 280-million-dollar outlay last year for development of new industries in such areas. Eisenhower vetoed it. Dirksen said the Commerce Department had completed a resurvey of the need and had recommended what he called a well rounded program which would cost only about 50 million dollars.

Husband Puts His Foot Down

DERBY, England — (UPI) — Sidney Brown, 35, charged with speeding, told the court that while driving he was having an argument with his wife.

"I decided to put my foot down firmly and it went on the accelerator," he explained. The court fined him $14.

X-Ray Unit Moves Into South Dade

The mobile unit of the Dade County Tuberculosis Association moves into South Dade Monday for a four-month chest X-ray survey in areas from Homestead through South Miami.

The free X-rays will be offered at two locations this week. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the unit will be stationed at the Homestead Clinic, 49 W. Mowry St. Daily hours will be from 9 a.m. to noon and from 2 to 5 p.m.

Thursday and Friday the X-rays will be offered at the Ace Theater in Homestead from 5 to 8 p.m.

In addition, a special mobile X-ray unit of the Florida State Board of Health has been assigned to Dade County for the month of January and will continue its survey of migrant workers at nine migrant camps in Goulds, Princeton and Peters.

The state unit has completed surveys at 10 migrant camps since Jan. 6.

Gotta Week? Mayor'll Sign It

By JOHN MORTON
Herald Staff Writer

If the mayor winds up with his right arm in a cast, you can blame it all on National Pickle Week — or Chobee Ebbetts Day.

HIGH

As first citizen, of Miami, it's the mayor's proud task to scribble his name on the countless proclamations which are put up for official recognition.

I'm asked to sign them by the dozen, Mayor Robert King High said Saturday, "but I'm not sure my signature adds much impact to the nationwide observance of National Hot Dog Week."

Some he even refuses to sign because they might offend just as many people as they please — but these have to be pretty far-fetched.

Some of the documents that made the grade heralded:

Youth Foot Care Week, Emergencies Don't Wait Week, Cleaner Air Week, National Lath and Plaster Week, Stand for Correct Posture Week.

The Spanish-speaking mayor even puts his Alcalde High on such proclamations as Dia de Colombia en Miami.

One of the real gems praised a fictional character for his "leadership of American youth of three generations."

If you want to know who it is, it's that feller standing next to Tonto.

Occasionally, a flesh-and-blood hero is lauded. Take Chobee Ebbetts, for instance. Chobee was selected as one of 10 national finalists in the Howdy Doody search for the "most winning American smile."

And serious occasions come up, too, like Flag Day, Constitution Day and Multiple Sclerosis Week.

"If it is an occasion worthy of recognition by our citizens," the mayor said, "I'm deeply complimented that the city can help."

"If he wants a test, High will have to proclaim it:

Nationwide Mayors' Keep Your Hands in Your Pockets Day.

At 99, He Needs Wife

COLUMBIA, Mo. — (UPI) — J. W. Atkins, 99, says he can cook, but he's getting tired of it and would like to find a wife, about 65 to 70, in good health, who would do the cooking for him.

Atkins also said his future wife should be stout and even-tempered.

"I enjoy living and want to live longer," he said, "but it sure gets lonesome when you have no one around to think about you or talk to you."

The Tip Off

Thrifty Miamians Beat Cold Snap

PRICE-CONSCIOUS Miamians have figured one way to beat the cold snap. They've been snapping up old railroad ties from along the tracks which parallel South Dixie Hwy. Hundreds of wood ties which have been replaced are strewn along the bed, many broken into fireplace-chunk size.*

SOME MIAMI POLICE are grumbling about costly equipment being provided co-workers in the undercover intelligence unit — such as new trucks for surveillance work — while they themselves can't get approval for minor items like flashlights.

In the State

CONSERVATION AGENTS are planning a statewide expansion of the recent Miami "crackdown" on operators of unlicensed boats equipped to fish in salt water. Less than 45,000 boats, about one-third of the estimated 150,000 salt water craft in Florida, have been licensed.

Milton to Speak To Alumni Here

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University, will speak at a meeting of the South Florida Alumni Association of Johns Hopkins in Miami Jan. 30.

The meeting will be held in the Sky Room of the Dupont Plaza Hotel beginning with a reception at 6:30 p.m.

Since becoming president of Johns Hopkins in 1956, Dr. Eisenhower has made numerous visits to alumni groups throughout the country.

He's a Gent To the End

CHICAGO — (AP) — A divorce was granted to John K. Lawrence, 48, who testified his 98-pound wife, Annabelle, had beaten him three times.

Mrs. Lawrence, 39, charged her 170-pound husband with cruelty in a countersuit for separate maintenance. However the Superior Court jury decided in favor of Lawrence's complaint of cruelty and desertion.

Sol. R. Friedman, Lawrence's attorney, explained the beatings this way:

"While he was strong enough to retaliate, he was gentleman enough to walk away from her and not strike back."

Turncoat To Go Free

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Army Turncoat Claude J. Batchelor, sentenced in 1954 to 20 years in prison for helping the Communists after his capture in Korea, will go free March 18.

The Federal Parole Board announced that Batchelor would be released after serving four years and five months of his term, which was reduced to 10 years after the original sentence.

Batchelor, 26-year-old native of Kermit, Tex., was one of 21 Americans who refused to return to the U.S. in the prisoner exchanges at the end of the Korean fighting. But he later changed his mind and returned to South Korea, where military authorities arrested him on the collaboration charges.

Floridian Raps Rogers For Advice to Negroes

OCALA — (UPI) — Former House Speaker C. Farris Bryant demanded Saturday that U.S. Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers either resign or retract a statement urging Negroes blocked from voting to try again so the government can pile up evidence of civil rights violations.

Bryant, an Ocala attorney and potential candidate for governor in 1960, wired his protest to Rogers with copies to Florida Senators Spessard Holland and George Smathers.

Under the law, he said, the Attorney General's jurisdiction and responsibility is to "prosecute crimes, not incite them."

"While I firmly believe in the inherent right of every citizen, regardless of race, color or creed, to exercise his voting privilege, I condemn your unprecedented action in openly seeking and promoting litigation through the medium of the press, television and radio," he said.

"Regardless of whether your action was in good faith or an attempt to justify the existence of the Civil Rights Commission, it is apparent that you have failed as a responsible head of the Department of Justice and a retraction of your statement or your resignation would be a service to our country."

Kimono Loan (Own Unsewn)

TOKYO —(UPI)— The future empress of Japan will be married to Crown Prince Akihito this April in a borrowed kimono.

Both Akihito and his commoner bride-to-be expressed the wish that the marriage be held as soon as possible.

For this reason, there will be no time to make a special kimono for Michiko Shoda, 24-year-old daughter of a wealthy flour mill executive. So she will wear the same kimono worn by Akihito's sister, Princess Teru, when she was married.

MICHIKO

AKIHITO

The royal crown also will be borrowed for the ceremonies. Miss Shoda will use the same crown worn by Empress Nagako when she married Emperor Hirohito.

The Cabinet has set the wedding date at around April 10. Officials said it would be a "simple" affair with only about 600 guests present.

The next day will begin three days of nationwide celebrations headed by a series of imperial banquets at the palace with some 3,000 guests invited.

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Novelist Thomas T. Chamales has paid a $150 fine for disturbing the peace, a charge that stemmed from an argument with his now estranged wife, Singer Helen O'Connell.

Chamales was placed on probation for two years. He and Miss O'Connell separated after the argument Nov. 17. She has a separate maintenance suit on file.

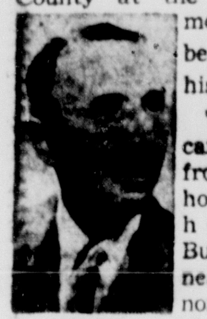
Dade Population to Hit 1,200,000 in Month

* * *

UM Estimate Is Highest in County's History

By PHIL FORTMAN
Herald Staff Writer

More people — an estimated 1,200,000 — will be in Dade County at the end of next month than ever before in Dade's history.



Wolff

The prediction came Saturday from Dr. Reinhold P. Wolff, head of the Bureau of Business and Economic Research at the University of Miami. It was based on a number of barometers including the emergence from business recession in other parts of the country.

At the same time, a Herald survey of municipal officials and utility experts indicated Dade's permanent population has skyrocketed to approximately 900,000.

That's about 100,000 less than the one million permanent population predicted by Richard (Dick) Roberts, vice-president of the Florida Power and Light Co., for April, 1960. That's when the U.S. federal census takers perform their 10-year nose counting chore.

Roberts and Wolff disagree on when the million permanent mark will be reached. Wolff says based on his economic evaluations it won't be reached "until sometime in 1961."

"But if April, 1960's federal census shows us with a million permanent residents I won't be flabbergasted," Wolff added.

Wolff's prediction of a new record peak of 1,200,000 people in the county in this year's late-February early-March period links Dade's approximately 900,000 permanent residents with an influx of about 300,000 tourists he expects in the area at that time.

The last previous all-over "people peak" in the county was about one million in past "good-winter business seasons," Wolff said.

Saturday's latest survey of permanent population showed approximately 275,000 residents in the unincorporated areas of the county.

The remaining 625,000, or thereabouts, on the basis of the Herald survey, is in the county's 26 incorporated cities, towns and villages.

A comparison of those latest population estimates compared with those of the last official 1950 census follows:

City of Miami	335,000	249,276

The First Faint Beat—"That Was the Thrill!"

His Hands Held a Heart: A Life Was Saved

By JOY REESE SHAW
Herald Staff Writer

The strong, sure hands rested easily now on the white-clad knee — hands that had held a heart.

Suddenly, for just an instant, they seemed caught up in a sort of glow.

Maybe it was just a shaft of light. Or maybe it was just imagination. Still . . .

The heart they'd held belonged to Albert Brussman, 55. Upstairs, somewhere else in the hospital, it was ticking away steadily. But only days ago, it lay deathly quiet.

The hands — these particular ones — belonged to Dr. David Roth, 26, first-year surgical resident at Jackson Memorial Hospital. He had held a man's life in his palm — and won.

But they might have belonged to any of the hundreds of Miami medics who daily battle for life.

David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Roth, 1036 SW Third St. He studied and interned at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, and when the time comes, he wants to be a neurosurgeon. Right now he's on emergency duty at Jackson, 24 hours on — 12 off.

"I was asleep when they called me," young Dr. Roth said. It was the early morning of Jan. 9.

Brussman, a carpenter of 240 Albatross Ave., Miami Springs, had slammed his car into a tree. His jaw and ribs were fractured. He was in shock.

In the emergency room at Jackson, a team of doctors and nurses worked diligently. Moments after Dr. Roth arrived, the accident victim was gasping for breath. Then he stopped breathing completely.

Quickly Dr. Roth acted — an incision and a tracheotomy tube.

Then, in a flash it dawned on Dr. Roth. When he had slashed the throat for the tube, there'd been no bleeding.

He felt for the pulse. Nothing. He listened for a heart beat. None.

"Get out of my way," he said tersely.

Three firm, swift movements of the knife across the chest and the doctor's hand was inside, warm between the ribs.

The fingers cupped around the heart, he squeezed it against the rib wall in a rhythm he hoped was 60 times a minute.

What does a human heart feel like?

"A little like dough, I guess. It was pretty taut. When it's flabby, that's bad."

Then came the first faint beat — the movement throbbing within his fingers.

"That was the thrill!" said the doctor. "At that instant all the years and all the study and all the weariness became worth-while."

On the battle went, for 15 minutes "but when you feel that first beat, you know you stand a chance."

All the while it was teamwork, one doctor breathing into the tracheotomy tube, another making a leg incision for blood transmission, another on the telephone calling surgery to make ready.

The dark-haired young man told of his visit to the patient in the recovery room.

"I was worried. I didn't know what to expect. I wasn't sure exactly how long the heart had been out of proper action. Up to seven minutes you're pretty safe, but there can be brain damage after too long a stoppage . . ."

The patient opened his eyes and smiled. His first words?

"How you feel, doc?"

Dr. Roth sat very still, remembering the stillness of that moment.

Then:

"Everyday, Miami doctors are doing more heroic, more skillful things than this," he said. "Not always as dramatic — but just as important."

He walked down the long corridor toward the door, one man in one hospital, in one city.

OFFBEAT
with Joy Reese Shaw
MIAMI

Nearly 300 emergencies a day, and this had been only one of them.

A stocky man in a soiled yellow pullover and battered breeches panted up.

"Thanks, doc—! sure wanna thank you . . ." He jogged the doctor's memory. "I fell unconscious on the street and you saved my life. I'm going now . . ."

He twisted his cap and shuffled: "There's one thing, doc. I ain't got a quarter to get home.'

David Roth grinned and reached into his pocket.

He held out a quarter.

This time it was certain.

There was a sort of glow about the hands.

Grim Prophecy Came True; Boy Drowns in Pit

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

Folks who lived around a half-mile-wide sand pit in North Miami often warned that a child would drown there someday.

Saturday, their grim prophecy came true.

One minute, 13-year-old Gary Peterson of 1525 NW 122nd St., was laughing and shouting as his crude raft, made from two abandoned 50-gallon drums drifted across the deep excavation near NW 26th Ct. and 135th St.

The next minute, he was struggling in stagnant, chilled water while his young friends stood on the shore — not sure whether to laugh or scream.

Then he was gone.

According to Billy Cape, 10, of 2360 NW 132nd St., Gary and half a dozen other boys had been playing and fishing at the side of the pit—under dredging by Florida Silica Sand Co., Inc., until Dec. 1 last year—when they decided to make a raft of the drums.

Gary straightened a silver-painted safety helmet on his head and climbed aboard, waving a branch he intended to use as a paddle.

Several of the other boys helped shove the makeshift raft toward deeper water. Suddenly the cold north wind caught Gary's craft and it drifted slowly toward the center of the pit.

"What if the cops should come?" one of the boys shouted.

Gary laughed off the warning and dug into the choppy water with his tree-branch paddle. But the raft drifted out of control.

Then he dropped the branch.

"Everybody was laughing," Billy said, "then Gary yelled for help. But we didnt' know if he was kidding.

"When he started to go down, some of the bigger boys jumped in and swam for him — but he was gone before they got there."

The construction worker's helmet, which had fallen off in Gary's struggle, floated over the spot where the boy went down.

Hours after 4 p.m. — when the raft foundered — police divers were still searching for the body.

James E. Kerns, 2390 NW 133rd St., who was summoned from his house by the frantic boys, spoke bitterly but helplessly about the incident:

"We've tried over and over to get them to clean up the construction and fence off that pit. But it hasn't done any good."

Kerns, leader of the neighborhood group which protested against operation of the pit, said, "I've got a little swimming pool in my yard and I have to have a certified fence for it.

"But they can leave that gaping hole completely unattended," he added. "It isn't right."

Port Concession Winner Seized in Gambling Raid

Three Days Gone

Jury Still Hung on Gun Death

After more than three days of deliberation, a Federal Court jury Saturday was still unable to reach a verdict on the 1957 controversial gun death of Miami auto dealer Harry Ablon.

The jury — 11 men, one woman — will pick up the case again at 9:30 a.m., Monday, in Judge Emmett C. Choat's south courtroom. They have been out since Thursday morning.

From trial evidence, they have been attempting to decide whether the shooting was murder, suicide or accidental.

The 51-year-old former Dayton, Ohio, resident was found shot to death — a bullet through his left temple — Sept. 12, 1957, after his car rammed into a home at 2180 NW 90th St.

Police investigators have contended Ablon's death was a suicide, but the victim's family has challenged this theory. They claim Ablon was killed either by accident or murder.

The jury's decision will affect an insurance policy judgment. Ablon's widow is suing an insurance firm for $70,000 double indemnity benefits on one of her husband's policies which has a face value of $35,000.

'Alfie' Looks Like Bad Bet For Concession at Airport

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

The odds, unavailable in all bookie parlors today, are 10 to 1 that swarthy, graying Alf Mart will lose his lucrative airport concession.

Even George McSherry, Port Authority director, hurriedly backed away from Mart Saturday. Only two months ago—after secret negotiations — he strongly backed Mart for the sundry store contract.

"There is a morality clause in the contract whereby we can cancel the concession," McSherry said Saturday. "If the facts are substantiated, I'm sure the commission will cancel it. I will recommend it."

His words put it mildly. Other commissioners are for booting out Mart immediately.

Saturday the law smashed a Miami Beach hotel room door, found Mart and three others with three phones and a plentiful supply of scratch sheets, and carted them to the hoosegow for bookmaking charges.

On Sept. 17 The Herald exposed a bookie operation at the Mart-owned Alfie's on the Beach. But under McSherry's guidance the commissioners voted 6-5 to give Mart the sundry store concession anyway.

At that time McSherry said his own privately-hired investigators found the evidence "inconclusive."

Late Saturday, however, the investigators — George R. Wackenhut and Gene Charters —said differently.

"Our report said 'go-slow,' 'danger,'" said Charters. "I don't see how anyone could recommend Mart on the basis of our findings. I don't think it was 'inconclusive.'"

McSherry pointed out then that Miami Beach police should "do something" if anything was illegal.

Four hours after the Saturday raid, Beach police still knew nothing about it. Other law agencies handled it.

Metro second-guessers were quick to theorize that Mart will give up the contract himself — before anyone has a chance to toss him out.

But Mart's lawyer, Ben Cohen, promptly hit the ceiling. Reached at his Eden Roc Hotel cabana, Cohen stormed, "Haven't you ever placed a bet? You newspapers are trying to rule the world."

Cohen declined to say what, if anything, he would recommend to client Mart.

Alex Gordon, one of the six commissioners who voted for the Mart concession, quickly about-faced.

"It just shows that sometimes you're crazy to stick your neck out," he said. "I freely admit I was in error. I am going to move to cancel the contract at the first meeting."

Gordon said he voted for the contract on McSherry's statement that his investigation was "inconclusive."

Ralph Fossey, who also voted for Mart, cloaked himself the under the no-coment shelter. Others, Chuck Hall, John McLeod and Faris Cowart were unavailable for comment.

When one Metro official was phoned, his little boy said, "Daddy says he is out of town."

Dade Traffic Toll Jumps 3 Notches

By EDDIE GONG
Herald Staff Writer

Dade County's 1959 road toll jumped three grim notches Saturday with the fatal injury of a 74-year-old man and the deaths of two earlier accident victims.

Albert Hicks, 74, of 1036 W. Flagler St., was killed when a car in which he was riding smashed into the rear of a farm truck on NW 103rd St. just east of the Palmetto Expressway.

Metro Accident Investigator Fred Fuqua said Harold Francis O'Connor, 44, also of 1036 W. Flagler St., was driving west on 103rd about 3:30 p.m.

His car piled into the rear of the truck, whose operator, William T. Johnson, 53, of 2980 NW 65th St., was making a left turn from the center lane. Hicks, O'Connor's passenger, died instantly.

Fuqua said 50 gallons of molasses, the truck's cargo, splattered over both vehicles and the road.

The detective said he would file a manslaughter charge against O'Connor "who had been drinking to the extent of being incoherent."

O'Connor was treated for a head wound and Johnson escaped without injury, Fuqua said.

The other two deaths, which pushed the year's total to 10, were:

Roland Schaff, 43, of 9560 NW 32nd Pl., who was injured when police said a car stolen by a Negro crashed into his car at NW 10th Ave. and 20th St. Jan. 10. Schaff died in Jackson Memorial Hospital.

Weldon W. Elliott, 27-year-old airman stationed with Miami International Air Depot's Squadron 2585, who plowed into a light pole at W. Flagler St. and 87th Ave., Jan. 6.

ALBERT HICKS, 74, passenger in a car which crashed into the rear of a turning truck.

CAUSE: A Metro investigator said the driver had been "drinking to the extent of being incoherent."

For Whom Death Tolled:

Mart Was Subject Of Herald Expose

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

Alfred Mart, who won a rich airport terminal concession despite a Herald story that showed one of his stores was a bookie joint, was a surprise catch Saturday in a lightning gambling raid at a Miami Beach hotel.

Jailed on bookmaking charges with Mart were two companions and the switchboard operator at the Commodore Hotel, 1360 Collins Ave.

Officers armed with a search warrant, kicked their way into a two-room suite at the hotel and collared the three men, surrounded by telephones, scratch sheets, betting pads and $1,000 in cash.

The raid came after a four-day investigation by an agent who posed as a hotel-guest.

Mart, 42, of 1211 100th St., Miami Beach, became a shadowy figure in Dade County politics after Metro commissioners granted him the variety store concession at the new airport terminal.

Recommended by Post Director George McSherry, the award was made in the face of disclosures that a Herald reporter placed horse bets at "Alfie's," one of Mart's two Miami Beach stores.

After The Herald's expose the grant was held up pending a private investigation by McSherry.

But McSherry gave Mart a clean bill of health and the Metro Commission, which sits as the Port Authority, approved the concession 6 to 5 on Nov. 20, 1958.

Last October, the Dade Grand Jury severely chastised the Port Authority for its handling of the deal.

MRS GOODMAN

Following his arrest Saturday, Mart maintained a poker face and at times seemed on the verge of tears. He shielded his face from photographers with a handkerchief and a newspaper.

When questioned by investigators he at first gave a phony name. His real identity wasn't known until after he was taken to the county jail and required to produce identification.

Arrested with Mart were Charles Kaminski, 50, of 735 15th St.; Benjamin Gardner, 44, of 1819 Meridan Ave., and Mrs. Ella Morgan, 51, of 1385 Pennsylvania Ave., all of Miami Beach.

The three men were charged with bookmaking and operating a gambling house and later released under $3,000 bond each.

Mrs. Morgan, the switchboard operator at the hotel, was charged with conspiracy to violate state gambling laws. She was released under $1,500 bond.

Engineering the raid were detectives William Whitacre and Joe Gorman of the Metro Public Safety Department; agent Ed McCollum, of the attorney's office and the Florida Hotel and Restaurant Commission.

McCollum said bets were placed through the switchboard via a code signal.

Bettors called the hotel and asked for "Room One." The calls were transferred to Room 207 where the bets were taken.

Shortly after the first race got underway at Hialeah Race Track, McCollum led the raiders to Room 207, kicked in the door and burst into the room.

"You're all under arrest," he barked.

The three stunned men surrendered without protest. Mrs. Morgan was picked up at the switchboard.

Down in the lobby, small groups of guests continued to play cards unaware of the excitement upstairs.

Minutes later a reporter asked the card players what they knew of the raid.

"In this hotel?" one asked incredulously. "Bookmaking . . . I don't believe it."

They also expressed surprise that an investigator, acting as an undercover agent, had been posing as a guest at the hotel for four days.

An official of the Hotel Commission said the operator of the Commodore, Mrs. Judith Goodman, is under investigation for possible revocation of her hotel license.

Questioned by The Herald, she denied any connection with the gambling suspects.

"I just rent rooms. I don't keep track of my guests' business," she said.

The Commodore, a small South Beach hotel, is frequented mostly by elderly guests.

In the police records Mart listed himself as a "salesman."

Nov. 2—Alfred Mart: "No bookmaking was going on at my place."

Jan. 17—McSherry: "I'm sure the Commission will cancel (the contract). I will recommend it."

Enforcement, Publicity Cut Iowa Traffic Deaths

DES MOINES —(P)— Massive doses of law enforcement and publicity, prescribed by Iowa's traffic doctors, saved 95 lives on the streets and highways of this state last year.

Let's Stop Killing Ourselves

They consider their prescription only partly successful — but they believe they've found a formula for a more potent medicine.

The traffic toll in Iowa was 595 last year as against 690 in 1957 — a fall of about 17 per cent. That was the largest reduction in the midwest and one of the biggest in the nation.

Besides saving lives, it has sharply trimmed the economic losses of Iowans. Many auto insurance companies have cut their rates for Iowa.

The state's chief traffic diagnostician, state safety commissioner Russell Brown, credits these factors for most of the decrease:

1—A "point system" under which the safety department assessed varying numbers of points against persons convicted of traffic violations. When a motorist accumulated 10 points, his license was suspended.

2—Use of radar speed detectors on the highways — the first time radar had been used for traffic control in Iowa.

3—"Excellent cooperation" of newspapers, radio and television stations and the wire services in publicizing traffic problems and the activities of law enforcement officers.

4—Unrelenting efforts by the State Highway Patrol, county sheriff's officers and city police to enforce the traffic laws.

None of these is new, Brown admits, but they added up to a fairly effective program for Iowa.

There has been no favoritism shown in operation of the point system. Brown himself lost five points when he was caught exceeding the speed limit in Des Moines. Atty. Gen. Norman Erbe, Maj. Gen. Fred C. Tandy, adjutant general of Iowa and state comptroller Glenn Sarsfield also have points on their records.

But Iowa can't afford to rest on its laurels, Brown said. If further gains are to be made, new ingredients must be added to the medicine.

"You can't concentrate on just one thing in traffic enforcement," he said. "That is like holding a tight bandage over one cut while your life blood spurts out another wound that you can't even reach."

In Iowa, that second wound is the 90,000 miles of rural roads. While lives were being saved last year on primary highways and city streets, deaths on secondary roads took a jump.

Brown has asked the legislature to beef up the State Highway Patrol so it can patrol the secondary roads. He says the patrol needs at least 150 more men. It now has 250, excluding driver license examiners, and that means only about 80 men — fewer than one per county — can be on the road at any one time.

He also wants a law requiring completion of a state-approved driver education course before a person under 18 years old can be licensed. Under present law 16-year-olds are eligible for a license.

Blast Kills 3 Workmen

PITTSBURGH —(P)— Three workmen were killed Saturday in an explosion at the nearby Duquesne works of U.S. Steel Corp.

A company spokesman identified the victims as Albert Chorey, 34, of Port Vue; Homer W. Maley, 57, of Duquesne, and Petra Jenca, 59, of Duquesne.

The victims were working in a pig machine building of the blast furnance department.

A company spokesman said a ladle of molten iron apparently upset, touching off an explosion of some type.

The blast apparently killed the three men instantly. Nobody else was in the building and there were no witnesses.

Eight-Story Addition Rising at Mt. Sinai Hospital
. . . 417-Bed structure on Collins Isle, Miami Beach, to be ready in October

Dade Building Hospitals But Not Fast Enough

Patients Wait In Line for Beds

Downtown Miami traffic jams have little on the congestion in hospitals here.

The winter's rush — "the season" — is truly here. It's on in the sick bays as well as at the beaches.

Hospitals are so jammed right now that a daily head count shows more "in" patients than the official number of beds available.

Jackson Memorial, for example, had 972 patients going into this weekend. The hospital actually lists only 857 beds.

But to meet the urgent demands, temporary beds have been set up in the hallways, on the sun porches and in already crowded semi-private rooms.

It's not that Dade county is going through an epidemic. The hospital situation today is getting to be routine for the hard-pressed doctors, nurses and other medical attendants.

* * *

THE SIMPLE FACT is that hospital expansion has been unable to keep pace with Greater Miami's fabulous growth — especially when the chilly winds of mid-winter whip across the Northland to send thousands of persons fleeing toward Florida's sunshine.

Steve McCrimmon, immediate past president of the State Hospital Association, said that "from now until May 30, every hospital in the area will be jammed up tight."

Surveys show an acute shortage of nearly 2,000 hospital beds here.

Almost a year ago, the Miami area had 3,053 beds when the need, based on population estimates of more than 800,000, showed 4,609 should be available.

Since then, thousands of new residents have arrived while the number of hospital beds has remained static.

* * *

THIS IS NOT to say that nothing is being done. To the contrary, virtually every hospital in South Florida has expansion programs in the works.

The Metro county commission has plans for a referendum this year at which time voters will be asked to approve a $5,000,000 hospital bond issue.

Construction of the new 246-bed Baptist hospital on North Kendall Dr., is slated to begin by Feb. 1. Plans are on the drawing boards for another Baptist hospital with 400 beds to be built within the next 30 months near the old Miami Country Club, just off NW 12th Ave.

The county-owned Jackson hospital, biggest in Florida, is expanding virtually on a month-to-month basis.

Doctors' Hospital in Coral Gables has bids out for a 60-to-70 bed addition. Victoria hospital, in the downtown northwest section, has an addition scheduled to be up next summer.

* * *

METRO COMMISSIONERS are pushing for a new hospital in the north part of the county, up in the 163rd st. area. They also hope the proposed bond issue will make possible the construction of a large new hospital at Kendall, in the south county.

Mount Sinai, on Miami Beach, is in the process of building a new hospital to replace its present structure.

All Broke Up But Lucky

TUCSON, Ariz. — (AP) — Lt. George Craig considered himself a lucky man despite three broken vertebrae, a broken left arm, two smashed ankles and multiple fractures of both heels.

Craig, 30-year-old National Guard officer from Tucson, bailed out of his crippled F100 jet. He jerked at his parachute cord. The chute failed to open.

He continued to work frantically to free the chute during a fall of some 1,400 feet. Then, just before striking the ground, the chute flared.

Craig said his plane faltered on takeoff, then burst into flames about five miles south of the Tucson Municipal Airport.

'Dear Mr. Mikoyan: Please Let My Cousin Die in Peace'

By BOB HARDIN
Herald Staff Writer

From a Miamian named Ivanoff to a Russian named Mikoyan:

"Let my cousin die in peace, out of prison."

That message, Professor Albert Ivanoff conceded Friday, "is a long shot."

But it is Ivanoff's only hope for his elderly cousin, who was jailed as a Red political prisoner in Iron Curtain Bulgaria 10 years ago.

Ivanoff, a University of Miami professor of German, sent the Russian deputy premier a plea for life.

Saturday he learned the Russian embassy got his letter.

"Whether Mr. Mikoyan saw it or not, I do not know," Ivanoff said.

Mikoyan's whirl-wind U.S. tour was to bring him here before he canceled the trip late Saturday.

"I wish I could talk to him," Ivanoff said. "My Russian isn't fluent, but we could understand each other."

The life story of Neofit Tsakov, Ivanoff's first cousin, took a critical turn 10 years ago.

"He was editor of a religious weekly in Sofia," Ivanoff said. "He and his wife, Kina, also wrote children's books. They wrote nothing political."

But Tsakov was arrested "along with others of the intelligensia," Ivanoff said. "For two years, we did not know what had happened to him."

Ivanoff, who came here from Bulgaria in 1934, wrote to Mikoyan of Kina: "Now she is gone: died of a broken heart, they say."

Ivanoff's letter to Mikoyan adds: "He has committed no crime. There has been no indictment, no trial. He has been held in prison for no apparent reason.

"He is old, he is ill.

"Let him die in peace, out of prison. Here is a favor which will cost you nothing and earn you untold gratitude."

The letter closed, "Hopefully yours."

Berserk Floridian Shoots Two Women

SAN FRANCISCO —(UPI)—Two women welfare workers were in critical condition in San Francisco Hospital Saturday as a result of a Florida laborer's wild shooting spree in the crowded office of the Department of Public Welfare.

The women, Miss Mairi M. Pitcaithley, 25, and Mrs. Evelyn Hageman, 37, both of San Francisco, were both seriously wounded when Joseph Socomis, 28, fired nine bullets from a .22 revolver after having been refused welfare money to travel to Florida.

Socomis, identified as an unemployed laborer from Merritt Island, Fla., was accompanied to the welfare office by his wife.

Witnesses said Socomis' first shot hit Miss Pitcaithley in the chest and arm after she told him that she could pay him nothing unless he and his wife agreed to return to Florida.

Then he walked out into the main office and fired in all directions as men and women ducked under tables and chairs. Two bullets hit Mrs. Hageman, one in the chest and one in the shoulder.

His gun empty, Socomis leaned against a wall and waited patiently until arrested.

Socomis said he and his wife came here Thursday from Seattle with only $20 and a battered car to their name. He said they wanted to go to Florida, but had been refused money.

Firms Pay Tax Early to Cuba Rebels

HAVANA —(AP)— The finance ministry said Saturday North American and Cuban business firms are voluntarily paying taxes in advance to help the revolutionary government.

The ministry said many companies, without being asked, had paid levies which ordinarily are not due until March. More than 1½ million dollars has been paid by North American companies alone, the ministry said.

The over-all figure was believed to be about three million dollars. Sum said in by North American companies include:

International Harvester, $125,000; First National Bank of Boston, $175,000; First National City Bank of New York, $100,000; United Fruit Co., $500,000; Nicaro Nickel Co. a U.S. government corporation subsidiary, $375,000; Crusellas Co., a subsidiary of Colgate-Palmolive Co., $300,000:

The Cuban-owned sugar mills of Jobabo and Jatibonico also have paid in $350,000.

The finance ministry earlier had announced it faced a difficult situation because a public debt of 2½ billion dollars had been left by the Batista adminstration.

Bad Man Outside

BOSTON — (AP) — As some 400 patrons watched "The Man Inside" at the Oriental Theater a man outside — in the lobby — escaped with a cashier's strong box containing $300.

Phones Coming To Telephone

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Telephone, Tex., is about to get telephone service for the first time.

The Rural Electrification Administration recently approved a loan of $358,000 to the Win-Tel Telephone Co. Inc., of Windom, Tex., to improve and expand service in rural areas of Fannin County. Among the expanded services will be a new dial exchange at Telephone—(pop. 250 in 1950).

King Ordered To Cut Smokes

COPENHAGEN, Denmark—(AP)—King Frederik, a chain-smoker, has been ordered to cut smoking to one cigaret a day, court sources said.

The king has been bed-ridden since Christmas Eve when he injured a lung during a coughing fit. King Frederik in the past has smoked between 40 and 50 cigarettes a day.

Here's a Problem for School Board —Should It Give Old Santa the Boot?

The Dade County School Board has a ticklish problem: Should it eliminate Christmas celebrations from the classrooms?

One mother who is concerned about the effect of Christmas celebrations on the Jewish child says that the present system of leaving Christmas planning up to the individual classes "has satisfied none."

"We have learned that 'just a little bit of Christmas' is not enough for many Christians and too much for many Jews."

The school board is getting ready to discuss complaints such as these.

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Education Writer

Should the Dade County School Board fire Santa Claus?

Inside Your Schools

Whether it should or not, now is as good a time as any to tackle the question. School Board members have decided.

With Christmas 11 months away, they are getting set to discuss complaints about the 1958 school holiday celebrations before the season sneaks around again.

One of the most articulate complaints comes from a mother who is concerned about the effect of Christmas celebrations on the Jewish child.

She writes that the present system of leaving Christmas planning up to individual classes "has satisfied no one."

"We have learned that 'just a little bit of Christmas' is not enough for many Christians, and too much for many Jews," she says.

"My oldest child, a nine-year-old in the fourth grade, came home with a Christmas gift she had made in school and tried unsuccessfully to hide it. When I inadvertently stumbled upon it, the child became hysterical.

"'What shall I do!' she cried. 'My teacher said she would kill anyone who showed the gift before Christmas.'

"I tried to soothe her, reminding her that we knew her teacher to be a gentle person . . . Then I said, 'We don't exchange gifts on Christmas anyway. Why not give us the present now as a belated Chanukah gift?' The real pain came out between sobs: "'Oh Mother, I don't feel like a citizen anymore!'"

Then, accusing the public schools of "functioning as a parochial school during the month of December," the mother suggests that Christmas programs be dropped entirely.

School officials take issue with the idea they are functioning as parochial schools. Their position is that Christmas has become a folk holiday as well as a religious observance and therefore doesn't necessarily interfere with anyone's freedom of religion.

Separation of church and state in the schools has long been a knotty problem for the courts. The first and 14th amendments to the Constitution have been interpreted to mean that neither Congress nor any state legal body can make any law "respecting an establishment of religion."

In Dade County, the problem is whether decorating Christmas trees and telling Santa Claus stories constitute religious observances. Christian groups are often the first to insist that they are not.

The recurring "Put the Christ back in Christmas" campaigns indicate how far they feel the secularization of the religious holiday has progressed.

Perhaps for the schools in Dade County, with its large Jewish population, the solution lies in a reversal of that slogan. The purely religious aspects could be left out, but Santa Claus has too important a place in folklore to be ignored completely, and the School Board is not likely to fire the jolly old character.

Whatever it does, or if it does nothing at all, you can be sure there will be complaints from both sides.

Miami Essay a Hit in Britain

Theresa Rivas Displays Scrapbook
. . . with clippings from English papers

By LAWRENCE THOMPSON
Herald Staff Writer

The words of a 15-year-old Miami girl carried across the sea and her message of freedom and friendship was heard loud and clear in England.

The girl is Theresa Rivas, who as a ninth grade student at Corpus Christi School submitted the winning essay on "What Mayflower II Means to Me."

The contest was sponsored by the local Society of Mayflower Descendants and by the Miami Junior Chamber of Commerce last year while the Mayflower II, a replica of the original ship, was here.

Theresa of 3128 NW 35th St., received a $100 prize, donated by Mrs. Mary Harrigan, Americanism chairman. Her essay was read at ceremonies as the Mayflower II went on its way—but the essay was not forgotten.

Mrs. August J. Dorr, of the Mayflower Descendants, thought that the essay could be used to cement Anglo-American relations. She and Theresa went to see D. C. Crichton, British consul here.

Crichton got busy.

And so it was that the essay was sent to England. After various officials conferred and debated, it was decided that the essay should be presented to the Furzeham Hill Secondary School for Boys located in the town where the Mayflower II was built.

With full coverage by British newspapers and the British Broadcasting Co., the ceremony was held in the Brixham Town Hall.

This is part of the report in The London Times:

"Brixton Town Hall was filled with keen excited children yesterday afternoon when the U.S. Consul at Southampton, Mr. J. F. Grady, paid a special visit to present to Brixham's school on behalf of the school children of Britain, the U.S. prize essay on Mayflower II.

"The essay contest winner was Theresa Rivas and when it was decided to present the essay to Britain as a goodwill gesture the Minister of Education suggested that one school should accept it on behalf of them all."

In sending clippings of the event to Mrs. Dorr, the local British consul wrote that the presentation was "an impressive occasion" and "a valuable contribution to the great cause of friendship between our two countries."

Law Permits Women to Lie

HARTFORD, Conn. —(AP)— The state of Connecticut recognizes woman's ability to remain the same age for several years.

Insurance Commissioner Alfred N. Permo, citing a 1957 legislative act, authorized life insurance companies to accept—if they want to—incorrect ages for women who seek insurance.

There's a limit, however. The law says women may be only three years older than they say they are.

New A-Powered Sub Launched

VALLEJO, Calif. —(AP)— The Navy has launched the Halibut, first atomic-powered submarine capable of firing a guided missile.

At Mare Island Naval Shipyard ceremonies, Rear Adm. Elton W. Grenfell described the vessel as "the greatest and most powerful individual submarine weapons system in any Navy in the world." Grenfell commands the Pacific Fleet's submarine force.

Group to Hear Rep. Hollahan

A state legislator and a realtor will be guest speakers before the Miami Beach Apartment House Association at 8 p.m. Monday at the Algiers Hotel.

George L. Hollahan Jr., state representative, will discuss the legislative changes to protect the apartment industry. Ben Zion Ginsburg, of the Miami Beach Board of Realtors, will talk on apartment operations and recommendations.

A Tale of Cornish Hens -- and Heering; Victor Borge Built a Business on Them

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

If you are confused at finding a story about funnyman Victor Borge in the financial section, save some of that confusion.

You'll need it for the rest of the story.

Because what started out to be a copper-riveted epic of Borge, world-famous pianist-comedian, somehow became a treatise on Victor Borge, businessman.

And a loose-jointed review of the Cornish hen situation.

It's all because Borge's enthusiasm for his Cornish hen farm suddenly spilled all over his cabana at the Deauville Hotel and washed away any hopes of an interview about "The Art of Comedy."

Howbeit, anyone who has a business that sells 40,000 Cornish hens a week must qualify as a businessman.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Borge is an astute businessman with a precise eye for saving a penny and making a buck—as you will learn.

* * *

Borge is in Miami where he is appearing at the Deauville (the only entertainer who ever peddled chickens while performing from the stage of that plush palace).

Fully intending to nail Borge for a hifalutin' piece on "Comedy as an Art Form," I found him sunning himself outside his cabana and debating with Gene Hogan, publicity maestro for the Deauville.

Gene wore an extremely heckled expression.

After the introductions were made, I started out with some question about how Borge effected the transition from serious-pianism to comedy.

"They should serve more Cornish hen here," he replied. "That's what I've been trying to tell this fellow. With Cornish hen you don't have to worry about customers who want just the center cut of beef; or serving it rare, medium or well done.

"I've got to teach these guys how to make money."

"Ummm," I politely ummmed, and tried again with a question on "Comedy as an Art Form."

* * *

"If you're going to write about the Cornish hen business," he came back with distressing firmness, "you should tell the people to beware of buying plain, little chickens that are passed off sometimes as Cornish hen."

The heck with it, I thought—so who wants to know about "Comedy as an Art Form."

"How did you happen to get in the Cornish hen business?" I asked. Borge smiled happily.

"Bought a farm in Connecticut five years ago.

"Connecticut is not good farming land unless you want to raise fieldstones so we started raising and breeding Cornish hens. Real, genuine Cornish hens — not plain tiny bantam chickens."

"What's the difference?" I asked most injudiciously and recklessly.

I got a stare which I shall not attempt to translate; all I warn is never ask him that question.

"What's the difference between a thoroughbred, fine race horse and a swaybacked mule? What's the difference between the Hope diamond and a piece of glass."

Now I wore that look which I first spotted on Mr. Hogan.

* * *

I learned all about Cornish hens and Victor Borge, businessman.

It's quite a business, with an investment of more than two and a half million dollars. Forty thousand hens are raised, picked, frozen, packed and shipped out of the ViBo Farm each week. Biggest of its kind.

"Must be profitable," I hazarded.

"Well, we're not losing as much as we used to. When I started out we shipped a few thousand hens a week. They cost me about a dollar each to raise and I got 72 cents then. If people knew about it, I then would have sold 10 times as much—thank Heavens, they didn't."

Suddenly he stood up and slipped on a robe.

"Come, we'll go to the kitchen and I'll show you my hens."

So we went to the kitchen where a crate of his ViBo Cornish hens were taken from a freezer. Each was individually boxed.

* * *

"Look at that," he shouted. "For a bulk customer they ship the hens individually packed in boxes that should go to retail stores for individual sales.

"There's no need for that. These packages cost me four cents each." He waved one menacingly. "Heads will roll for this when I get back . . ."

What else does he own?

Borge has a variety of interests which are valued in excess of three and a half million dollars.

There is a mink farm and the mink are fed waste product of the hens. He does a little farming.

In Denmark he owns apple and cherry orchards.

"Do you drink?" Borge asked.

I brightened and opined that on occasion I could be persuaded.

"Good," said the Dane. "Don't forget to buy Cherry Heering liquer. I sell them my cherry crop."

Folks, meet Victor Borge—businessman.

Saleswoman Is Here

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Something new has been added to door-to-door selling.

Women.

The eager youth who used to work his way through college year after year by selling brushes, pots and pans on the nation's doorsteps has been supplanted by the inflation-harassed housewife who is just trying to balance her family budget with a little spare time work.

Nearly half the vast army of 1,500,000 doorbell ringers dealing each in two billion to four billion dollars worth of merchandise from hairpins to refrigerators are saleswomen.

And many of the salesmen still plugging away are of a different sort than they were 25 years ago.

A large proportion of the men engaged today in direct selling of vacuum cleaners, fertilizer, vitamins, dog food and other items of armchair customers is made up of men over 60.

They are men who have retired from other jobs and are eking out pensions with income from door-to-door selling.

But these are not the only changes that have come over the direct selling field.

The techniques have changed, along with the personnel.

No longer is the "foot-in-the-door" system of selling tolerated by most selling organizations. The National Association of Direct Selling Companies, representing 250 major firms of the field, has laid down rules of etiquette for salesmen and saleswomen, and the foot-in-the door is strictly taboo.

"Direct sellers have replaced their one-time obnoxious 'foot-in-the-door' technique with such attractive devices as the free gift to the housewife, the home party plan, the pictorial catalogue and the prearranged call," said H. A. Schatz, president of the association.

An association spokesman said that as a matter of fact, many salesmen today are instructed to take a step back after ringing a doorbell, instead of a step forward.

This, he said, reassures the housewife that he is not going to barge in on her.

"Today's salesman is as different from the old, brash, high-pressure boy as today's traveling salesman is from the old-time traveling salesman," the spokesman said.

From the ranks of the vast army of salesmen who have patiently rung doorbells to earn their livelihood have come many famous men, including Arthur Godfrey, Billy Graham and Gary Cooper, Schatz reported.

King C. Gillette got his start as a door-to-door salesman. He had to. It was the only way he could sell his "crazy" new invention—the safety razor.

Burdine's Names New Ad Director

Charles H. Schmidt has been named advertising director for all five Burdine's stores.

Schmidt comes from John Wanamaker, Westchester, N.Y., where he has been advertising and sales promotion manager for the past two years. Before that, he was with B. Altman & Co. in New York for 15 years.

SCHMIDT

Schmidt, his wife and two sons formerly lived in Dumont, N.J., where he was active in civic affairs.

Swarm of New Plants On Planning Boards

NEW YORK — (UPI) — More new plants and industrial buildings are being planned now than ever before, Engineering News Record reported.

Although the immense backlog is "potentially explosive," the magazine reported, there is no indication right now that the boom will occur in 1959.

The magazine said an upturn in the rate industry is planning new projects started during the last there months. It called this the first concrete indication that the 30-month slide in industrial building contracts soon will end.

Proposed industrial buildings in the planning stage on Dec. 31, 1958 amounted to $17,100,000,000, the magazine reported. This is an all-time high and represents a $500 million increase during the final 1958 quarter.

S&L Associations Set Loan Record

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Federal Home Loan Bank Board said savings and loan associations loaned a record $1,054,000,000 in November, a record for the month.

The total was 37 per cent above the figure of November, a year ago.

Car Sales Start Off With Bang

DETROIT —(AP)— New car sales are off to a "bright start" in the new year that indicates a 10 to 15 per cent increase for the month of January.

Ward's Automotive Reports, the car industry statistical agency, summed up initial 1959 new car sales that way in its first sales report of 1959.

The agency said dealers sold 124,100 new cars in the Jan. 1-10 period for a daily rate of 15,510 as against 117,300 sales and a rate of 14,650 for the same period last year.

Ford was the big three's leader for the first 10 days with a 27 per cent increase in sales, Ward's said. No figures were given for General Motors and Chrysler.

Heavy gains were credited to American Motors and Studebaker-Packard.

Monte Carlo Open Again

The Monte Carlo Hotel on Miami Beach has reopened with an announcement that it was "closed temporarily for redecoration."

The 191-room hotel was closed in November when creditors threw it into bankruptcy.

Operating rights were sold by the bankruptcy court to Benjamin Kline and Abraham Savin for $20,000, wiping out approximately $112,000 in claims against the former operators.

The new operators have refurbished the hotel and appointed Harvey Weinberg managing director.

Labor Problems Threaten Industries in Week Ahead

Dow-Jones, Associated Press, United Press International

Chrysler Corp., which began closing down its automotive operations Friday because of a glass shortage, will produce no cars until Wednesday.

The shutdown will mean layoffs for some 23,000 of the company's 65,000 production workers.

The glass shortage was caused by the three-month-old strike at the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. which supplies both Chrysler and American Motors.

THE DUN & BRADSTREET wholesale food index tumbled eight cents last week to the lowest level in more than 14 months. The index now stands at $6.16, a decline of 22 cents in the past three weeks.

SINCLAIR OIL CORP. has offered a general wage increase of about 13½ cents to the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, which has served the firm with strike notices. The union had asked for a 25-cent increase.

C.I.T. FINANCIAL CORP. hastened to assure stockholders that Ford Motor Company's plan to resume new car financing will not put C.I.T. out of business. President Arthur O. Dietz pointed out that Ford, since 1938, has been barred by a federal court ruling from favoring any auto financing company, including its own. Ford is expected to sell 300 to 400 million dollars of debentures to finance a Ford Motor Acceptance Corp. similar to the General Motors financing setup.

'Which Party Doesn't Matter'

Advice to Retailers: Be Active in Politics

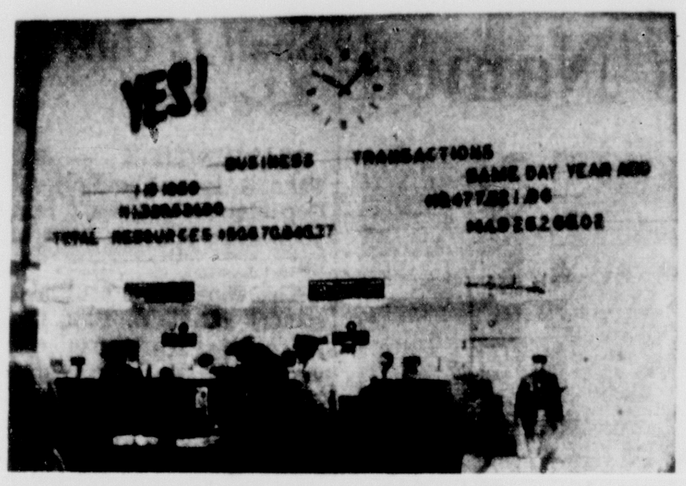
A top department store executive has urged that retailers become active in political parties.

"Be active in a party yourself," said Fred Lazarus Jr., board chairman of Federated Department Stores, in an address to the National Retail Merchants Assn. in New York.

Burdine's of Miami is a member of the Federated group.

"Urge the people in your store to be active, too," Lazarus said. "Whether you and they are Republicans or Democrats doesn't matter."

Lazarus, who received the association's gold medal for outstanding contributions to retailing, said retailers should engage in political activities so they can be "heard effectively on the political decisions that are reshaping the cities in which we live and do business."



BANKS ARE GROWING bolder in their promotional efforts to attract depositors. This striking presentation of growth at Central Bank and Trust Co. of Miami would have been unheard of a few years ago. The figures on the lobby wall are changed daily.

'Multiple' Competing Gnawing at Airlines

A Delta Airlines official has blamed the Civil Aeronautics Board for the uncertain future of the nation's airlines.

Todd G. Cole, Delta's vice president of administration and finance, told the New York Society of Investment Analysts that "the spreading cancer of unnecessary multiple competition gnaws at the vitals of airline economics."

Cole said the aviation industry "cannot develop in an orderly manner and attain investment grade status until an airline is allowed to protect its franchise against unlimited competitive certifications by rendering adequate service."

He said the CAB's practice of increasing competition on routes which already have adequate service has "played a major role in the deterioration of industry earnings and its standing in the financial community."

Delta was one of several airlines which protested when the CAB admitted Northeast Airlines in 1957, and three other airlines in 1958, to the lush Miami route.

Now Mom Trys It

NEW YORK — (AP) — Remember when sis used to get a kick out of dressing up in mom's clothes? Now, retail merchants were told it's the other way 'round.

"Mom is the one most apt to do the dressing up, or perhaps we should say dressing down," John W. Morgan of Dils Bros. and Co., Parkersburg, W. Va., told the annual national Retail Merchants Association convention.

"She is quite likely garbed as her ever-growing-taller offspring, and sometimes it's in clothes borrowed right out of her daughter's wardrobe."

Teenage girls have taken over in every phase of feminine fashion from ponytail hairdo to pointed toe flats, he added.

Oil Industry Maps Costly

BATON ROUGE, La.—(UPI) — The oil industry spends 14 million dollars a year helping to keep motorists on the right road by furnishing them with highway maps.

Some maps cost up to $20,000 even before they are sent to the printers. One Baton Rouge oil spokesman said that much money was spent to make sure the maps were kept up to date with the latest road changes.

Some of the larger oil companies here provide as many as 60 different maps.

Spell It Out: A-l-a-s-k-a

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Take it from the Post Office Department, you can't feasibly abbreviate Alaska. So spell it out.

The department's official directory of U. S. Post Offices for many years has carried under Alaska the notation: "Do not abbreviate." And officials said there is no plan to depart from this now that the territory has become the 49th state.

Alaska falls into a rather exclusive list of states which are never abbreviated by the post office. The others are Idaho, Iowa, Maine, Ohio and Utah.

The Poolroom on the Way Out

NEW YORK —(UPI)— The poolroom is rapidly vanishing from the North American scene and with it is disappearing the great game of billiards.

The big cities of the United States and Canada are the graveyards of the game of the cuestick and the ivories but the decline is well advanced in the small towns too.

The Department of Licenses says there are only around 325 poolrooms in New York City today, whereas in the 1920's and early 1930's there were several thousand. Brunswicke-Balke-Collender and other makers of pool and billiard equipment say there has been equal decline in all large cities.

In the hey-day of the two games' popularity, a champion at billiards like Willie Hoppe or a pool champion could make $25,000 a year — equivalent to at least $60,000 today — in prize money and exhibition fees.

Thousands of "pool sharks" made a living just shooting pool at not very high stakes. Today a pool room hustler is a rare bird.

Several things have helped to kill pool and billiards — the competition of bowling, promoted by the same manufacturers who make pool tables, the shady reputation many pool halls acquired because of their connection with bootlegging, gambling, dope-peddling and other crime, and, above all, the general failure of their proprietors to show business horse sense.

The bowling alley men, on the other hand, showed great initiative and drive. They raised money and built handsome, comfortable, well located establishments with parking space, snack bars and lounge rooms — while the pool hall remained a dirty, drafty, cramped den in a cellar or a loft approachable only by dingy disreputable looking stairways.

The bowling men advertised — stressing the physical exercise and the "togetherness" of bowling. They organized bowling leagues from church parishes, parents' groups, veterans and other clubs and factory and office leagues. They even put in nurseries for the kids in some of the larger bowling establishments.

Many pool halls, meanwhile, went from bad to worse.

They got so much worse that the movies and TV almost invariably portrayed the pool hall as the haunt of crime and the breeding ground of juvenile crime.

According to the table makers, pool and billiards till hold their own as games of skill in private homes and clubs.

But the pool hall probably is on its way to extinction— unless some bright promoter finds a way to reorganize the business and re-sell it to the public.

Same Old Freights On Tracks

NEW YORK—(UPI)—Alfred E. Perlman, president of the New York Central Railroad, has caustically contrasted government policy toward outer space with that toward the railroad industry.

He charged in a speech here that the recently liberalized national transportation act "is still as archaic as it was over a quarter of a century ago."

"We have made some progress with the transportation act of 1958," Perlman said, "but that progress is very small when one considers the road yet to be traveled if we are to achieve a healthy national transportation industry."

Noting that government polices have put rockets into orbit around the earth, the railroad executive said "yet we ride along and see the same old freight cars, the same old varnish on the passenger cars and begin to wonder why a little touch of that imagination hasn't rubbed off on the railroads."

Failures Soar

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Business failures across the U.S. soared to 321 in the week ended Jan. 8 from 169 the holiday week before and compared with 324 in the same week of 1958, Dun & Bradstreet reported.

It's Last Chance To Toss Confetti

MOBILE, Ala. — (UPI) — The nation's oldest Mardi Gras will have confetti trimming for perhaps the last time this year.

Mobile's city commission reaffirmed its intention to outlaw the chopped-up colored paper after Mardi Gras Day, Feb. 10. It said confetti is a nuisance to clean up and a health hazard since confetti is often picked up from the streets and hurled in the faces of parade spectators.

China's Women Push Progress

TOKYO —(AP)— Peiping Radio says women played a great role in Red China's "leap forward" last year.

The broadcast said 73 million women took part in tilling the fields, manning fishing boats and helping water conservation programs. Thus, it added, China's women broke away from "feudalistic notions" that frowned on their leaving the home.

Leading the State in Savings, Dividends Paid on Savings and Reserve Strength, As We Begin Our Second Quarter Century

The Federal Savings and Loan System of the United States observed its Silver Anniversary August 8, 1958. On that date, 25 years ago, First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Miami, holding United States Charter Number One, opened its doors to the public. That occasion marked the operational beginning, from an insignificant start, of what has now become one of the great financial systems of the world.

Under its United States Charter Number One, FIRST FEDERAL of Miami was the first and is the oldest member of this national system. During its quarter century of history this Association has become a 230-million-dollar mutual savings institution, largest in the South, and the 7th largest federal in the nation.

PROGRESS THROUGH 1958

Through good times and bad FIRST FEDERAL of Miami has served South Florida more than 25 years. Resources have grown as follows:

Dec. 31, 1933	$ 8,360	Dec. 31, 1948	$ 40,589,269
Dec. 31, 1938	11,692,773	Dec. 31, 1953	101,178,915
Dec. 31, 1943	18,785,577	Dec. 31, 1958	236,967,149

In 1958 savings accounts held by the Association passed $200,000,000. Mortgage holdings passed $190,000,000. These are all-time records for financial institutions having home offices in the State of Florida.

FIRST FEDERAL has also established an all-time state record for financial institutions in the payment of dividends on savings accounts. In the past 25 years net earnings have exceeded $50,000,000. Of this, a sum in excess of $32,000,000 was paid in dividends on savings, with $18,000,000 placed in reserves. In the year 1958 net earnings exceeded $9,000,000, of which more than $6,000,000 was paid in dividends on savings and $3,000,000 placed in reserves.

FIRST FEDERAL of Miami is believed to stand third among all the federals in the nation in the amount of its protective reserves; second or third among the larger associations in the country in the ratio of reserves to savings; and first among these larger federals in the accumulation of reserves in the year 1958.

The growth of FIRST FEDERAL reserves in 1958 is believed to constitute an all-time record for savings institutions in Florida. Larger resources increase our ability to serve the public, but are less important than strong reserves. The goal of every financial institution should be to yield maximum service, at the same time affording unquestionable security to those who entrust their funds to its care.

Larger account holders in strong financial institutions are far more interested in the reputation and condition of the institution itself than in the insurance of accounts up to $10,000 by a Government Agency. In the field of finance there is no substitute for experience, reputation, strength and a long record of excellent service.

OPERATION IN 1958 AND 1959

From commencement of operation through December 31, 1958, FIRST FEDERAL placed upon its books approximately 400 million dollars in mortgages. These consisted primarily of conservative monthly payment mortgages on homes for South Florida families. Shelter is a prime essential. Mortgages, constantly reduced by monthly payments, on the homes of people residing in a growing community such as ours constitute security of the highest type.

The major purposes of a Federal savings association are to encourage saving, and to utilize funds thus created principally for the financing of homes in the community. We can imagine no safer or more constructive use in which the savings capital of this community could be employed. Money saved by local citizens remains here to finance home ownership, stabilize property values, yield employment to thousands of local people, enhance the incomes of our merchants, and directly or indirectly advance the interests of nearly all who live and work in this area. It is good to keep this savings capital right here at home in South Florida.

FIRST FEDERAL contemplates no basic changes in operating policy in 1959. Interest rates on mortgages will probably remain firm under prevailing national and local trends. In recent years of recession and prosperity, FIRST FEDERAL interest rates and other charges on home mortgages have been moderate, comparing favorably with national averages. In the recent periods of capital scarcity, FIRST FEDERAL home mortgage charges have, in fact, been below average on conventional home loans in this area. The substantial net earnings of the Association have been produced by conservative and low cost operation, not by excessive home mortgage charges.

In 1958, FIRST FEDERAL opened a branch office in Kendall, Florida, to serve areas south of the city. This branch temporarily occupies a small store room, but has behind it all the resources of the Association. A new building will soon be erected in Kendall to provide every modern facility for conveniently servicing the rapidly expanding population to the South. With its Main Office in downtown Miami and four rapidly growing branches in Dade County, the Association is in favorable position to serve the savings and home financing needs of the entire South Florida area.

In the development of modern savings and loan, Florida is not only a pioneer in this Nation, but also a leader. Florida leads all other states in per capita savings and loan resources. Dade County leads all other metropolitan areas in the Nation of equivalent or greater population, and FIRST FEDERAL of Miami leads in Dade County.

Since its origin 25 years ago the Federal System of insured savings and loan associations has grown faster than any other great financial system — state or federal — has ever grown over a similar period of time. FIRST FEDERAL of Miami feels privileged to have pioneered the beginning of this great Federal System. The least we can do is to demonstrate to Florida that we can faithfully and effectively discharge the responsibilities of our task. This we promise to do.

Wives Know A&P Shelves But What About Its Books?

By WILLIAM FERRIS
The Associated Press

Ralph Burger
. . . silence broken

NEW YORK—(AP)—A subtle change is coming over one of the biggest corporations in America — The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.

This is best indicated by the attitude of Ralph Burger, A & P's president. For years he's been so aloof that he hasn't even bothered to approve the skimpy biography "Who's Who" runs of him. He never makes speeches, never holds news conferences.

But Burger has answered a series of questions submitted by the Associated Press on points of interest to A & P stockholders and customers.

Every housewife thinks she knows the A & P. Probably she does know her A & P — the red-fronted store nearest her. But the corporation itself has maintained a discreet distance between it and the public.

Yet there have been these recent changes:

SIX DIRECTORS outside the company have been named to the board of directors.

THE FIRST PUBLIC stockholders meeting has been held and the first quarterly income report issued.

PUBLIC STOCKHOLDERS now, for the first time, can vote at the company's annual meetings.

Here are some questions submitted to Burger, along with his answers:

Q. What, if any, changes do you think will be brought about by the recapitalization which gave public stockholders a voice in company affairs?

Burger: "There are no changes contemplated in management of the A & P or the basic policies on which our business has been built. We do anticipate . . . that the stockholders will show a greater interest in the company's affairs."

Q. There is some comment in financial circles that the recent recapitalization was forced upon you by the heirs (of George Huntington Hartford, founder of the A & P). Is this true?

Burger: "Plans for the simplication of our capital structure were first discussed and launched as early as 1952. Management and the members of the Hartford family are in complete accord on all details of the reorganization as effected."

★ ★ ★

There has been hope in Wall Street financial circles that either the heirs, who own 48 per cent of the voting stock in A & P, or the John Hartford Foundation, which owns 34 per cent, would sell part or all their stock. This would be a very lucrative underwriting operation for financial houses.

Q. Do you, as head of the John Hartford foundation, feel that the foundation should sell any of its A & P stock at the present time?

Burger: "I do not feel that it is either necessary or desirable to dispose of that charitable institution's A & P stock at this time. The trustees of the foundation consider A & P stock a sound investment."

★ ★ ★

The A & P is an aloof corporation. It does not join retail organizations or national retail trade promotions.

Q. Why doesn't the A & P join grocery and retail trade associations?

Burger: "The nature of our operations is that they are conducted basically at the local level . . . it is at this level that we feel our participation in trade associations is most effective and logical."

A & P has been criticized for lagging behind the industry in the development of supermarkets. Many of its stores are considered old-fashioned by some critics.

Q. Does the Company have any plans for improving its stores — specifically, enlarging them, providing parking space, bringing them up-to-date with modern fixtures?

Burger: "We have had, and will continue to have, a sound store development and modernization program.

"While it is true that approximately 25 per cent of our stores would not classify as supermarkets, these smaller stores still render a service to our customers in the given localities.

"Frequently it would be impractical to open a super store in the neighborhoods or areas served by these smaller stores. But as long as they continue to operate profitably we do not feel that we are justified in depriving our customers of the service these stores provide."

★ ★ ★

A feature of A & P operation is its small profit per dollar of sales. Profits is about one per cent on sales. At the first public stockholders meeting a small stockholder said he felt this was "too little."

Q. Why does the A & P have such a low percentage of profit on its net sales?

Burger? "Present economic conditions indicate that our present rate of earnings benefit both our customers and our stockholders.

Business Census

Fill These Forms Out

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Census Bureau has begun collecting data on every segment of American business ranging from the corner filling station to giant steel corporations.

Two and a half million reporting forms are being mailed out to all firms, big and small, which had paid employes in 1958. The replies will provide information for the censuses of manufacturers, mineral industries and business which are conducted every five years.

The bureau said it expects to begin publishing preliminary results next autumn and to have final reports ready in 1960. Federal law makes return of the reporting forms mandatory.

1040A Form

Tax People Plan Help

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Taxpayers may be allowed next year to use the simple punch card form, 1040A, on incomes up to $15,000, Internal Revenue Commissioner Dana Latham said.

This year the short form is permitted on incomes up to $10,000 on wages, dividends, and interest. It previously was limited to those with taxable incomes below $5,000.

The Revenue Service is investigating the possibility of raising the ceiling to $15,000 a year hence, Latham said, as part of a service-wide quest for measures to take as much of the pain out of taxpaying as possible.

New Directors Named At Two Area Banks

PINE

MOOTY

New directors were elected to the boards of two Greater Miami banks during a recent flurry of stockholders' meetings.

Joseph Pine of Miami Beach, president of Publisher's Outlet Inc., was named to the board of the Bank of Miami Beach.

W. P. Mooty, a Miami resident since 1911, was chosen to succeed the late Claud P. Nowlin on the board of the Hialeah-Miami Springs Bank.

All directors and major officers were reelected at the Florida National Bank and Trust Co. of Miami, along with two new officers. John Manry was elected vice president and Solon W. Mitchell was elected an assistant cashier.

Directors of the Bank of South Miami were also reelected. L. B. Hedgpeth was elevated to vice president and cashier and George L. Mendes Jr. to vice president and trust officer.

At the Pan American Bank of Miami, Homer C. Smith was elected vice president in charge of the consumer credit department.

Two Firms Are Bought By Perrine

Perrine Industries of Hialeah has announced the acquisition of a large raw glass importing firm and a jalousie glass processing company.

Jack Zwerner, president of Perrine, said World Glass Corp. and Empire Glass Corp., both of Ojus, were bought for a combination of Class A treasury stock and cash.

Zwerner said the action will "solidify our position in the glass industry and will provide us with ample modern glass processing equipment."

HOW TO MAKE REAL ESTATE PROFITS USING OTHER PEOPLE'S MONEY

Thousands of investors who have passed up a chance to make money in real estate— who have shied away from this lucrative field for lack of big sums they thought were needed, are in for the surprise of their lives! An exciting new study just released shows small investors 27 unusual investment angles in use today —reveals how substantial profits could be made on just small cash outlays or by using other people's money entirely.

All this startling information, ingenious new methods, actual deals worked out in detail for each adaptation are brought to light by William J. Casey, a leading authority in real estate, tax planning and related matters, in his new book— "Real Estate Investments and How To Make Them."

Want to know how to convert a 3% cash equity into 100% income producing property? Would you like to close a deal that yields a guaranteed 7% net with as little as ten cents on the dollar of your own money? These are just a hint of what you could do, of how amazingly easy it is to set up all kinds of profitable deals that banks and other individual investors will gladly finance.

For example, you're shown how businessmen use front money alone to swing lush apartment house deals. How investors capitalize on attractive mortgage financing of small industrial plants that pays 10% to 15% bonuses, 6% interest, and has a five-to-eight-year payout. How syndicates buy up submerged land at $125 an acre, develop it at no cash cost and then gross $21,000 per acre. A 12-point plan that averages 20% net profit after taxes on motel deals. How to set up or buy shares in a syndicate to cash in on shopping centers, cooperatives, hotels, etc. How to make the most of leverage, use investment trusts, multiple corporations, two-shot corporations, step-up leases, exchanges . . . how to discover and size up the kinds of deals that let you pyramid profits by using financed capital.

Not a word of this revealing book is theoretical. You get each step of transactions involving real people, real profits, actual investments you could duplicate on similar opportunities everywhere. Many of these methods were pioneered by men like Henderson, Zeckendorf and Hilton. Explained in simple terms, here are the low-cash, high-profit techniques that could give you the same magic touch in real estate dealings.

"Real Estate Investments and How to Make Them" is available for 10 days' free examination. If you keep it you pay $12.50, and it would be a terrific bargain at three times the price. Write Institute for Business Planning, Dept. RE-10 2 West 13th St., New York 11, N. Y., for your free trial copy.

CAPITAL WANTED—$75,000

The American public in the last 10 years has become very hobby conscious. Over 4 billion dollars was spent last year on toys like paint-it-yourself kits, Revel plastic models, Wyatt Earp and Zorro games, Mosaic number painting sets, Little Golden Books and records, small cheaply motored animals and countless other popular recreational items. Everyone knows what the Hula Hoop did and even more remarkable was the simplicity of this toy. Because of the tremendous U.S. growth the toy and hobby fields expect to almost double their gross over the next 2 years.

The selling of stamps (philately) to collectors has been in existence for quite a while, but has never been exploited in the manner of the hobbies mentioned above. It is like a ripe plum ready for the picking. Imagine a hobby that is listed as No. 1 by the American Federation of Hobbies and has 20 million rated active and inactive collectors that unbelievably has no method of mass exposure to the general American public. I have designed a color stamp mail order catalog that is easily capable of doing a gross volume in the millions of dollars. This catalog took 4 years to organize and one of its great attractions is in its freedom from ragged competition that might attempt to duplicate it. The mail order catalog, inventory, advertising and forming of the business would cost $75,000. For an appointment call Mr. Harvey on Monday at FR 3-3691, Ext: 305.

WHEN WALL STREET BROKERS SOLD APPLES

1934—a troublesome year. Some 21 million people on relief rolls. Unemployment stalked the land. Fear had jabbed its chilly fingers into the heart of America. This was a year in the Great Depression which many of our present generation know only through hearsay.

Miami was just emerging from the effects of the frenzied real estate boom and collapse. One bank after another had closed its doors. And the national crisis came like a dark cloud to further blanket Miami's sun.

But from the Depression came economic reforms. In 1934 the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation was established. For the first time, an agency of the United States Government insured the funds of each saver up to $2,500. Later the insured amount was increased to $5,000 and then to its current $10,000.

This was the year—1934—when Chase Federal opened its doors on Miami Beach.

It required courage and faith to envisage Greater Miami's bright future. Chase Federal's sound management provided confidence and filled a need for a safety-insured savings institution.

Twenty-five years of consistent growth and expansion have strengthened our primary purpose of promoting thrift, debt-free home ownership, and making Greater Miami a better place to live and raise your family.

'Let's Meet for Lunch and Talk This Over'

Plush 'Miami Club' Allows Women at Dinner Table

. . . but clubrooms are for men only at lunch time

By STAN JOHNSON
Herald Business Writer

Miami's walnut-panelled business clubs are crowded these days and their membership lists are full.

The reason: Businessmen in search of a quiet lunch and a reputable club affiliation are signing up in record numbers.

The city has four luncheon clubs for businessmen, all less than eight years old and all located in hotels.

The luncheon club has three obvious advantages for the businessman:

IT ALLOWS HIM to dine with friends and business contacts in quiet and pleasant surroundings and, perhaps, to do some modest wagering on cards, darts or dice in the privacy of his clubroom.

IT GIVES him a proper place to take out-of-town or non-member guests for lunch.

IT BROADENS his acquaintance in and acceptance by the business community without involving him in civic or service work.

No proper clubman joins an organization purely for business reasons, but many admit they have benefited to some extent from membership. Most claim club dues as a business deduction on income tax returns.

Miami's oldest businessman's club is the stately Miami Club in the Columbus Hotel. Formed in 1952, it has a membership of 300 and a waiting list "almost as long," according to President James Larimore.

Younger in age is the five-year-old University Club, based at the Urmey Hotel. It has 156 members and takes new ones "by invitation only," says President Richard Maloy.

Members need not necessarily be university graduates, but most are. The club has no connection with the University of Miami.

The 256 members of the Wings Clubs, all aviation executives, lunch in a private clubhouse at the Miami Springs Villas.

The McAllister Hotel operates El Centro de las Americas, a club-like private dining room and lounge with more than 500 communicants.

El Centro was organized primarily to increase the hotel's business, but Manager C. DeWitt Coffman says he now has more requests for membership than he can fill.

Dues at the clubs range from $25 a year at El Centro to $150 a year at the Miami Club.

The University Club charges a $125 initiation fee in addition to $100 a year in membership fees. The Wings Club charges $75 a year.

Nearly all the clubs offer a good lunch for $1.50 up.

County Cars To Be Sold on Tuesday

Five flashy cars, bought in 1957 for the county's five commissioners, will be sold to the highest bidders Tuesday — air-conditioning and all.

In the future, Dade's commissioners — 11 now — will get 10 cents a mile when they use their own cars on county business.

The old cars got plenty of use. If the county had been paying 10 cents for very mile, the bill would have been $7,974.40 for the 79,744 miles racked up by former commissioners.

The five cars offered for sale range from a wild, flame red and white Ford driven by John McLeod to a conservative gray and white Chevrolet formerly manned by Ralph Fossey.

At an advance sale showing Edwin Lee Mason's gold and white Plymouth showed the highest mileage — 22,696 miles. Least mileage was chalked up by Faris Cowart's black and white Ford, which showed 10,607 miles. Chuck Hall's black and gold Ford came in second with only 10,868 miles.

Sealed bids for each car will be opened at the county commission meeting at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Your Stock Market Chance May Come In the Next 10 Days!

Here is How to Be Ready for Action!

CHICAGO-- If you are interested in quick profits--the kind of rewards that come only once in a long, long time, this may be your big opportunity. We at DOW THEORY FORECASTS are completely agreed that:
(1) The next three months offer splendid profit possibilities for those who plan now for it.
(2) Such plans are built around the purchase of the right stocks.

It was not much more than a year ago that we sent our subscribers our regular Weekly Stock Market Forecast and pointed out some of the many stocks to buy--stocks we thought were real good bargains at that time (the 1957 Stock Market low was on October 22nd). In that same Forecast our Weekly Investment Services Survey showed that the majority were advising their customers to SELL. If you had been a subscriber to the DOW THEORY FORECAST SERVICE, and had followed our straight-forward BUY advice on that date, as well as that of December 6th and January 31st, there is no telling what kind of fortune would be yours for the taking today! Many of our subscribers now have tremendous capital gains.

What special magic has enabled us to guess right on every major up or down stock market move since we began our service 12 years ago? What enabled us to help our clients sidestep a great part of the 1946, 1953 and 1957 bear market declines while capitalizing on the great rises of 1949-53, 1953-56, and more recently?

PROFITS LIKE THESE IN OUR PORTFOLIOS

What special skill and knowledge has enabled us to build such successful model investment portfolios--portfolios for investors with as little as $1,000 to invest right up to portfolios for those in the $25,000 and up range? What have we got that has enabled us to show, in just 12 months, gains of $894.04 on the original $1,000 Model Portfolio; gains of $2,592.40 on the original $5,000 Model Portfolio; gains of $4,496.05 on the original $10,000 Model Portfolio; and gains of $13,289.43 on the original $25,000 Model Portfolio.

The same kind of magic that skilled exponents of the famous DOW THEORY have been applying since the Theory was conceived more than 60 years ago! 3 Weeks before the stock market crash of 1929, DOW THEORISTS advised investors to SELL and take their profits!

And what about stock selection? A service is no better than the stock it recommends! Not all of our recommendations have skyrocketed, of course, but a goodly portion have far outgained the general market. For example, Schenley was only $18 when recommended in the fall of 1957 and it has more than doubled; IBM was only $52 when first recommended and has reached $500; Raytheon was $11 and has rallied past $60; Texas Instruments was $13 and has topped $70!

3 NEW STOCKS TO BUY NOW

It is our business to constantly study the performance of hundreds of different issues, and pass this information on to our clients. We have just discovered 3 NEW STOCKS promising enough to add to our recommended lists. Just look at these summaries:
(A) A low-priced situation at $18 and paying over 5% dividend.
(B) A real growth situation, still down nearly 25% from its previous high.
(C) A stable and sound security yielding approximately 4% and possessing real appreciation possibilities.

HOW $24 SPENT FOR THE WALL STREET JOURNAL HELPED ME EARN $14,000

By a Subscriber

Since I started reading The Wall Street Journal, my income has increased from $9,000 to $14,000 a year.

But that is only part of the story. The Journal not only tells me how to earn more money—it also tells me how to get more value for the money I spend.

For example, an automotive article in The Journal helped me trade in my old car at the right time. An article on building supplies gave me ideas on remodeling my home and showed me how to save $900.

Articles on food and clothing point out the things to stock up on in order to save money. Articles on taxes guide me on what to do to keep my taxes down.

The Journal also gives me a better understanding of what is going on in the world. In conversation with other men I find that I know how to interpret business and government trends a little better than they do. They wonder where I get my "inside dope."

This story is typical. Because the reports in The Wall Street Journal come to you daily, you get quick warning of any new trend that may affect your income. You get the facts in time to protect your interests or seize a profit. The Journal is a wonderful aid to salaried men making $7,500 to $25,000 a year. It is valuable to owners of small business concerns. It can be of priceless benefit to ambitious young men.

The Wall Street Journal is the complete business DAILY. Has largest staff of writers on business and finance. The only business paper served by all three big press associations. It costs $24 a year, but you can get a Trial Subscription for three months for $7. Just tear out this ad and attach check for $7 and mail. Or tell us to bill you.

New Profits Growth for ELECTRIC UTILITIES

DESPITE the 1958 business recession, the earnings of electric utility companies continued to forge ahead. Consumer demand for power showed no signs of abatement and fuel costs were generally lower—but the real secret of the utilities' success was higher rates. Recognizing the 1957 rise in the cost of obtaining new money, which threatened to impair the utilities' rate of return on their common equity, regulatory commissions acted favorably on the majority of the '58 rate increase petitions filed last year. Most of the rest are still pending; only one application was denied.

This development opens up a whole new area of profits expansion for the utilities. Long interesting for income and stability, these stocks may now attract an investment following for their growth potential as well. Of course, not all companies will benefit, and those that do will not all share equally. For this reason, investors in utility securities will find it especially helpful to consult The Value Line Investment Survey's latest analysis of the Utility Industry and 78 leading stocks. This important study answers such questions as: which companies have applied for, and which obtained, rate relief? How much will the higher rates add to earnings per share of common stock? Which companies are candidates for early dividend increases? And, most importantly, which are the best stocks to buy or hold now? This timely edition of the Value Line Survey will be sent to you at no extra charge under the special offer described below.

A Special $5 Introductory Offer*

Under this special offer, you are invited to receive a copy of this 96-page edition featuring the utility stocks at no extra charge and to benefit from a one month's introductory trial of the Value Line Survey at one-half the regular pro rata fee. FLORIDA KEYS PROPERTY VALUES AMONG THE FASTEST RISING IN U.S.

Demand for choice property in the Florida Keys has caused prices to soar during the past few years. Because of the limited amount of select land available, prices are expected to continue to climb.

VENETIAN SHORES, the finest development in the Keys, represents an exceptional investment opportunity to capitalize on the Florida Keys' unlimited future. This waterfront community offers choice canalfront residential homesites for as little as $1,500 down.

Here is your opportunity to purchase choice property in an established, growing development at prices considerably below today's market.

Take advantage of this outstanding opportunity. Write Box 451, Islamorada, Florida or phone Key Largo 5252 for free literature . . . or better, enjoy a pleasant 75 mile drive down the scenic Florida Keys and see VENETIAN SHORES for yourself.

Kitchen Garbage Disposal Unit Soon May Become a 'Must'

By EDDIE GONG
Herald Staff Writer

North Miami Homeowners may soon be required to have garbage disposal units in their kitchens if they don't already have them.

The City of North Miami has revived plans to pass an ordinance requiring the home units to reduce garbage disposal costs and to avoid building a costly incinerator in the future.

"It will cost the homeowner about $80 for the unit, to be paid in an eight year period," said North Miami Councilman Joe Ludick, sponsor of the plan.

Ludick estimated the total cost of the project would be $900,000 for about 11,250 North Miami homes.

He said the annual $20 garbage tax now charged homeowners will finance the project.

"Ten dollars a year will be taken from [illegible]arbage tax payment," he [illegible]

At the en[illegible]ght years, the individu[illegible]ers would own the units [illegible]ight and the garbage tax would be reduced to $10 a year.

All new homes would be required to have the disposal units if the city council passes an ordinance putting the plan into effect.

Pitt Club Elects Harold Granoff

Harold Granoff was elected president during a recent meeting of the Miami Pitt Club. Other officers are Fabian Hoffmann, vice president; Mrs. Joseph Stephens, corresponding secretary; Mrs. William Kane, recording secretary, and Kenneth Thompson, treasurer.

Octopus Thunders into Stretch on Way to Winner's Circle in Hialeah's Hibiscus

Rice Pair Run 2-3

Octopus Boils To Easy Win In Hibiscus

By JOE McLAUGHLIN
Herald Turf Editor

Leading every step of the six-furlong sprint, Spring Hill Farm's Octopus sailed to victory Saturday in Hialeah's $25,675 Hibiscus.

The fleet-footed 3-year-old son of Johns Joy-Red Fleet, giving Jockey Kenny Church his second stakes triumph in as many days, stepped the distance in 1:10 1-5 at the same time, Octopus chilled seven nominees for the $100,000 Flamingo.

And while Octopus and Church were parading, a throng of 19,897 fans kept the metuel wickets singing with a play of $1,739,084. This compared to betting of $1,633,551 a year ago.

In his swift journey over the lightning-fast track, Octopus beat Ada L. Rice's Cedar Brook and Rare Rice who finished second and third, respectively. Then it was Open View, Easy Spur, who was coupled with Octopus; Colonel Black, Pryson, Steverino, Ala Roman, Senior High and Goshen.

Octopus and his mate Easy Spur, as second choice in the betting, returned $5.80, $2.60 and $2.60. The favored pair of Cedar Brook and Rare Rice returned $2.50 place and $2.90 show.

In the absence of Jim Norris, owner of the winner, Mrs. Norris was in the winner's circle to receive the trophy.

Church broke Octopus from the No. 2 stall like a bullet, soon gained a commanding lead and was showing the way to Goshen after a quarter-mile. At this point Pryson was third and Colonel Black fourth. But by the time they reached the half-mile marker, Rare Rice, under Bobby Ussery, took up the challenge and Cedar Brook got to third.

However, the challenge of the Rice duo was insufficient to match the speeding Octopus. Cedar Brook, under the whip of Jack Leonard, got up to beat his mate by a head.

Easy Spur, a nominee for the Flamingo, could not get going for Steve Brooks and had to be content with fifth after his failure to gain prominence in the early running.

The Hibiscus, considered the first stepping stone for the Flamingo, presented nominees Senior High, Steverino, Ocean View and Goshen, besides Easy Spur and the Rice pair.

The triumph was the third in stakes for Octopus. He won the Dover at Delaware Park last summer and just recently carried off the Dade-Metro at Tropical. It also marked his third victory in a row.

Hialeah also produced a real longie in the eighth when General Arthur, under Leonard, paid $129.10 .

★ ★ ★

TRAINER JIMMY JONES sent Fabius, the six-year-old Citation husky, out for the sixth race.

Fabius, unhurried early, smashed to the front after reaching the stretch and paraded to the payoff, nearly two in front of Greek Star. Viscount was third. Fabius, timed in 1:10 3-5 for the six panels, paid $6.90.

★ ★ ★

HIALEAH WAS actually selling tickets on a "Cook's Tour" at the daily double windows and purchasers of the six-one combination found the travel delightful to the cashier's window where they collected $160.80.

It came about when Louis C. Cook virtually "walked home" the longshot Prime Venture ($29.10) in the first at a mile and a sixteenth. Then his brother, William, won the second on Fresh Meadow at $9.60.

Prime Venture won the first by a good six lengths over Forky and that one was another six lengths ahead of Warrantor.

Fresh Meadow took the second at a mile and a half over the grass in 2 minutes and 35 seconds to whip Garrulous by a length and three quarters with Third Port in the show spot.

★ ★ ★

HOOFBEATS: There were more than 100 entries for both the second and ninth races Monday at Hialeah . . . The champion, First Landing, went six furlongs in 1:15 3-5 and a mile in 1:41 1-5 Saturday in company with Prince's Gem . . . A Dragon Killer stepped seven furlongs in 1:27 1-5 . . . Another star from Friday's big parade, Vertex, was impressive in a once-around gallop . . . John Nerud is enthusiastic over the French grey 4-year-old, Delhi 3rd, a good winner across the pond .

ND's Hank Stram Hired By Miami; OU Takes Blaik

By LUTHER EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

Henry (Hank) Stram, a backfield coach with a knack for developing top-flight quarterbacks, will join the University of Miami's football staff on Feb. 1.

Stram, 35, comes to the UM from Notre Dame where he served as backfield coach until Terry Brennan suddenly was given his walking papers in late December.

"We feel very fortunate to get Stram," said Head Coach Andy Gustafson.

"I checked every coach he ever worked under and all gave him the best possible recommendation."

Hiring of Stram climaxed a busy week during which Gustafson lost Bob Blaik to Oklahoma, secured Otto Graham to help his quarterbacks in spring practice, and negotiated with Lou Groza as another spring specialist.

Long-awaited official word that Oklahoma has hired the 29-year-old Blaik finally came Saturday from Bud Wilkenson.

Blaik will replace Clive Rush who accepted a post at Ohio State University as backfield coach.

To accept the Miami job, Stram reportedly turned down the position as head coach at Colgate, vacated earlier this week by Fred Rice.

Before joining the Irish in 1957, Stram coached at Purdue, his alma mater, and Southern Methodist.

At Purdue Stram was credited with developing two fine passing quarterbacks, Dale Samuels and Len Dawson; at SMU he tutored Charlie Arnold, and, last fall, he worked with the Irish pitching star, George Izo.

Stram, father of three boys, has been associated with three streak-breakers.

He was coaching at Purdue in 1950 when the Boilermakers snapped a Notre Dame victory spree at 39 games; was still at Purdue when Michigan State's streak was ended at 29 straight, and was with Notre Dame when the Irish halted Oklahoma's 47-game march.

"One of Stram's assignments," said Gustafson, "will be to scout Navy and North Carolina next fall. That's because Notre Dame played each last season and he's familiar with their personnel."

Finally able to admit he has accepted the Oklahoma job — the new year's most unsecretive secret — Blaik said:

"It's a fine opportunity. But I can't help but wonder what I can contribute to the success Oklahoma already enjoys."

Blaik expressed appreciation to Gustafson for giving him "so much responsibility and ability to prove my merit" during his two years at UM.

"There's no question," said Bob, "that I learned a great deal. That was particularly true during this past season— I'm only sorry for Gus' sake that we couldnt' win."

"But Miami will win again . . . and by next season I believe," he said.

Voicing regret that he's losing "a fine young coach" Gustafson said, "I'm going to hire one more fulltime assistant . . . and maybe two."

He expects definite acceptance from Groza, the Cleveland Browns' place - kicking specialist, this weekend.

Jessen Nabs Lead At Tampa

TAMPA — (AP) — Young Ruthie Jessen, who never has won a major tournament, Saturday forged into the lead after three rounds of the Tampa Women's Open golf tournament.

Ruthie, who is 23, shot a steady two-over-par 75 to take over the lead from Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., who blew a five-stroke advantage with an 82.

This left Miss Jessen with a 225 total going into today's final round. Miss Faulk is two strokes behind with 227.

Kathy Cornelius, co-leader with Miss Faulk after the first round, had a 78 for a 231 total. Marlene Hagge shot an 83 for a 234 aggregate.

The touring pros battled cold weather. It was in the mid-30s when they teed off but rose to around 50 in the afternoon. The blonde Miss Jessen, who turned pro only three years ago, said she was very pleased with her round.

Miss Faulk, disgusted with her 82, said, "I sure hate to blow a five-stroke lead. But I just couldn't keep out of trouble."

It Was Like This, Fellas: 19 Strokes on Par 3 Hole

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. —(AP)— Hans Merrell, pro from Little Moagadore, Ohio, Saturday gave golfers a real lesson — on how not to play the 16th hole at Cypress Point.

Merrell, in surprising good humor, described in detail his record-shattering 19 on the over-the-ocean 222-yard par-3 hole.

Playing in the $50,000 Bing Crosgy Pro-Amateur, the 41-year-old pro faded his drive. It fell on a beach 75 feet below the green.

Shot 2 looked simple but Merrell hit a rock and skulled the ball into some ice plant, a heavy succulent growth. He moved the ball a foot (No. 3) and took four more whacks (Nos. 4, 5, 6 and 7) before burying it. No. 8.

The ball was unplayable, so Merrell walked back to the beach and dropped the ball. (Two stroke penalty.)

The next shot: back in ice plant (No. 11). Two more whacks, (Nos. 12, 13). Each time the ball fell backwards on the steep hill. Then he buried it again (No. 14).

Back to the beach because of the unplayable lie (15, 16), and at last, success! Merrell made it to the green. He almost sank a 20-foot putt for an 18.

Partner Bill Wehnes, an aircraft executive from Cleveland, took the ball. It looked almost new. Wehnes had put two balls in the ocean, then quit and let Merrell hit. The pro-am goes by best ball which meant Wehnes was through on that hole.

Merrell eclipsed Porky Oliver's record 16 pokes on the same hole in 1954.

Gables Slips Past N. Miami

Coral Gables, behind most of the way, fought past upstart North Miami in the final minutes Saturday night to score a 50-48 intracity prep basketball victory at the losers' gymnasium.

Trailing 36-29 as the fourth period started, Gables fired up offensively behind the shooting of Don Kunze and John Karabasz, who hit for nine and six points, respectively, in the 21-point quarter.

In the last minute, Wally Dale put Gables ahead at 48-46, and Kunze added another two points out of a freeze. North Miami's Jim Zabinski added a field goal in the final seconds for the final tally.

Gables won the B game, 61-39.

When Church Rides, Head for the Cashier

By RUSS HARRIS
Herald Turf Writer

When you see him coming, better step aside! Or better yet, step up to the mutuel window.

Jockey Kenny Church rode one horse opening day at Hialeah. That was Hasty House Farm's Solution, which won the first division of the Royal Poinciana handicap and paid $59.80.

Kenny had just one mount again Saturday. That, of course, was Spring Hill Farm's Octopus, which mowed 'em down in the Hibiscus stakes.

The Miami Springs jockey has ridden only one other horse this year: Miss Cloudy, which finished second to Levelix in the feature event at Tropical Park Jan. 6.

"When we came down here, I told my agent (Kentuckian Cooper Phelps) to get lost in the Everglades," Kenny said. "I felt like I needed to take it easy for awhile."

Kenny has been taking it easy but it hasn't affected his riding skill.

Since the Florida racing season began Nov. 27, he has been to the races only 12 days. He has taken 19 mounts and won with seven for a percentage of better than 36 per cent in a business where 20 per cent is regarded as sensational.

In his last nine races, Kenny has led 'em home five times.

About Octopus, he said: "I sent him to the front and figured he could outspeed everybody." He did.

Octopus is my kind of horse," Kenny added.

By his kind, Kenny means the front running type.

"If you look in the past performances, you'll find about 90 per cent of the winners were up among the first three horses, 1-2-3, all the way. When a horse is showing his speed, he's sharp.

"The kind that come from far behind to win are exciting to watch but few of them win consistently," he added.

Kenny has been spending plenty of time with his wife, Nancy, and their three children during his "semi-vacation" this winter. The family has lived in Miami Springs for eight years.

When the Hialeah meeting ends, Kenny is taking Nancy on a full-time vacation to the West Coast and Hawaii.

And don't look for Kenny at Hialeah Monday. He has a golfing date.

Auburn Squeaks

MONTGOMERY, Ala. —(AP)— A fired-up Alabama basketball team almost spoiled Auburn's undefeated record Saturday night, but the Tigers held on to a narrowing lead and finally won 57-55. It was Auburn's 22nd consecutive victory since Jan. 18, 1958, when Alabama defeated the Tigers.

Booker T. Tops Carver, 49-31

Led by Charles Stringer's 21 points, Booker T. Washington whipped Carver, 49-31, Saturday night in a Negro high school basketball game at Booker T.

High point man for Carver was Cyril Clark with 17 points. The victory was Booker T's sixth against one loss.

Tampa Wins, 74-70

TAMPA —(AP)— The University of Tampa Spartans, trailing midway the last half by eight points, fought an uphill battle to defeat Mercer's Bears from Macon, Ga., 74-70, here Saturday night.

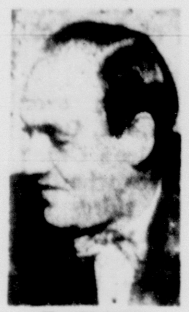
Dodgers Are Blaming Marlins For Driving Them from Miami

HIALEAH IS just starting its lush horse racing season, but baseball is just around the corner. Next month the state will be crowded with optimistic managers and hopeful ball players. This means more to Florida than the casual observer might think



BAVAZI

HIGH

RICHARDS

The thought was emphasized by Dan Daniel's story in the current Sporting News that the 16 major teams will expend $700,000 for housing and feeding their athletes. Twelve clubs will train in Florida, so that means more than $500,000 will be spent here.

It is not a huge sum, when you consider the millions reaped from citrus and tourist crops, but there are intangible values running into huge sums—if you could translate favorable publicity into dollars and cents. Spring training impresses upon the nation that Florida has more hotel accommodations and better weather than any other section.

From Daniel, it was also learned that Buz Bavasi, Los Angeles executive, blames the Marlins for forcing the Dodgers out of their lucrative exhibition schedule here.

"The Dodgers insisted that their lease of Miami Stadium in no way involved the Miami club," Daniel wrote. "The Miami club protested that its lease gave it complete say so over games in the stadium. The Miami club won the fight and ordered the Dodgers to get out."

That is not exactly the way it was. The Dodgers were indifferent in their negotiations and when it appeared they would lose, Bavasi wrote Mayor Robert King High a testy letter.

Manager Paul Richards is bringing his Orioles here for spring training and the fact the new deal presents the Yankees in six exhibitions makes the change appear for the better.

Why Not Pro Runnerup Game?

OTHER THAN to make a suggestion, I have no desire to prolong discussion of the dugout hassle with Oklahoma, which may lead to a break between the Orange Bowl Committee and the Big Eight.

The OBC is to be commended for remaining calm and firm in determination to protect its rights. When a new president is elected Feb. 9, he will appoint a committee to discuss with the Big Eight, Oklahoma's proposal that the OB contract be amended so that the Big Eight champion will not have to appear here in alternate years.

Rest assured, the OBC will flatly reject any such proposal. So far as objection to the dugouts are concerned, I like Ernie Seiler's observation, "The nation's No. 1 team, LSU, has dugouts in its stadium and all teams use them."

Enough of that! The OBC should explore the idea of matching the NFL's eastern and western runnerup teams here on New Year's Day. Immediately someone will complain such a game wouldn't mean anything. The answer is what did the Oklahoma-Syracuse contest prove?

If we'd had the runnerup teams this past New Year's Day, the principals would have been the Cleveland Browns and Chicago Bears, or Los Angeles Rams. I imagine, they'd have made it a more exiciting afternoon.

Williams Eyes TV, Radio

MORE CONCERNED with getting in more fishing before spring training, Ted Williams has little to say about his future plans. Many think the 1959 season will be his last and Austin Lake, Boston sports writer, thinks Ted will swap his bat for a microphone after this year.

WILLIAMS

The thought of Williams describing baseball games via radio or television, intrigued Arthur Daley of The New York Times. In saying Ted should make a crackerjack broadcaster, Daley wrote:

"His voice is deep and resonant, a rich baritone. Although the language he uses in the clubhouse would get him bounced off the airways, he speaks with polish and culture in more polite society. His grammar is perfect, his diction crisp and his vocabulary ample. And no one knows his subject better than he. The Thumper has studied baseball with a restless, insatiable curiosity ever since his rookie days."

Another prediction about Williams is that he will be named in a poll of sports writers as the most exciting player of 1958. The distinction went to Willie Mays last year.

Williams has his critics, but many of them are the same type as Clure (Scrooge) Mosher, his chief hater.

Army Assistants Boost Hall

MY NEW YORK operative advises West Point's assistant football coaches want Dale. Hall, chief assistant, as successor to Earl (Red) Blaik, who resigned . . . Arnold Hanger, sportsman and horse owner, was a classmate of Bert Bell, NFL commissioner, at Penn . . . "Bell was a thorough football player and he's shown the same qualities as commissioner," Hangar said at Hialeah . . . The large tournout for the tournament in his honor today at the Biltmore is a fine tribute to Pro-Manager Bill Tinder . . . When Albie Pearson, Washington outfielder, returns to defend his title in the National Baseball Players Golf Tournament starting at Miami Springs, Feb. 12, he won't be kidded as much as he was last year . . . The story is that when Pearson, a tiny fellow, bent over to retrieve his golf ball from the cup, Yankee Yogi Berra quipped, "Don't fall in and get hurt, Albie" . . . Sports writers were delighted at Hialeah to discover genial Harry Pearlman operating the elevator to the press box . . . He ran the Orange Bowl press box elevator and kept everyone in a good humor, even on the slow trip up.

Bowlers Need TV Sponsor

By DICK EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

Biggest local bowling question today centers around when the Florida Professional League will return to TV.

Last September, the Paradise Lanes group pioneered live TV matches over Channel 10 every Saturday evening. The program grew in popularity, then went off the air just before Christmas.

Ray Glasco, the man who helped form the league, has released his interest in the show. He's also torn up the contracts which gave him a percentage of the bowlers' winnings in many tournaments.

The new men with the power to put the league back on TV are Pete DeMet, Herman Sumars and Nat Sokolow. But they have been unable to come up with a sponsor for the hour-long show.

The league will continue to bowl at Paradise. The same hour will be requested and the same bowlers will be involved if the League returns to TV. It may, however, jump from a 26-week league to a year-round loop.

DICK WEBER, a member of the famed Budweiser five, will instruct and bowl an exhibition at the Bowling Palace Monday at 12:30 p.m.

NORTH MIAMI Police and Miami Police will meet in a home-and-home bowling exhibition today and next Sunday. The two teams meet at Bowlerama at 3:30 today and at Pinerama next Sunday.

Nelson Clips Pool Mark as UM Tops Georgia Mermen

Jack Nelson clipped a full second off his Veterans Hospital pool record for the 200-yard butterfly and Hal Mischner equalled the 50-yard freestyle mark for the third time as they led the University of Miami swimming team to a 52-33 win over the University of Georgia Saturday.

Miami swept eight of 10 first places as Nelson traveled the butterfly distance in 2 minutes 14.2 seconds. Mischner, in addition to speeding over the freestyle course in 23.5 seconds, also won the 100-yard freestyle to be the meet's only double winner.

Capt. Jim Bankston saved the Bulldogs from a shutout in the individual events when he edged Eduardo Carrera of the Hurricanes in the 220-yard freestyle. Bankston is Southeastern Conference champion in this event. He had to come from behind to nip the speeding Carrera. The latter got revenge in a brilliantly fought 440 in which the pair never were more than three yards apart.

Ed Moylan Stops Brown In 2 Sets

Top-seeded Eddie Moylan, Trenton, N.J., reached the finals of the Diplomat Country Club Invitation Tennis Tournament Saturday by defeating Bert Brown, Los Angeles, 8-6, 6-4.

Moylan, winner of the Sugar Bowl title and the Dixie last week at Tampa, showed enough of his former top 10 ranking class to turn aside Brown's strong bid.

Jack Frost, Monterrey, Calif., pulled off a mild upset as he ousted Kosie Kamo, Tokyo, by scores of 6-1, 6-0.

Frost meets Moylan at 2 p.m. today in a best three of a five-set finals match.

In doubles, Kamo and Reynaldo Garrido, Havana, gained the finals by beating Brown and Richley Highley, Montclair, N.J., 7-5, 8-6.

Tim Cawthorne, Melbourne, Australia, and Ed Rubinoff, Miami Beach, upset the favored duo of Frost and Berger Folke, Stockholm, Sweden, 4-6, 6-2, 7-5. Doubles finals will follow the singles test.

Downey Favored In Doherty Golf; Starts Wednesday

By JIMMY BURNS
Herald Sports Editor

Defending Champion Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore will be favored to repeat in the Doherty Women's Golf Tournament starting with a qualifying round at Coral Ridge Wednesday.

Miss Downey's most dangerous rivals are the other four scratch players in the tournament, but the field of 99 includes 29 players with handicaps of four or better.

Marlene Stewart Streit, Toronto, 1958 runnerup; Joanne Goodwin, Haverhill, Mass., 1956 winner; Barbara McIntire, Tequesta, and Dale Fleming, Tulsa, Okla., are the other scratch players.

Dorothy Kirby, Atlanta, a former champion and longtime contender did not enter.

Mrs. Streit, holder of the United States, Canadian and British women titles, has failed in previous bids for the Doherty Championship. She has been in the area for the past two weeks practicing and will make a determined bid for the title.

Two 12-year-old girls who preferred golf clubs to dolls have entered the competition. They are Mary Ann Michaelis of Hollywood, who has a handicap of 12, and Roberta Anne Albers of Tampa, who plays to a seven handicap.

Manager Bob Hines of Coral Ridge reported the course is in excellent condition. The tournament was limited to players with handicaps of 12 or better by Sponsor Robert Trent Jones.

The 32 low qualifiers Wednesday will go into the championship division for match play. The winners continue the battle for the title with the losers forming the first flight. The low 64 players will be eligible for match play.

A single round is scheduled Thursday, with two matches Friday. The semi-finals will be held Saturday and the 36-hole finals will be played Sunday.

Black Hawks Rip Rangers In TV Game

CHICAGO —(P)— The Chicago Black Hawks Saturday beat off the second-place challenge of the New York Rangers by pounding them, 7-1, in the weekly televised National Hockey League battle at Chicago Stadium.

The Hawks moved three points ahead of the third place Rangers, who were working on a three-game winning streak.

Chicago ran up a 3-0 lead in the first period on goals by Ted Lindsay, Ron Murphy and Glen Skov. Elmer Vasko and Earl Balfour added tallies in the second period, and Jack Evans and Eric Nesterenko finished off the scoring spree in the final frame.

New York's lone score came in the final period off the stick of Dean Prentice. The seven goals were the largest total scored off Ranger Goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley this season.

Barge-Style Blaster

No Onions, Just 'Sugar' For Basilio

By MEL DERRICK
Herald Sports Writer

Eight years ago, almost to the day, a lumpy little man with a broken hand gazed resolutely at a mound of snow, and began to shovel.

His name was Carmen Basilio, and he had (1) a wife to support; (2) a rent bill to pay, and (3) a pocket that contained 39 cents.

DERRICK

"I shoveled snow for three days," remembers the man who won boxing's welterweight (1955) and middleweight (1957) championships and earned an estimated $100,000 for one fight with Sugar Ray Robinson last March.

"Worked in sub-zero weather, cleaning up after a storm. Made $27.50. Paid $20 toward the rent. Blew the rest on groceries. And decided I wanted to be a boxer more than anything else in the world."

* * *

'I Had To Be Champ'

BASILIO, in that winter of 1951, was a "retired" fighter, a red-necked young kid who had left the farm to seek his fortune, and found, instead, low-paying fights, a broken hand, and bitter disappointment.

"But," he grins, "I also found a wife."

Basilio sold his only worldly good, a 10-year-old car, to buy an engagement ring for Kay, the pretty Mrs. Basilio. During the 39-cent days, she wanted to pawn the ring to meet the bills.

"That's when," says Carmen, "I knew I had to be a champion."

Four years later he was, after knocking out Welterweight Title-Holder Tony DeMarco in the 12th round at Syracuse.

The fight that "made" Basilio was a queer 1952 television hassle with then-hot Chuck Davey. Basilio, a 5-1 underdog, belted Davey into a bleeding mass to earn a 10-round victory.

Four days later, the decision was changed to a draw because Referee Joe Palmer hadn't made out his scorecard correctly.

"But folks had seen me, and I was a draw," says Basilio. "There was another fight with Davey, and one with Billy Graham. And all of a sudden I had a lot of things going for me."

* * *

The Barge-Fight Style

MAINLY, it was one "thing." A savage ring style which turned every fight into a war and Basilio into king of the welter and middleweight divisions. The first title he relinquished when he won the second; the second he lost in a return battle with Robinson.

"This guy," says Beach Trainer Angelo Dundee, who has worked with Basilio since 1952, "battles like a throwback to the era of barge fighting. The fans love it; his opponents don't."

"He looks awkward," admits Veteran Trainer Charlie Goldman, "But he gets results.

"He just buzz-saws into the guy he's fighting. He keeps the other man too busy to do the things he wants to do. He charges like a bull, slashes like a meat-grinder. His offense is his defense."

* * *

For Carmen, No Onions

OUT OF the ring, Basilio is soft-spoken in a gravely sort of way, calm, pleasant. He gives and takes freely in the rough humor of the boxing gym, talks constantly and proudly of his younger brother Joey and his prize field trial bird-dogs, and splits his hatchet-face into an easy grin.

He has three pet peeves — onions, publicity over his prayers in the ring, and Sugar Ray Robinson.

Basilio, at 31, owns the onion farm near Canastota, N.Y., he left at 20 to become a fighter. No onions grow there.

"Carm hates onions so much," says Mrs. Basilio, "that he won't even buy one if I put it on the grocery list."

The prayer publicity started when a picture of Basilio kneeling in the ring, after recapturing the welterweight title from Johnny Saxton, was flashed all over the country.

"Why me?" asks Basilio. "People go to church every day.

"I'm no angel. I use cuss words. But I believe in God. When He lets me perform at my best, I want to thank Him."

Smile Cracks Basilio's Hatchet-Face
. . . 'outside, he's humble; in ring, he's hell'

A Sport In Our Town

'39 Cents in Pocket, I Had To Fight'
. . . TV battle with Davey 'made' Carmen

Robinson, a center of controversy for his money tactics, earned Basilio's anger the same way.

"He doesn't want much," says Carmen, "just all the money in the world. He took 45 per cent of our first fight, 30 per cent of the second — when I was champion.

"He's a great fighter, sure, but I can beat him. I will, too. Just as soon as he decides he's ready to fight."

* * *

'Humble . . . But Hell'

IN THESE days of silk suits and praise and money in the bank, Basilio still remembers the 39-cent days.

"He's the softest touch around," says Kay with a proud smile.

Basilio still jumps the same, much-mended rope he used as a preliminary boxer. He wears a faded white and maroon robe Kay made for him in 1952. He takes time to encourage struggling young fighters.

"He's humble," says a beach boxing fan. "But, in the ring, he's hell."

5,103 Entered to Date

Deadline's Tonight For Pin Tourney

By DICK EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

The Herald's Lend-a-Hand Bowling Tournament entries close at midnight.

Florida's largest tournament has drawn 5,103 bowlers. A flood of late entries is expected today as tardy participants come up with their dollar entry fee.

Bird Bowl continues to gain on Coliseum as the leading bowling establishment participant. The 40-lane Bird Bowl is represented by 822 bowlers, Coliseum by 865.

Bowlerama fell to third place with 593 entries while South Dixie Bow-O-Mat climbed to fourth with 416 participants. Both Coliseum and Bowl-O-Mat are expecting heavy entries today.

All of the 5,103 entries are eligible for the grand prizes of two twin-console stereophonic high-fidelity record players, two 17-inch Zenith television sets, two transistor radios, 34 trophies and thousands of bowling certificates.

Over 60 per cent of the entries already have qualified for league finals by rolling 600 handicap sets (550 women.)

League secretaries who solicited 100 per cent participation from their leagues should write The Herald's Lend-a-Hand Bowling Tournament and give their leagues' name, bowling establishment and number of bowlers.

The Herald will provide all 100 per cent entry league secretaries with a Parker pen during the grand finals at Coliseum Lanes on May 24.

Auto Club Fires Race Director

INDIANAPOLIS —(AP)— United States Auto Club directors Saturday fired veteran race driver Duane Carter of Indianapolis as director of competition and immediately lost its special insurance contract for racers.

Henry Banks of Compton, Calif., a native of England and son of a pioneer European auto racer, was named the new head of USAC's track program.

W. S. Brammeyer Jr. of Chicago, director of the auto racing special risks division of Continental Casualty Co., informed the board that his firm no longer will insure USAC drivers.

Brammeyer said in a statement that Carter was the only person he thought capable of running USAC competition and increasing safety factors his company demanded.

Tom Binford of Indianapolis, USAC president, explained Carter's dismissal as a matter of seeking someone with more administrative and organizational experience. He added that USAC was supposed to represent all groups in racing and "not to be controlled by one man."

Binford said Banks' experience with the aircraft division of Ford Motor Co., as well as his experience with racing problems, led to his choice.

Banks was reported to be taking the USAC job for $15,000 a year.

Carter, known as "The Old Pro" in auto racing circles, had been paid $18,000 last year and said he was to receive $20,000 this year.

Carter had headed USAC's racing and auto testing program since it was formed three years ago to take over from the AAA, which decided against sanctioning any more auto races after the tragic accident in the LeMans, France, race which killed 82 persons.

* * *

THE BOARD turned down a petition from Ed Elisian, race driver from Fresno, Calif., for reinstatement. His USAC license was suspended three times last year but was restored twice.

Elisian's first suspension was for financial troubles, the second for an alleged error of judgment that resulted in a 15-car pileup and one death in the Indianapolis Memorial Day race, and the last for highway traffic law violation.

* * *

CARTER is well-known to Miami area midget and sprint car fans. He lived in Miami in the early 50's and drove at the midget track which used to be on an old airport west of Dania.

Ted Duncan of Miami, national midget champion in 1946, drove against Carter for several years and in 1947 drove a racer owner by Carter.

Duncan said Carter's "wonderful personality" was one of the big reasons he landed the USAC post. "But in a job like that the friction is terrible.

"If you satisfy the drivers you don't satisfy the promoters, and the other way around. Only a year and a half after he took the job it was beginning to tell on him.

"You could tell he was beginning to get miserable. He'd lost some of that personality, lost the ability to take it.

"He was talking about racing again. But it's awful tough to get back in at that age. I tried it. The cars seem like they're going about 400 miles an hour faster."

It was unbeaten Hialeah's seventh straight victory and Edison's second overtime defeat.

Joe Taylor, a 5-10 guard who did a magnificent job of containing Butts, a 32.6 averager, sent the tense game into overtime with a half-court desperation basket with only three seconds remaining.

Butts' three free throws and Lou Moran's field goal preceded a last-second field goal by Edison's Jeff Cortright in the three-minute overtime session.

Hialeah won the game at the foul line. The Thorobreds connected on 18 of 28 chances. Butts hit 13 of 18. Edison was accurate on 7 of 13 free throws.

Although held to 19 points—his lowest output in 20 games—Butts set up easy baskets for teammates with clever passes. Edison's Charlie Keys led scorers with 20 points.

Edison won the game, 45-42.

In Segregation Fuss

Lakers' Owner Backs Baylor 'To the Hilt'

MINNEAPOLIS —(AP)— Rookie basketball star Elgin Baylor said Saturday night he wouldn't have played Friday night in Charleston, W. Va., if it had cost him his entire year's salary.

The brawny young Negro was met by Minneapolis Laker President Bob Short at the airfield here after the Lakers returned from Charleston, where Baylor refused to play because of hotel and dining segregation.

Short told his high-priced ace he would not discipline him for sitting out the game, and that he regretted the player's embarrassment.

Further, Short said, he plans to ask President Maurice Podoloff of the National Basketball Association to declare Friday night's game with Cincinnati "no contest." The Lakers lost, 95-91.

Said Short of Baylor: "I know his failure to play cost us the ball game but he was under great emotional strain because of his attitude toward segregation."

Baylor's teammates were understanding, but some of them thought he should have placed the welfare of the team ahead of his personal bitterness.

Baylor said he became angered when the hotel where the Lakers had reservations refused to allow him and two other Laker Negroes to stay overnight with the team.

The Lakers then moved to a Negro hotel. The other Negroes, Boo Ellis and Ed Fleming, played against Cincinnati and tried to talk Baylor into doing the same.

The former Seattle University All-America said he was so tightened up and upset about what happened at the hotel he felt in no condition to play.

Short said he had no alternative but to back up Baylor to the hilt.

"What do you do in a case like this?" he said. "If he had failed to play for any other reason, no matter how big a star he is, certainly he would have been punished.

"But since several weeks ago when there was a similar segregation incident in Charlotte, N.C., he has had my word it would never happen again. I didn't think it would.

"I was assured by Cincinnati and Maurice Podoloff, the league president, there would be no repetition in Charleston of what happened in Charlotte. In other words, I thought all the arrangements had been made.

"Baylor is a highstrung, sensitive fellow. These things affect him very vividly. I'm disappointed in his decision not to play — I think it would have been better for him to show he could rise above the situation — but I certainly can understand his feelings."

Baylor and Bill Russell of the Boston Celtics both spoke out angrily when they and other Negroes were not permitted to stay with their white teammates in a Charlotte hotel earlier this season.

Regarding reports that the Lakers would veto Texas cities as possible sites for a future franchise shift, Short said:

"The segregation problem would make it difficult for an NBA team to place a franchise there, in my opinion. I would not want a franchise in any area where there are laws against racial mixing as it affects housing and dining facilities."

The American Business Club of Charleston Saturday protested to the NBA over the failure of Baylor to appear in the game it sponsored.

ABC Promoter H. Thomas Corrie said he sent a telegram to Podoloff in New York which read as follows:

"Urge disciplinary action against Elgin Baylor . . . Records show Minneapolis club was advised on Dec. 29 that segregation enforced at hotels. His absence from lineup most embarrassing to us and damaged our chances of promoting future NBA games here."

Corrie said the American Business Club would like to have a chance "to make up for our losses. But we can't do it with a professional game here unless we have some protection against such things as Baylor pulled on us.

"If they don't think any more of us than to let something like this happen, then maybe we shouldn't do business with the National Basketball Association again."

Uh Oh, Karol

Karol Fageros' gold tennis panties have been trumped. Laura Lou Kunnen of Clearwater is responsible for this latest fashion in undergarments: Confederate flags stitched in a rather prominent place. The idea is made slightly more logical by the fact Laura Lou won the women's singles in the Dixie International Tennis Championships at Tampa.

Fast-Breaking FSU Out-Runs UM Five, 93-69

By BILL McGROTHA
Herald Correspondent

TALLAHASSEE—With its two hotshot guards, Hugh Durham and Don Bates, hitting from all angles, Florida State's basketball team outsprinted road-weary University of Miami, 93-69, here Saturday night.

The Hurricanes, playing their third game in as many North Florida nights, were in it only for the first 10 minutes. And there was 5:30 gone in the game before UM found the range for its first field goal.

Miami was trailing by two, 13-11, when FSU cut loose. The Seminoles extended things to 25-13 before the Hurricanes got another point.

Durham, 13th ranking scorer in the nation, poured in 29 points and Bates bagged 25. FSU got surprising help from 6-5 John Richter, a center who had appeared briefly in just three previous games, getting no points. Richter netted 12 tonight and turned in slick defense work.

Joe Gardner, consistently Miami's most productive player in the FSU gym, got 19. It was the third straight year Gardner led UM in Tallahassee. Dick Hickox totalled 16.

Devisive factor was FSU's control of the boards. The Tribe outrebounded UM, 72 to 47, with 6-6 Dan Boltz making 23 recoveries an FSU season high. Miami's Harry Manushaw snagged 14.

World Jumping Mark Set

BOSTON — (AP) — John Thomas, Boston University's fabulous freshman, cleared 6 feet, 11⅞ inches Saturday night to shatter the world indoor high jump record and steal the spotlight from Ron Delany who registered his 24th straight mile victory in the Boston Knights of Columbus games.

The crowd of 10,170 in Boston Garden let out a mighty cheer when Thomas, a gangling 17-year-old went over the bar on his third try at the height just as Delany was making his mile bid.

Delany captured the mile in 4:08.3 in his usual fashion—coming from behind in the final laps. Lt. Bill Dellinger of the U.S. Air Force was second.

For the record, Thomas cleared 6-11.7-8, but under the rules, the height must revert to the nearest quarter inch.

Lee Calhoun of Durham, N.C., the Olympic 110-meter hurdles champion, returned to action after sitting out a year's suspension by the AAU for—of all things — getting married on TV and won the 45-hurdles in 5.6 seconds.

Ed Collymore, Villanova, won the Prout 600 in 1:11 in a stirring battle with Rudy Smith of Bates. Collymore had to overtake Smith in the final [illegible] is at the finish.

K-State Scores

COLUMBIA, Mo. — (AP) — Bob Boozer racked up 30 points and fourth-ranked Kansas State boosted its season record to 13-1 by defeating a weak Missouri Tiger team, 75-60, in a Big Eight Basketball game Saturday night.

On The Ball

Bob Risser (21) of Tennessee is getting ready for a close-up look at the ball during Kentucky's 79-58 victory Saturday over Tennessee. Behind Risser are Kentucky's Don Mills (52) and Bill Lickert (44).

Wildcats Win TV Game, 79-58

Benchwarmer Sparks Kentucky Past Vols

LEXINGTON, Ky. — (AP) — Sid Cohen, riding the bench in a slump, came in on a relief role and sparked Kentucky's 79-58 runaway basketball victory over Tennessee Saturday.

Cohen, a driving demon, hit 8 of his 14 points in one stretch early in the second half and safely put Kentucky's 14th victory in the bag.

The junior college transfer, who had been Kentucky's early-season sparkplug, wound up second in points to Center Don Mills, who had 19.

For Tennessee, 6-8 Gene Tormohlen, with 17, and Sophomore Bobby Carter, with 16, carried the offensive burden.

A jammed house of 11,600 saw the nationally televised College Game of the Week. The Wildcats, the Nation's No. 2 club, piled up their fourth win against one loss in the Southeastern Conference.

For the Vols, the setback meant a 2-2 league record.

N.C. State Wins

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — (AP) — North Carolina State, battling to retain its No. 1 national ranking, stormed from eight points behind in the last half Saturday night to score a 64-59 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory over Wake Forest.

George Stepanovich, 6-4 senior, engineering State's hard-earned triumph by pulling down 21 rebounds and scoring 14 points.

The Wolfpack, overtime loser to North Carolina three nights ago, had to twice come from eight points off the pace before gaining its 12th victory in 14 starts.

Buckeyes Romp

COLUMBUS, Ohio — (AP) — Sophomores Larry Siegfried and Richie Hoyt poured in 27 and 22 points, respectively, to lead Ohio State to an 88-77 Big Ten basketball victory over Northwestern. It was the Buckeyes' first conference victory in three tries.

Irish Hit Peak

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — (AP) — With Star Scorer Tom Hawkins back in the lineup after missing three games with an injured ankle, Notre Dame's basketball Irish defeated Loyola of Chicago, 88-61. Hawkins was high scorer with 26 points.

Notre Dame's score was its highest this season, in which it has suffered nine defeats against five victories. Two of the losses came while Hawkins was on the bench.

★ ★ ★

Tech Tops Vandy

ATLANTA — (AP) — Georgia Tech survived a strong Vanderbilt threat early in the second half and then raced to an 80-61 Southeastern Conference basketball victory.

Tech, now 2-2 in SEC play, got fine clutch shooting from Ray Blemker in the first half for a 37-24 lead.

But Vandy closed the gap to six points swiftly in the second half.

Terry Randall, Roger Kaiser and Dave Denton then sparked a fierce Yellow Jacket comeback that increased the Tech lead to 15 points in less than two minutes.

Sooners Rally

NORMAN, Okla. — (AP) — Oklahoma's Sooners trailed throughout most of the first half but surged to the front early in the second and held on for a 45-38 Big Eight conference victory over the Kansas Jayhawks.

★ ★ ★

Duke Gets Even

DURHAM, N.C. — (AP) — Duke avenged last week's 31-point loss to Maryland today by tripping the Terps, 78-69, in a regionally televised Atlantic Coast conference basketball game.

Two of Duke's five sophomore starters, Howard Hurt and Carroll Youngkin, played leading roles in the Blue Devils' sharpest performance of an in-and-out season.

Each scored 21 points and they combined for 25 of Duke's 41 rebounds, 13 by Youngkin.

Gophers Survive

MINNEAPOLIS — (AP) — Minnesota blew a 15-point lead in the face of Jake Eison's second scorching second half scoring, but a fusillade of free throws earned the Gophers a 64-62 basketball victory over Purdue.

Women's Pin Pacers Keep Leads

Leaders in the Women's City Bowling Tournament survived Saturday's action at Coliseum Lanes.

Biggest change took place in doubles where Rose Sampson and Helen Sicking posted a 1,256 to displace Sue Springman and Cora Harris' leading 1,260.

Harriet Hammond and Mae Goodrich moved into fourth place with a 1,208 and Lucille Harmon and Eva Lee took fifth with 1,204.

Ann Ordway's 678 handicap set and 591 scratch set continue to pace singles although four 600 scratch sets (all in team competition) have been bowled. Joan Kaminsky's 669 Saturday took second in handicap and Elsie Fletcher's 661 was third.

Barry Martin Vitamins leads team competition in handicap with 3,057 and Barnett's 2,714 tops scratch action.

Kate Gypp's 230-207-180—617 in team competition was the top individual effort Saturday.

McKay Wins Big (for Him) Test; Pro Football May Change Rules

Condensed From Herald Wire Services

Barry MacKay won an "end of the line" match Saturday to accompany his Davis Cup teammates, Alex Olmedo and Chris Crawford, into the third round of the Australian Tennis Championships at Adelaide.

Down two sets to one and his confidence jolted, MacKay fought back for a 4-6, 6-3, 1-6, 6-4 over Australian Junior Ken Fletcher.

"If I hadn't won this one," said the U. S. youth, "it would have been the end of the line for me. A defeat . . . after my losses in Australia . . . would just about have cooked my tennis.

Olmedo, the Peruvian hero of America's Davis Cup victory who has been injured, toyed with Wayne Reid of Australia 6-3, 6-3, 6-1.

The 19-year-old Crawford, with his service smoking, blistered Aussie Barry Philips Moore, 5-7, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

BASKETBALL: Shaking off Cincinnati with a 30-point salvo in the first half's last seven minutes, the New York Knicks rolled to a 117-105 NBA victory at Madison Square Garden. Ken Sears and Frank Selvy triggered the splurge it sent the Knicks into a 15-point halftime lead after the score had been tied eight times earlier. Sears hit 11 of his 28 - points during the rally and Selvy, who finished with 21, contributed nine to the flurry.

PRO FOOTBALL: The National Football League, always looking to entertain the cash customers, will consider several important rule changes during its winter meeting and player draft starting Wednesday in Philadelphia.

Possible rule revisions of general interest are:

1—When a team scores and still is more than seven points behind, give it the option of kicking off or receiving.

2—Punters must kick from 10 yards or less behind the line of scrimmage, which would enable defensive linemen to put more pressure on them.

3—When an onsides kickoff fails to go 10 yards and is recovered by the receiving team, it should have the option of retaining possession or having the ball kicked over. It now is kicked over.

4—All kickoffs should be made from the 35-yard line instead of the 40.

Draft selections will start with round five, the first four choices having been made Dec. 1.

SPORTS HASH — Twenty-one horses perished Friday in fires that broke out in widely separated stables in Chicago. Eight thoroughbreds died when flames hit a winter boarding stable for race on at the Turf Meadow Farm in Tinley Park, a suburb southwest of Chicago. Thirteen horses died in a blaze at the Flying W Riding Stable in Norwood Park on the city's northwest fringe . . . Pete's Folly strengthened his claim as the Fair Grounds' No. 1 horse with a neck victory in the $10,000 Marriage Handicap. The 6-year-old gelding came from fourth place at the head of the stretch to edge Firesickle while Tenacious, 3-2 favorite, finished third . . . World's biggest auto competition — the Monte Carlo Rally — starts today when more than 300 cars take all through all kinds of weather on the road to sunny Monaco. Snow, ice and, in some cases, floods, are likely to be encountered along portions of all nine of the possible routes the drivers can choose. Starting from Glasgow, Athens, The Hague, Lisbon, Munich, Rome, Warsaw or Paris, the two to four-man driving teams will follow prescribed routes all averaging approximately 2,173 miles . . . The Detroit area was awarded two 1959 National championship rowing regattas at meetings Saturday at the New York Athletic Club. Detroit Boat Club was awarded the 87th title regatta of the National Association of amateur oarsmen on Aug. 8-9 . . . The nearby Wyandotte (Mich.) Boat Club was awarded the 25th championships of the Schoolboy Rowing Association of America alloted for May 23.

Pow!

Danny Lewickie (right), Chicago Black Hawks center, catches a punch flush on the chin from the fist of New York Rangers' Jimmy Bartlett (hidden by referee). The episode came during their Saturday afternoon game at Chicago Stadium, and both were charged with roughing penalties. The Black Hawks threw more goals than punches and won, 7-1.

50,000 See Terrang Win Anita Race

ARCADIA, Calif — (AP) — Highly regarded Terrang made it a wire-to-wire triumph and his second successive victory in the same event when he won the $27,650 Santa Catalina Handicap at Santa Anita Park Saturday.

Second choice to Eddie Schmidt in the betting by a crowd estimated at 50,000, the 6-year-old Terrang, again with Jockey Bill Boland in the saddle, beat off the challenge of seven other California-foaled horses.

Ying and Yang, third choice, was second, and Alibi Blue third, with Eddie Schmidt fourth.

Time for the mile and one-eighth feature was 1:48 3-5 over a fast track in 80-degree temperature.

Terrang, in winning his eighth stakes at Santa Anita, paid $6.30, $4.50 and $4.30.

Ying and Yang, handled by Willie Shoemaker, returned $5.80 and $4.10, and Alibi Blue, with Ray York aboard, paid $5.40.

The day's parimutuel handle for the 8-race card was $3,300,690.

Bombers Win, 22-21

The California Bombers defeated the Florida Red Devils, 22-21, Saturday night at Miami Beach Exhibition Hall to even their Roller Derby series at 1-1.

The playoff will start tonight at 6:30.

Terri Lynch led the Red Devils with six points while Paul Milane topped the boys with five. Anne Canvello was high for the Bomber girls with five and Charlie O'Connell led the Bomber boys with five.

Art Wall Stays Hot In 'Crosby'

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — (AP) — Long putts continued to drop Saturday for lean Art Wall Jr. as he fired his third straight subpar round and held his lead in the $50,000 Bing Crosby golf tournament with a 54-hole total of 204.

Wall toured the picturesque and tricky Pebble Beach Course for a two-under-par 70 and a four-stroke lead going into today's 18-hole final.

Jimmy Demaret, wearing the coral sweater he won from Jack Burke Jr., for his 64 Friday, hung onto second place with 208. He shot 70 Saturday.

Gene Littler moved into the No. 3 spot with a 70 at Cypress Point and a 210 total.

A crowd of about 25,000 in a holiday mood swarmed over the three courses. Those in the right places saw George Fazio score a hole in one on the 158-yard seventh at Monterey Peninsula Country Club and Hans Merrell take a horrendous 19 on the over-the-ocean 16th at Cypress Point.

Crosby's tournament rewards pros for individual efforts and for their pro-amateur performances with amateur partners. Wall and his partner, U.S. Amateur Champion Charlie Coe, held the team lead with a best ball 62 Saturday and 187 total.

UM Signs Grid Pacts With LSU and Tulane

Louisiana State University and Tulane have agreed to renewals of their football rivalry with the University of Miami, Athletic Director Jack Harding said Saturday upon his return from the Southeastern Conference meeting at Baton Rouge.

"Our present series with LSU ends next fall," Harding explained." But LSU has agreed to play us on a home-and-home basis in 1962-63. Our two-year pact with Tulane starts this year, but Tulane will play us again in 1963-64."

The Hurricanes also have scheduled the Tulane basketball team again, Harding reported.

Southeastern teams provide half of the Hurricanes' opposition next season, games being scheduled with Tulane, Auburn, Kentucky, LSU and Florida.

Harding said Alabama wants to switch UM to an earlier date in 1962, the first year of a two-game agreement.

"LSU will be tough again next season," Harding said. "Coach Paul Deitzel loses only three regulars. The only thing he seems worried about is seniorities. Auburn is expected to have another fine team."

"Observers seem to think Alabama will continue its comback under Bear Bryant, but will not become a contender next fall."

The SEC meeting was a friendly session, because there were no controversial issues," Harding added.

Frost, Fageros Head UM Tennis Seedings

Seedings for the annual Coral Gables-University of Miami Tennis Championships, opening Monday on the Salvadore Park courts, were announced Saturday by Tournament Director Leo Fullwood.

Jack Frost of Monterey, Calif., heads the men's seedings, while Karol Fageros, national women's clay court champion from Coral Gables, drew the top spot in the women's division.

Here's the way the rest of the seedings were awarded by the tournament committee Saturday:

Men's Singles — No. 2, Ed Rubinoff, Coral Gables; No. 3, Bert Brown, Los Angeles, and No. 4 — John Skogstad, Florida state men's champion from Coral Gables.

WOMEN'S SINGLES — No. 2, Marie Martin, third ranking women's star of Australia; No. 3 — Alicia Helgewaldt, second ranking star of Chile, and No. 4, Evelyn Clark, formerly of Atlanta and now from Miami.

University of Miami will be represented by Roger McCormick and Bob Bossong. Both are sophomores on the 1959 UM net aggregation. McCormick was UM's top frosh net prospect last year.

In addition to men's singles there will be men's and women's doubles; men's events for players in the following divisions, 35 years of ago and over; 45 years and over, 50 years and over, and 60 years and over.

Also the tournament includes events for women 40 and over, and 50 and over. Singles and doubles are scheduled in all of the events.

Can Garcia 'Retire' Ryff Again Tuesday?

Angel (Robinson) Garcia, who pounded one fighter into retirement his last bout at Miami Beach, Tuesday meets a fellow coming out of "retirement."

Frankie Ryff is the name; getting back into the welterweight scramble his ambition.

Garcia, probably the best fighter in Cuba outside of Fidel Castro, KO'd Miami's Andy Arel in the fifth round three months ago. Arel has taken a job—and a wife—since then.

Ryff, a bleeder, is in the throes of a "comeback" after deciding the cuts he always received weren't worth it and quitting (for a very short while). He has won three, lost only one . . . and escaped serious cuts . . . since ex-champion Barney Ross convinced him he should try again.

Ryff always has been considered a good fighter, with victories over Ralph Dupas, Orlando Zulueta and Baby Vazques in his 28-6 record. He's a converted southpaw with a good chin and a bob-and-weave boxing style.

Garcia, due in Miami today, is a quick combination puncher who has had all his U.S main events at Miami Beach. He has won 26, lost only four.

Preliminaries to the Miami Beach Auditorium hassle start at 8:45.

THERE'LL BE TWO comebacks at Bayfront Park Auditorium Thursday. Boxing in general, unbeaten Lightweight Ed Beattie in particular.

Beattie, who won all five of his fights before an operation to close a hole in his heart sidelined him for a year and a half, meets Ken Sultzmann in one of three 6-rounders. The fight show will be the first in Miami proper in almost two years.

Other six-rounders match Hymie Budow with Dwaine Simpson, and Willie Giles with Willie Finney. Four more four-rounders will be announced later.

FILIAL LOVE took a kick in the chops at Miss Hattie Ambusch's Fifth Street Gym last week, when fifth-ranked Heavyweight Willie Pastrano asked son Johnny, 4, if he'd help daddy during a spar session with Garvin Sawyer.

Johnny took a long look at the lanky Sawyer.

"No, daddy," he said.

Horse Show Entrants In Preview

Several top entrants in the Greater Miami Horse Show Feb. 5-8 will go on public display today at James D. Norris' Spring Hill Farm, located at Sunset Dr. and 115th Ave.

Six hunters will be exhibited as part of a quarterhorse racing program opening at 2:15. Stephanie Zachar will explain the judging of hunters during the exhibition.

Hunters to be shown include Brian Boru, with James Nicholas in the saddle; Beach Hill, with Elizabeth Bell up; County Down, Harry Whitaker; Jet Commet, Dorothy McManus Blitzkrieg, Albert D. Hubbard, Jr., and Teddy Bear, Alice Frazier.

Officials of the Cancer Institute-sponsored show announced Saturday that Eddie Bywaters, one of the world's leading trainers of hunters, will show the horses of Mrs. Gregory MacIntosh of Warrenton, Va.

Mrs. MacIntosh, who enters horses in all championship shows, is returning from Germany for this show.

The Greater Miami Horse Show will be held at Dinner Key Auditorium.

Iron Shots Are Different

The golfer was practicing with his No. 5 IRON and using the swing for a NO. 1 WOOD. He was not getting the distance. He accepted a suggestion from the sidelines and changed his swing from an open, wide swing for a WOOD to a shortened and more close to the body swing for an IRON shot. He gained 10 to 20 yds. with less effort. Correct technique makes up and exceeds force or bully beef strokes in golf. Practicing or lessons had at

A Trophy for Red . . . An Artful Gridder

Cohen Checks American Heritage's Paw
. . . as pretty Sharon Michael looks on

Red Schoendienst, ailing Milwaukee Brave star, will be honored in the 19th annual National Baseball Players' Golf Tournament at Miami Springs.

Tournament Director George Jacobus announced Saturday a trophy bearing Schoendienst's name will be awarded the winner of a hole-in-one event scheduled the final day of the tourney (which starts Feb. 12).

Schoendienst is in a St. Louis hospital, recuperating from tuberculosis which has shelved him for the coming season.

"After talking to some of the players," said Jacobus, "it was decided this was the least we could do for someone who has done so much for baseball."

No definite word has been received yet from Albie Pearson, defending champ.

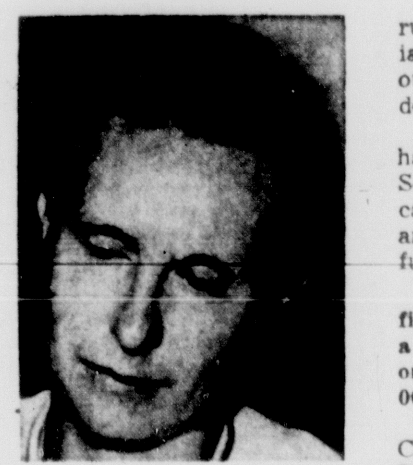
Transfusion

A BLOOD TRANSFUSION once saved the life of a greyhound. As a year-old, the pup was badly torn by wire while playing in his pen. He lost so much blood that when the owner rushed him to the veterinarian, he brought along another greyhound as a blood donor.



Red Schoendienst

Unfortunately, the donor had the wrong type of blood. So the owner sent a hurried call back to his kennel for another dog. The transfusion worked this time.

In a nutshell, this typifies J. B. Cohen's rise from a kennel worth $15,000 to one worth better than $150,000.

It was 12 years ago that Cohen scraped together the $15,000 to buy 23 dogs and equipment from H. B. Diamond. Today, his Fleet Wing Kennel is one of the tops at Miami Beach Kennel Club; Cohen runs a 50-acre breeding farm in North Andover, Mass., and another place in Nebraska where many of his dogs are bred.

Cohen credits two things with having played important roles in his success — an engineering degree from MIT and "three sons good at handling greyhounds."

Artist-Gridder

A HUSKY pro football lineman is tackling the art world.

Harold M. Bradley, 28-year-old Chicagoan who last fall played guard for the Philadelphia Eagles, is presenting a one-man art show in the Rockford (Ill.) College Galleries.

Bradley's show features nine oil paintings — seven figures, an abstract, and a self-portrait.

Bradley (6-2, 235 - pound Negro lineman) played football at Iowa in 1951, then played four seasons with the Cleveland Browns before he was traded to Philadelphia last fall.

Berger Was a Sizzler, But Watch Out for Butts

Every so often it's interesting to drag out the old records and take a look.

Did you know only 13 players in Miami's high school basketball history have scored over 400 points? Only three have exceeded 500.

Berger

Eight of the 400-plus shooters did the job during the last three seasons, which emphasizes the trend toward higher scores.

Miami High's Gene Bennett was the first to crack 400, turning in 413 for the 1951-52 campaign. Richie Berger, the Beach scoring machine, rewrote the books last season when he poured in the all-time high, 587.

Berger also leads in most points for three seasons, 1,359; top average, one season, 25.5; and most games over 20 points, 29. Bobby Balch and Bennett of Miami High hold the individual game scoring high of 56.

Here are the top shooters:

1.	Richie Berger, Miami Beach, (1957-58)	587
2.	Bobby Balch, Miami High (1956-57)	583
3.	Richie Maureau, North Miami (1956-57)	508
4.	Rufus Ashworth, Coral Gables (1957-58)	488
5.	Tom Conard, Miami High (1955-56)	479
6.	Pete Perdomo, Miami High (1957-58)	478
7.	Bernie Butts, Hialeah (1957-58)	460
8.	Joe Brodsky, Jackson (1952-53)	453
9.	Brooks Henderson, Gables (1955-56)	460
10.	Dick Hoban, Miami High (1953-54)	441
11.	Lou Merchant, Edison (1956-57)	433
12.	Gene Bennett, Miami High (1951-52)	413
13.	Lyle Charles, Hialeah (1957-58)	406

Hialeah's Bernie Butts looks like the best bet to take this season's scoring honors. He is within reach of a new all-time season high if he keeps pouring the points in at his current pace. He has 196 points in six games for an average of 32.6.

For Ted, Another All-America

TED SAUSSELE, Coral Gables fullback who was named Miami's top prep football player of 1958, has been nominated for the Sporting News All-America team . . . Richard Roellig, Palmetto's outstanding ninth-grade football quarterback and basketball player, probably will leave the school in June. His family plans to return to Dayton . . . Ex-Edison star Joel Hancock scored six points against Mississippi Southern last week, his lowest total of the season for Stetson. He's averaging 12 points . . . Lake Worth is seeking a basketball game on Jan. 27 . . . North Miami wants football games for Sept. 25 and Oct. 31.

Stings, Hialeah Top Slate

Miami High, long the local basketball kingpin, attempts to regain some lost prestige against Hialeah and Miami Edison this week.

The two city games highlight a busy 38-game high school schedule.

Last year Miami High experienced its worst basketball campaign in 20 years with a 10-12 record. But this season —behind the shooting of Pete Somerindyke, the rebounding of Dave Austin and the floor play of Buddy Coleman — Miami High has bounced back.

Hialeah, Miami High's opponent Tuesday night at the Stingaree gymnasium has been running red-hot behind the amazing shooting of Bernie Butts.

Edison hasn't lost to Miami High in two years. But the heightless Raiders will be hard pressed to make it five in a row at Miami High's gym Friday night.

Miami Beach, balking at the county's small gymnasium system, will switch its activities to the Miami Beach Auditorium Monday night for a game against North Miami.

Coach Chuck Fieldson and his Typhoons feel they can make basketball pay in a bigger gymnasium. Beach yearly draws capacity crowds for the North Miami games.

Larranaga Returning To '58 Form

Larranaga, looking like $14,000 worth of jai-alai player, is challenging Orbea for the lead in the world singles championship race at Miami Fronton.

All but conceded the title after three weeks of play in which he at one time led by 25 points, Orbea was still 13 points up on the field.

But Larranaga, defending champion and owner of an all-time record $14,000 season contract, finally hit his stride this past week. He scored two straight victories and several in-the-money finishes.

Orbea has finished in the money 17 times in 28 starts, Larranaga 16 times in 28 games. After Larranaga there's a gap of eight points to third place Churruca, three points ahead of Guarita, running fourth in the seven-man field.

Auto Racing? Floridians Sure In Right Place

By STEVE McNAMARA
Herald Sports Writer

Florida's auto racing fraternity will have its hands full this spring with seven big race programs scheduled and three others in the works.

The headliners will be the races at the new Daytona International Speedway, destined to be the most elaborate racing plant in the world, and the world championship 12-hour sports car race at Sebring.

McNAMARA

For those who want to make sure their hip flask is polished and binoculars dusted in plenty of time, here's the lineup:

FEB. 7-8: Qualifying trials for NASCAR late model stock car races at the Daytona Speedway. In addition, various racing events are scheduled off and on from Feb. 9 until the big races start Feb. 20.

FEB. 14-15: Amateur sports car races at Cocoa conducted by the new Central Florida Region of the Sports Car Club of America.

FEB. 14-15: Additional Daytona late model qualifying trials.

FEB. 17-18: Daytona sportsman-modified qualifying

FEB. 20-22: Races at Daytona's 2.5-mile speedway which replaces the old beach and road course, and also replaces the Autodromo di Monza in Italy as the fastest track in the world. Friday — 100-mile Grand National and 100-mile convertible races. Saturday — 200-mile sportsman-modified race plus 25-mile late model consolation race. Sunday — 500-mile late model National Sweepstakes.

MARCH: Amateur sports car races planned for first week at Boca Raton.

MARCH 21: World championship 12-hour sports car race at Sebring. (The Formula I Grand Prix of the United States of America has been postponed, probably until November.)

APRIL 4-5: Daytona Speedway races for Championship (Indianapolis) cars and Formula I machines around 2.5-mile track; plus professional sports car races around 4.6-mile course which includes banked track and infield road course.

APRIL: Amateur sports car races planned at Venice airport and road course.

APRIL: Amateur sports car races planned at Miami's Master Field.

If you can't wait until February to see a race, Jim Rathmann is putting on one-half midget races free on opening day of the International Foreign Car Show at Dinner Key next Sunday.

TO THE DISMAY of a few Miami dealers who were more than happy to have his business, Johnny Cuevas has opened a shop of his own.

Quiver Motors, owned by Johnny, Charles Ringling and Bruce Doherty, is busy doctoring Porsches and other foreign machinery in a shop near the South Dixie Bowl-O-Mat.

Heinz Bade, "The Baron," is in charge of the dirty hands department while Quiver is getting things in order for an upcoming trip to Europe which may include some racing.

New Flamingo Regatta Planned

Miami to Gun Cay Yacht Race Friday Attracts 25 Entries

By LUTHER EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

If the entry list for Friday's Miami to Gun Cay Light race is any criterion, the 1959 Southern Ocean Racing Conference will be the most successful ever.

Twenty-five yachts, ranging from the 64-foot yawl Good Hope to the 30-foot sloop Carousel, have been entered in the Coral Reef Yacht Club's third annual test.

EVANS

That's 10 more than started in last year's SORC feature, the Miami-Nassau, after the disappearance of Harvey Conover at sea threw a pall over the racing fraternity.

Although it doesn't come up until Feb. 3, the Miami-Nassau entry total already has reached 19 craft, an indication the fleet may reach record proportions.

The 71-mile voyage to Gun Cay provides a thorough final shakedown for men and boats before they launch the official SORC circuit with the Lipton Cup race Jan. 31.

Favorites — if there can be such a thing in a yacht race — are Gabriel Giannini's 59-foot yawl Marie Amelie; Jack Price's 40-foot yawl Comanche, Jake Hershey's 40-foot yawl Ca Va, and Dick Richardson's Good Hope.

Ca Va won the SORC title last year after Carleton Mitchell withdrew from the circuit with his fabulous Finisterre in the wake of his Miami-Nassau victory.

Mitchell, winner of the 184-mile race to Nassau for the past two years, will not compete in the Gun Cay sprint or the SORC circuit this year.

Skippers' meeting for the Gun Cay event comes up at 5:30 p.m. Friday at Coral Reef Yacht Club.

PHYC Event Set Feb. 14-15

A NEW REGATTA has been added to Florida's annual Grapefruit Circuit — the Flamingo Regatta under co-sponsorship of the Pelican Harbor Yacht Club and City of Miami.

It will staged Sunday, Feb. 15, over the PHYC's course on the Miami side of 79th Street Causeway.

A full program of stock outboard and inboard heats will be sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association.

In addition, Chairman Joe Moller has scheduled mile trials for Feb. 14 on the canal course off State Road 85, five miles west of Fort Lauderdale.

Bill Earls Named Commodore

BILL EARLS, one of the Pelican Harbor Yacht Club's energetic workers during the past few years, has been rewarded by being elected commodore.

He was installed Saturday night along with his official family: Harry Jacoby, vice commodore; Gus DeWinkler, rear commodore; Bob Carda, secretary, and Walt Kuhn, treasurer.

Named to board of governors were Warren Servatt, Loren Wilson, George DeNisco and Al Martin.

Sophie Ferwerda was chosen president of the PHYC Auxiliary with Nina Cooper vice president; Mary Georgens, recording secretary; Lorraine Carda, corresponding secretary, and Val Wilson, treasurer.

Named to the board were Rene Jacoby, Hazel Earls and Helen Martin. Mrs. Martin, well known marathon powerboat driver, also was named publicity chief for the club by Commodore Earls.

MYC Schedules Races Today

MIAMI YACHT Club stages another in its ever growing semi-monthly series of race programs at 12:30 this afternoon. Ten classes are on the agenda . . . Yacht to beat on the SORC is likely to be Caribbee, 58-foot yawl which Carleton Mitchell twice skippered to circuit titles (1952 and '53). Now owned by Seabury Stanton, the two-time Miami-Nassau winner has been chartered by Charlie Dell, Ed Disharoon and Henry duPont, three of America's top sailors . . . Howard Foht, who lost the State Lightning Class championship last Sunday when he was disqualified in the final heat, is reported planning an appeal to the Florida Sailing Association under Commodore William (Willie) Saunders. Foht was disqualified in the Sunshine Regatta for failing to yield buoy room to Oscar Nelson, giving the latter a championship which Oscar said "I don't deserve—Howard does" . . . Miami Beach Power Squadron will begin a small boat handling course on Feb. 5 with registration at 7 p.m. at Surfside Beach House, 93rd St. and Collins Ave. Commodore Saul Sabad says spaced limitations necessitate restricting enrollment to residents of Miami Beach and neighboring beachside communities. For additional info, call Sabada, UN 6-1103 . . . Commander Lawrence Goldberg and his Palm Beach Power Squadron launched a similar course Thursday night.

Trabert, Segura May Buy Hotel

OCTOPUS shook off GOSHEN without difficulty, was roused to attain a commanding advantage in early stretch and held sway under continued pressure. CEDAR BROOK rallied along the inside and gained the nod over stablemate RARE RICE. The latter loomed a threat from the inside nearing the stretch, was taken up while showing a tendency to lug in soon after entering the stretch and continued on willingly. OPEN VIEW appeared rank on the turn and failed to threaten. EASY SPUR failed to attain prominence. PRYSON was through early. GOSHEN displayed brief speed and flattened out.

QB Club Meets On Wednesday

Special To The Herald

TALLAHASSEE — The annual Governor's Cup Jamboree of the Tallahassee Quarterback Club is scheduled Wednesday night.

Gov. LeRoy Collins will be on hand to present the cup to University of Florida's Bob Woodruff. The trophy, inaugurated by the club, will go annually to the winner of the FSU-Florida game.

About 300 members and guests are expected.

Races Called Off

Saturday night's automobile races at Hialeah Speedway were called off because of cold weather.

Horses Show Today

The eighth annual Baby Horse Show sponsored by the Florida Thoroughbred Breeders Association will be held today at 2:30 in the paddock at Hialeah Race Course.

Lou H. Doherty, owner and operator of the well-known Stallion Station in Lexington, Ky., will be the judge for the show.

Doherty's associate in the judging department will be the prominent young horseman, Jack J. Weipert, Jr., of Hollywood.

The Baby Horse Show was the scene of the public debuts of the famed Needles and King Hairan, probably rated the finest horses to represent Florida breeding industry.

There will be two classes competing, according to Carl G. Rose, president of the Florida Breeders group. Class I offers colts and geldings and Class II is for fillies, all foals of 1957. Cash prizes will be awarded the first four finishers in each category, and the winners will meet to decide the Best of Show.

Represented as breeders are D. F. Stewart, whose New Star won the Sophomore Handicap Thursday at Tropical Park; Ocala Stud Farm; V. L. Creal; Roscoe T. O'Neil; D & H Stable; Walter M. Pierce; J. Arden Wesley; Mrs. Mary Keim; George Landron; William B. McDonald, Jr.; Bonnie Heath Farm; J. B. Allison; Elton's Stable; Mr. and Mrs. W. K. McLean; and Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Taylor.

A record number of 47 entrants were received by Godfrey Preece, who handles arrangements for the show.

Foal papers have been received by all interests, and the show offers Shade Land, a full brother to New Star; the highly-regarded Can Opener; the aptly-named Cape Canaveral; and Colonel Shamrock, a handsome chestnut son of Ky. Colonel, always a good pedigree.

Cards Sign Beck

CHICAGO (AP) — Ken Beck, Texas A and M tackle, was signed Saturday by the Chicago Cardinals. The 240-pounder was the Cards' fourth choice in the National Football League preliminary player draft last month.

Yusuf Gets Admiring Glance From Trainer Joe Carroll
. . . Gulfstream-stationed star has won five straight races

Donn Jr. Sets Trip

'Claimer' Yusuf Runs to Conquer

Yusuf, the horse, probably lives a much quieter life than the original Yusuf ibn Tashufin, the Berber conqueror of Morocco and founder (1062) of Marakesh.

All Yusuf, the horse, has to do to earn his keep is win races. He does, too. Won his fifth straight Wednesday at Tropical Park.

Now the six-year-old is back at his Gulfstream Park "home" base where he will continue his campaigning during the March 4 - April 22 meeting.

How many more consecutive scores Yusuf will register is speculative. Right now, he has an impressive a streak as had Gallant Man during any part of his career. Bold Ruler was able to run up a string of no more than six wins, while Round Table's best run was 11 straight victories.

Consecutive runs are hard to hold. Hindoo, won 19 without defeat as a three-year-old. Colin was never bested, winning 15 starts. But Man o'War, the truly great horse of his generation, failed to go undefeated. He lost only one race — to the aptly named Upset.

Of late, the tops in this country was the 16 scores in continuous manner by Citation.

After all, Yusuf is merely a claiming performer of the $7,000 bracket. He has, however, proved a sound investment to owner Mrs. Ruth E. Dittmar of Edison, N.J. He cost only $4,000 when claimed from Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords on Nov. 2, 1956 at Garden State Park.

* * *

JAMES DONN JR., vice president of Gulfstream Park, will leave Wednesday for California (Santa Anita.)

Accompanying Donn Jr., will be Mrs. Donn, Racing Secretary James P. Ross Jr., and Track Photographer James Raftery.

They are to contact horsemen for additional far west competition to Tomy Lee, expected here for the $100,000 Florida Derby on April 4, and also for Hillsdale and Round Table, likely contenders for the $100,000 Gulfstream Park Handicap on March 21.

On the return trip, they will visit the New Orleans Fair Grounds track to line up other transfers to Gulfstream.

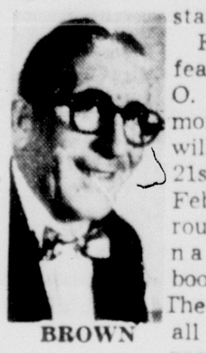
Beach Oval Readies 2 February Stakes

By JOE BROWN
Herald Greyhound Writer

Miami Beach Kennel Club's red letter month — February — will find two of the track's three scheduled stakes being staged.



BROWN

First of the features is the O. P. Smith Memorial, which will have its 21st renewal Feb. 9. Two rounds of eliminations are booked, Feb. 5. The distance for all Beach stake races will be the 2,166-foot Rickard Course.

The Smith Memorial is named in memory of the late Owen Patrick Smith, granddaddy of greyhound racing. He's the man who invented the mechanical rabbit used at greyhound tracks today.

The Gold Collar Classic will be run for the 17th time. Two rounds of eliminations have been set for Feb. 19 with the Gold Collar final booked Feb. 23.

Winner of the Smith Memorial last year was L. M. Kirkpatrick's Dottie Pantages while Ransom Lou, owned by L. M. Baltes, captured the Gold Collar in 1958.

* * *

HOLLYWOOD Kennel Club Monday night will stage a real rarity in the sport of greyhound racing.

A complete card of 11 marathons — each race to be run over the lap and half 3-8th mile course — have been scheduled. Virtually all of the top stars on the track, including the great Bud Jack, will go into action.

Bud Jack has definitely been entered in the $10,000 Silver Anniversary Stake as a Hollywood representative. Several other dogs from Hollywood and other tracks have been registered.

They include: Al Dark, Geemarie, Soapy Jones, Irish Iris and Shadow Bug, from Hollywood; Mar Omit, Mar Utah, Voter's Choice, Madame Harmony, Barracuda, Master Pilot, Johnny's Best, Whirling Jet, and Rio Grande Rose, from Flagler; and OB's Ample and OB's Scare, from Key West. Entries close Jan. 25.

* * *

RIO GRANDE Rose, one of the most versatile young greyhounds to develop, will be the one to beat in two of the three upcoming rounds of Flagler's rich $7,500 added Kennel Medley.

With the short 3-16th mile first round already concluded and the tough 7-16th mile final set for Jan. 28th, attention now focuses on Wednesday's two-heat second round at 5-16ths and the Flagler Course clash on Saturday.

This four-round tournament, designed to unveil the season's best balanced racing kennel, will require owners and trainers to select their top runners at each of four successively longer distances.

For Young Steve, The Catch Was Terrific

. . . nine-year-old whipped 72½-lb. sailfish

Outdoors ★★★ With Vic Dunaway

He Opened Hammerhead, And Look What He Found

Herb Goodman, the little man who catches big sharks off the inlet jetty at Boynton Beach, has just racked up his 52nd giant—a hammerhead measuring more than 11 feet and weighing, Herb says, "well over 400 pounds."

"This fellow," he relates, "took me for a mile north on the beach, and several times back and forth for something like an hour and a half before I beached him. It took 10 men to drag him back to the jetty.

DUNAWAY

"After I cut him open, I found a 10-lb. jack, a 3-lb. chub and several sand perch—plus the head of the same bonito I used for bait. I had thrown the head into the channel. It's a mystery to me how a big shark could catch a fish as fast as a jack."

Goodman used the body of a 12-pound bonito for bait, on a 130-pound-test sinking line, so he wouldn't interfere with any boats.

You might recall from an earlier article that Goodman uses an inflated balloon as a float. When he's fishing on the jetty he automatically becomes one of Boynton's best tourist attractions.

Chief ambition of Goodman's is to catch a sailfish from the jetty. He's been after it for a long time and, he says, "I'm still trying."

Lauderdaleans Bag Big Jaguar

THREE FORT LAUDERDALE men last week bagged a record jaguar in their first day of hunting at a camp near Barranquilla, Colombia. They were Dr. A. Taylor, H. C. Mathews and H. A. Jackson.

The terse report failed to indicate which of the hunters fired the fatal shot. Perhaps they all unloaded.

Anyway, the big cat measured eight feet and weighed 300 pounds. Average size of a jaguar is just six feet. They usually weigh under 200 pounds.

The trip was arranged through South American Safaris of Fort Lauderdale. W. P. Smith, head man of the outfit, reports that every party of hunters so far has killed at least one jaguar.

More Movies at Silver Springs

UNDERWATER SCENES for 21 new episodes of the television skindiving series "Sea Hunt" are now being filmed at Silver Springs.

It's the third time the show's producers have scheduled shooting sequences in the air-clear Florida waters. Of the 65 filmed episodes, 70 per cent of the underwater footage has been taken at Silver Springs.

Here's Do-It-Yourself Idea

DIG UP SOME lumber and a few old oil drums. Then watch your marine supply store for a couple of new kits which will allow you to do-it-yourself in building docks, rafts, diving platforms and other floating structures.

The kits consist of galvanized malleable iron clamps, cleat-brackets and boat nails designed to secure wood framework to drums without drilling and without wire bands or turnbuckles.

A heavy duty six-piece set will sell for four dollars, and a four-piece set for $3.50.

One man is said to be able to assemble a structure, using only hammer and wrench. The kits also include templates and plans.

9-Year-Old's 72-Pound Sail Grabs Lead in Met Tourney

Can a boy of nine, fishing heavy tackle from a cruiser, fight and subdue a 72½-lb. sailfish without any help? Can a 6-ft., 10-in. sailfish weighing 37-½ lbs. be whipped on a light fly rod?

Those questions came up and were answered this week when 15 anglers set new high scores in the standings of the Herald-sponsored Metropolitan Miami Fishing Tournament.

Careful checking on the part of tournament officials disclosed the achievement of the week was safely in the hands of nine-year-old Steve Clifford of Miami.

He fished out of Snake Creek Docks with Capt. Rene C. Roy on the Marguerite II. Roy supplied indisputable evidence young Clifford brought the 72½-lb. sail to gaff single-handed.

Thus, the boy becomes the leading contender for a trophy awarded for outstanding achievement by any angler 16 or under, and for the Florida Power & Light trophy for the heaviest sailfish.

Lawrence Ridout, a New England fly fisherman, fulfilled an ambition of many years' standing. A resident of Danforth, Me., he has fished this area many times, hoping to hook a sailfish on his light-weight fly casting outfit.

His 37-½-lb. sailfish wound up in the general division because he trolled a balao on his fly outfit to get the strike. His achievement lay in his handling of such a large, fighting fish on such light tackle.

Other highlights in the general division included a 65½-lb. amberjack by Johnnie Hall of Southern Pines, N.C., who fished with Capt. Howard Victor on the Cadet out of Big Blow Docks on the Keys.

Gershen Warren of Chicago boated a 12½-lb. bonefish for top score on the B-J with Islamorada Yacht Basin.

Don't Be Dullard: Sharpen the Hook

DEAR VIC:

In your column on fishing four-pound-test line for greater sport, one important point you forgot to mention was to keep hook points needle sharp.

While muskie fishing up north, I made it the number one project each evening to hand-hone all the hooks on spoons and plugs I used. Once a fish is hooked, a good-quality line in the hands of a light-line specialist can usually handle the largest of fish.

The same is true of the fabulous snook and tarpon fishing of Florida. Too much money and time is spent on trying to catch a fish to run the risk of losing him through so simple an error as a dull hook.

LEONARD HARTMAN, SOUTH BAY

DEAR VIC:

Last week I had occasion to go to Miami, and I crossed the Rickenbacker Causeway. The bridge was lined with fishermen, most of whom had nice catches of Spanish mackerel.

I was able to compare bridge fishermen there with those who line the two causeway bridges here at Fort Pierce. These fishermen are usually ardent to the point of risking their lives by jumping back in front of auto traffic.

A couple of years ago, I composed the following "poem," which was used in the Fort Pierce News-Tribune:

UNSOLICITED ADVICE TO BRIDGE FISHERMEN

You set your hook and then jump back.
You fight like a gladiator.
Be careful lest your derriere
Decorate a radiator.

Adjust Those Lips

PLUGS WITH metal diving lips often can be adjusted to run at different depths. Experiment and observe action on the retrieve. Bending the lip upward makes the lure come in shallower. Bend it downward to make the plug go deeper.

Careful With Ashes

BE CAREFUL when smoking cigarets around a spool full of monofilament line. A single hot ash might cause the loss of many feet of the flimsy stuff.

* * *

Small, Strong Swivels Handy

SMALL BUT STRONG swivels now are available at tackle stores, making it possible to wind monofilament leaders through rod guides, and thus promote easier casting. With such tiny swivels you won't be bothered by a long leader dangling from the rod.

Let the Worm Turn

WHEN YOU GO for freshwater bream using worms, hook the worm only once or twice through the middle, leaving long ends free to wave in the water.

Ice Delays Neji's Debut in Europe

NAVAN, Ireland — (AP) — Ice and frost Saturday delayed the European debut of the American steeplechase champion Neji. The Navan races were called off because of the hard ground. Neji, owned by Mrs. Ogden Phipps of New York, probably will make his debut at Lingfield Jan. 23 in a three-mile steeplechase.

Nelson, Bridgers

Baylor List Pared to Two

WACO, Tex. — (AP) — The tedious search for a football coach at Baylor appears drawing to an end.

Reports from the campus indicated a selection will be made next week.

The field, according to reliable sources, has been narrowed to two candidates — Dave Nelson of the University of Delaware and John D. Bridgers, line coach for the professional world champion Baltimore Colts.

All Latin America Suffers Over Cuba

Prejudices vs. the Facts

For many years a lot of people in the U.S. have labored under the idea that Latin America is an unstable entity, with revolutions and counter-revolutions liable to burst forth at the drop of a sombrero.

The recent overthrow of the Batista government in Cuba has lent a lot of strength to the arguments of these people.

But generalizations in the political field are just as dangerous as they are in any other field and this article does a lot to explode many of our prejudices.

By WILLIAM G. GAUDET
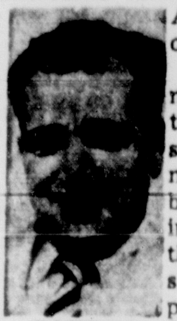
Special To The Herald

There is one unfortunate aspect attached to the Cuban revolution that only time and increased knowledge of Latin America can overcome.



GAUDET

That unfortunate aspect is that many persons in the U.S. not only feel, but are expressing the opinion that the Cuban situation is proof that all of the various American republics are unstable and an investment, at the private enterprise level, is a risky and dangerous business.

Unquestionably the Cuban situation, despite the apparent success of Fidel Castro and his followers, remains fluid and does not represent the finest climate, at this moment, for an investment.

But the thinking applies not only to Cuba but to Ecuador, to Mexico, to Central America, and to deep South American countries such as Chile, Argentina and Brazil.

Probelm stems from the fact that all of the 170 million Latin Americans, living in their respective countries, are considered by North Americans as a single amorphous mass, grouped together as a single political, industrial, geographic, cultural entity.

On this basis of thinking then, when the political situation is shaky in Cuba, then all of the countries are facing political crises. Nothing could be more apart from the truth.

Actually the political record, based on revolutions as the criteria, has not been bad when the immensity of the area and time are considered. Currently the Cuban situation is being held up as an example of how Latin American countries change presidents, but during the past two years consider this record:

NEWS FROM AROUND
LATIN AMERICA

MEXICO: Adolfo Lopez Mateos was elected preisent to succeed Adolfo Ruiz Cortinez without any significant difficulties.

COSTA RICA: Mario Echandi was elected president of Costa Rica despite the opposition of the government party then in power under Jose (Pepe) Figueres.

GUATEMALA: Gen. Manuel Ydigoras Fuentes was elected president, also despite the opposition of the government party which had been founded by the late Carlos Castillo Armas.

VENEZUELA: Romulo Betancourt was elected president of Venezuela despite opposition from various groups, including the Venezuela army faction.

ARGENTINA: Arturo Frondizi, despite the fears of many who were in government position, was elected president.

In view of the outstanding record made by the above countries, the Cuban blow-off is a distinct setback for those who have been trying to sell the Latin American countries as an area in which to work, to trade, to invest and to visit as a tourist.

Even though it might be ignorance on the part of North Americans to judge all of the Americas by the single action of a single country, there can be no argument with the basic belief of the North American that regardless of the motivation and the justice thereof, the bullet can never replace the ballot.

The series of executions which have taken place since the success of Castro and his followers has not helped ease the feeling of concern. Some advance the theory that the mass executions will ever more act as a deterrent to anyone who would advocate corruption in government, or dictatorship. Again, only time can tell. But even now the price is high.

Rail Strike Cripples Guatemala

GUATEMALA —(AP)— A strike by 5,000 rail workers Saturday paralyzed operations on the International Railways of Central America.

The American-owned line is the only rail link with the Atlantic coast port of Puerto Barrios, which handles the bulk of Guatemala's imports and exports. It also links the Atlantic coast with neighboring El Salvador and is the only Guatemalan rail line to the Mexican border.

Labor union leaders said they called the strike because management has refused to meet wage and other demands made nearly a year ago.

The union asked wage increases ranging from five to 50 per cent according to wage classification, severance pay for workers with 30 years or more of tenure, a pension plan, and improved medical and commissary service.

Tanks, Tear Gas Rout Strikers

BUENOS AIRES —(AP)— Police used tanks and tear gas to rout about 9,000 workers on a sitdown strike at the government - owned meat - packing plant.

The workers barricaded themselves in the plant Thursday to protest a government decision to turn the business over to private operators.

Don't Judge Castro Yet, Wait and See--Smathers

By DAVID KRASLOW
Herald Staff Writer

WASHINGTON — Sen. George Smathers of Florida said Saturday it is "still too early for final judgment" of Fidel Castro and urged that the problem of Cuban-U.S. relations be left in the hands of the State Department.

SMATHERS

"Let us, for the time being at least, stop challenging and disparaging the new regime," Smathers said.

And in a broadside at his colleagues in Congress who have reacted violently to the executions, Smathers said:

"These belligerent assertions and imprecations from the safety of our desks and chambers don't make it easier for those poor Cubans caught in the cross-fire of changing governments."

Smathers said "a continuation of the preemptory executions of those who disagree with Castro would lead to the inevitable conclusion that the Cuban people have escaped from one form of dictatorship only to find themselves under a more virulent brand.

"The American people love the Cubans and suffer with them in this hour of torment. We would all like to help them. But what Solomon is there who knows the answer at this moment?

In view of the fact that some already went overboard too hastily on one side, would it not appear most sensible for us all to restrain ourselves, our statements, our judgments, until the picture gets a bit more clear?"

Smathers, long a leading voice in Congress on Latin American affairs, said he believes the State Department has "done a good job under extremely trying circumstances.

"They properly did not effusively clutch or attach us to the uncertain future of Castro. They have learned, as we all should have, that all dictators who come to power do so shouting 'freedom for the people' and 'democracy for all.'

Surely one wo so shouts has not proved thereby that he is a George Washington or a Simon Bolivar."

Smathers said he has closely followed Castro since he first heard of him in the revolt at Bogota, Colombia, in 1948.

"I have heard enough about him to cause me to reserve judgment on him," Smathers said. "There can be no question of his courage, nor love of his country.

"But there likewise can be no question of his youth, his inexperience, and the dubious reputations of some of his past associates.

Answers to Last Week's Puzzle

Across

1—An indulgent upbringing sometimes makes a youth INSOLENT (Indolent). — Such upbringing has a softening rather than a hardening influence; sometimes is too restrained with INDOLENT, lazy. INSOLENT, impertinent, is realistic; recall, it's only sometimes.

5—Our actions are often influenced by the wishes of one who is DEAD (Dear). — They're usually, if not always, influenced by one who is DEAR to us. Instances of being influenced by one who is DEAD are definitely fewer.

6—His having few possessions often tends to make a man NEAR (Neat). — The double qualification of often tends points to NEAR, stingy, because of his tendency to guard jealously the few possessions he has. If he is not NEAT by nature, the number of his possessions won't change his habits.

7—A person who apparently WAITS for nothing is often unduly self-centered (Wants). — WAITS, as used, suggests undue impatience and implies a lack of consideration for others. WANTS is weak because, with so much want in the world he's more than merely often unduly self-centered with all that he possesses if he wants for nothing.

9—Many soft hearted people object to wild animals being put in a CAGE for show (Rage). — To put them in a RAGE it's necessary to torment them. One does not have to be softhearted to protest that CAGE fits better with the mildness of many soft hearted people; putting them in a cage is much less cruel.

10—As much as we can, most of us try to SHARE the feelings of those we love (Spare). — The weakness of SPARE is that it might not be in their best interests to SPARE their feelings. SHARE makes a matter-of-fact statement.

12—We seldom feel much pity for a person who gets SOCK through his own fault (Sack). — Not SACK because of seldom; the fault might be excusable; it might be just a temporary lapse that caused him to get fired. A SOCK, how rarely causes so much suffering. Recall: it was his fault.

13—Jealousy often makes a woman SULKY (Silky). — In some cases she might gain her ends by letting it be known that she is jealous; so she's not so frequently as often likely to try to conceal it, as would be the case with SILKY, soft, smooth in action or manner. That it often makes her SULKY is more in character.

Down

1—Alas! many of us have high IDEAS which we do nothing to realize (Ideal). — Not IDEAL, a conception of something in perfect form. We're all working to some degree toward a goal. IDEAS doesn't go so far as ideal; while a few of us do something about those ideas, many of us just let the opportunity slip.

2—To help catch a criminal police often spread NEWS widely (Nets). — NEWS fits well with often. NETS is weak, because it implies that a lot is known about the particular criminal. That might not be correct.

3—It's seldom worthwhile to ENGAGE a quarrelsome fellow (Enrage). — Not ENRAGE; it implies that it's usually better to ignore or appease him! While a quarrelsome fellow might be competent enough, it's seldom worthwhile to ENGAGE, hire, him because of the strife he might cause.

4—Self-consciousness sometimes makes a highly-strung person TART (Taut). — It's usually rather than merely sometimes that self-consciousness makes him TAUT. Sometimes is better with TART, acid, cutting, biting.

7—Children are sometimes embarrassingly WARY with strangers (Warm). — Parents will agree they're at least often embarrassingly WARM with strangers, particularly on trains and buses; their conversation is so uninhibited. Yet when we want them to be friendly they are sometimes embarrassingly WARY or cautious.

8—The average youngster is inclined to resent SWANK from one of his own age (Spank). — He'd definitely resent a SPANK from another youngster of his own age. SWANK, swaggering or showing off, is better; the swanking need not necessarily humiliate him.

10—As a rule, a shrewd boss is sorry when he SEES fellow-employes at odds with each other (Sets). — He's virtually always sorry when he SETS them at odds with each other, when he causes the quarrel. He's shrewd; it would have been unintentional. He's not to blame when he merely SEES them at odds.

11—We're apt to be resentful toward a person who causes us to lose FACE (Race). — We're not more than apt to be resentful toward a person who causes us to lose FACE, because he might do so through no fault of his own. RACE is weak; the direct cause might be the winner, and he might win fairly.

Coppelia--Ballet at Its Zest

By DORIS RENO
Herald Music and Art Editor

Herald Ballet Review

The National Ballet of Canada danced Saturday night in Dade County auditorium what was probably the most charming and zestful "Coppelia" that has ever been performed here.

The whole ballet sparkled from beginning to end, there wasn't a breath of tiredness in it, or a minute of indifferent dancing. It was a spruced-up, on-its-toes "Coppelia," presented with fresh, delightful costumes, stylish sets, pretty and well-trained young ballerinas, and well-coached young male dancers.

It is the sort of ballet you get when a whole company puts forth every ounce of effort and spares no pains, to make the production as good as it possibly can be.

Though the prima ballerina Lois Smith had been promised for the Swanhilda role, a charming and dedicated little dancer — Lillian Jarvis — performed it with all the grace, technical ability, and acting know-how it could ever need. Miss Jarvis, an excellent ballerina now, is evidently headed for the top — for she doesn't just dance, she has a warm and glowing personality that shines through and around her superior technical proficiency.

She was ably partnered by Earl Kraul, one of the rising young male dancers of the company. Other superior solo dancers in the performance were Angela Leigh, Grant Strate, and Jocelyn Terrell.

It is a pleasure to report that the corps de ballet of the Canadian company is one of the best, splendidly rehearsed, and geared to a freshness and vividness of performance that is unusual in a company that spends much time on tour.

It still remains a desperate disappointment to have had the National Ballet for two days in Miami and not to have seen the prima ballerina, Miss Smith, and the premier danseur, David Adams (Miss Smith's husband) partner each other in major roles. It wouldn't have seemed such a letdown if Miami hadn't been promised this artistic treat in all the company's advance publicity.

As it turned out, Miss Smith danced only once during the visit, a minor role in "Offenbach in the Underworld" which is not geared to her classical style. Adams danced a major role in "Giselle," but not with Miss Smith.

Neither house was sold out for the Canadians — both, actually, were rather far from it — and this seems both odd and rather frightening, for certainly a city of Miami's size, population, and presumable recent cultural advances ought to be able to sell out not merely two, but three or four houses for such a top-quality attraction.

Telethon Headliners Cut Up Backstage

. . . nothing but best for little palsy victim

By ELVALEE SWIFT
Herald Staff Writer

Not all the performances of the United Fund-Cerebral Palsy Telethon were flashed to television viewers Saturday night.

The big namers headlining the 17-hour spectacular cut a few extra capers backstage.

Duke Ellington strolled through the confusion contentedly sipping a paper cup of coffee and chewing furiously on a bit of gum.

He laughed and chatted with friends and occasionally tried to soothe his singer, Barbara McNair, who flitted nervously back and forth in a startling green dress.

Every one in a while she giggled and broke into a fast dance step.

The Duke smiled. "You're great, doll. They'll flip."

The show, scheduled to continue until 2:30 p.m. today, drew a full house.

And it was well on the way toward its $341,000 goal. In just the first few hours, the fund was swelled by more than $10,000 in donations.

A power failure cut the show off the air for 15 minutes at its start, but it came back on at a frantic clip with a wild band that threatened to raise the roof from Miami Beach Auditorium.

Miami's own Gloria DeHaven swished through the backstage melee in a light lavender dress.

And a dapper tap dancer in a derby hat sneaked off to a phone booth in the back hall to practice his routine.

"The noise," he said. "Loud. Bothers me when I warm up."

A mustached guitar player sat beside a blaring television set, strumming softly and mumbling a tone.

He was one-third of the Joe Mooney trio. The other two thirds, with a bass fiddle and accordion, lounged on a couch.

"Never too late to practice," said the guitar player.

Children in braces, for whom all this was being done, sat quietly and ate hotdogs.

Frondizi's Goal Here: Investors

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — (UPI) — President Arturo Frondizi said Saturday he will take a long list of projects to the U.S. today in hopes of attracting huge new amounts of U.S. government and private capital to Argentina.

The projects — involving waterworks, steel and oil production, transportation and agriculture — are regarded by the 50-year-old president as necessary to pull Argentina out of the economic shambles left by ousted Dictator Juan D. Peron.

Frondizi will meet with President Eisenhower Tuesday. He will be the first Argentine president to visit the U.S.

Hose Streams Play on the Flaming Commodore Hotel at Stuart

Stuart Hotel Blaze Kills 2 Men

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT

Herald Correspondent

STUART — Two men burned to death Saturday in a predawn hotel fire apparently caused by an ex-jockey smoking in bed.

Nine other persons, including the owner of the Hotel Commodore, ran from the flaming structure in their night clothes in 32-degree weather, only minutes before the roof of the 33-year-old structure collapsed.

One of the victims was identified as Donald A. Brice, 51, of Carbondale, Pa., an exercise boy at a horse training track here. He was a former jockey and was reported to have been a turf star of 30 years ago.

Smoke was noticed first boiling from a window in Brice's room. He jumped from the second floor window but his body already was a flaming torch. He apparently was dead by the time he hit the ground.

The other fire victim was identified as George W. Jackson, 31, of Cleveland, Ohio, the hotel bartender. He is survived by his wife, Margaret, a son and three daughters, all of Cleveland, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rupert F. Jackson of Jensen Beach.

Ernest Lee Daugherty, who came here Dec. 29 from Dublin, N.C., said a hotel employe came running down the corridor screaming that the hotel was on fire.

"I grabbed what clothes I could and got out," Daugherty said.

The hotel was built in this east coast city 100 miles north of Miami in 1926. The Miami Marlins baseball club of the International League trained here in 1957.

Three firemen, James Holt, Johnny Moore and Adolph DeLoach, were overcome by smoke and exhaustion. They were hospitalized for treatment.

Paul R. Bailey, 24, of Atlanta, who lived in the nearby St. Lucie Hotel, was hospitalized with shock after seeing Brice's body covered with flames hurtle from a second story window and land at his feet.

Bailey said the "human torch" only missed him by inches.

Only a few hours earlier, Bailey and his roommate, George Johnson, jerked Mrs. E. L. Tressler from the path of a freight train at a crossing in Rio, between Stuart and Jensen Beach. The train missed them "by three inches," an officer said.

Fire Chief Milton Griffin said Brice evidently fell asleep while smoking.

Damage was estimated at $100,000 by Griffin. The Martin County fire department, Stuart units and equipment from Salerno, Jensen Beach, Rio, Palm City, Jupiter Island and Fort Pierce fought the fire.

Judicial Reforms Drafted

State Council Adopts Plan

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — A plan for the most complete revision of Florida's judicial system since the present state constitution was drawn up in 1885 was adopted Saturday by the State Judicial Council.

A product of years of work by the 17-member group of laymen and lawyers, the plan will be put before the 1959 Legislature as a proposed constitutional amendment and incorporated in several proposed laws.

The heart of the plan is the consolidation of all trial courts into a single system, made up of three tiers — Circuit Courts, County Courts and Magistrate Courts.

Counties of 100,000 or more population would have the option of combining the County Court, or parts of it, with their Circuit Courts.

Other main parts of the plan would:

PLACE ALL judges on salary and abolish the fee systems on which many now operate.

REWRITE the laws on jurors and witnesses and other laymen in the courts. Fees for jurors and witnesses would be raised to $10 a day and jury commissions would be established in all counties with population of 25,000 or more.

DESIGNATE the state attorney as chief prosecutor in all courts and authorize him to appoint his own assistants now appointed by the governor, and designate the Sheriff as the chief enforcement officer for all courts, abolishing the office of constable.

LAY DOWN minimum procedural rules for administrative boards and agencies having quasi-judicial powers to insure the right of due process of law for those appearing before them.

REMOVE the constitutional limitation of 16 judicial circuits but require any new circuit to have at least 100,000 persons.

AUTHORIZE one Circuit Judge for every 50,000 population or major fraction, as at present, but allow the Legislature to create additional circuit judgeships, or abolish them, upon the showing of a "permanent need."

REMOVE the constitutional limitation of three District Courts of Appeal of three judges each, allowing more districts and more judgeships if needed.

AUTHORIZE cities to operate municipal courts, but permit these to be combined with magistrate courts, if the city wishes.

Many features of the council's plan are expected to be controversial in the Legislature. Council Member W. A. Shands, retiring President of the Senate, commented that it would be hard to sell the Legislature on the need for removing restrictions on the number of Appellate Court districts and judges. He voted against that feature of the revision plan.

The council chairman, Supreme Court Justice Stephen C. O'Connell of Fort Lauderdale, says the council's aim is to eliminate the hodgepodge of existing trial courts for a single efficient system. The State Supreme Court would administer the three-court system.

Arthur Lundeen, council executive director, said special trial courts had been set up to meet needs when Florida began growing rapidly.

Walter Beck, who figures folks are really pretty honest, grows vegetables that sell themselves.

Beck, a 57-year-old Perrine hobby farmer, harvests tomatoes, beans, squash, broccoli, greens and onions on a rented 1½ acres near his home.

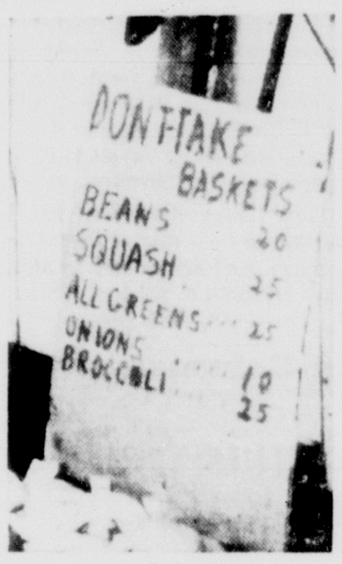
And every morning before he leaves for his job with the State Road Department, Beck neatly arranges his wares on a counter by his house.

Then he puts up a sign: "Help Youself—Put Money in Can" and leaves an empty coffee can on the stand.

"It really works," says Beck, "because people are basically honest."

In three years of operation, he was short on only one day.

"Most of the time I have more money than I should," he pointed out with a smile.



Sign Talks

. . . people obey

There have been many occasions when unknown purchasers have taken some vegetables one day and paid for them a week later.

One customer left an IOU for a 25-cent carton of tomatoes. The man signed his name and address.

"I don't know him," said Beck, "but he'll be back to pay." And he did come back to pay.

Beck, who lives in a modest house with his wife Grace, and their children Neil, 25, Susan, 16, Bobby June, 22, and Aileen, 20, is a part-timer philosopher as well as a part-time farmer.

What's his philosophy?

"If you trust people, they trust you. And then you get along all right."

Booted-Out Firm's Back

Earle M. Rader, whose engineering firm did big business with the Dade Port Authority before being booted out in a wave of controversy, apparently is back in the county's good graces.

His firm, Rader and Associates, has quietly completed two minor jobs for the county — a $7,200 survey of private water and sewer firms and an aerial mapping for just under $10,000.

E. A. Anderson, county engineer, said both projects were satisfactory and that the county did not have facilities of its own to carry them out.

In 1955, a Dade Grand Jury reported that Rader—then consulting engineer to the Port Authority—had billed the authority for services which included a $1,300-a-month salary to former Port Director A. B. Curry.

Rader said at the time that Curry was paid as a contract consultant to the engineering firm. Curry was fired and the company's services to the authority were ended.

Another item in the four-year-old hassle involved charges that Rader, Curry and two house movers took a one-story frame building from the airport and moved it to Curry's property near Goulds.

The charges were later withdrawn by former Solicitor John D. Marsh.

Anderson said Saturday night that Rader was low bidder on the aerial photo job and that "the firm has "excellent" standing among engineers.

Three Die In Detroit Hotel Fire

DETROIT — (AP) — Three persons were killed but scores of others saved their lives by crawling on their hands and knees through smoke-filled corridors as fire raced through the Tuller Hotel Saturday.

The blaze apparently started near the first floor of the 14-story hotel in the heart of downtown Detroit. It swept up an elevator shaft with amazing speed and many of the guests in the 800-room hotel were trapped in their rooms temporarily.

Fire Commissioner Paxton Mendelsohn said more than a score of guests were hanging out of hotel windows when the first fire trucks arrived. Many were brought down by aerial ladders.

Others, including a number of elderly women who are permanent guests at the hotel, groped their way down smoky fire escapes. Many of the guests were clad only in nightclothes as they fled into the 12-degree cold. They were given lodging at other hotels that also overlook Detroit's Grand Circus Park.

Two of the dead were identified as John P. McDermott, 47, of Detroit, assistant manager of the hotel, and George Washburn, 65, of suburban Farmington.

Rail Unions Plan Drive

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Railroad labor unions said Saturday they will seek legislation from Congress to block the rail industry from any wholesale cuts in passenger service.

Heads of 23 rail unions said in a joint statement they have instructed attorneys to draft legislation to revise a section of the 1958 Transportation Act permitting railroads to curb passenger service more easily.

George L. Leighty, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association, said that since the law went into effect last August railroads have served notice with the Interstate Commerce Commission of intent to abandon some 150 passenger trains.

They said the craft, reporting engine trouble, violated Indonesain waters.

School Superintendent Hall Says

'If I Were Teenager Again, I'd Read More, Study Hard'

By PHIL MEYER

Herald Education Writer

If Dr. Joe Hall, now superintendent of Dade Schools, could live his teenage days over again, what would he do?

HALL

"Read more and study harder," he says.

Hall, one of the judges in the field of scholarship for The Miami Herald's Silver Knight Awards, admits this despite a record as an outstanding teenager.

He made a straight-A average and was valedictorian of the 1927 senior class at Martha Berry School, a private high school in Mount Berry, Ga.

"I had to work pretty hard to do that," he recalled Saturday. "But then they made you work."

In addition to studying a tough curriculum WHKH included three years of Latin, four of math and three of science, he held a part-time job firing the school's boilers.

"I had to get up every day at 4 a.m. to shovel coal," he said. "Then I could sit there in the boiler room and study once I got the fire started."

While he doesn't recommend that Miami teenagers get up that early, Hall does see a valuable lesson in that experience.

"I would adivse getting a private place to study and setting a regular schedule. One of the problems with my own children is that they spend so much time getting ready to study and settling down to it.

"If they would set up a regular schedule, they could stop wasting time in worrying and they'd be through in plenty of time for all their recreational activities."

Recreation time can also be used profitably, he said. Development of good reading habits is one way.

"I remember one summer when I couldn't get a job — it was between my junior and senior years in high school — so I read 108 books.

"Some of them weren't exactly on anybody's list of the 100 best books, but then some of them were."

Books he read that summer and he would recommend to today's teenagers include classic fiction such as "Ivanhoe," "Pride and Prejudice," and James Fenimore Cooper's adventure stories, as well as biographies of famous Americans.

"I think biographies are marvelous," he said. "It would be a great thing for a student starting in the ninth grade to pick one early American leader and become an authority on him. He couldn't help learning about most of the other men at the same time."

While books and grades are important, Hall, who will choose a Silver Knight award winner with the help of University of Miami Preisdent Jay F. W. Pearson, adds that other things count, too.

"A teenager ought to have plenty of physical activity and a well-rounded social life," he said.

Something else he'll look for in picking a top teenager is "service to others — or how a good student puts his ability to use."

Top 10 Seniors Sought

Who are Dade County's top teenagers?

With the help of local high schools and a panel of 30 judges, The Miami Herald has launched a search for the 10 outstanding high school seniors.

The winning senior in each of 10 fields from scholarship to sportsmanship will receive a Silver Knight Award, consisting of a trophy and $200 at public ceremonies April 30.

In this and succeeding articles, The Herald is asking a judge in each field about his own teenage days and what he thinks it takes to make a teenager tops.

Mother Weeps At Daughter's Funeral
. . . Mrs. Louise Miller is serving term for neglect

Mom Leaves Jail For Child's Rites

CHARLOTTE, N.C.—(AP)—A mother came from prison to the funeral of her daughter Saturday, kissed the still form on the cheek and sobbed wildly for the child, one of seven whose neglect had caused her imprisonment.

No prison guards accompanied 42-year-old Mrs. Louise Miller on her flight from Raleigh to Charlotte. She was honor-bound to return, alone.

Mrs. Miller was flanked by her six living children and her husband, a part-time trucking stevedore, during the graveside services for five-year-old Jewell Ann. The child died Thursday on an operating table while surgeons sought to correct her heart defect.

The corwd of about 100 persons at the funeral service contained no uniformed policemen, the men whose generosity made it possible for the family to attend.

The policemen obtained a three-day pass from prison for Mrs. Miller, contributed the money for her fare and, with the help of the Salvation Army, purchased shoes and suitable clothing for the children.

Mrs. Miller was convicted in December of neglecting her children and sentenced to serve six months in prison.

Davis Sells Interests On Island

A real estate syndicate of 18 investors headed by Juan Trippe, president of Pan American World Airways, announced Saturday it has bought 75 per cent of multi-millionaire Arthur Vining Davis' interest on Eleuthera Island, Bahamas.

The announcement confirmed a report by The Herald, Dec. 2.

Trippe's brief announcement said the syndicate plans a major tourist development on the island, but did not disclose details. The area is south of the Davis' exclusive Rock Sound Club.

Davis will retain his personal house at Winding Bay and will be a one-quarter partner.

The island has an area of 158 square miles.

Miami-N.Y. Record Set

National Airlines said one of its leased Boeing 707 jet airliners set a new unofficial speed record between Miami and New York early Saturday.

The plane, National said, covered the 1,100-mile route in one hour and 55 minutes, or more than 550 miles an hour. It left at 11:22 p.m. Friday and landed at New York at 1:17 a.m. Saturday.

The big jet is leased by National from Pan American World Airways.

Col. Baker, Sportsman, Dies at 90

ST. CHARLES, Ill. — (AP) — Col. Edward J. Baker, philanthropist-sportsman owner of Greyhound, the trotter who set 17 international harness racing records, died Saturday. He was 90.

Baker was a munificent benefactor of his own St. Charles community and its religious, educational and social institutions.

Baker acquired the 38-million-dollar fortune of his brother-in-law, John W. (Bet-a-Million) Gates, Chicago financial tycoon in 1918 after the death of Gates' wife, Dellora Baker Gates. Gates had left the estate to his wife when he died in 1911.

It was his trotter, Greyhound, the famous "Gray Ghost," who won Baker his military title as an aide-de-camp of former Gov. Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky. The title was recognition of the contribution by Baker and Greyhound to Kentucky's fame as a horse breeding state.

Baker bought the horse for $900 as a colt at a Kentucky auction in 1934. The big stallion brought for Baker his greatest rewards in a 25-year career as a racer of standard bred trotters and pacers.

Greyhound won the 1935 Hambletonian at Goshen, N.Y., capturing both heats. In his career, Greyhound lost only 11 of 82 races. But his modest lifetime earnings were only $38,952.

The old trotter, retired in 1941, still lives on one of eight farms in the St. Charles area owned by Baker.

Col. Baker's philanthropies were numerous, and many of his bestowals were known only to recipients and Baker's bankers and attorneys.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday in the Baker Memorial First Methodist Church, St. Charles, which he built in memory of his parents.

Baker's wife, Harriet Rockwell Baker, and their only son, Henry Rockwell Baker, have been dead for many years.

Bennie Oosterbaan, former University of Michigan head football coach, will be main speaker at a gathering of University of Michigan alumni here Feb. 6-8.

Fueled by 10,000 Match Tips

Three Teen Injured As 'Rocket' Explodes

FANWOOD, N. J. — (AP) — A homemade rocket fueled by more than 10,000 match tips blew up Saturday, sending three teenagers to a hospital.

Police said the rocket, an aluminum cylinder three inches in diameter and nine feet long, blew up when one of the youths was packing the match heads into the cylinder with a steel rod. The cylinder had fins at one end. Pieces were found almost 50 feet away.

They boys had been building the rocket for the past 18 months, they told authorities. All live in Scotch Plains and are high school sophomores.

Two of the youths underwent surgery at Muhlenbert Hospital, Plainfield, and were reported in satisfactory condition.

They are David Bopp, 15, who suffered burns of the face and hands, a hip wound and probable loss of a thumb, and Stewart Zlotnikoff, 15, who suffered burns of the face, hands and arms, and an eye cut.

Richard Nodolney, 15, was treated for cuts and burns at the same hospital and released.

The rocket had been under construction at Nadolney's home, police said.

Bopp's grandmother said:

"The three are very fine, studious high school boys who are never involved in anything. We can't understand what they did to bring about this situation."

Is There A Risk?
CERTAINLY there's a risk in owning land. The risk that you might make money and the risk that you might lose it. Over the years thousands of people have taken the risk and it has paid off handsomely. Whether you can afford the risk depends on your own situation. If you'd like help in deciding, we'd like you to know that you can depend on a straight answer — yes or no from

GOOD BYE NEIGHBOR
WE ARE so sorry to see you leave. It's hard to realize that it was 5 years ago that you moved into your brand new home — honestly, it looks just as new today, but of course the improvements are there. When you added the sprinkler system, well and pump, planted the shade trees on the 90'x100' lot, we knew that you would keep the most meticulous lawn on the block, and of course the heat keeps it warm as toast on days like today, but in the summer when I visited with you the air-conditioning was wonderful. We all think the arrangement of your 3 bedroom, 2 bath home is one of the most novel and practical that we have seen. I certainly appreciate a nice listing such as yours as we so seldom have a house on our block for sale. I also appreciate the opportunity of meeting, greeting and welcoming my new neighbor. I'll be there between 2 and 5 P.M. today and quote the realistic price of $26,500 with good terms.

South Seen Winner in 'Gag' Fight

WASHINGTON — Sens. Spessard Holland and George Smathers said Saturday the South came out a winner in the fight over changing the Senate's filibuster rule.

HOLLAND

They said adoption of the resolution sponsored by majority leader Lyndon Johnson (D., Tex.) was a "victory for independent and stable action by the Senate."

Under the Johnson proposal, the affirmative votes of two-thirds of those present and voting can shut off a filibuster. It took two-thirds of the entire Senate membership to break a filibuster under the former rule.

The Florida senators agreed that the change represented an "infinitesimal" loss.

"For all practical purposes it will still require the same number of votes to cut off a filibuster," Smathers said.

This is because virtually all senators would be expected to participate in a showdown vote on stopping a filibuster.

"I would have preferred that the flaming liberals not make a fight on changing Senate rules," Holland said.

"But when they did and when we in the South came out of it with certainly more gain than loss, it seems to me we have every reason to be happy about the outcome."

The Big Season

By Helen Wells
Herald Society Editor

Whether you are a devotee of opera and art, a member of the horsy set, a theater goer, or a bon vivant who revels in plush parties, Miami has it. For the BIG season is going full blast.

The rising crescendo of activity will rise higher and higher during the next six weeks.

Hialeah has opened, the Miami Charity Horse Show is Feb. 5 through 8. Nathan Milstein plays with the UM Symphony tonight and Monday. The operas start Jan. 26.

Something new on the scene is the exhibition and sale of fine paintings arranged by Mrs. Bernard Gimbel for Feb. 14 at the Fontainebleau. It's a benefit for the Eleanor Roosevelt chair of history and philosophy of science at Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

Paintings by Renoir, Van Gogh and other masters will be on exhibition and sale.

And here's startling news. The Bath Club, heretofore the most staid and conventional of the private clubs, is planning a program of galas for this winter. First will be a Gay 90's dinner dance Saturday.

Bal Prestige, Committee of 100's annual dinner dance at Indian Creek Country Club is Jan. 27. First of the Surf Club galas on Jan. 31 has Imperial Hotel in Tokyo for its theme.

And each of the many yacht clubs and country clubs has a full, full program of events. Coconut Grove Playhouse subscription season has opened. The night clubs are filled with top celebrities.

There's never a dull moment in Miami this time of year.

Chinese Robes Set PB Agog

By HELEN VAN HOY SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

PALM BEACH — Not only the art crowd but all of Palm Beach and its environs are exclaiming over the exhibition of Imperial Chinese Robes and Textiles now on view at the Society of the Four Arts.

Palm Beach has never seen the like before.

Shown are some 91 robes of barbaric splendor in color, materials and design. Displayed on headless, handless forms, they are so dramatically arranged with uplifted "arms," that imagination immediately supplies the haughty, inscrutable and often cruel faces and the imperious gestures that could easily mean, "Off with his Head."

Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, a devotee of oriental art and honorary chairman of the show, was beaming with delight at the preview tea. It was Mrs. Woodhouse who gave the Four Arts its Chinese garden of Smiling Harmony.

Distinguished Mrs. Paulding Fosdick, wearing blue, was among those who poured tea and coffee at the handsomely appointed tables which held arrangements of Fuji chrysanthemums.

Mrs. John T. H. Mitchell was there, and those big gold coins worn as charms on her bracelet were what was used for money in medieval times. They were money — the real McCoy.

That tall, slender, queenly looking woman in white with the bow of gray ribbon on her beautiful white hair was Mrs. Louis Jacques Balsan, the former Consuelo Vanderbilt, Duchess of Marlborough. She seemed charmed with the robes and textiles which were loaned by the Minneapolis Institute of Arts where Russell H. Plimpton, Four Arts director, was formerly the director.

The robe display will remain throughout January.

A GAY, COSMOPOLITAN group whose gay chatter practically drowned out a musical trio playing background music attended a cocktail party given the other night by Tycoon-Art Connoisseur Nathan Cummings in his penthouse apartment in the Palm Beach Towers.

Lorraine Gallagher Freimann was there wearing a stunning Mandarin coat over a basic black frock.

The one "Jim" sent her for Christmas? No, not that one, she laughed.

Jim is Jim Kimberly who owns among other things, a paper fortune and some diamond mines. And a paper fortune isn't like a paper tiger.

Lorraine says there's absolutely no romance there.

MARY HOWES, former Palm Beach Playhouse impresario, initiates her Sunday Evening series of Great Players tonight at the Four Arts with Emlyn Williams in his one-man show, "A Boy Growing Up," based on the stories by Dylan Thomas. Williams is a Welch actor, director and playwright.

Mary gave a bang up cocktail party at the Everglades Club in which she told of her plans for the season and introduced John Lane, who is associated with her in the Series.

She said that on March 1 Maurice Chevalier will make his premier appearance under these palms in "An Evening with Maurice Chevalier" and third of the series March 14.

15, and 16, will see Katharine Cornell and Brian Aherne in "Dear Liar," based on the letters exchanged by George Bernard Shaw and Mrs. Patrick Campbell.

Just How Good Are Foreign Schools?

How do the schools in Turkey, Germany, Austria and Japan compare with schools in the United States?

Members of North Miami Senior High PTA will find out Wednesday night when four exchange students present the program at 8 p.m. in the school library, 800 NE 137th St.

Judy Jackson and Bill McCarthy, who went to schools in Turkey and Germany through the American Field Service Program, will show slides and describe their experiences in foreign schools.

Reinhilda Mach, of Austria, and Yusuki Omine, Japan, who are seniors at North Miami High this year, will compare our schools with their home schools.

Walter Weyant, faculty advisor to the foreign exchange students, is in charge of the program.

U.S. Women Spoiled

TOKYO — (WNS) — "It is not surprising that America has the most dissatisfied women in the world," said Hifumi Yamada. "If other women had as many material luxuries as the American, they would become dissatisfied, too."

At 30, Yamada is Japan's youngest pastor. He has just returned to Tokyo after studying three years at Princeton University and four years at Anderson College in Indiana. Now he is preaching at the Joyama Church in Tokyo.

Yamada agrees that American girls have beauty, brains, health, wealth and tremendous energy. They have more freedom than anybody else, but they are dissatisfied, tense, restless and complaining.

He believes that American women are generally unhappy because they do not understand the subject of love.

"'I want to be in love,' they say, but by this they mean that they want to BE loved and adored," he explains.

The Japanese pastor admitted that such a love might be pleasant for awhile, but that it would become unsatisfactory because it was merely a passive experience.

"The necessary thing is to love actively," he said. "When we love, we give and give without even knowing that we are giving. Then it is that we find happiness instead of tragedy in love."

He reported that America's busy divorce courts are evidence to the world that there is chaos in thousands of American homes.

"Most family tragedies stem from lack of appreciation and understanding of each other," Yamada noted.

He suggested that wives and husbands should mentally put themselves into their mates' places and, thereby, get their mates' points of view.

But the most important point is to love actively.

"You are only bored while waiting to be loved, while waiting for love to come from the outside," he explained. "It will not come that way because the love must come from within."

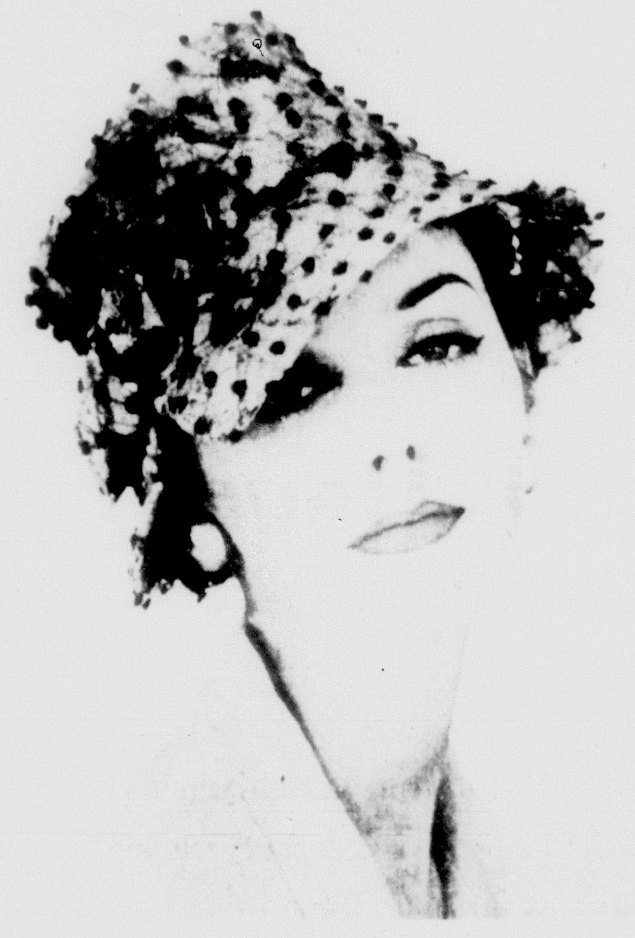
Designers Make Dramatic Entrance

NEW YORK — Fashions about Manhattan: Brilliant young designer Arnold Scaasi attending the theater swathed in a dramatic black cape, his usual costume . . . Madcap designer Oleg Cassini a real live nobleman, sporting a monacle and a double-breasted waistcoat . . . Suavely-tailored designer Luis Estevez wearing the shortest coat jacket and the tightest fitting trousers seen this side of Italy where the now-popular continental look was born.

And everywhere we're seeing red fox — on the collars of suits and coats, used as long stoles or made into huge hats.



Deep-Brimmed Cloche
... by Lily Dache

By Beverley Wilson
Herald Fashion Editor

NEW YORK—What will your Easter bonnet look like? It probably will have a brim. It may have a tall crown. And it may have no crown at all—to permit your tall coiffure to be brushed up through the hole and show above your hat.

Major designer collections we've been seeing in New York this week are brimful of brims. They come small, medium or large. Some are sailor-like, a la the skimmer.

Others are upcurved like the breton. Many cloches have deep brims balanced by high-rising crown.

Why? The high crowns carry out the high-rise look of many ready-to-wear ensembles. And as for the brims, what better foil could you think of for the popular short jacketed costumes than a jaunty skimmer with its straight brim line.

Mrs. Mabie will show about 60 hats from her collection, which includes reproductions of styles worn in early Egypt, medieval Europe, examples of the directoire, empire, Victorian and Edwardian periods, and styles worn during the Civil War, World War I and World War II.

The speaker is from Dallas Lake, Ind., and is a past president of the women's divisions of Cleveland Life Underwriters and the International Accident and Health Association.

Pilot Clubs from Coral Gables, South Broward, Hollywood and Fort Lauderdale have been invited to the program.

Spinach and Mashed Potatoes

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Leftover chopped spinach and mashed potatoes make a good combination, with crumbled blue cheese added for extra tang.

Combine spinach and potatoes, add cheese, and heat in double boiler. Whip until fluffy, add a dash each of onion and garlic salt, and serve.

Learn To Use Tropical Foliage

Miss Julia S. Berrall
. . . to lecture and demonstrate

You are invited to hear one of the country's foremost flower arranging authorities, Julia S. Berrall, lecture and demonstrate the art of arrangement Jan. 26 in Fairchild Tropical Garden.

Mrs. Berrall's appearance is sponsored by the Coral Gables Garden Club and the Fairchild Garden.

She will emphasize the use of tropical foliage in her arrangements.

Mrs. Berrall literally knows gardening from the ground up. She and her architect husband, J. Lloyd Berrall, maintain the grounds and garden of their home in Upper Montclair, N.J.

She is the author of several books on flower arrangements, two of which are required reading for flower show judges, and magazine articles.

Garden club members have followed Mrs. Berrall on three European Garden Tours to Great Britain, France and Holland. In April, she will conduct a fourth tour to southern Europe.

Trained as a museum worker, Mrs. Berrall practiced that profession for eight years at the Newark Museum and the Montclair Art Museum, where she is now a trustee.

Tickets for Mrs. Berrall's lecture may be obtained by calling the Fairchild Tropical Garden. Seating capacity of the auditorium is limited to 400.

Potatoes—A Bargain on the Miami Market

By JEANNE VOLTZ
Herald Homemaking Editor

"Pass the potatoes, please," a comfortable, often used household term, is in style this month.

America's most popular vegetable is coming to market in unusually large supplies during January. Some markets have featured spuds at tempting prices and food shoppers can expect more specials.

The potatoes to be most abundant have been in lay-away since fall, when the harvest was large. This is the mellow flavored potato, either mealy or waxy in texture, sometimes called "old" potatoes.

At any price, potatoes are one of your best buys for the money.

They are an excellent source of vitamin C and a good source of other vitamins and minerals. Contrary to some folks's notion, potatoes are a filling food without loading in calories. One medium boiled potatoes has only 100 calories.

Of course, this is without butter, gravy, sour cream or other delectable but high calorie pluses.

There must be a million ways to serve potatoes.

Just take fried potatoes. They can be French fried, country fried, cottage fried, hashed brown or potato pancakes.

French fries are guaranteed perfect with today's temperature-controlled saucepans with fry basket, range units with temperature control or deep fry thermometers.

And your family will love these homey dishes—potato soup, a thrifty potato and ham casserole, quick creamed potatoes and stuffed baked potatoes. Freezer owners take note. Stuffed baked potatoes can be frozen to use later.

Umm, Delicious--Stuffed Baked Potatoes, Steak, Onion Rings
. . . a favorite combination anytime you serve it for dinner

French Fries Are Perfect This Way

Cut potatoes into finger thin strips. Toss in cold water to keep white while preparing remaining potatoes, but do not soak. Dry potato strips thoroughly on towels.

TO FRY IN ONE STAGE, fill fry kettle about half full with oil or shortening. A four-quart fryer will take about 3 pints of oil or 3 pounds of shortening. Heat fat to 385 to 390 degrees. Leave fry basket in fat while heating.

Raise basket, add potatoes to cover bottom of basket. Lower into fat and fry about 5 minutes, until potatoes are tender and golden brown. Remove basket from fat and drain a few seconds. Drain potatoes on paper towels and season with salt.

TO FRY IN TWO STAGES, heat fat to 375 degrees. Cook potatoes 4 or 5 minutes, until tender but still white. Turn out on paper towels. Potatoes fried to this stage can be kept at room temperature an hour or two, up to 24 hours covered with waxed paper or foil in the refrigerator.

To complete frying, heat fat to 390 degrees. Put about two layers of partly fried potatoes in basket. Fry 1 to 2 minutes, until potatoes are golden brown and crisp. Drain on absorbent paper and salt to taste.

FOR VARIETY, try other seasonings on French fries. Some good ones are garlic salt, celery salt, onion salt, curry powder, hickory smoked salt, savor salt, herb blends, dill or poultry seasoning.

Bits of Ham, Cheese Sauce Add Goodness to Potato Casserole
. . . leftover boiled potatoes can go in this thrifty dish

Delicious, Easy Potato Dishes —All Less Than an Hour To Make

Quick Potato Soup

2 cups thinly sliced potatoes
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1 1/4 cups boiling water
1 1/2 cups milk
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper

Add potatoes and onion to boiling water. Cover and cook 15 to 20 minutes, until potatoes are tender. Mash potatoes slightly with a fork to thicken the soup a little, if desired. Add milk, butter, worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper. Heat. Garnish with chopped parsley, grated cheese, diced crisp bacon or finely cut chives, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

Ham-Potato Casserole

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
2 cups ham (cut in strips)
2 cups liquefied nonfat dry milk
1/4 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons worcestershire sauce
1 6-ounce package sharp processed American cheese slices, shredded
2 to 3 medium potatoes, boiled and sliced.

Melt butter in small skillet. Add onions and saute until tender. Add ham and brown lightly.

Pour milk into top of double boiler. Sprinkle flour, salt and pepper over surface of milk. Beat with rotary beater until blended. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add worcestershire sauce and cheese. Stir until cheese melts and sauce is well blended.

Combine ham, onions, potatoes and cheese sauce in 1 1/2-quart casserole. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) until sauce bubbles and top is golden brown, about 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Twice-Baked Potatoes

4 large baking potatoes
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 cup hot milk (about)
1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter or margarine
Shredded cheese, if desired

Scrub potatoes. Place on rack in a hot oven (400 to 450 degrees). Bake until tender, about 60 minutes for large potatoes.

Take off a slice from each potato. Scoop out the inside. Mash or whip. Whip in salt, pepper and milk in which butter has been melted. Whip until light and fluffy.

Pile back into shells. If wished, sprinkle with cheddar or Parmesan cheese. Dot with more butter. Place on cooky sheet and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) until lightly browned and hot, about 10 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Stuffed potatoes are frozen before the final baking. Wrap and seal carefully, to freeze. To serve, defrost partially in refrigerator or take directly from freezer to oven. Fold back foil and heat in a 375-degree oven, about 35 to 45 minutes for unthawed potatoes.

Quicky Creamed Potatoes

2 1/2 cups diced raw potatoes
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
1 tablespoon snipped parsley

Combine potatoes with milk, onion, salt and pepper in a heavy frying pan. Cover and cook slowly, stirring often, for 20 to 30 minutes, until potatoes are tender and most of the milk is absorbed. If potatoes are very mealy, more milk will be needed. Sprinkle with parsley. Makes 4 servings.

Late Getting Home from Date? Who's To Blame?

* * *

These Are the Hours Panelists Follow

What is a reasonable curfew hour for teenagers?

As a guide for Miami parents, panelists (ranging from 15 to 17 years old) were asked what time they had to be home from dates.

The Girls Said:

"It used to be that I had to be in at 12:30. Now I have to be in an hour after whatever I went to is over."

"Midnight, except on nights of formals and semi-formals."

And the third said, "Midnight." She has no exceptions.

The Boys Said:

"1:30 or 2 o'clock if it's big. Otherwise it doesn't matter, just so I'm home before that."

"Whatever time the thing is over, plus time for something to eat and to take the girl home."

The third boy said his parents expect him home by 1:30.

Each Sunday The Herald presents the Teen Panel, ideas on problems and situations of interest to the teenagers. This panel is composed of four leaders from Miami Norland High and two typical teenagers from Coconut Grove.

Today's panelists are: Richard Barnard, Doug Krug, Marie Kowall and Barbara Hammond from Miami Norland High, and Helen Swain and Brad Hanafourde who live in Coconut Grove.

By BEVERLY PAULSON
Herald Staff Writer

The first rule of dating conduct, the teenagers of The Herald's weekly Teen Panel agreed, is "Be home on time."

But, they also said, sometimes it's awfully hard to watch a curfew when the date has been a lot of fun.

Who, then, is responsible for seeing that the girl gets home on time?

"I feel it's the boy's responsibility," said a serious youth from Norland High. "He has to get the girl home if he wants to date her again."

The panelists agreed with the logic of that, but thought one of the girls was being a little sneaky when she said, "I always blame it on the boy if I'm late, so if he doesn't want to be blamed, he should see that I'm in."

The girls said they "usually" give the boys fair warning about their curfew hours when they go out, but at the same time agreed with the lass who confessed, "If I have to be in early, I feel awful when I have to tell."

"If my date doesn't tell me, I ask about her hours," said one of the boys.

And the Coral Gables youth pointed out that most mothers say, "Have a good time, but be home by 12." He feels that establishes the time with the least confusion.

* * *

"WELL, one time my date didn't want to go home when she should have," said one boy. "I said, 'Okay, but don't blame me.'

"When we got to her home, her parents were waiting. As I left I heard her father say, 'Don't you go out with that guy anymore.' "

"If you're going to be late, you should call your parents and tell them," suggested one of the girls.

"We go up to Hollywood on dates. The call takes the money you're going to spend while you're staying out later," objected a Norland boy.

Besides, that's an unrealistic idea, declared another boy. "If the girl's hanging around your neck, peering into your eyes and listening to your every word, you can't take her home.

"And you can't go to the telephone and say, 'Hi, Mother, we're parking so we're going to be an hour late.' "

* * *

"I HAVE a problem because I'm too young to drive," said a 15-year-old boy. "So I have to double date.

"Say my date has to be home by 11:30 and the other fellow's date doesn't have to be home until 1. What are you going to do?

"I've had fellows get kind of mad because we've had to leave a party to take my girl home before we would have left otherwise."

"The same thing has happened to me," said one of the girls. "The other boy got real mad because I had to be home early. So we got home late and now I can't double date with that couple anymore."

* * *

MOST PARENTS, the panelists said, are less strict about hours if their daughters are on double dates.

"Usually then you find out what time the other girl has to be in and then you try to find a compromise," said one girl.

"My parents will let me stay out a little longer if the other girl has later hours than I do."

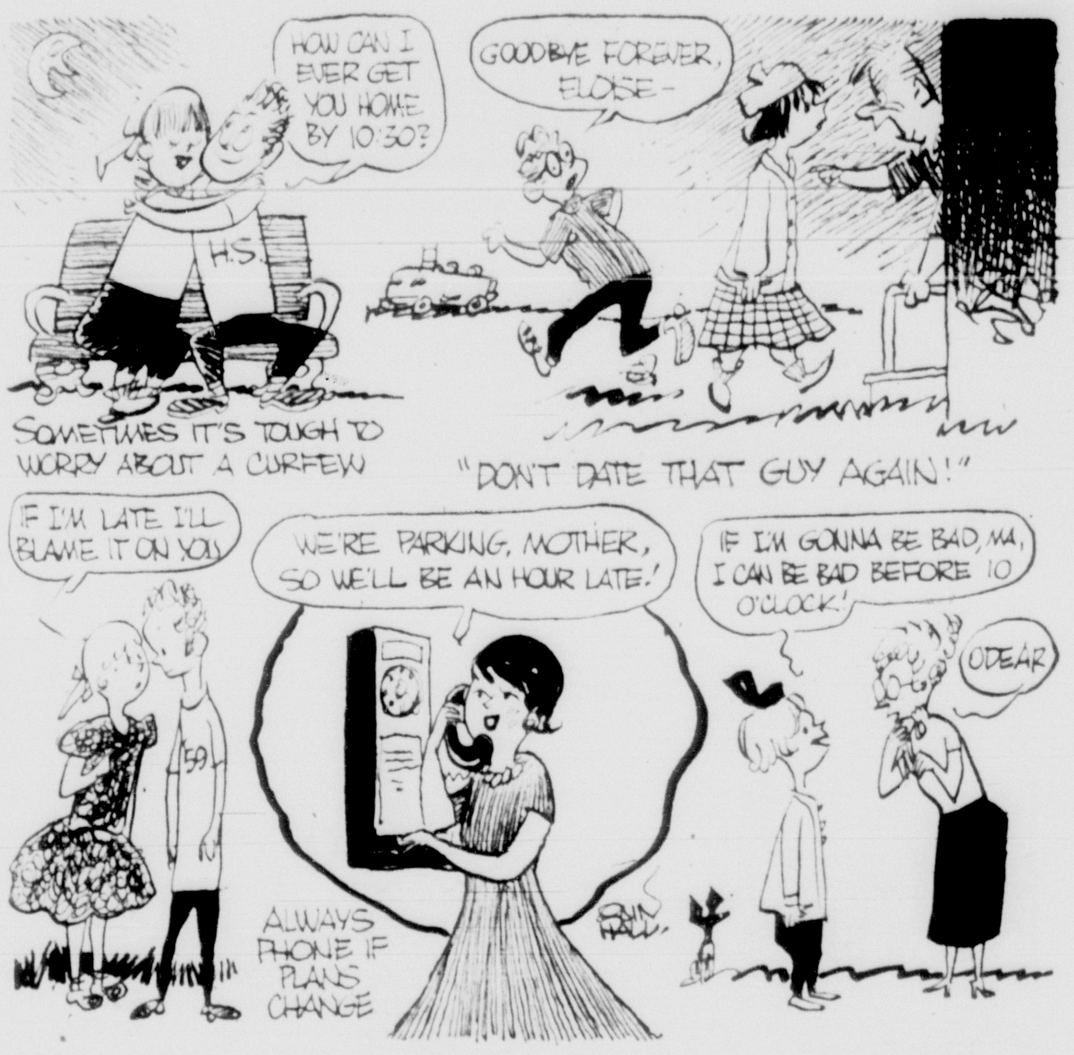
But there are some girls who can never stay out after 10:30, pointed out one boy. "And it takes that long for a teen party to really get going."

So what happens to the girl?

"She's not in the crowd anymore," answered one of the girls.

"That's right," agreed a boy. "You can't keep on dating a girl if you always have to leave the party before it starts and miss all the fun."

What some parents don't realize, pointed out a Norland girl, is "if you're going to do something wrong, you can do something wrong before 10 o'clock."



HOW CAN I EVER GET YOU HOME BY 10:30?

Public Favors Tightening Up On Teenagers

At a Glance

Mood of the public today is to tighten up drastically on regulations dealing with teenagers.

1. People favor a curfew requiring children under 16 to be off the streets by 9 or 10 on weekdays, one hour later on weekends.

2. People favor holding parents liable for property damage that their children cause.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N.J.—The mood of the American people today is to impose strict rules on teen-age activities in the home, in school and in the community.

Evidence of this 'get tough' mood comes to light on two counts in a Gallup Poll survey on attitude toward teen-age discipline.

An overwhelming vote showed that people favor a curfew in their communities which would require all children under 16 to be off the streets by 9 or 10 p.m. on weekdays, by 10 or 11 p.m. on weekends.

An even more overwhelming vote showed that the public favored holding parents responsible for property damage that their children cause.

QUESTION PUT to adults throughout the nation by Gallup Poll reporters was: "Do you think it would be a good idea or a poor idea to have a curfew in this community for children under the age of 16?"

The vote:

Good idea	77%
Poor idea	18%
No opinion	5%

Greatest measure of approval for a curfew comes from the Far West where more than nine out of 10 persons favor the idea.

Even in the South, where approval is lowest 7 persons in 10 say curfew is a good idea.

Greatest approval is recorded in larger cities and towns. Least approval (but still by 7 out of 10) is found on farm and in small villages under 2,500 in population.

Those favoring curfew were asked the hour of the curfew. For the weekday, 84% gave 9 or 10 p.m. as the ideal hour; for the weekend, 66% gave 10 or 11 p.m.

* * *

That Teen-age discipline is not solely a matter of community action is seen in the attitude of the U.S. public towards holding parents liable for property damage their children cause.

Of those questioned, many of them parents themselves, an overwhelming majority thought it was a good idea to hold parents responsible.

The vote:

Good idea	89%
Poor idea	8%
No opinion	3%

A Dream Come True for Hungarian Pianist

By BUCKY CANON
Herald Correspondent

TALLAHASSEE—To Hungarian born Balint Vazosonyi, Florida State University was a dream come true last weekend.

FSU

After a lifetime of waiting Balint finally was able to hear and study under FSU's famed master of the piano, Dr. Ernest Dohnanyi. Dohnanyi taught piano in Hungary before the war and his name is still magic throughout that small country.

Balint, a music student at the University of Budapest, joined the Freedom Fighters in the Revolution two years ago.

After the Russians occupied Budapest, he and his family fled to Austria.

From there he wrote to Dr. Dohnanyi asking that he might come to America and study under him—a dream of all Hungarian pianists.

The FSU professor consented and the local Westminster Fellowship agreed to sponsor the young refugee.

Balint's troubles were not over yet, however. It took more than two years of waiting before he could obtain a U.S. visa.

Finally it came through, and the 22-year-old student arrived in Tallahassee last weekend to a warm welcome from students and faculty.

His plans: to become an American citizen and to study under Dohnanyi as long as possible.

"IS DR. BLANK'S course easy?" "Is there a term paper in English 432?" "I hope I don't have an eight o'clock class or a late afternoon lab. No night courses either."

These were the thoughts rushing through the minds of FSU students last week as registration for the second semester's subjects began.

A semi-annual affair, registration usually means a couple of hours of standing in lines, filling out two dozen forms, and planning and re-planning schedules.

★ ★ ★

TO ALLEVIATE registration worries, FSUers will be treated to several cultural events this week.

Tomorrow evening the stage play "Li'l Abner" will be presented twice to students and faculty. Based on Al Capp's snydicated cartoon, the road show features Patricia Northrop and Robert Kaye in lead roles.

Tuesday night the FSU Concert band will present a "Music For Relaxation" concert, made up of various semi-classical selections.

And last week the National Ballet of Canada performed "Coppelia" to a packed house in Westcott Auditorium.

GAINESVILLE — If you make any sound other than the rustle of book pages, then you're not with it on the UF campus these days.

U of F

Fred Frohock

For the next two weeks, Gator students face final exams and literally nothing else. Campus activities are virtually dead, and anything that breaks the tomb-like silence is liable to be rewarded with a punch in the nose.

All dormitories, fraternity and sorority houses have shifted to round-the-clock quiet hours, with fines for rule-breakers, and the library has finally beat out the campus club as the most popular spot on campus.

Under the UF testing system, the coming period is set aside at the end of each semester solely for testing purposes. Classes, and supposedly learning, halted on Friday.

As might be suspected, though, now is the time when most students burn the proverbial midnight oil over the books and many disgruntled students complain, with good reason, when one considers the weight finals have on course grades.

In one freshman math course, it's possible to get zero in every test during the year, and still obtain a perfect score in the course.

Impossible? Here's how. The grade is determined by an accumulated score of two progress tests plus the final (15-30-90-135 pts.). OR one and one-half times the final (90x1½-135 pts.).

Whichever method most benefits the individual student is used, thereby creating that often irresistable and fatal tendency to let the course ride and "make it up on the final."

Even classes are no more.

Although this course is regarded as exceptional, grading percentages from finals are generally conceded to be so heavy that even the "A" student feels tremors of insecurity at this time of year.

As one professor put it, "The tempers are short as the beards are long."

At any rate, at the end of the coming session of scholastic reckoning, students are granted a one week vacation before second semester.

During this time of relaxing and-or worrying, the grades are compiled and mailed home . . . and Dad finds out whether he must foot another semester of college, or junior is out on his own.

In the meantime, though, shhh. They start tomorrow.

Those horrible finals get underway Wednesday and run through the following Tuesday.

Nobody's planning parties, nobody's going to the beach, and nobody's taking in the latest movies. But the library is full of people.

With the end of one semester and the beginning of another, Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, is having its annual book exchange.

Students can sell their used textbooks for two-thirds the original prices through the book exchange. APO takes the books on consignment and, if it can sell the texts, owners get their money after the exchange period is over. The organization keeps 10 per cent, which goes for operating expenses and for various University funds, including the expansion fund.

The exchange runs Jan. 23 through Feb. 11 in APO's headquarters, Room 344. Hours are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

According to vice president, Ron Pollack, APO's book selling service was the first at UM. It has been in operation since the group got its charter in 1935. APO itself was the first national fraternity of any kind to be organized on campus.

Members installed new officers early this week. They are William Binard, president; Dave Yelen and Ron Pollack, vice presidents; Ron Sabel and Joseph Patnik, secretaries; Martin Goldin, treasurer; and Ron Wolf, alumni secretary.

She Had To Be Interesting

By NORA OPHULS
Herald Staff Writer

IF YOU'VE BEEN WONDERING who is that uniquely pretty new receptionist at University of Miami's Joe and Emily Lowe Art Gallery, and suspecting she might have a fascinating background, you're right.

MIAMI GO-ROUND

The dark-haired 22-year-old with the striking features is Isabel Campos, a fresh arrival from Lima, Peru. Her great-grandmother was a full-blooded Inca, both grandfathers were Castillian, one grandmother came from India and the other was a gypsy. Isabel didn't stand a chance of being plain!

But if Isabel Campos is remarkable, it's not just because of her ancestry. Her family became fatherless when she was 14 and their support has been her responsibility ever since.

This was no small chore. Isabel had her mother, a sister and two brothers to feed and clothe. Her sister is five years younger than she, now 17, and her brothers are 10 and 8. Isabel refused to let her mother work — she hasn't to this day — so Isabel was the only one left.

Among the jobs she held were costume designer for theatrical productions, ballet teacher and secretary to the Minister of Public Health. And, busy as she was, in 1954, she won third place in the Miss Peru beauty contest.

Somehow, she saved enough money for a Miami vacation last August. She came, saw and decided to stay — and with only $10 in her pocket. She moved in with some Italian-speaking friends — Isabel speaks Italian — and got a job with Food Fair in the packaging department. By the time she worked up to the IBM division she had brought her 17-year-old sister Gloria to Miami and found her a job in a credit union.

It happened that Paul Clifford, Food Fair personnel manager was an art patron interested in Peruvian work. He introduced her to Lowe Gallery's director C. Clay Aldridge who nabbed her for the Gallery.

Isabel Campos and her sister have a one-bedroom apartment on Biscayne Boulevard. This is fine, except that their mother and brothers Oswald and Alberto arrive from Lima next week and will move in with them.

"I want to get them a house," she said, "but that's so difficult in the middle of the season. All I can afford now is my apartment."

Isabel is studying English at UM and speaks it now haltingly but well.

For herself Isabel Campos wants to marry and have a family. But that will have to wait until she's provided her family with security.

Please Bring Elephant Bracelet!

AH, THE POWER OF THE PRESS! A recent story in The Herald about Ed Goodnow's trip to Africa and the southeast hemisphere caught at least one reader's eye and brought an amazing reaction.

Mrs. W. W. Wilson, wife of a colonel at Homestead Air Force Base, called Mr. Goodnow with an apologetic request.

On a safari in Africa two years ago Mrs. Wilson had shot an elephant and, according to custom, the head hunter gave her hair from the tail of her elephant. The bracelet she had made from it was to give her good luck all her life.

Then came the evil omen. Two weeks ago her cat made a sorry mess of her hair bracelet. Distraught, she called Ed Goodnow and asked him to get her another bracelet. After it became clear that he didn't have to shoot the elephant himself, that the bracelets can be bought for 15c in Nairobi, Ed agreed. The good fortune of Mrs. Wilson is once again intact.

A Spinster! But Not Long

Betty Sutton

A BRAND NEW MEMBER of the Spinsters Club won't be a Spinster for long! She is Ruth Elizabeth (Betty) Sutton whose engagement to Abner Peckham Lawton Jr., son of the senior Mr. and Mrs. Lawton, 7945 SW 50th Ct., is announced by her mother, Mrs. O. B. Sutton, 513 San Estaban Ave., Coral Gables. Betty's father was the late O. B. Sutton, well known in Miami.

After her graduation from Coral Gables High Betty attended Emory University and University of Georgia. She now is with Delta airlines and is a member of Coral Gables Country Club.

Her fiance also graduated from Coral Gables High, has served two years in the army and now is a junior at University of Miami.

They will be married in March.

And More About Debutantes!

WE'RE ALL STILL CATCHING up on our sleep from the past debutante season and already the next is being planned. But put away your dancing slippers — your feet can rest a while longer.

What brings this subject up is the Second Versailles Debutante Ball in honor of the American debutantes July 10. As last year The Orangerie of the Palace of Versailles will be the setting for cotillion where American and European debs will dance, sup and see the pageant "Light and Sound" in the palace gardens — dancing lights and water among the trees.

The Ball will be part of a four-week chaperoned tour of France and Italy July 3 to August 3 which may be extended 16 days to include Switzerland, Germany, Holland, Belgium and London. Some Americans on the Patron Committee for the Ball are Alfred I. Barton of Surfside, Mr. and Mrs. James S. dePeyster of Palm Beach and Mr. and Mrs. Cortright Wetherill of Newtown Square, Penna., Florida racing enthusiasts.

To Be Alone

GENEVA —(WNS)— Police in Switzerland have agreed that a lawyer named Jacooud murdered his rival only because of jealousy for the woman they both loved and were courting.

The police pointed out that whenever Mr. Jaccoud took his girl to the theater, he bought nine seats — so that nobody could sit close enough to his lady love to touch her or even to whisper in her ear.

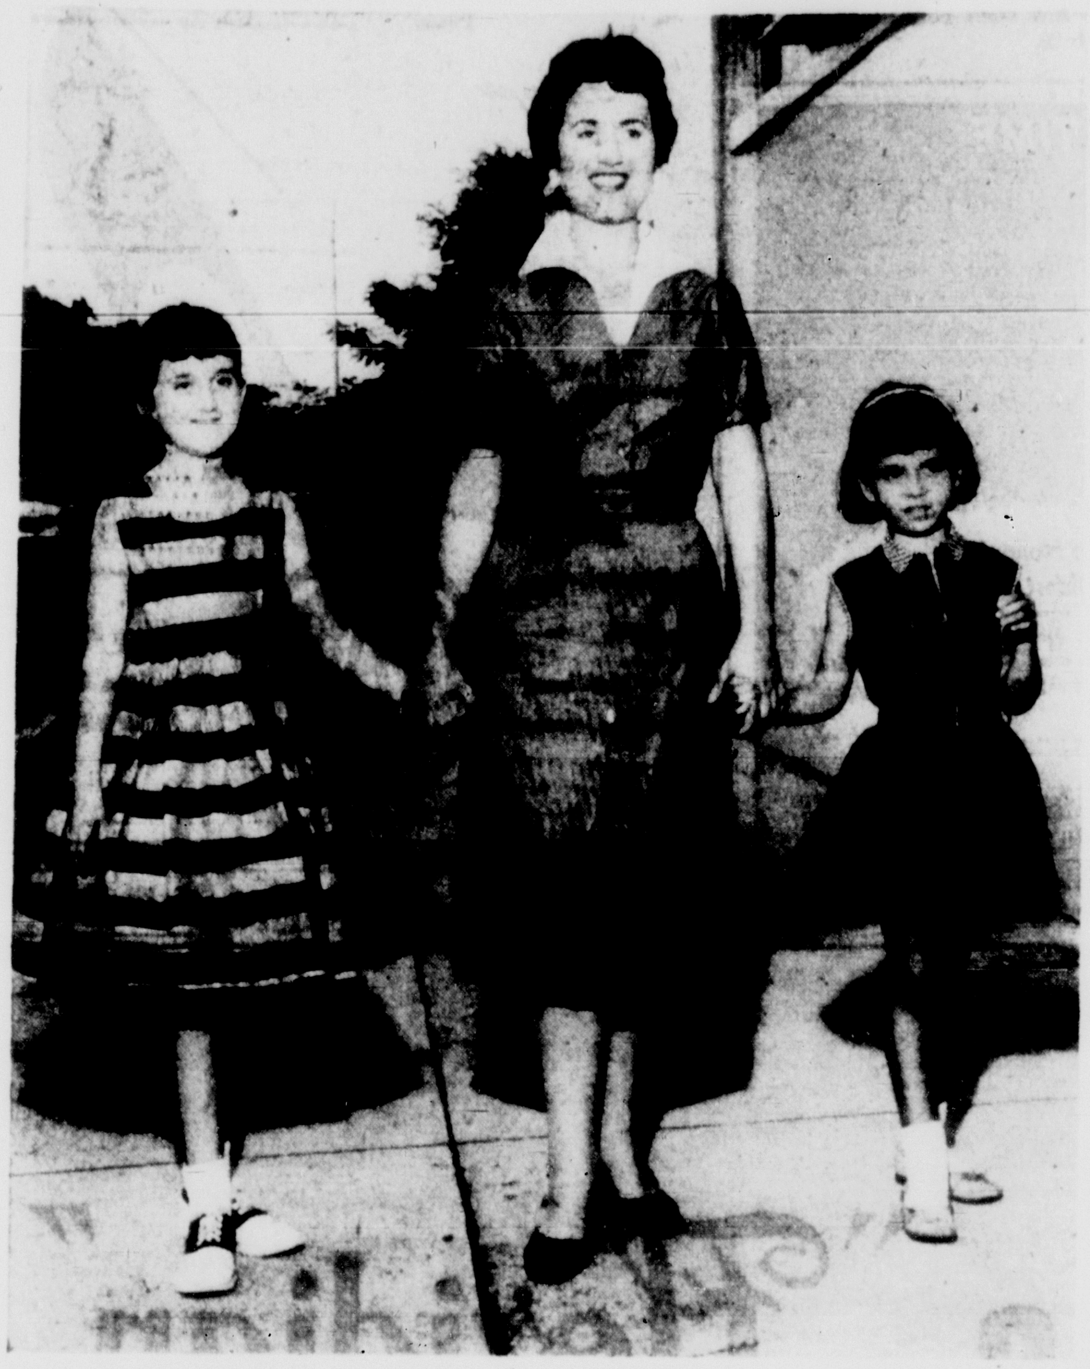
She Skimped on Fatty Foods



WHAT PRICE DIETING? Mrs. Wishful, the Glamor Clinic's latest success story, says calorie counting has its merits. Here she is with her two daughters, following loss of 10 pounds under Glamor Clinic supervision. She is wearing a size 12.

—Herald Staff Photos by Ray Fisher

By ELEANOR HART

Herald Glamor Clinic Editor

Glamor Clinic

You don't have to starve yourself to death to make a dream come true (size 12-14, even 16!).

According to the current issue of Life Magazine, no one "who likes food well enough to get fat in the first place can live for long on grapefruit and melba toast . . . As a consequence, the crash diet so dear to the hearts of women page feature writers has probably added more inches to more hips than any other culinary development since the first pig was roasted."

Life's secret is "skimping on fatty foods — bacon, butter, chocolate, cream gravy, ice cream, olives, pastry, peanuts, salad dressings and sausages." Note: The term is skimping.

But it's a remarkable woman (or man) who's been gorging lo these many years who can honestly detect the fine line between skimping and stuffing!

(Just ask your well upholstered friends.)

Last Sunday, we concluded the story of Mrs. Wishful, the 28-year-old mother who lost 10 pounds in two months the HARD way — diet and exercise. And we don't mind telling you that she would have lost more a lot faster if she had ignored the chocolate, rather than skimping on it.

A planned two-week diet, such as the Mayo Clinic diet which Mrs. Wishful followed, is good discipline for the days of controlled eating which must follow any diet regime. And you don't subsist on grapefruit and melba toast.

True, there are plenty of eggs to be consumed in this particular diet, but by the time you get around to Sunday dinner, you feel like a glutton:

Broiled or boiled chicken, tomatoes, cooked cabbage, celery, vegetable soup or bouillon, grapefruit and black coffee are ALL included!

A month following her 10-pound loss, Mrs. Wishful was still hugging the scales at 134, her "streamlined" weight . . . a substantial improvement over the 144 this petite (5 feet 3½) mother had weighed. She kept her weight down by not only skimping on fatty foods, but avoiding many of them entirely (diet-discipline, you know).

Since the appearance of Mrs. Wishful's story, the Glamor Clinic has answered nearly 2,000 requests for her diet. There are still a few more on hand, if you are interested.

* * *

For your copy of the Glamor Clinic Diet, and exercises for major figure faults, send stamped, addressed envelope with your request to Glamor Clinic, Miami Herald, Miami, Fla.

BEFORE dieting, Mrs. Wishful weighed 144, wore a size 16. She is 5 feet 3½ inches tall, 28 years old.

Don't Ignore Exercise —It Helps Firm the Flab

Regardless of whether or not you hop on the diet band-wagon, never underestimate the value of exercise. And if you are dieting, never ignore it, for you need help in firming the flab.

According to Paul Dudley White, M.D., age 71, heart specialist who treated President Eisenhower: "Many physicians consider exercise as essential to good health as sleep, food, work, recreation and peace of mind . . . all healthy persons should exercise regularly, no matter what their ages."

It's difficult to start out alone on exercising, particularly if you've never done calisthenics. That's where classes and instruction prove invaluable.

There are several classes in the area that may interest would-be dieters, such as:

Figure Fascination class sponsored by the YWCA at Jewish Community Center, 450 SW 16th Ave., 10 a.m., starting Monday; also at the YMCA 40 NE Third Ave., Tuesday, 6:15 p.m.

Coral Gables Youth Center offers classes in fencing and modern dance. And if you don't think either is exercise, try ONE! Classes are held on Monday.

Cottons Go Long-Haired

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Cottons go long-haired in 1959.

Auditorium Funds Are Their Goal

Sisterhood of Temple Israel of Greater Miami has pledged $10,000 to the temple's auditorium building fund.

Mrs. Kobley

To raise this pledge, the sisterhood is giving a luncheon and fashion show of Florence Lustig's gowns at noon Monday in the Dupont Plaza Hotel.

The party is open to the public and Mrs. Miriam Kobley is general chairman. Reservations are being taken by Mrs. G. Louis Mendelson, 2130 SW 23rd St., and Mrs. Samuel Schwartz, 9140 Froude Ave., Surfside.

It's Been Kissingest Time in Washington

Mrs. Style Bridges Greets Sen. Tom Kuchel
. . . she made husband promise not to accept GOP Senate leadership

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Dear Herald Readers:

We've just been through the kissingest period of the year. Mrs. Nixon kissed new GOP Senate Leader Everett Dirksen of Illinois . . . Perle Mesta kissed Sam Rayburn . . . Democratic Senate Leader Lyndon Johnson kissed sad, ousted Republican Leader Joe Martin.

And Harry Truman kissed Mrs. Fred Vinson. "You're the only woman I kiss besides Bess and Margaret," the former President told the widow of his Chief Justice at the North Carolina Society party for comedian Andy Griffith.

And all Republicans could have kissed New York's new Senator Kenneth Keating for the fantastically funny speech he made at the Women's National Press Club's dressy dinner for the Congress. He completely stole the show from the Democratic senator who followed him — Clair Engle of California.

Introduced by President Lee Walsh as "the Republicans' mature Jack Kennedy" (he's quick, has lots of hair and women like him), Ken said about Jack Kennedy before the VIP-filled audience of 800: "You can't say Jack has been bitten by the Presidential bug. No bug could catch a man running that fast.

"There's only one real difference between the Democratic and Republican parties," noted Mr. Keating. "The Democrat says things are awful and tells you a joke to cheer you up. A Republican says things are wonderful — and then weeps at the beauty of it."

Smathers Sports Brand New Tan

EVERYBODY WHO'S ANYBODY was at the brilliant WNPC dinner.

We hardworking newswomen always garner the most politically sophisticated persons in Washington (at our own expense).

Handsome Senator George Smathers of Florida and his beauteous blonde Rosemary, looked as if they had stepped out of Vogue — sartorially svelte and newly sun-kissed. Kentucky's Senator John Sherman Cooper, escorted his wife who was gowned in a bottle green Dior evening dress topped by a choker of real pearls and a necklace of Dior pearls. "I like to mix the real with the phony," said Loraine. "I think it picks up the real."

Senator Mike Monroney of Oklahoma arrived with his wife Mary Ellen in a dazzling black and red figured satin gown and black velvet stole. Bachelor Senator "Scoop" Jackson squired the well-todo young North Carolina widow, Mrs. Thurmond Chatham.

The Senate's only woman member, Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, stuck close to Representative Joe Martin all evening so he would know he had a friend. Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire was beaming because he did NOT get the Senate GOP leadership. His blonde wife Dolores practically threatened to leave him if he did, because she knew he'd have to spend all his time at the Senate.

Gov. Mennen ("Soapy") Williams of Michigan was looking downright unhappy over being the only Democratic hopeful who wasn't razzed. And Soapy's big, all-out campaign for the Presidency will get under way with a bang in the next few months.

Incidentally, Washington thinks he should give up collegiate polka dot bow ties if he hopes to land in the White House. For daytime wear the executive four-in-hand inspires a lot more confidence.

* * *

Veep's Wife Really Chic!

PAT NIXON IS RAPIDLY BECOMING the best dressed woman in Washington.

In the past when she was listed among the nation's best garbed, it was because she simply looked nice and she was America's Second Lady.

Now she's acquiring real chic. Indeed, she's become a walking advertisement for Count Sarmi of Elizabeth Arden, and she has the slenderness to make her a good clothes horse, for daytime wear especially.

At Chicagoan Ben Regan's cocktail party for the Dirksens, she appeared in a muted olive green and gray French taffeta faille print with her high fitted waist encircled with velvet ribbons of the two colors. Her hat was matching olive green velvet loops.

Seated in the gallery for the President's State-of-the-Union message, she was clad in a pale tan, nubby wool suit with marvelous lines, a desert gold mink capelet with diagonally striped skins about her shoulders, and a close small hat of fawn velvet leaves.

* * *

No Discount For Rockerfellers

SPEAKING OF CLOTHES, Ladybird Johnson wore a pale gray satin dress to the birthday party for Sam Rayburn, which Lyndon bought for her without her help.

When the Senator went up to NYC last November to address the United Nations, he carefully jotted down the sizes of four women and then quietly slipped into the dress shop in the Waldorf Astoria.

Whereupon he generously proceeded to buy a dress for his wife, a dress for her niece, a dress for his administrative assistant's wife and one for his secretary. Mrs. J. said they were all thrilled with them.

Believe it or not, Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller, who visited New York's garment district during her husband's campaign, was asked by a TV newsgal, "Did you get anything wholesale while you were there?"

"No, I did not," replied the surprised wife of the multimillionaire. Can't you imagine the reaction if a Rockefeller tried to get a discount!

"I get everything wholesale," boasted the newsgal in an objectionable manner as she tried to turn attention to herself.

"But," replied Mrs. Rockefeller delivering the beautiful squelch in her modulated tones, "you ladies are so much more important than I am."

Mrs. Dickey Heads Lodge

Mrs. Frank Dickey, 621 E. 38th St., Hialeah, will be installed as the new noble grand (president) of Hialeah Rebekah Lodge 81, during an 8 p.m. ceremony Thursday at 2901 W. 1st Ave., Hialeah.

Mrs. Dickey

The ceremony, open to friends of the lodge, will be conducted by Mrs. Vivian Barrs, district deputy, and the Hialeah Oddfellows. Mrs. Lillian Brown, 700 E. 9th Ct., is the vice grand.

The lodge supports the Rebekah home for the aged in Gainesville and an educational foundation.

Shh! I Love Him

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT:

I am a senior in high school and will soon be 19 years old.

"The boy I go with is 18 and is in the Navy. I want to marry when I finish school. I am afraid to ask my mother.

"Do you think I should go ahead and marry him and keep it a secret?

"I love him very much and he loves, me, too. I have known him for five months.

P. B., Greenville, S. C."

If you are afraid to tell your mother, you have strong doubts as to the wisdom of your course. Never have a secret marriage.

Finish high school and, if possible, go on to college. Let the young man get a job and some savings ahead before you marry him.

According to an article in The New York Times, Professor Kingsley Davis and the University of California, Department of Sociology, recently called the trend toward early marriage a part of "the wide-spread movement toward anti-intellectualism and anti-effort," where the emphasis is upon "group conformity rather than individual initiative, on security rather than achievement, on slackness rather than self-discipline."

Teen-agers account for nearly half of the women now getting married for the first time, according to the same report.

Listen to your own inner warnings against such a foolish step.

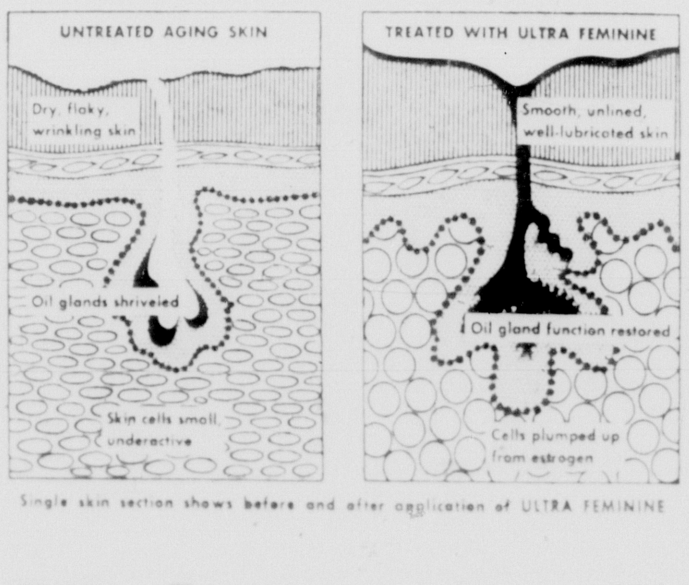
How New Wonder Drug Cosmetic Restores Young Look To Skin

Medical tests show Helena Rubinstein's ULTRA FEMININE FACE CREAM reverses two aging processes of skin and restores young skin tone

Helena Rubinstein, first lady of beauty science, announces her discovery, ULTRA FEMININE FACE CREAM. It is the only formula containing both vital female hormones, natural to you as a woman. They are estrogen and progesterone.

Like a physician's prescription, ULTRA FEMININE acts not merely on the surface but on specific skin cells. They are the same living cell layers that made your skin soft, firm, fresh when you were very young. Medical tests show that ULTRA FEMININE reactivates these sleeping cells!



UNTREATED AGING SKIN
Dry, flaky, wrinkling skin
Oil glands shriveled
Skin cells small, underactive
TREATED WITH ULTRA FEMININE
Smooth, unlined, well-lubricated skin
Oil gland function restored
Cells plumped up from estrogen

Single skin section shows before and after application of ULTRA FEMININE

DOCTORS REPORT UNPRECEDENTED RESULTS

The following are the results of medical tests:

1. Tissue cells can hold moisture again after use of ULTRA FEMININE. These cells, plumped out once again, support the surface firmly. Lines smooth out. Wrinkles due to dryness are reduced.

2. Oil glands produce again after ULTRA FEMININE treatment. Tissue sections and skin surface tests show an amazing increase in oil production. The skin is soft, dew-finished, protected, shows restored elasticity.

These results stand alone in the beauty field.

WORKS LIKE A PRESCRIPTION

No surface additive of moisture, no superficial lubrication, can give you the results obtained from this wonder drug preparation which works within the skin to replenish hormones dwindled by time. Use ULTRA FEMININE faithfully for thirty days. You will discover that you can look younger.

For clinical literature doctors are invited to write to: Clinical Research Division, Helena Rubinstein, Inc., East Hills, Long Island, New York.

Introductory Offer

Because Helena Rubinstein believes that ULTRA FEMININE is her greatest cosmetic achievement, she makes this introductory offer so that you may discover for yourself that you can look younger. One jar will convince you!

Monday noon is the deadline for engagement and wedding stories to be used in the Sunday paper. Information must be in The Herald women's department by MONDAY NOON.

Engagement announcements are printed in SUNDAY papers only. Stories of weddings that take place on Saturday are printed in the Sunday paper.

For weddings that take place during the week, the stories will be printed the day after the wedding, whenever possible. Deadline for these stories is noon of the day preceding the wedding.

We publish only those weddings for which we receive information and picture before the wedding.

We ask prospective brides to decide whether they wish their engagement or wedding picture published. We print only one picture — whichever you prefer — but will use both engagement and wedding stories.

Women Are Happiest When They're Busy

ANN ARBOR — (WNS) —Whistle while you work? Most women do.

That's the finding of a research team here at the University of Michigan's Survey Research Center. The experts have just completed a study on what women love best. The answer: work.

This is true whether they take jobs outside the home or engage in "just housework," according to the researchers.

They grant that it may seem surprising, but more than half the country's married women feel that housework helps their self-esteem.

A taste for housework is acquired mainly after marriage, however, and dawns more slowly upon college-educated women than others.

And among those who work outside the home, more than half of America's women seem to feel that their jobs help them feel useful and important. However, the type of satisfaction depends upon the job.

* * *

ABOUT SIX in 10 clerical and sales workers said their jobs helped them feel important. This view was based mainly on opportunities for advancement, rather than the intrinsic value of present duties.

Telephone switchboard operators proved to be among the happiest in this group, because they felt they were very important to their organizations.

Four out of 10 women doing light industrial jobs on assembly lines and at benches said they did not feel that their work is socially important, but that they got a lot of satisfaction out of the financial contribution they were making to their families.

On the other hand, almost two-thirds of those working in service occupations — dietician, waitresses, and maids — said they were impressed with the social worth of their jobs.

The researchers are worried most about the 30 per cent of older, unmarried women who fail to find any basis in their lives for feeling useful.

They blame this on the fact that most jobs for women are such that an important source of satisfaction is the opportunity for advancement rather than the work being done at the moment. Also, the experts noted, the older, single woman feels left out of the "happy family circle" ideal that still dominates America.

Their Hubbies Win Fame; Seven Suggestions for You

By MARGARET WALKER
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — How can a wife help her husband become a success?

That question was put to seven of the 10 outstanding young men of the country here to accept the annual National Junior Chamber of Commerce award.

All of the husbands are under 35. All have achieved notable success in their professions.

This is how their wives said they have helped:

Mrs. James T. Grace says:

"Give him unobtrusive support."

Her husband, Dr. Grace of Buffalo, is noted for his cancer research.

* * *

Mrs. Warren Phillips says:

"I lend a sympathetic ear if he has problems and advise him when I can."

Mrs. Phillips is wife of the 32-year-old managing editor of the Wall Street Journal. The mother of two children, she is active in community projects in Larchmont, N.Y., their home, and believes participation in these activities may help a husband. But that depends, she said, on the city in which a family lives.

* * *

Mrs. Gus Turbeville says:

"In my capacity you have to have the decks cleared at home and be ready for any number of unexpected guests."

Mrs. Turbeville is wife of the president of Northland College, Ashland, Wis. She believes that her preparation for a career in social work, entailing a pyschology major, is helpful in supporting the work of Dr. Turbeville, who is social psychologist.

Besides being able, willing and cheerful about entertaining many strangers, Mrs. Turbeville is active in church work and the League of Women Voters. She is president of the College Faculty Women's Organization.

The Turbevilles have two sons.

* * *

Mrs. Loren Schnack:

Is another wife who encourages her husband to bring crowds of unexpected guests home at any hour.

Mrs. Schnack is wife of a Quincy, Ill., attorney who has gained national recognition as a county judge. He has dealt primarily with juvenile delinquents, who are still his main concern.

When the judge brings a group of these youngsters home, Mrs. Schnack makes them as welcome as her own two children. She enjoys working alongside her husband in area projects which serve young people.

"I'm so FOR what my husband is doing that I never think of myself as a particularly understanding wife," she remarked.

She claims more pride in her husband's out-of-court work than in what he has accomplished on the bench. "He goes to the kids before they have to go to him in court," she explained.

* * *

Mrs. Shepherd M. Jenks says:

"A perfect Navy wife loves traveling around and meeting new people."

When her husband, Lt. Jenks, USN, navigator of the nuclear-powered submarine Nautilus, was making his historic trip Aug. 3 beneath the polar ice cap, Mrs. Jenks was unperturbed.

"I didn't know a thing about it until I heard about it on the radio when I was washing the luncheon dishes two days later," she declared.

But she said enthusiastically, "We Navy wives are terribly interested in our husbands' professions and I think that's very important." She also mentioned the importance of being compatible with other Navy wives, who are together a great deal when their husbands are at sea.

* * *

Mrs. Hugh E. Wilson:

Listed patience as a necessary virtue for a doctor's wife.

As wife of a Dallas heart surgeon, she felt this was her prime contribution. She is kept busy with three children, but is never too busy to lend her husband moral support.

* * *

Mrs. Richard T. Smith says:

"Understanding his devotion to his work and not objecting to the time spent in achieving what is important to him."

Her husband, head of the new pediatrics department of the University of Florida's school of medicine, has been engaged in medical research since his graduation from medical school eight years ago.

She never objects to the time his research takes, even when he works at night, she said. The Smiths have five children, ranging from two to 10, who must be kept from disturbing their father when he is working at home.

Thief Paid Bibical Fine

JERUSALEM (Israeli Sector) —(WNS)— Israeli District Court Judge Jonah Gavison believes that the Biblical Penal Code is the most just.

So he applied the Biblical scale of punishment in fining grocer Shuel Lipner for the theft of eight tons of sugar. The stolen sugar was worth 2,200 Israeli pounds, but the judge, referring to Exodus 22:7 ("If the thief be found, let him pay double"), fined the culprit 4,400 pounds.

Budget Ahead for Your Gift-Giving

By MARY MILLER
Budget Consultant
Mercantile Natonal Bank of Miami Beach

Money Clinic

If you've never toted up how much your family spends in a year for gifts, you ought to do it. You might get quite a shock; you might also find out where lots of that unaccounted - for money has gone.

I'm not talking about Christmas gifts. Those can be anticipated, and since they are bought just once a year, you can save up for a year to get ready for them.

I mean birthday gifts, wedding presents, shower gifts, anniversary gifts, gifts for graduation, confirmation, Bar Mitzvah — all those happy occasions that may come along any day of the week.

We love to celebrate them on behalf of our family and friends, but if we do our gift-buying haphazardly, it may wreck our budgets.

* * *

IN YOUR FAMILY account book, don't just lump gifts under "miscellaneous." Use a separate column and keep track. You may find to your surprise that you are spending several hundred dollars a year for gift expenditures which you had been thinking of as insignificant.

If your income is modest, there are some definite measures you can take to make gift-buying a happy experience rather than something to groan over.

You can set a top price limit for children's birthday party gifts. By the time your children have given birthday parties, and all the children who came to their parties have given parties in their turn, this becomes a considerable item of expense.

Talk it over with your youngsters, and let them help you decide what should be the top sum. It might vary from a quarter for the littlest ones to perhaps a dollar for teenagers.

Help your children think of things that can be purchased within the limit set.

Even a dollar spent for a teenager may result in a distinctive gift, especially if the giver puts something of himself or herself into it.

A hand-monogrammed scarf, belt, a sequin-trimmed wastebasket, an enlarged, framed snapshot, of special interest — these may be inexpensive gifts, but they are not junky ones.

The list of possibilities is endless if you think and plan ahead, instead of just rushing out with some cash and grabbing something at the last minute.

* * *

ANOTHER WAY of cutting down on your spending — without cutting down on your giving — is to watch sales and shop ahead carefully for gifts. At one time or another during the year, almost everything you can think of will be offered at reduced prices — linens, lingerie, cosmetics, china, glassware, and silver, etc.

Be discriminating in your purchases of sale merchandise. Shop at your regular stores, where you know the merchandise and the values, or stick to name brands if you shop at new stores. Avoid shopworn or damaged merchandise. Don't fill up a whole closet with sale merchandise just because the things are bargains.

Have a list — at least a mental one — and buy with specific recipients in mind. Know sizes if you buy clothing — remember that sale merchandise cannot be exchanged.

Give Help To Covers

By NIXON SMILEY
Herald Farm and Garden Editor

GROUND COVERS have their place in the garden, but if they are to be satisfactory it is necessary to give them good care.

And that means providing ample fertilizer and moisture, and, above all, keeping insects under control.

Wedelia is still the most widely used ground cover. It is a rapid grower, takes trimming well, withstands neglect better than most other ground covers, and is tolerant to brackish conditions.

Impatient persons often fail with ground covers because they "can't wait" until the plants become well established and develop the neat form that the gardener is looking for.

They "get disgusted" with the "ragged mess" and hoe out the straggly plants and "plant something that'll grow."

Ground covers require a fairly good soil. Mixing an inch of peatmoss with the soil will help. Add a regular fertilizer at the rate of five or six pounds per 100 square feet and pulverized sheep or cow manure at the rate of 25 pounds per 100 square feet.

Incorporate the materials all together and moisten the soil well to dissolve the fertilizer. Let stand a week before planting.

* * *

Plant Rows Close

NOW YOU'VE GOT a fair place to plant ground covers. But plant thickly, in rows not over eight inches apart for such plants as wedelia and zebrina. Plant as close together in the rows as you can afford to do and have patience to do.

The idea is to grow a dense mass of whatever plant you are using. Your plant must literally cover the ground, shading it so completely that nothing else will grow — especially weeds — after the cover is established.

It is our opinion that the use of ground covers has only begun, and that ground covers have much greater possibilities than now being realized.

Such plants are barleria, the shrimp plant (Beloperone), jasminum species, and even bougainvillea and small shrubbery plants, should be given trials.

* * *

Some Will Do Well

APPARENTLY IT IS difficult for gardeners to plant these things as closely together as they should be in ground cover situations. Apparently it's hard to believe that a bougainvillea would bloom if planted only a foot apart.

Well, in the case of bougainvilleas, it is possible that some varieties wouldn't do well under such conditions, especially where they were subject to close trimming to keep them growing as ground covers.

But there are varieties which will, because we have seen them growing this way (accidentally planted perhaps) in Nassau.

And why not try the colorful russelia (coral plant)? This plant is in bloom almost continuously, and we can visualize beds of it as being spectacular with their great masses of coral bloom.

Moreover, the russelia withstands rather dry conditions and should do well in sunny spots where large boulders and one or two character plants have been placed for contrasting effect.

* * *

Spraying Necessary

BUT ALL GROUND COVERS do their best and look their best when well cared for. Slugs and other insects are often active in ground cover plots and regular spraying and distribution of slug bait is necessary to keep these pests down. (What gardeners need is a combination dust of metaldehyde and some other insecticide such as DDT, chlordane and diazinon to use periodically in the ground cover plots, and here is a chance for a sharp manufacturer to develop a good thing.)

Fertilizing should be done periodically also. Fertilize up to three times a year where rank growth is required for best effect, such as with wedelia, Zebrina, philodendrons (in shade only), and the jasminums.

Apply fertilizer when the plants are dry, but never apply fertilizer when the soil is dry. When the weather is dry irrigate well the day before, saturating the soil with moisture. Then fertilize the following day, after the plants have dried out.

Apply fertilizer at a generous rate, three or four pounds per 100 square feet. Knock as much off the plants as you can with the aid of a rake or similar tool, and douse the rest of the fertilizer off the plants with the aid of a garden hose.

By trimming often, keeping your ground cover at the height and form desired you will seldom ever have to do any drastic cutting back.

Thus you can avoid that once-a-year butchering that you have to do when the plants are permitted to grow freely.

Where ground cover beds are too large to trim by standing on the side, it doesn't hurt to walk into them. Those depressions you make will disappear in a day or so.

Not all plants, incidentally, can be planted directly from cuttings into the ground cover bed. Where there is any doubt, root the plants in flats first.

WELL GROWN GROUND COVERS require ample fertilizer and moisture. The ground cover here is wedelia, planted about a group of cabbage palms. The young shrub in the background is coplum and the big-leaf plant within the triangle made by the palms is Philodendrum minarum, a non-vining type. The ground cover in the distant bed is the sarawak bean, Dolichos hosei.

Chemical Can Kill Source of Vitamin

By Science Service

NEW YORK — Chemicals that kill plants by creating a vitamin deficiency were described to scientists at a meeting of the Northeastern Weed Control Conference here.

Dalapon and related compounds interfere with the formation of an important vitamin, pantothenic acid, essential to the plant's growth and development, Dr. James L. Hilton said.

It does this, the U.S. Department of Agriculture researcher explained, by upsetting normal enzymatic reactions.

Pantothenic acid is made within the plant when the two chemicals, pantoate and beta alanine, attach themselves to specific sites on a certain plant enzyme.

Since dalapon also readily attaches itself to the same site as that normally reserved for pantoate, the enzymatic reaction cannot take place and no vitamin is made.

Evidence that dalapon (2,2-dichloropropionic acid) and its related compounds act to inhibit plant growth was first indicated by test-tube experiments with ordinary yeast, Dr. Hilton said. Yeast's failure to grow after treatment with the herbicide was found to be caused by pantothenic acid deficiency.

Similar experiments with barley, oats and ryegrass have given the same results. Also, the addition of pantothenic acid overcame the deficiency in dalapon-treated plants.

* * *

Dalapon is widely used in Florida for the control of Para grass, cattails and other grassy weeds. It is death to any kind of grass and should not be applied to lawns.

UM Garden Club Course Is Scheduled Jan. 28-30

The third annual course for garden clubs offered by the University of Miami will be held Jan. 28-30 at the campus and at the Fairchild Tropical Garden.

Registration and the opening meeting will be held in the Hillel House, 1100 Miller Drive, at the university's main campus, starting at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 28.

The following day, Jan. 29, will be spent at the Fairchild Tropical Garden and Matheson Hammock.

Beaumont Lecture Hall at the university's main campus will be the site of the third day of lectures, from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Members of the botany department staff and of Florida garden clubs will conduct the lectures, covering such subjects as horticulture, landscaping and flower arranging.

Information about the course can be obtained from Mrs. Robert Elder Adams of 110 NW 63rd Ave., chairman.

New Varieties Being Offered

Two new vegetable varieties and one annual flower variety have been released which you will want to grow in your garden.

They are Gardengreen snapbean, Jade Cross Brussels sprouts and Pink Heather alyssum, and the release was made by the All-America Selections.

(You may not be able to buy these new varieties in local garden stores this season, but they will be available by fall for your next winter garden.)

The new snapbean is described as of top quality for the table and for freezing, but of poor quality for shipping.

It was not developed for commercial production. Pods are "stringless and fiberless, smooth, tender and well-filled."

Jade Cross, the new Brussels sprouts variety, was the highest scoring vegetable entry in seven years of national testing, according to the All-America Selections announcement.

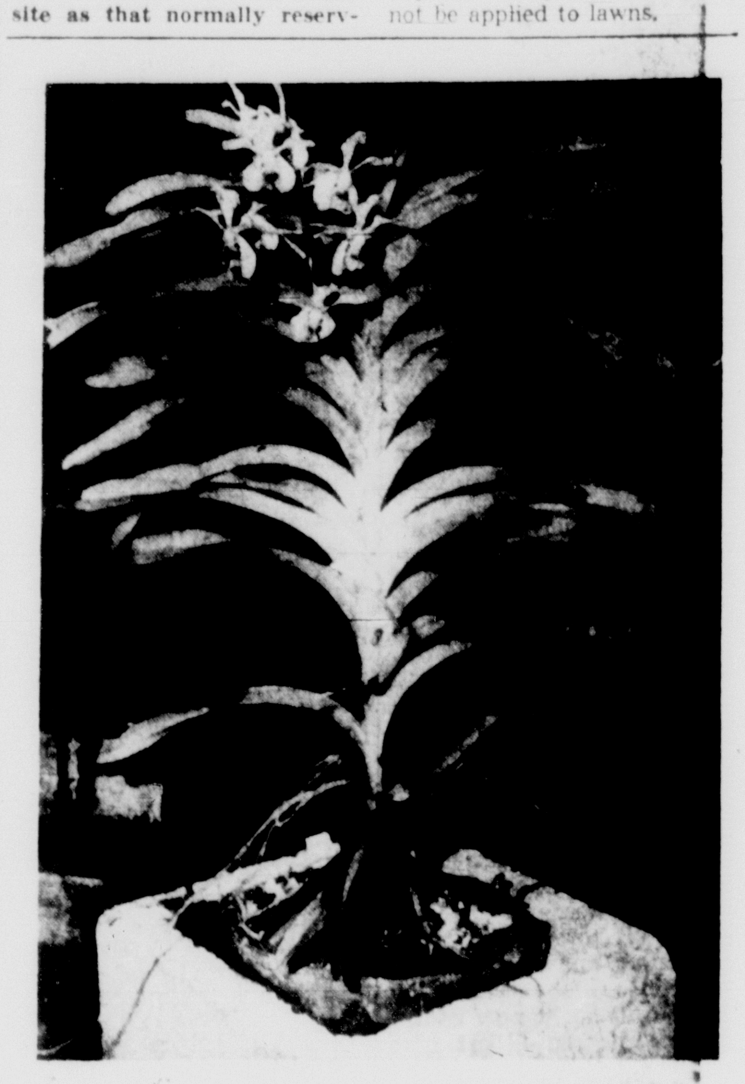
The strain came from Japan, and was further developed into the present selected strain through breeding.

Only annual to be released this year was the Pink Heather alyssum. It is a dense growing plant, and is much superior to older varieties for use in edging plant beds.

Its name was derived from the color of its flowers — heather pink.

These varieties, incidentally, are yet to be tested in Dade county's limestone soil. But they probably will do well here if planted in the fall and and matured in winter or early spring.

The three varieties, incidentally, are being listed in this year's northern seed catalogs.



CAN YOU USE this idea for growing vanda orchids? Here a corner building block is used to hold a large orchid pot.

Stock Show Prize List At $12,000

OCALA — Some $12,000 in prizes and trophies will be awarded at the 19th annual Southeast Fat Stock show, opening here Jan. 26.

Eight breeds of cattle, including Angus, Shorthorn, Brangus, Hereford, Santa Gertrudis, Charolais, Charbray and Brahman, will be shown.

Big awards for prize winning animals have been posted by several livestock associations.

The six-day even will be terminated by an auction of top quality cattle.

Moisture Both Good and Bad

This has been a good year for lawns, from the standpoint of moisture if not from chinch bugs, but it has been a poor year for flowering things.

Poinsettias were slow to bloom, and in many instances were not in full bloom at Christmas time. Blame the wet weather mainly. Over-fertilizing is another factor in delaying poinsettia bloom.

Bougainvilleas also have been slow to bloom this season, due mainly to wet weather. This vine blooms best where it is kept on the "dry side" during the winter.

There has been some compensation. The unseasonably heavy rains and warm weather have kept lawns green.

And even the normally deciduous trees (which normally lose their leaves) have been slow to shed, except where insects have assisted by consuming the foliage.

Flowering trees that are kept so moist that they don't shed their leaves usually produce a poor crop of flowers.

We are also wondering what will happen to the mango and lychee crops if the moist, warm weather continues.

These trees need some "check" in order to flower and fruit well.

A dry fall and winter period is needed for mangos to do their best.

Coolness, but not frost, is needed by the lychee.

Tomatoes Grow Well

The pleasure she received from growing tomatoes in her dooryard garden has impelled a reader to write to us about her experiences, with the suggestion that others might likewise obtain fun from gardening.

"I have 12 plants out, each one now over five feet tall and with plenty of tomatoes," wrote Mrs. Robert C. Barko of 4782 NW Flagler Ter.

Insects' Visit To Trees Fine

Don't worry because many kinds of insects visit the flowers of your fruit trees. Most of these are desirable insects and should be protected, not destroyed. So do not spray fruit trees with insecticides while they are in bloom.

Don't Raze All the Trees And Keep Spot of Beauty

Three years ago when Mr. and Mrs. James Macrae decided to build a home on a lot they owned at 4140 La Playa in Coconut Grove, they first had the problem of clearing the site of pinewoods.

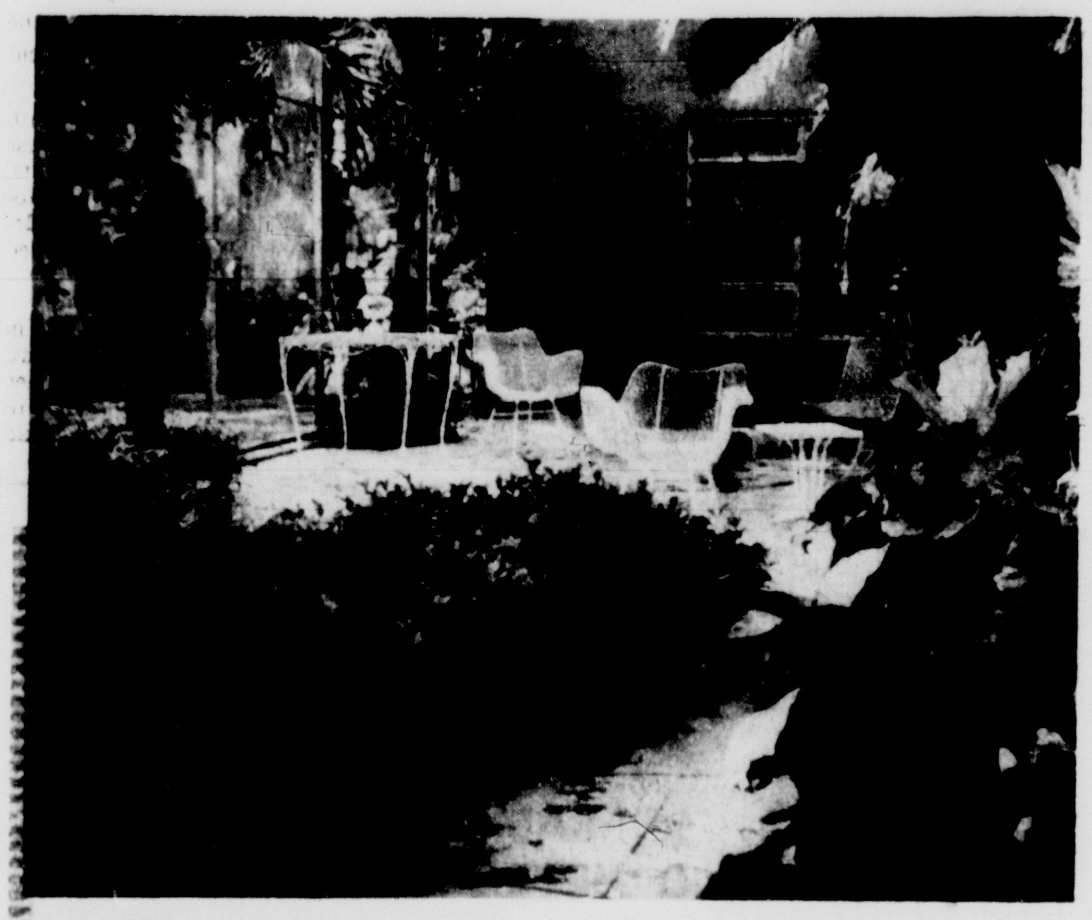
But they only cleared enough for the house and for a lawn—for "air circulation about the place."

The pines, palmettos and other wild things growing along the borders were left. So were a few islands of native things.

"It was a good decision so far as we are concerned," Mrs. Macrae said.

"Having the woods along the borders hasn't kept us from planting flowering shrubs and trees, but we have kept the lawn open and have confined the planting to the borders and to islands."

Leaving some of the native plants has had the result of giving maturity to the landscaping about the Macrae home which would have taken years to attain, had the entire lot been subjected to the bulldozer, making it necessary to start the planting from scratch.



FROM THEIR CULTIVATED patio garden the Macraes can look out across an open lawn into a background of pinewoods in the distance — although they live on a city lot. The patio planting was done by the Shaw Landscape Co.

AN ISLAND of palmettos and pines, preserved by the Macraes, adds a touch of nature to their garden.

—Herald Staff Photos By Steve Wever

A WOODSLAND border of pines and other wild things were preserved when Mr. and Mrs. James Macrae built their home at 4140 La Playa in Coconut Grove. Note the open, uncluttered lawn.

Zinnias Prolific Locally

The zinnia, easy to grow and liked by most gardeners, is one of the most awarding of the annual flowers that can be planted in South Florida.

There is an endless list of varieties in seed catalogs, from tiny fellows only a few inches high with flowers no more than an inch across, to the three-foot high giant plants with flowers five inches in diameter.

Check seed catalogs or seed packets before buying, in order to select the colors and the sizes of plants you need or want.

But if you are not experienced in growing plants from seed, it is a good idea to buy started plants from a nursery, and to try your hand with only one or two seed packets.

It's much better to start seed in the sterile soil of a small flat or flower pot rather than to plant them in the unsterile soil of your garden.

After the plants are of suitable size they can be transferred to the garden or to flower beds.

Irrigation Necessary If Its Cool

Irrigation of lawns and shrubbery must be stepped up when cool weather is predicted in order to keep plants from drying out badly.

By keeping the soil moist, rapid browning of lawns may be prevented, except instances of heavy frost.

Trees Do Shed

There is no tree that doesn't drop a few leaves now and then.

Watermelons Thrive In Closer Planting

Farmers may be able to grow a third more watermelons by planting them closer together than is customary.

This suggestion comes from L. H. Halsey, assistant horticulturist at the Florida Experiment Station, Gainesville.

Halsey found that when plants were spaced three feet apart in the row he got yields one third again as great as when the plants were spaced 12 feet apart.

All rows were 10 feet wide. When Halsey increased the fertilizer rate from 500 pounds to 2,000 pounds per acre he got twice the yield.

He cautioned that trials were somewhat inconclusive because they have been conducted but one year.

But Halsey does feel that the cost of producing increased numbers of watermelons, by closer planting and increased fertilization, would be greatly overcome by an increase in crop sales.

For further information farmers should check with county agents.

Now's the Time To...

Jan. 18, 1959

PLANTING — Any major planting of vegetables or annuals for spring harvest should be done this month. Unless you are adept at growing plants from seed, it is a good idea to buy started plants from garden stores or from nurserymen.

CITRUS — Apply a mineral spray containing zinc and manganese this month. You can buy spray materials from garden stores. Follow directions for use.

MANGOS — These trees, some of which bloomed in early December, are getting ready to put out a major bloom. Be prepared to spray bloom with a copper fungicide to prevent fungus disease. Commercial growers apply nitrogen fertilizer, such as ammonium nitrate, when there is evidence that bloom is forming.

AVOCADOS — Rustiness of leaves, especially the undersides, may be a sign of mite damage. If there's any doubt, spray with a miticide.

SLUGS — These night-feeding pests are still active. Get rid of them with anti-slug bait, which can be purchased from garden supply places.

TOMATOES — Blight has already "done in" many dooryard tomato "farms" because gardeners failed to spray. It's too late, usually, after the spores of the blight fungus have developed in the tissue of the tomato leaves. Spraying should be done as a preventive measure. Use zineb, nabam or maneb. These fungicides are sold by garden stores.

PRUNING—Lay off heavy pruning until spring. Recovery is too slow at this time of year.

The Inquiring Gardener

Readers with queries should include a self-addressed stamped envelope. Limit queries to two or three. Complete specimens are required for identification, including a twig with foliage and flowers or fruit.

QUESTION — My crepe myrtles have lost their leaves. What can I do to bring them back to good health? — Mrs. Webb, Miami Shores.

ANSWER — It's normal for a crepe myrtle to lose its leaves.

QUESTION — How can I get rid of leaf miners in my tomato plants? — J. W. D., Miami.

ANSWER — Spray with diazinon, according to directions.

QUESTION — Would you recommend bahia grass for a lawn? I've been told it is hard to cut and that the seed spikes grow real tall. — Mr. Lacy D. Burselon, Miami.

ANSWER — You have been informed correctly. Bahia is a tough grass to cut, if mower blades are dull, and its seed spikes will grow more than a foot tall if now mowed regularly.

However, bahia is free from chinch bugs, and it does make a good ground cover. Many persons like it. But bahia is not a grass for one who likes a fine turf.

QUESTION — My zoysia grass is quite spongy. Should I topdress it with sand? — Mrs. Sara Farmer, Fort Lauderdale.

ANSWER — A pulverized dark sandy soil would be superior, if you could obtain soil that is free of weed seeds. Otherwise sand is better. Spread the sand in thin layers and scrub into the grass with the back of a rake.

QUESTION — I just cut my hibiscus hedge back to a foot in height. Did I cut it back at the wrong time of year? — Don't-Put-My-Name-In-The Paper.

ANSWER — Yes, you did. But why ask now?

QUESTION — Sometime ago you had an excellent article on how soil is built; how insects and bacteria and many other living things cooperate in breaking down the vegetable matter in mulch and enriching the soil. But then you carried an article on using poison sprays to kill cockroaches. What I want to know is this: Will this spray kill other insects in my mulch? I have millions of cockroaches, but hesitate to use strong insecticides because of the fear of killing off my beneficial insects. — Mrs. J. R. C., Miami.

ANSWER — Forget the value of cockroaches and "other insects" in converting mulch to soil. Bacteria and fungi are mainly responsible for the reduction. I would spray the heck out of the cockroaches, and not worry too much about the "other insects."

QUESTION — I have had nothing but grief from my experiences in trying to make compost. All the grass clippings and leaves, and even table scraps, go into my compost piles. But I live on a city lot, and there isn't much room.

My husband says my ideas about compost-making are haywire.

I suppose he is right. The dogs come over from the neighbors and scatter the compost pile, and my next-door neighbor told me that the stench from decaying fish scraps had made her ill.

Now I am confused. Everything I have read points to the value of compost, of adding organic material to the soil, but the problems are unbearable. Please advise me? — Your-Most-Confused-Reader, Coral Gables.

ANSWER — Your problem is easy to solve. Forget the compost making. If you insist on using organic fertilizer, buy a few bags of pulverized sheep manure occasionally for your shrubs and fruit trees.

QUESTION — What's a six-six-six fertilizer? — Mrs. N. C. C., Miami.

ANSWER — A 6-6-6 fertilizer is a mixture containing 6 per cent each of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash in the order of the figures listed. Thus a 4-7-5 fertilizer would contain 4 per cent nitrogen, 7 per cent phosphorus and 5 per cent potash.

In a 100-pound bag of 6-6-6 the manufacturer guarantees the bag to contain 18 pounds of fertilizer elements. What is the rest of the 82 pounds in the bag?

Well, those 18 pounds of active ingredients aren't pure chemicals. They are in chemical compounds, such as ammonium sulphate which is about 20 per cent nitrogen, 23 per cent sulphur, and 57 per cent of "other" materials. To have one per cent of nitrogen in 100 pounds of fertilizer five pounds of ammonium sulphate is required.

But all nitrogen doesn't come from ammonium sulphate. This is a relatively inexpensive source, but it is quickly leached out of the soil. Thus only part of the nitrogen in a bag of high quality fertilizer comes from an inorganic source. The rest comes from organic sources, such as tankage and sludge. And, since organic materials have but a small percentage of nitrogen, more than half of the fertilizer content is organic.

A tag on the fertilizer bag, required by the State Department of Agriculture, lists the materials in a fertilizer bag. Phosphate ordinarily is listed as phosphoric acid, derived from superphosphate. Potash may be listed under the names of sulphate of potash, muriate of potash and sulphate of potash magnesia.

Thus, it is easy to see, your bag of 100 pounds of fertilizer contains much more than 18 pounds of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

Also present are sulphur and magnesium and rather large quantities, and both are required by plants. And there also will be many "impurities" which plants require, such as copper, zinc and manganese.

QUESTION — The bud has been killed in a big palm in our yard. A yardman told me the heart of the palm was rotten, but the fronds are still living nevertheless. Do you think the palm will survive? What could I do to help it? — S. Williams, Miami.

ANSWER — There's nothing you can do, if the bud of your palm is really dead.

Banana Trees Require Some Help

You can't expect banana trees to produce huge bunches of bananas unless you fertilize and water them sufficiently.

Here's a typical telephone conversation with a dooryard banana grower:

"My banana plant has just fruited, but there are only a couple of hands of bananas on the stalk. The rest of the flowers just fell off. Can you tell me why a big bunch of fruit didn't develop — like those you see in the store?"

"Did you fertilize and water your plant?"

"No, can't remember that I did. Was I supposed to?"

"Well, it is a little hard to grow things in poor soil, and especially a banana tree, without at least some fertilizer and some water during the dry season."

"How often should I fertilize and how much?"

"During the growing season — during the warmer part of the year — you can give a banana tree up to a coffee can full of fertilizer. Scatter out in a radius of a couple or three feet around the plant, and do not let the fertilizer come in contact with the plant.

"Where there is a large clump of banana trees, including big ones and small ones, you can use even more fertilizer for each application two or three coffee cans full. But be sure you distribute it well."

"How much water should I give a plant? Should I water every day?"

"There's no need to water a banana tree more often than once a week even during the driest part of the year. But when you water do it thoroughly.

"Soak the soil, don't just sprinkle the surface. Just wetting the surface doesn't do any good.

Most of Insects 'Friendly'

Do you consider the insects about your home and garden as friends or foes?

Perhaps if you knew them better you would look upon insects generally with more sympathy and understanding.

For most of them not only are beneficial but they are necessary in nature's scheme.

For the person who desires to know more about insects, and to be able to tell the harmful ones from the pest insects, we recommend a little picket book entitled "Insects — A Guide to Familiar American Insects," by Dr. Herbert S. Zim and Dr. Clarence Cottam (Simon and Schuster, N.Y., $1).

This little guide is of particular value on account of its clear drawings in full color by James Gordon Irving.

A total of 225 insect species are shown and described. Most of them live in your backyard.

The insect guide, sponsored by the Wildlife Management Institute, is available in most local book stores.

COLORFUL NEW ALYSSUM just released by the All-American Selections is this variety named Pink Heather. It is recommended for use in edging.

Dried Tomato Culls Good as Cattle Feed

Dade tomato growers soon may be turning their cull tomatoes into cattle feed rather than dumping them.

Tests at the Everglades Experiment Station, Belle Glade, showed that steers fattened satisfactorily on mixed feed containing 30 per cent of dried tomato pulp.

The pulp was prepared in a pilot plant constructed a year ago in South Dade.

According to the University of Florida, the equivalent of five million bushels of tomatoes harvested each year in Dade couny are "not of marketable quality" and must be sent to the cull dumps.

The Belle Glade tests were conducted by Dr. H. L. Chapman, Jr., associate animal nutritionist.

290 Seed Favorites Of Past Outmoded

So many new and improved vegetable varieties have been developed lately that the American Seed Trade Association has just tabbed 290 old favorites as obsolete.

The association recommends that the out-dated sorts — ranging all the way from Lazy Wife beans and Howling Mob sweet corn to Moscow tomatoes and Mountain Hoosier watermelons — be dropped from seed catalogs.

Even the Georgia Rattlesnake watermelon is no more.

"Such museum pieces serve no useful purpose," the association states. "Many of them weren't very good even when Grandpa grew them. But they linger on.

"Seedsmen will do the consumer a favor by offering him only the new and improved varieties."

The seedsmen have a selfish motive, too. Out-moded varieties are expensive to handle because of limited demand.

Government's "Loss" Is UM's Gain
. . . Rep. Dante Fascell checks book shipment to UM

Dade's Getting All 'Booked Up'

By DAVID J. KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Dade County is about 100,000 books richer because of Rep. Dante B. Fascell.

Ever since Fascell came to Congress four years ago, there has been a steady flow of government publications and government-owned books to individuals and institutions in Dade County.

Fascell and his staff have kept such a close watch on the "surplus" book program that the flow to Dade County has averaged about 25,000 books a year.

Many thousands of these books are not surplus in the sense that they are useless. They were declared surplus by the Library of Congress because the Library has duplicates in its collection and they are not needed by government agencies.

About 27,500 books went to the University of Miami and public and parochial school libraries; 12,500 to students and teachers; 18,000 to hospitals and public health services; 11,000 to farmers, and the remainder to fill miscellaneous requests.

Included were a wide variety of publications — from bound sets of Congressional Records and Agriculture Department yearbooks to books on physics, electronics, climatology and foreign relations.

Fascell's "take" from the Library of Congress surplus stocks is greater than that of most congressmen.

"We try to keep a constant lookout for worthwhile books," explains John Buckley, Fascell's administrative assistant. "It's a first come, first served proposition, and we make it a point to be there first. We check the stocks regularly."

This is how Buckley turned up a valuable collection of more than 150 science books which the Library of Congress had obtained from the Army.

These books, many of which bore price tags of from $8 to $15, were sent to the University of Miami.

On another occasion, Fascell was able to obtain enough complete sets of five years of Congressional Records (100 bound volumes to each set) to send one to each junior and senior high school in Dade County.

He's Got One With 50 Stars

Secretary Seaton's Flag Already Includes Hawaii

From Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Hawaii is already in the American flag which stands in the office of Interior Secretary Fred Seaton.

Seaton's 50-star flag has six rows of seven stars across and one row of eight stars.

The eighth star causes a slight bulge in the middle row.

Aides to Seaton said the display of the flag reflects Seaton's hope that Hawaii will be admitted as the 50th state this year.

The rectangular arrangement of the 50 stars (except for the slight bulge) also indicates Seaton favors that design over the staggered-row arrangement adopted, following the admission of Alaska.

The new flag, approved early in January, has seven staggered rows of seven stars each.

Aides to Seaton said he received the 50-star flag several months ago, but they were not certain of the source.

Seaton, incidentally, does not have a 49-star flag in his office.

Useless Road? Driver Agrees

CATLETTSBURG, Ky. — (AP) — Curtis Lambert Jr. drove his big truck up Useless Rd. He agrees with the name.

Police said the Huntington, W. Va., man's truck was crowded off the road, flopped over an embankment and spilled its cargo of syrup, coffee and other groceries.

Lambert suffered a slight arm injury.

600 Air Force Men To Be Guests at Duke Ellington Preview

IS THAT OLD STRATEGEM of joining 'em if you can't beat them being considered by television's Old Settler, Milton Berle? Rumors coming in on the westerlies from California have it that Milton and script writer Aaron Spelling have been spelling out such things as "They went thataway" and "Make your move, Blackie" in secret sessions . . . A work of art which the theatrical movies should have done themselves a long time ago was last Sunday's segment of "Maverick" in which the story kidded the tight pants off "Gun Smoke" and "Paladin."

Columnist Bob Sylvester remarks that "there is little left to be done with filter cigarets except to put the filter in the middle so we can smoke both ends at once." . . . And then there is the fellow who won't touch smoked herring unless it is coupled with gefilte fish . . . Did you know that those shopping wagons you push around in the supermarkets cost something like $25 each? We have the statistic direct from Sam Friedland to whom we commented that his Diplomat Hotel-Country Club must then represent an even million of the vehicles.

Some 600 men from Homestead air base will be guests of Oscar Markovich for a preview showing of the Copa City's Duke Ellington revue, "Jump for Joy." Guess Oscar couldn't get the more appropriate parachute troops.

Why Studio Sold Radio Stock

THEY SAY: Comedian Jerry Lewis — "I could probably turn dramatic actor if I wanted to. I was offered parts in 'The Last Angry Man' and 'What Makes Sammy Run?' but I turned them down because there are 5,000 other actors who can do them better. But there's no one who can do my kind of movie as well as I can." Such popularity with one's self must be deserved . . . A Paramount Pictures Corp. spokesman, on sale of its 335,000 shares of Metropolitan Broadcasting for $4,000,000: "The funds can be put to much better use — such as making movies."

When Judy Garland opens at the Fontainebleau Hotel in February she'll have an act whipped up by a fellow named Eden — Roger Edens, that is . . . If that hotel which offered Brigitte Bardot a prepaid honeymoon in Miami is taken up on the offer we — and Morris Lansburgh — will be mighty surprised. Lansburgh, who operates the Deauville, Sans Souci, Casablanca and other beach hotels, offered to buy Brigitte a home here if she'd appear on his Cavalcade of Stars program. Brigitte has not refused — nor accepted.

Abner Greshler, whose cable address is Abbygresh West Hollywood when he's not in Miami Beach, has been named vice-president and director of Peerless Album Co., manufacturer of a new type record album holder. Clients of the company include RCA-Victor, Columbia Records, Disneyland, Warner Brothers Records, Audio-Fidelity and many others. Warners, incidentally, has just issued a record featuring Rickie Layne and Velvel, managed by Greshler. The discs feature "Rocking at the Matzo Ball" and "Everybody Loves a Lover."

Boone Royalties Go to Institute

ALL OF Pat Boone's royalties on "Twixt Twelve and Twenty" (estimated to be a potential of $250,000) are being turned over to the Northeastern Institute for Christian Education in Philadelphia. That's NICE. And it is — check the first letters . . . Crawford Adams, violinist in the Pump Room of the Ivanhoe Hotel, has a long time interest in The Miami Herald. The father of its managing editor, George Beebe, was the Adams family physician in Pittsfield, Mass.

David Dreis, now an actor under the name of Crane Jackson, writes from 55 Horatio St. which is in New York's Greenwich Village area — but he inadvertently wrote "Miami, Florida" under it so you know where he'd rather be! But he's doing nicely at his craft — roles in "Decoy" and "New York Confidential," following great critical reviews in the off-Broadway production of "In Color on Sundays," with Cristina Crawford, Joan's daughter. He goes into a revival of "Lady in the Dark" at St. Mark's Playhouse on Jan. 29.

There'll be a lot of actors, musicians and allied artists on hand for the International Foreign and Sports Car Show at Dinner Key from Jan. 25 to Feb. 1. Among the low-slung aficionados are Attilo Risso, of the Vagabonds; Harold Gardner, of the Diplomat; Maxine Barrat, of television; Jack Anderson, television editor, and so on. New in this year's show will be two Japanese entries — the Datsun and a three-wheelel Daihatsu. Maybe Balmoral's bandleader Tito Rodriguez will bring his wife, Tobi Kei, down to look them over.

Chicagoan Buys into Havana Hotel

COULD IT have been long-range planning or did it just happen that Chicago businessman Charles Baron — he distributed Ford automobiles — bought into the Havana-Riviera Hotel in Cuba just in time to fit the bill in the Fidel Castro decree that "only businessmen" would be acceptable as Cuban casino operators. Baron is a Bronze Star holder to boot . . . Nat King Cole hasn't yet been definitely canceled out of a Feb. 13 opening at the Tropicana in Havana. And won't the populace kick if they don't get those nightly bingo games back?

John Vosburgh, our associate responsible for the make-up and those clever catch lines on these pages, called attention to a common denominator which we missed in analyzing the 1958 boxoffice champions of the movies last Sunday. John, an Army Reserve officer, points out that five of the 12 had an armed forces background: "Sayonara," "Young Lions," "Don't Go Near the Water," "Bridge on the River Kwai" and "South Pacific."

It's true — and it is obvious why the background is so popular — we've had just a few months short of a full double decade of war atmosphere, so it's a subject that has touched every life.

Do you know John Birks Gillespie? Of course you do, he's billed as Dizzy at Rocking MB Lounge.

Broomstick? No!
Lipstick? Yes!
by OGDEN NASH

The BELL is ringing,
Pay no heed;
Close the BOOK,
Who wants to read?
When the neighbors
Snoop for scandal,
Draw the blinds,
Blow out the CANDLE.

That's the motto of our pair
In this fabulous affair.
She's a saucy sorceress,
He's a bachelor in a mess,
Heading for the wedding march
With a bride as stiff as starch,
Till this bohemian Lorelei
Throws stardust in his moral eye.
She has secret spells and potions
To tease a gentleman's emotions.
He came, he saw, he gallivanted,
And woke to find himself enchanted.
With heart bewitched and wits awhirl,
What shall he tell the other girl?
We learn from his fantastic wooing
When hex meets sex, there's mischief brewing.

Top Stars Converging on Miami

By GEORGE BOURKE
Herald Amusement Editor

Old Time Stars Make Up 'Newcomers of 1928' Opening Thursday at Deauville
. . . from left, Rudy Vallee, Harry Richman, Billy Gilbert, Fifi D'Orsay, Buster Keaton and Paul Whiteman

South Florida's visiting frost fugitives and resident after-dark roisterers will find no excuse this week to complain of being all dressed up in their mohairs, silks, minks and chinchillas with no place to go!

Nowhere — but nowhere — not even in Las Vegas will you find as many an.. as brilliant entertainers as are currently on tap or coming this week to our Gold Coast.

Red Skelton, Betty Grable, Paul Whiteman, Nelson Eddy, Frank Lovejoy, Jan Murray, Duke Ellington, Mischa Elman, Jackie Miles, Gordon McRae, Shirley Jones, Emlyn Williams, Buster Keaton, Dizzy Gillespie, Bobby Hackett are just a partial listing.

And then there is the circus —the Ringling, Barnum and Bailey Circus, costumed by Max Weldy of Paris to recreate what is billed as "One Thousand and One Nights" of Arabian Nights splendor. It opens Friday at the new Miami Beach Exposition hall and is described in more detail elsewhere on today's amusement pages.

Emlyn Williams starts the star parade tonight in "A Boy Growing Up," taken from the works of Dylan Thomas, as the first of Mary Howes' Sunday Evening Series at Palm Beach's Society of the Four Arts auditorium. At the same time The Chanticleers' visit Barry College as described on the music and art page.

On Tuesday Red Skelton will make it a Red Letter Day at the Fontainebleau when he brings the variety show with which he wowed Las Vegas into the enlarged La Ronde Room. The Szonys hold over to support the bill.

On the same night Duke Ellington will lead a parade of well-known Negro singers and dancers into Copa City in Oscar Markovich's production of "Jump for Joy," a revue which may find its way to Broadway.

With Ellington will be Jimmy Randolph, Barbara McNair, Stump and Stumpy, the Miller Singers, Norma Miller and a score of others in the revue written and staged by Sid Kuller, with Nick Casele doing the choreography. Also on Tuesday, Ruth Wallis will open at the Carillon Hotel Tambourine Room where her saucy lyrics should go well.

On Wednesday night Billy Daniels will bring his "Black Magic" of song to the Eden Roc Cafe Pompeii, with Jackie Miles in for the laughs.

The theatrical skies open on Thursday when Betty Grable, top money-making star of the movies for many seasons, opens as star of Donn Arden's Sky High revue at the Latin Quarter, and a whole galaxy of stars — Paul Whiteman, Harry Richman, Buster Keaton, Fifi D'Orsay, and Billy Gilbert debut in "Newcomers of 1928" at the Deauville Hotel Casanova Room.

Thursday night may also bring the opening of the new Montmartre hotel north of the Eden Roc though it will be a tribute to the hustling skill of its operators if construction can be completed by then. Denise Darcel was to have been star of Les Girls supper club there, but she had to cancel out. At press time no substitute had been named.

Sepian singer Jo Thompson will be a Friday night opener at El Patio. Also on Friday, Comedienne Jean Carroll and Dick Roman will take over at the Diplomat Hotel's Cafe Cristal.

And flash—a last-minute entry will be Sherry Britton, a lass who can show a line or deliver one dramatically in legit. She opens at the Clover Club on Wednesday night.

Up Palm Beach way rehearsals are in the final stretch for Noel Coward's "Private Lives," with which Frank J. Hale and Paul Crabtree will reopen the Royal Poinciana Playhouse and Celebrity Room, next Sunday with Eva Gabor featured.

Portrait Pointers

Mrs. Kathleen McDonald, formerly of San Francisco, will demonstrate tonal technique in portrait painting at the 8 p.m. meeting of Coral Gables Art Club at Coral Gables Country Club Monday.

Pat Eloped at 19 but Doesn't Advise It

Pat Boone and his wife were only 19 when they ran off to get married. Pat writes from experience regarding teen-age marriages in this eighth installment of the exclusive serialization of his best-selling book, "Twixt Twelve and Twenty."

By PAT BOONE

'Twixt Twelve And Twenty'—VIII

By the time teen-agers reach 15 and 16 the rules of dating have changed.

They still have to ask permissions. They haven't solved the finances completely. But they can stay out later, can date without chaperones and transportation is less of a problem.

Most teen-agers are allowed the family car on special dates, or can double date with a friend who has one.

At this age teen-agers have a lot of the same activities as before on a larger scale. The movies, parties, bowling, sports events, church and school activities. They don't have to spin a bottle to get a kiss.

On the other hand, there are even more rules of conduct for girls at this stage. One of them is that the fellow must be the pursuer. In this game of hide-and-seek the male is always "it."

The girl who makes the advance tips her hand immediately. That throws the game, for if she's "it" then the fellow has to run hide, and usually does. This I know, from experience.

The rules for being attractive become a little deeper at Sweet Sixteen. More is expected of you. You have to be friendly and kind plus . . .

Take my first steady, the one that broke up in three weeks. She was a very pretty girl, a wonderful singer, much in demand. But she put too much strain on young love. She let me see her in her curlers or invited me over when she was suffering from a cold in the head. Next thing you know, even when she was all fixed up I could still see those curlers and that runny nose.

Sad, isn't it? But that's the teen-age male. No matter what the other girls tell you, I say, if you want to be attractive to boys always look your best! Let the other gals wear Dad's shirts and sloppy blue jeans — you'll have the guys all to yourself.

Also you can't really enjoy a romance unless you have some interests in common — church, school activities, friends, aims, ambitions, something.

* * *

ONCE, at one of our eighth grade parties, a Ouija board predicted that I would have 11 children and play center field for the New York Yankees. So far Mickey Mantle still looks safe in Yankee Stadium, but my wife Shirley and I have a fair start on the family.

To date we've celebrated five anniversaries and four stork calls. And I'd say one of the big thrills of being grown up is to be co-founder of a happy home.

I met Shirley just before Christmas in our junior year at high school. Her reputation as a real knockout and the singing daughter of TV's singing star, Red Foley, gave her a great build-up. Shirley, in person, was no letdown!

We met the day of a tremendous snowstorm that conveniently closed school for several days. At the end of those days of dating on sleds, walking over a mile through a Christmas card landscape to my house, I think it was the way I began to feel about Shirley that brought on the thaw.

Pat Boone and Wife Shirley

. . . four reasons why she's his one-and-only

From then on we saw each other steadily and in our senior year we exchanged school rings. Shortly after that, the death of Shirley's mother brought us very close together. The honest sharing of a deep grief can bring a new mature quality to romance.

For the first time I thought of a girl not as a "steady" but as a possible wife. I don't think this moment comes until we are really ready for it. I know it shouldn't come until we really meet the One-And-Only who fulfills all the dreams we've built up during our early experiments.

* * *

WHY WAS I so sure Shirley was and is the one and only for me?

FIRST: She has the kind of beauty I admire. A neatness, a freshness and cleanness, as well as pretty features.

SECOND: She has a great spirit of fun. Her interests have always been varied — school activities, current events, studies, sports. She can beat me at ping-pong or swimming and still be completely feminine. She is a good companion.

THIRD: Personality - wise, Shirley has always been kind and friendly. She genuinely likes people. She guides her social life by the Golden Rule.

FOURTH: Shirley is a woman of principle. Once she has made up her mind that a thing is wrong, nothing can move her. She is the sort of woman you can trust with the things that matter most to you.

And what did Shirley see in me? Well, that's her secret.

* * *

SHIRLEY and I eloped in the beginning of my sophomore year in college. We were both 19.

While I wouldn't change a minute of it, I don't recommend either elopement or teen-age marriage and I'll tell you why later.

But first let me tell you why we decided to elope.

My parents thought that going steady could get too serious. They loved Shirley but they were afraid we'd get married too soon and I'd give up the education. They asked us to stop seeing each other, and we sincerely tried. But it didn't work.

Then came the second blow. Shirley's father was planning to pull up stakes and move to Springfield, Mo. That meant complete separation. We faced a crisis. My personal achievement check sheet, my past experience in "work," and "finances," led me to feel confident that I could marry, support Shirley and finish college.

And what really meant the most to us? What were our lifetime aims? A family. A happy home. An education. No separation. No sneaking.

I'll admit I was a little scared. But you don't get ahead without some risk.

Bulging Miami Joins Gourmet City Ranks

Jack Goldman . . . 25 yrs.

Debbie Hayes . . . switch

GREATER MIAMI has taken its place with San Francisco, New Orleans and New York as a city of fine restaurants. These are not concentrated in one area, but are to be found in many neighborhoods.

The quiet little town of Surfside was once far off the beaten path, but now boasts such gourmet rendezvous as Maxim's, Tony Sweet's, Victor Bidone's Continental and the snarky private dining club, La Bastille. The 79th St. Causeway was once only a way of getting to Miami Beach. Now, among other places, it has Nick and Arthur's, Mike Gordon's, the Bonfire, Chary's, the Place for Steak and the Luau.

As a matter of fact, you can travel from the bottom of the Beach all the way up the line . . . from Joe's Stone Crabs to Mother Leone's, and beyond, and find as magnificent food as any city ever offered.

On Jan. 28 Jack Goldman celebrates his 25th year of operating the Hickory House, and just about everybody who is anybody will be on hand to toast a great guy . . .

What a switch! When blonde Debbie Hayes was 13, she was official "taps" blower at American Legion funerals in her home town. Now you ought to see her with her spooky "madmen" at Gallagher's . . . Lovely Dolly Reiner and Eddie Feinstein, owner of the Charcoal Hut, middle aisle today . . . You can see a battalion of lovely showgirls from the Latin Quarter and the Carillon's "Ziegfeld Follies" having early morning chow at El Patio . . . It wasn't strange that ex-mayor of New York Vincent Impelleteri visited Chandler's Fan and Bill's. He and owner Lou Rubin are old pals . . . Guy Lombardo is ensconced for an indefinite stay at the Nautilus.

Playhouse Going on TV

THE COCONUT GROVE Playhouse will have its own 6-7 p.m. Saturday show on Channel 10, beginning on the 24th. Dean Murphy and Maxine Barratt headline with a kind of Jack Paar format. Opening night stars will include Frank and Joan Lovejoy ("Hole in the Head") and Reginald Gardner, who'll appear in "Visit to a Small Planet" starting Jan. 26.

Lillian Carmen, social directress at the Singapore, was a singing star with Joe E. Lewis and Milton Berle in other days . . . Swifty Morgan isn't feeling as chipper as he should be . . . "Smiling Jack" Collins has moved from The Pit in Fort Lauderdale to Robinson's in Daytona Beach . . . You may not believe it, but former heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano didn't get a bigger hunk of steer than anybody else when he dined at the Place for Steak.

Don't tell me there's no such thing as a lucky break. Sonny Bloch's brand new Coralaires, just out of the University of Miami, were booked into a little hotel called the Commodoro in Havana. The star at the big and brassy Sans Souci fell ill. The Coralaires were called in as last minute substitutes, and became an overnight hit.

I never thought of it that way, but strip teasers sometimes have children of their own. Bubbles (LaRue) Darlene has a nine-months-old son . . . The Charlie (Gray's Inn) Farrells, Phil Wylies and Mrs. Ted Williams all dined at Ronnie's Steak House one night, but not together.

* * *

Dog Food to Bras

NO ONE ever proved more clearly than Frank Sinatra that success is harder to handle than failure. One of Frank's lights o' love said that when he was broke and skidding toward oblivion, he was the most considerate fellow imaginable. When he hit the million dollar a year bracket, Frank became impossible to get along with.

Don Elliott, who rocks The Grate with jazz mellophone and vibes, creates TV commercials for such diverse clients at Gaines Dog Food and Maidenform Brassieres . . . Maurice Murray, publisher of "Dude" and "Gent," vacationing with his wife, at the Empress.

Charlie Murdock lists "Philadelphia U.S.A." No. 16 on his WQAM survey, but after the big buildup Eddie Fisher gave the song, it will probably skyrocket.

There were almost as many officers as enlisted men when El Centro opened its Las Americas Room for dinner. Six waiters prepare the tables, but four European-trained captains do the serving . . . Orchestra leader George Hines has built a tremendous personal following, in these parts, and proves why by his music magic at the Golden Gate . . . Johnny Silvers, a master showman since the plush days of the Kitty Davis Airliner, is batoning at the Beau Rivage.

When 50 Arthur Murray managers gathered for a convention at the Diplomat, what do you think they talked about, after whisky and women, that is? . . . More than 20 people at the Crown are registered from Upper Darby, Pa., which is just outside Philadelphia. When I was a kid, I don't think more than 20 people lived in Upper Darby.

Ringling Circus Opens Friday

Biggest Show on Way

The Ringling, Barnum and Bailey Circus, which is called the "biggest show on earth," will roll into the Miami Beach Exhibition Hall on Friday and run for 10 evening performances and five matinees, through Feb. 1. Its theme is an Arabian Nights Dream, a touch that melds extravagantly with the usual humor, thrills and pageantry of the circus itself.

Those who can't wait for the arrival of the Ringling outfit on Friday can get a whiff of the tanbark and the circus animals at Tropical Park today, where the Great American Circus, produced by David B. Endy, will have its final showing at 2, 4 and 8:15 p.m. under sponsorship of the Junior Museum Guild.

One of the spectacular highlights of the Ringling circus will be an aerial ballet, "Up I Go," in which Maryse Begary and a score of girls, including Francesca Bisbini, will perform on ropes and trapezes 40 feet in the air.

In addition there will be a glorified Western sequence, with horses from the famed King ranch in Texas, the humorous "Joeys" of Clown Alley; the only male African elephant ever to appear in a circus — Little Diamond, trained by Hugo Schmidt.

Other featured acts will include Spain's Carmen del Tiede, swinging enchantress who does head-stands on the high trapeze; the Yong Brothers and sister Jeannie from Japan; Spanish tight wire artist Manuel Santos and Dely; Holland's Yvonne and her dogs; the acrobatic troup of Szaba; the flying Alexanders; Horwarth's lions and Bengal tigers plus a host of other features, and a grand finale, presenting the entire ensemble.

Duo Gives Recital Today

Luella Franks, soprano, and Kathryn Keele Hyde, pianist, will be presented in recital at 4 p.m. today at Musicians Club, Coral Gables. The public is welcome.

Miss Franks will sing arias and songs by Puccini, Schubert, Faure, Hahn and others, and Mrs. Hyde will perform works by Bach, Brahms and Chopin. Both artists are South Florida residents.

Miss Franks had the role of Roselinda in the Minneapolis Symphony's production of "Die Fledermaus" last season. Mrs. Hyde majored in music at the University of Louisville.

Psychiatry With School

By JOE FINNIGAN
UPI Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Any actor who wants a smattering of psychiatry with his dramatic training would do well to join up with Francis Lederer.

Francis is exposing all the students in his "Workshop '57" to the mind medics. But it's not so his would-be stars can have their noodles mapped. Lederer feels an actor can know other people better if some psychiatry is injected into stage training.

The Czechoslovakian - born Lederer says his workshop is a "kind of post graduate course."

He has about 100 professional actors as members. They pay $1.25 a month each to meet expenses. The group gathers twice a week in a Hollywood church hall.

Although acting methods are discussed in the group discussions, students are also told what can be expected in stage careers.

Some business training is also given in the workshop sessions so a performer will know something about handling financial affairs if stardom comes.

Mop Closet In Your Kitchen Can Be Decorative As Well As Functional
. . . woven cane adds patterned texture to doors, lets air circulate freely.

Hideaway for Mops

By Kay Murphy
Herald Decorating Editor

How well organized are you for the mopping up operation at your house?

Not only do you need specific mops for specific purposes but you also need a handy hideaway to store them in. The kitchen's the obvious place for a mop closet but most builders are inclined to skimp on its dimensions.

Which is understandable. How many of them have ever handled the mopping up operation?

That handy hideaway in the kitchen needn't take up much room. It can be shallower in depth than other types of closets. It's the width that's important.

"Girth" makes it easier to space mops out along the wall for quick drying — wet mops, that is. Keeps them from dampening dry mops by proximity, too.

Color, incidentally, makes today's mopping up operation much less a chore than it was when grandmother was a girl. A dingy string mop, a feather duster and straw broom comprised her cleaning equipment.

Now, you can have a rosepetal pink mop. Or perhaps you prefer marigold or geranium? Lemon yellow, leaf green or the jewel color, turquoise?

Man-made fibers now compete with cotton — fluffy, fast-drying dacrons and nylons. Some mops come equipped with a "wardrobe" of pads that you can suds out by hand or spin clean in your automatic washer.

Sponge mops are more absorbent. Dry mops are chemically treated to attract the dust. A few are impregnated with floor polish.

Mops are easier to manipulate, too, thanks to nylon bearings, neatly-engineered frames and self-squeezing devices.

Vidal: 'Americans Are Stupid'

By Beatrice Washburn
Herald Staff Writer

Gore Vidal, whose Visit to a Small Planet will be presented at the Coconut Grove Playhouse Jan. 26, says he has given up novels for playwriting because nobody reads novels any more.

"They're on the way out," declares the tall, handsome young man whose many contradictions make him as interesting to interview as he is to meet.

Celebrity Parade

"People won't read. Americans are the most illiterate people in the western hemisphere. Our middle class is the stupidest in the world — from a literary standpoint, that is. We are a mechanistic society. People would rather learn with their hands than with their brains.

"In the future we shall learn by a kind of osmosis, absorb news and world events through television, radio or movies. The public for the novel is gone, though there are many fine novelists at work among us."

* * *

'We Absorb History Painlessly'

"IT IS CHARACTERISTIC that Americans read historical novels in such great quantities," he adds. "Thus they absorb history painlessly and, by throwing themselves back into the past, avoid the problems of the present which are so appalling that even the greatest writers are puzzled to explain them."

Nevertheless we are a complex society, says the author of Williwaw, The City and The Pillar, Dark Green, Dark Red and In a Yellow Wood.

"Everybody is not the organization man nor the girl next door. Actually our culture, if you can use the word, is as complex as that portrayed by Marcel Proust.

"Throughout America there are little pockets of thought, quiet, unconventional people, little oases of ideas. You can't stick to the great hotels and the four lane highways, of course, if you wish to find interesting people. But they exist, in virtually every state, waiting for interpreters."

He Set Out To Make Money

VIDAL WAS PRACTICALLY A boy wonder when he published his first novel, Williwaw, at the age of 19. He enlisted in the Coast Guard when he was 18 and fresh out of Exeter boy's school, never went to college, just started living and writing.

—Herald Staff Photo by Bill Sanders

Novelist Gore Vidal
. . . 'we are a mechanistic society'

After producing five successful novels he decided that there wasn't enough money in them.

"I set myself a five year plan. Started writing plays, movies and television acts.

"It's hard to make a living in this country by writing alone. Seeing I had no talent for school teaching or journalism I turned to the theater and set out to make enough money to last the rest of my life."

And did he?

"Well, yes," he admits quietly, "provided I don't live till 90."

* * *

HE LIVES IN a great house on the Hudson River shaped like a Greek temple, staffed with a brace of trusted servants and two dogs.

"It's what Edith Wharton called Hudson River Bracketed," he explained, "And I love it. Cold in winter, of course, and lonely if you don't like writing. Fortunately I do."

Vidal is the cousin of Senator Kennedy's lovely wife, Jacqueline Bouvier.

"Actually it's more complicated than that," he sighs. "It's one of those relationships that scarcely exist outside of America. My mother married her step-father so we both had the same step-father."

When in Miami Vidal stays at the Towers Hotel which, with the Robert Clay swimming pool, constitutes a little island of quiet in the middle of our noisy city.

The Miami River isn't the Hudson, he admits, but it's a river and to watch the boats steaming up and down is a pleasure for any author.

We're Hungry for Happiness

WHAT IS THE formula for a successful novelist? Or, for that matter since he is both, a successful playwright?

There isn't any, he declares.

Could he teach play writing?

"No one can," he says promptly, "because there are no rules. It can be learned, perhaps, with attention to Aeschylus, Shakespeare and Bernard Shaw but it can't be taught because there are no rules.

"Even managers and producers have no idea what show is going to be a smash hit and what is going to close within three weeks."

The American public is not an easy audience, he claims, because of its obsession for happiness. Everything must have a happy ending.

"We are hungry for what we call happiness. We demand it in our cars, our women, our swimming pools, skyscrapers and our homes. How different is our philosophy from that of France, for instance, where there is no such thing as psychoanalysis. People of the older countries are either satisifed with what they have or don't tear themselves to pieces over what they haven't. They have learned to live with themselves, knowing that we are each stuck with ourselves as a life companion.

"Moreover on the continent they are not obsessed with self analysis, which destroys as many people as dope."

Adele Astaire Is Proud of Brother Fred

By HELEN WELLS
Herald Society Editor

PERSON TO PERSON

SHE HAS A PIQUANT, pixie face with high cheek bones and pointed chin, like her famous brother, Fred Astaire. Adele Astaire, now Mrs. Kingman Douglass since 1947 and before then Lady Charles Cavendish, is a no-nonsense person who enjoys life to the hilt.

When interviewed she was wearing a simple white cotton house coat as we sipped coffee in her delightful cottage at Montego Bay, Jamaica. She and Mr. Douglass, an investment banker, are among the original share holders in an exclusive cottage and hotel resort.

They also have a home in the hunting country of Virginia at Middleburg, an apartment in New York and she frequently visits Castle Lismore in England, the country seat of Lord Cavendish who died in 1944.

HELEN WELLS

It's a far cry from the days when little Adele Austerlitz and her one year younger brother Fred, tapped their way to fame and fortune on Broadway. Their father was an Austrian and they took the name of their grandmother, Astaire, and made it famous and synonomous with dancing.

They were playing in London when someone brought young Lord Charles Cavendish (he was five years younger than Adele) back stage and introduced him. He was going to America to study banking with J. P. Morgan, so when the Astaires' London show closed and they were back in New York, Adele and Lord C. met again.

By the time he was ready to return to England they were engaged but had to keep quiet, until Lord C. broke the news gently to his family. They were married in 1932 and during their marriage lost three sons, born prematurely.

"I've forgotten I ever was on the stage," said Mrs. Douglass. But she's immensely proud of brother Fred's success. "Fred can't retire, no one will let him."

He is going to Australia to make a movie "On the Beach" with Ava Gardner and has finished a book of his life, written in long hand, which will be off the presses soon. Noel Coward gave the book its wonderful title, "Steps In Time."

Adele Douglass spends her time working needle point and doing gardening. "The old Dowager Duchess (she is now 86) taught me these things . . . in fact, she taught me many things," she explained.

When John Foster Dulles was at the resort a week ago, Mrs. Douglass asked him, "What do you think of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan?" When he answered that he thought Macmillan was a good, able man, she replied, "I'm so happy to hear you say that. You see, Harold is my brother-in-law!"

The Prime Minister's wife is the former Lady Dorothy Cavendish, but Mr. Dulles was "on the brink" of confusion trying to get the relationship straightened out in his mind!

The one annoying thing in Adele Douglass' life is the fact that she's growing older. "I despise to touch up my hair," she said, "but I also despise gray hair on myself. My husband has no gray hair, but then he doesn't have much hair at all!"

Racing Through Fern Gully

WE DUCKED into Kingston briefly first and then took a car from there to the north coast.

It takes nerves of steel to ride the narrow mountainous roads in Jamaica. You must have blind faith and the philosophy of a fatalist to brave the hairpin turns, especially nerve wracking to Americans who drive on the right side of the road.

Our driver went blithely along with his hand constantly on the horn and there were only two near misses! It was worth every second of the strain. Particularly the three miles through the fantastic Fern Gully.

This is a narrow road through a deep natural gorge with magnificent ferns growing in profusion up its sides which give the gorge a soft green light. You seem to be moving in an eerie underwater magic and expect to see a mermaid slide out from behind a fern any minute.

We saw Mr. and Mrs. Morris Lapidus (hotel architect) and Harry Fineman, president of Cat's Paw Rubber and Mrs. F., and George Finley, radio commentator on NBC from Washington.

When we passed the famous Rose Hill plantation, our driver told us that the lovely old house was haunted and hadn't been inhabited in many years. "That's where the White Witch of Rose Hall lived," he said.

"When she see a mon she like speak to another woman, she call him in her house. That mon never seen again!" Enough to give anyone the shivers.

Plush Fields of Coconut

ON THE WAY to Montego Bay we passed lush fields of coconuts, sugar cane and bananas. Tucked away behind a field of cane was the Temple Galleries operated by Richard Temple, Englishman, who started his factory four years ago with ten native workmen and now employs 250.

He creates amazing reproductions of antique furniture and also imports exquisite antiques, both furniture and bric-a-brac, from England. He had designed the smart black and white furnishings with Chinese influence in the Jack Pershings' cottage in which we stayed.

Mr. Pershing is the son of the late General Black Jack Pershing. When we moved out Ethel Merman and her husband Bob Six moved in for a stay.

A DAY AT THE RACES is not unusual for Mrs. Carroll Latimer of Coral Gables. A lover of horses, she rode as a child in her native Kentucky. Mother of two youngsters, she is active in Presbyterian church work and was on the committee that planned Thursday's Symphony Ball. She and her husband are members of Riviera Country Club and Coral Reef Yacht Club.

Styles for Beauty Week

Greater Miami Hairdressers Association 560 members will join thousands of other hairdressers throughout the country in observance of National Beauty Salon Week, Feb. 8-14.

Mr. Wyatt

Highlight of the local celebration, according to Douglas Conway, chairman, will be a fashion show luncheon, open to the public, on Feb. 8 at noon in the Dupont Plaza Hotel.

There will be a collection of round - the - clock clothes for spring, designed by Miami's Mister Wyatt, internationally known couturier; hats by Lily Street of Miami Beach; and an hour of ballet by Olga Suarez of the Miami Conservatory, followed by a songfest by a group of University of Miami singers, directed by Mrs. Lena Maddaford.

The week will open with a parade at 8 p.m. on Feb. 7, with tinted haired models riding in convertibles. Throughout the week, residents of children's homes will receive free hair cuts and other beauty service.

Member beauty salons will hold open house, and a local NBSW queen will be chosen.

A valentine dance will climax the observance on Feb. 14 in the River Room of the Dupont Plaza, which the public also may attend.

Proceeds from the fashion show and dance will go to Variety Children's Hospital.

Assisting Mr. Conway are Mildred Truxel Allamby, co-chairman; Mabel Osborn, Carl Burke, Vivian Thomas, Helen Stabile, George Scullin, Grayce Baker, with Helen Casey, president. Edyth Elms and J. Rollo are consultants.

Local PEOs To Honor Founders

Members of the nine local chapters of the PEO Sisterhood will celebrate the organization's 90th anniversary at a 10:30 a.m. Founders' Day coffee Wednesday in the Coral Gables Woman's Club.

Musical program honoring the seven founders at Iowa Wesleyan College, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, will be presented by Mrs. Charles Craig and Mrs. Richard Plumer.

Honor guests will be seven state officers, headed by Mrs. B. T. Reynolds, Auburndale, president, who are in Miami to plan the state convention here in April.

Name-Dropping on Eleuthera

By MARY GOODFELLOW
Herald Columnist

ELEUTHERA, Bahamas — As we sailed from Nassau's harbor the increasing wind flapped angrily at the loosened mainsail, then triumphant caught its full billow. Up went the mizzen, then the staysail, and the graceful 50 foot ketch leaned windward and plowed on towards the horizon.

Capri came to our mind as we watched the famous sculptress Fiore de Hendriquez standing legs akimbo on the foreward deck, her denims rippling with the gale and singing at the top of her lungs some neopolitan ditty.

The fantastic girl brought a Mediterranean glow to our hearts, and her expert hand in the galley brought a well stuffed warmth to our tummies.

Like Columbus we shouted "tierra, tierra" as we approached the northern group of the Exuma cays, and as the raisin dots grew larger we sailed neatly into a sheltered cove of Allens Cay. Striped beaches served as a prelude to crystal water, and the only inhabitants on these extinct volcanic spews were a few heavy-lidded green-eyed iguanas, diminished only in size from their prehistoric ancestors — and last of all — delicious silence.

* * *

LIGHTS OF 'UNICORN CAY' winked at us later as we approached Governor's Harbour, Eleuthera. 'Unicorn Cay' is the fabulous hilltop estate of Rosita Forbes McGrath, near Governor's Harbour.

Wearing narrow - tailored slacks and a silken shirt which tied around her slender waist, this famous author-traveler and "grande dame" of the Island warmly greeted us in her 60 foot living-room.

Tall and straight as a palm and with that great military bearing that comes out of the Empire, her husband, Colonel Arthur McGrath, set about his ritual of making their famous "maiden's undoing" rum cocktail.

Meanwhile, with the well-known decorator David Roth, we wandered through the spacious rooms admiring signed Chippendale mirrors, Regency desks, Queen Anne chairs, Ming vases and Cantonese porcelains.

Zita's bedroom came right out of a Palazzo. Her rose damask bed spread dramatized the silvery bronze flower-design head, and a wood-carved wedding chest from Lombardy painted stark white with laughing cherubims (spelling fertility) dominated the opposite side of the room.

Our delightful hostess, who has entertained world celebrities, said that among her treasures the only thing the Duchess of Windsor admired was the leaf-edged mirror on her dressing table. "My dear," she said, "it's only a cheap thing Arthur and I picked up at the Paris Exposition!"

Standing by the Provincial towered gate, we caught a glimpse of a huge lake looking down through a magnificent jungle of palms, cassias, mangoes etc. — carefully tended by Mrs. McGrath's green thumb.

"That's Granny Long Pond," said our hostess, "it's three and a half miles around, and we had an English guest who spent her days paddling around it sitting on a tire tube."

The McGraths are so in love with their "Unicorn Cay" that they recently turned down an offer of an English peer to sell it for $600,000.

* * *

ON ELEUTHERA large real estate transactions were in the air. At Arthur Vining Davis' exclusive Cotton Bay Golf Club — after a round on the magnificent course — we lunched with the Tom Perkinses and the Robert Swains of American Cyanamid. As one of the original backers Perkins with Davis are about to sell out their interest for approximately $1,800,000. The purchasing group, which includes PANAM's Juan Trippe, General Dynamic's Frank Pace Jr., and golf architect Arthur Trent Jones (who built Cotton Bay), flew in on Pace's Convair for the week-end with their families and the boys fought it out hot and heavy in the clubhouse by the cool emerald water.

* * *

AT "FRENCH LEAVE" owner Craig Kelly was still offering his happy guests a "way of life." Producer Josh Logan and author-playwright John Patrick (Teahouse of the August Moon) came for a couple of days and wound up staying a week at this shangri'la.

The famous eye surgeon Dr. A. E. Schultz of Lansing, Michigan, with his pretty wife and five of his brood of seven, proved the man of the moment for our infected eye—and Bob Ritchie, the clever cover-photographer, swooped down with his pretty half in their Bonanza to join us.

* * *

THE WHOLE GANG appeared for the "roof wetting" party of our still nameless shack, where with the native worker under a tattered "Battle of Britain" Union Jack (courtesy of Commander Chris Pawley) we toasted the structure with a mixture of cups (Barbados rum, Danish beer, and American coke) and refilled on the workmen's request of "I'll take another smile!"

Home Today Too Child Centered?

By MARY ENGLISH
Written for The Herald

Your South Florida Child

When I began to spend the winters in Florida five years ago, my northern neighbors regarded me with envy. "How wonderful to have a Florida vacation for six months of the year!" they remarked. "Just imagine basking in the sunshine, going to the beach every day, getting out of the snow and ice up north."

They failed to take account of the fact that I had four preschool children, including infant twins, and no domestic help.

When mothers have several small children, there is no vacation regardless of the sun smiling the year round.

Yet my friends up north continue to talk of my winter "vacations" in Florida.

Last year, I had two full months in Florida of nursing my four offspring, who came down consecutively with chicken pox. The year before, all were down with mumps simultaneously. It would have been even harder if they had contracted these contagious diseases in the North, but being in Florida didn't lessen my responsibility for getting them on their feet again or my anxiety about them.

I have found that the South Florida mothers I know work harder than most mothers elsewhere and have too little leisure time for themselves.

* * *

DO SOUTH FLORIDA mothers sacrifice too much for their children? Are they overly conscientious about their home responsibilities? I think many of them are.

In South Florida, the summer recreational program for children is free and sponsored by the Board of Education. It provides a wide enough range of activities for the child.

Why don't more mothers take advantage of it, for their own sakes as well as their children?

South Florida offers unique opportunities for inexpensive recreation for mothers too. We have the ocean for swimming, inexpensive boat trips, piers to fish from. There are shuffleboard clubs, numerous club organizations for newcomers to our area. Various church groups have women's organizations.

South Florida is rapidly becoming more and more of a cultural center, too.

Hollywood and Miami have a Writers' Club for those who are interested in creative writing. Many of these groups meet at night when a baby sitter is available or Dad can stay home with the children.

For the academic minded, these are courses at the University of Miami or adult education courses at the high school. There are Great Books Discussion Groups in Miami.

For the sports minded, there are the horse races and jai alai.

For mothers who spend much of their time adhering to a strick household routine of three meals a day and who do most of the family chauffering, an occasional dinner out can be a real shot in the arm.

* * *

SOMETIMES I think that the home today is too child centered. Children must learn early to develop independence and adaptability. They must accept the fact that their mothers have a right to separate adult interests not related to them.

Besides, a mother with some hobbies and diversions outside the home is a fresher, more interesting personality to her children. She has something to bring them from the world outside the home.

A mother, first of all, should regard herself as an individual apart from her children. Being an individual means that it is necessary to have some outlet for self-expression no matter what direction it takes. I do not believe that mothers should selfishly subordinate their children's interests to their own. The home should not be run for the benefit of either the parents or the children.

But there should be the kind of sharing relationship where everyone has an opportunity for pleasure and recreation.

Mothers are people, too. Are you too sacrificial a mother? Do you feel that you have become merely a household drudge? If so, now is the time to do something about it before it is too late.

Mrs. English invites your questions. If you have a problem concerning your child, which can be discussed in this column, write her at The Miami Herald, Miami, Fla.

'All My Hopes and Dreams Died'

By MARY ASTOR

One In a Series

In New York the apartment was filled with flowers sent by Jack, just as it had been before. I was almost wild with excitement, but I had well learned to control my face and my actions. Jack was expected to dinner; when the time drew near, nothing could prevent me from watching for him from the window. I saw his cab pull up, and I watched him get out. Mother and Daddy were in the kitchen. I slipped out of the apartment and went down on the elevator to meet him.

We fell into each other's arms with shouts of laughter and joy. For a few deliriously happy moments we were alone in the universe. Nothing else existed. But we couldn't linger.

We went back up the elevator, and by the time we entered the living room we had tempered our excitement to a proper degree. We were, after all, both professional actors!

The following day at the Ambassador we picked up our life together where we had left it 17 months before. It was just as I had dreamed of it during that lonely time.

Jack told me of plans he did not think it wise to tell the family yet. He was to do Richard III in London next season and he wanted me to play Lady Anne.

Very carefully, a few nights later, he brought up the subject of my doing a play with him in London. Daddy was very cool toward the idea. "We couldn't afford it." The difference between movie money and theater money was too great. "It wouldn't be practical."

I think now that this was the critical moment. I think Jack sat there waiting for me to assert myself, to show that I had a mind and a will. I could have said, "But this is the opportunity of a lifetime, if I am really to be an actress. What if we do have to give up the limousine and the servants—and Daddy's membership at the Athletic Club, and his daily game of billiards." But I didn't say anything.

The next day at the hotel Jack said to me, "You haven't changed a bit. Nothing has changed." I was happy to think that I had made time stand still, but he got rather drunk that afternoon.

* * *

Enter: Miss Costello

FINALLY, in September I was back in Hollywood, and I was to do Don Juan with Jack. I had heard rumors that Jack was being seen a great deal with his lovely leading lady, Dolores Costello, who was doing Moby Dick with him, and when we saw Jack I had a distinct feeling that his pleasuse in seeing us was slightly forced.

My uneasiness grew. Several times when Jack was coming over for dinner he telephoned to say "something had come up" and he couldn't make it. Or he would have somone else call and announce that he had been "detained." I began to be frightened.

There were fittings and tests for Don Juan, and days of visiting the set after the picture began but before I actually started work.

And then all my hopes and dreams died. There was another visitor — Dolores Costello.

And I saw the two camp chairs, placed just off the set, as they had been for Beau Brummel, only now Jack and Dolores were sitting in them, talking and laughing. And then I knew.

* * *

'I Jerked Myself Free'

I WAS TIRED and sick when I got home. I had been worried and nervous for some days, and had been neglecting my vocal practice. That afternoon I skipped it altogether. I wanted to scream rather than sing. Daddy met me on the staircase, and said, "Lucile, I want you to explain why you are not on schedule with your vocalizing."

I pushed by him and snapped, "I don't feel like singing."

He grasped my shoulders and punctuated his words by shaking me. "You — are — going — to do — as you — are told!"

But finally I had had enough. I jerked myself free and slapped his hands down, and I did scream, "You keep your hands off me — forever. I'm nineteen year old, and I won't take any more of this shoving around and being slapped when you're mad. And when I feel like singing again I'll sing!"

At first he couldn't believe what had happened; he just couldn't comprehend it. When he finally did he went into a sort of shock. For hours he sulked at his desk, with his head on his arms, and he would speak neither to Mother nor to me.

The next day there were some very cool "discussions," in which I did my share of the discussing; and finally there was an agreement. I contended that I was embarrassed to have Mother in constant attendance on me at the studio, so it was decided she would hereafter remain at home. I was to have a maid, I was to be allowed to go where I wanted to go, and I was to have a small allowance for pin money. I was then earning about $2,500 a week. My allowance was to be $5.

Don Juan Was Torment

DON JUAN was a long and difficult picture; it went all the way through December.

I couldn't "get through" to Jack at all. And even though I must have known, I could not bring myself to admit that it was all over.

Hopefully I told him of the changes that had been made at home. He said, "Well, that's some progress," and started talking about something else.

He was drinking steadily; he often showed up on the set with a hang-over, or he was "delayed" and came in late, or he didn't come in at all.

Work went on. By the middle of January I was playing in High Steppers, of which I remember nothing. Fatigue was becoming chronic. I was crying a great deal at night after I went to bed.

I started another picture, The Wise Guy, and in the middle of it I was called for retakes on Don Juan. The work on Don Juan was torment; working with Jack made me feel brittle and dry. I tried to be very offhand and casual with him.

But in May we had to go on location. We had a whole afternoon's work with Jack and me on a white horse — I had just been rescued from the castle of the Borgias, or something. It was agony to be so close to him again. Sitting there in his arms, it was like my own fairytale dreams of the girl and her prince who came riding out of the night.

During the long hours I gathered all my nerve and courage, and then I asked him. I don't remember what I said, but I remember his answer. Rather sadly he said, "Dear Goopher, I'm just a S. O. B."

As diversified as the places they go, Countess and Count Guy de la Fregonniere—after spending the past two years at their home in Paris and their pied a terre in West Africa—have returned to our shores. Thye spent the first week at "Cascadilla" with Harold Christie and are at the Bahamas Country Club for the rest of their stay (their beautiful home "Villa Capulut" has been leased).

Kay Rutherford, wife of sportsman John R. is livening up "Rock Point" as a guest of Timmy and Livingston Sullivan (He's Mr. Lanolin Plus and Philly banker).

'U.S. Wife Can't Match European'

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

A few days ago the European command of the U.S. Army revealed that one out of every four marriages of overseas personnel was ending in divorce.

As a retired officer who served near Munich since the war, I can vouch this figure is low.

The Army figure quoted was for marriages that ended in divorce while the men were stationed in Europe. It does not include divorces granted after they had returned to the U.S. or gone to another service area.

Most important, the cold facts do not reveal the reason that was apparent to all personnel staff: American wives lost husbands because they could not compare mentally, emotionally or physically with the European women with whom their husband came in daily contact.

One German sociology professor at the University of Munich said: "You Americans made a mistake when you brought Army wives overseas. We had known them in magazines and revered them.

"But in real life, they are well-groomed, well-dressed pretty children, and like children they are so selfish, they are poor wives. Also they are so independent, they gain neither the status of American men nor the cherished position of European women. It is sad."

It is always important to have an objective, military or social. European women have the objective of being good wives. That entails doing things which please men.

Most American women, alas, have the objective of pleasing themselves and incidentally pleasing men, if that should coincide with their pleasure.

I am too old to be looking for a wife, and I'm glad I'm not in the market. The one I got 43 years ago had not been subjected to the complete emancipation of attitude that now prevails.

As a result we had nearly 40 happy years, because she put up with being an Army wife, without a whimper, and despite overseas service, no European woman tempted me because my wife was too stiff competition.

American women have emancipated themselves right into unhappiness, not all of which culminates in open divorce.

One final statistic: American single soldiers who married European women have a divorce percentage of one out of every 192 marriages. American women, so conscious of figures, especially their own, should study those figures.

Keep up the good work. You do a splendid honest job.

MALE ADMIRER

Thank you.

Regardless of what statistics indicate, the same society that is producing a changed American woman is also producing a changed American man.

Men are drawn into service, not out of choice, but of need to serve their country, and many are not sufficiently mature to assume the responsibilities of being a husband, economically or emotionally.

Oftentimes, the American male who turns to a woman of another culture is seeking a kind of mothering that the American woman assumes he has outgrown.

"These changes that are taking place in the marital relationship today are exactly what we're discussing in the course, Marriage for Two, at Miami High School Evening Center," says the instructor, Laura H. Ross, family and marriage counselor.

This class is held every Monday at 7:30 p.m. and is open to any adult — you'd be welcome I know!

P. S. I'm counting on a few service wives to answer your challenge."

He Enjoys Life To Fullest Now

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

I could write a book about my wonderful husband. We've been married 14 years, have four children, a small home and our own small business.

I thought there was never a love like ours when I met him at 15, but little did I know how much stronger it could grow. Although he is the kindest, most affectionate, sympathetic person, we still did not realize complete joy and peace until God revealed Jesus to us.

Not a day passes that we do not express our love for each other and for Him. My husband seems to enjoy life to the fullest now . . . never complains about the house or quick meals. We are all active in our church.

Our prayer is for others to find the answer to all their problems through Jesus.

HIALEAH BAPTIST

What's Wrong? Single Women

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

In answer to Single Woman's question, What is the matter with America's wives? Women like Single Woman, of course.

If not, how could she know so much about husband-wife troubles? The much maligned Other Woman, as she puts it, seems to enjoy getting her experience from the husbands of other women, and that is probably the reason she is single, sad and alone.

I know, because I have had my experience after 12 years of the most well-adjusted, happy marriage a person could ask for.

AMERICAN HOUSEWIFE
(Who Was Never on a Pedestal.)

Husband Is Finest Man

I would like to enroll my spouse in the "Good Husbands' Club." In my estimation, no man better deserves the honor.

Besides being the finest man I know, he also works day and night to provide me not only with the necessities of life, but the luxuries. Yet he is never too tired to give me a hand when I need help around the house.

My only wish is that every woman could have as wonderful a husband as I.

F. R. I.

(Aside to Single Woman — see, there are a few contented wives among us, after all!)

"You're the Heart of the Campaign" will be the theme Thursday when the Federation of Jewish Women's Organization holds its second general open meeting.

Meeting will be at the Seville Hotel. Representatives of 107 organizations will attend the sessions which begin at 10 a.m. and will be followed by brunch and a program.

Program will include Mrs. Stanley C. Myers, who will tell of her recent trip to Israel, the Middle East and Europe, and Mrs. Henry Wernick, who will present a dramatization.

There also will be a "Rate Yourself" quiz.

Immediate project of the organization is to enroll all of its 5,000 members in an active role of the Combined Jewish Appeal.

MERCY AUXILIARY AT WORK

Sewing Machines Are Buzzing At Hospital

—Herald Staff Photo by Ray Fisher

Here's Where Women Sew for Mercy Hospital
. . . Mrs. Frank Catterson tries gown on Mrs. Stanley A. Meek

You should hear the buzzing of sewing macines when members of Mercy Hospital Auxiliary are working in the hospital's sewing room!

In the past year alone, sewing committee members have made 944 dozen items—that's 11,328 articles — for the hospital. Gowns for the doctors, patients and nuns; sheets, pillow cases, binders, wrappers and 29 pairs of draperies were turned out by these volunteers.

This is just one phase of the auxiliary's work at the hospital.

The auxiliary has set a goal of $15,000 to be raised this year for the support of cancer patients' treatment.

To help raise this money, the auxiliary is giving its fifth annual benefit luncheon and fashion show at noon Jan. 28 in the Fontainebleau Hotel.

About 1,000 guests are expected to attend the event and see the fashions from Jordan Marsh. Mrs. Frank Catterson is general chairman of the luncheon and Miss Loretta McTiernan is ticket chairman. Party is open to the public.

Bishop Coleman F. Carroll, bishop of the Diocese of Miami, will be a guest at the luncheon.

President of the eight-year-old auxiliary is Mrs. Lawrence Grilliott. Incidentally, Mrs. Grilliott has been chairman of the sewing committee since it was formed. She and her husband donated all the equipment for the sewing room.

Program To Help Teens

Greater Miami's public senior and junior high schools, parochial and private schools, Barry College and the University of Miami are invited to Greater Miami's Good Grooming Assembly on Saturday.

Mrs. Hart

This informal panel discussion to educate proper grooming habits among young people, sponsored by the Mennen Company, a men's toiletry firm, will be held at the Montmartre Hotel, 4575 Collins Ave., Miami Beach.

William Mennen Jr. will be moderator and co-host with Scholastic Magazine.

Panel will include Eleanor Hart, mother of two teen-agers, Miami Herald columnist and editor of the Herald's famed Glamor Clinic; Rosalind Rush of the Miami News; David H. Amos, personnel director of National Airlines; Richard Essen, University of Miami senior; Grace Sacanz, Miami Edison High School junior, and Ben B. David, UM dean of men.

The theme, "Better Grooming for Better Citizenship" will be conveyed by demonstrations and informal discussions among panel members and audience participation.

"Miami was chosen for the inaugural assembly because we found its teen-age population among the nation's best groomed," Mr. Mennen says. "It is our aim to make young people everywhere aware that a well groomed appearance will make for a well groomed attitude toward school, work, family and future."

Beginning at 2 p.m. Saturday, the assembly will be filmed by WPST-TV for showing throughout Greater Miami Schools, and later to the nation.

Sauce Tops Gingerbread

Gingerbread topped with a hot fruit cocktail sauce is a favorite of both young and old. For the sauce, heat fruit cocktail in its own syrup with a little sugar, lemon juice and grated lemon rind. Add a bit of butter and serve warm over warm gingerbread. Simple, but so good!

With Bubbles, Please

When cleaning porcelain sinks, avoid strong, gritty powders that may mar the finish. Scouring powers that have a sudsing action are kinder to the sink as well as to hands.

Uncensored Film for Bookfellows

Chinese Laborer Is One of Thousands Working To Rebuild China's Great Wall
. . . a scene from the uncensored documentary to be shown Saturday

An uncensored documentary film of Communist China, taken by three young press correspondents, will be seen by the Miami Bookfellows Saturday night at a dinner meeting in the Americana Hotel.

The film, "Forbidden Journey," will be narrated by Ed Hockman, correspondent for the National Broadcasting Co. and the United Press International.

He and two colleagues covered the tour of Red China taken by 41 young Americans which made newspaper headlines in August, 1957.

At the time, the United States State Department had banned travel to the Chinese mainland and these 41 young people defied the ban and went into China from a youth festival in Moscow.

In the film are the first uncensored pictures of the new mechanized Chinese army. Jet planes, tanks and guns are shown as they were displayed to 2,000,000 Chinese at a National Day Parade in Peking.

The correspondents interviewed the Chinese at work, in the factories, the rice paddies. They talked to premier Chou En Lai, students, Buddhist monks.

Americans who were imprisoned in China, and Americans who stayed there after being released from Korean prisoner-of-war camps also are shown in the film.

Mr. Hockman will describe the 7,000 mile tour which took the three correspondents to Peking, Changchun, Tientsin, Wuhan, Nanking, Shanghai, Hangchow and Canton. At the time he made the first consecutive series of news broadcasts in recent years from the Chinese mainland to the United States.

He will be introduced Saturday night by Phil Kelleher, Miami radio news commentator.

Before the dinner, Mrs. Thomas T. Stevens, president, Mrs. F. Kyle Ebersole, vice president, and Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Brettell will greet the guests.

Invocation will be offered by Dr. R. Wiley Scott of the Miami Beach Community Church. Baritone soloist Allison Fennell, will be accompanied by Wilma Spratlin.

Reservations close Wednesday.

They'll Honor Robert E. Lee

Local chapters of the United Daughters of the Confederacy Monday will observe the 151st anniversary of the birthday of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

Franklin Moore, Fort Lauderdale, president of the Inter-American Hotel Association, will speak at Southern Cross Chapter's 12:30 p.m. luncheon in the Biscayne Terrace Hotel. The chapter's luncheon also will honor the memory of General "Stonewall" Jackson.

His topic is, "Remembering Confederate Descendants of World Wars I and II." Mrs. Leonard F. Mead is program chairman and Miss Lillian McGahey is taking reservations.

Monday morning the chapter will present a program in Robert E. Lee Junior High School in cooperation with the school's drama department at 8:45 a.m. in the auditorium, 3100 NW 5th St.

* * *

ESTELLE AVINGER HAGGARD Chapter has invited Yulee Chapter to join in its annual Robert E. Lee luncheon at 12:30 p.m. in the Urmey Hotel.

Honor guests will be Mrs. Murray F. Wittichen, president general of the UDC, and Mrs. Herbert O. Vance, state president.

Short tributes will be given in memory of Gen. Lee, Gen. Jackson and Matthew Fontaine Maury. Mrs. Ronald Wilson is program chairman.

You Can Cut Straight Bangs On a Wiggling Little Girl

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer

No More Bungled Bangs
. . . when you line hair up

Before we go any farther, two words of advice about this little how-to: Be Careful. Children are very valuable on the market nowadays.

READERS' EXCHANGE

But it's a good way to get straight bangs on a wiggly child. To cut Sis' bangs evenly, slip a piece of her lined tablet paper under the bangs.

Then, by following one of the lines, you will be able to cut the hair straight across. This method also keeps cut hair out of your little girl's eyes and nose.

Tired of the same old flavor to pie crust? So is Mrs. B. P. of Miami. What's more she does something about it.

"Add a spicy flavor to the pie crust by blending ground ginger into the dough," she suggests. "I use ¼ teaspoon for a two-crust pie."

* * *

'It's Ruined'

"I have dark mahogany and walnut antique furniture, and the Florida climate is ruining it," begins Mrs. A. T. of South Miami.

She's in trouble, you can tell.

"It has mildewed and nothing I do seems to help. What I would like to know is what to do about this and also what to do to protect the wood and prevent further damage. I would be most grateful for suggestions as I am desperately worried about my lovely things."

Antique lovers to the rescue?

A kitchen safety concern fears for your fingers when it comes to using meat grinders. It suggests using a rubber spatula to feed foods into grinders, food slicers or shredders.

Nice to know they care.

Croton Stains

Rust stains and croton stains are bothering three readers (at LEAST three readers). Mrs. H. H. M. of Miami Mrs. E. L. of Miami Springs and Mrs. F. B. of Miami Beach beg your help. They'd like to remove these stains from both cottons and silks, from colored and white pieces.

Now for The Herald's nutcracker, sweet. A real nutty little item from a walnut industry of a certain state way out West.

Tells how to get English walnuts out in halves, not the usual several thousand pieces.

To get perfect halves of English walnuts for garnishing, place the walnut on its flat end. Hold it by the seam and strike with a hammer on the pointed end. Not the finger. The pointed end. Use a sharp but bouncing blow.

This is a Sunday, Tuesday and Friday column for the Florida homemaker. Hints questions and answers may be mailed with full name and address to Readers' Exchange, The Miami Herald, Miami 30.

The Herald is not responsible for the safety or efficiency of methods recommended by our readers.

It's All 'Michiko' In Japan

TOKYO—(WNS)—"Michciko-mania" is sweeping Japan, in the wake of Crown Prince Akihito's announced engagement to pretty Michiko Shoda, daughter of a flour magnate.

Birth registration clerks, for instance, report that, among girl babies born since the engagement announcement Sept. 27, the name "Michiko" is far and away the front-runner.

Many stores, cashing in on the new popularity of the name, have been stocking up on shawls, music boxes and lipsticks inscribed, embroidered or engraved with the name of the future empress.

Coffee-shops, bars, and TV stores which were already named "Michiko" are enjoying bigger and better success.

The most striking form the boom has taken is in what Tokyo's dress designers are calling the "Michi Line," or the "Princess Silhouette."

The couturiers have simply adapted the dress Michiko wore the afternoon she went to the Imperial Palace for her audience with the Emperor and Empress.

FASHION: Top orchestra leader Woody Herman, photographed during his engagement at New York's Round-table, prefers lightweight clothes like mohair suits for year-'round wear. But he also likes to be comfortable on cold days. He achieves this, and keeps smartly groomed, by adding a knitted wool double-breasted vest in pearl gray.

Art Loans Are Boon to New Grove Gallery

By DORIS RENO
Herald Music and Art Editor

Norton Gallery has been exceedingly generous in helping Coconut Grove's new Playhouse Gallery off to a good start, since it has sent down from West Palm Beach a considerable number of its very best paintings and sculptures and has surrounded them with enough other pieces of good quality to create a total impression of importance and worth.

It is a better selection from the Norton's permanent possessions than was loaned to Miami Beach Art Center in 1954, when the very first loans to Miami from the collection were made.

Since we are acquainted with most of these pictures from frequent visits to them at home in West Palm Beach, it is with the pleasure of running across old friends that we meet them again in the charming surroundings of the new Playhouse Gallery.

The early Max Weber, "Alone", and the early Soutine landscape are among the fine examples of youthful or middle-period canvases from these painters' hands—and in many cases, with these particular artists, the earlier work is preferable to the recent.

This observation also seems to apply to Rouault, since his 1911 "Group of Rustics" in this show towers over some of his more recent work.

The Milton Avery "Landscape with Black and White Horses" is one of the most charming canvases we have seen by this painter. The late Paul Klee's "Old Married Couple" is excellent, the Matisse head of "Lorette" is a top example of that painter's smaller canvases, and the Vlaminck street scene is one of the better quality ones.

The Norton has even parted temporarily with one of its newest acquisitions, Georgia O'Keeffe's "Pelvis with the Moon," painted in 1943, and with its newest John Marin, "Green Marine with Boats," a product of 1935. The Marin is not one of that painter's most sparkling watercolors, however.

All of the sculpture loans are top pieces, particularly the Gaston Lachaise "Portrait of John Marin" and Jacob Epstein's "Portrait of Albert Einstein." Picasso's 1910 bronze "Head of a Woman" is also of great interest, and importance.

Lowe Gallery has loaned the Playhouse several significant items for its opening show, among them the attractive "Hill Town" by John Heliker, Arnold Blanch's "Trees with White Sky," and a "Notre Dame" by Signac.

Two of the smaller galleries are devoted to a group show by the artists who are lined up for one-mans later in the season.

This system of selecting pictures for a group show is all right on paper, but it does not work out in fact, since the particular painters in question are not the least bit homogeneous with regard to aims or approaches.

The sky-high canvases and brilliant lacquer paintings accordingly knock out, or even murder, the more poetic canvases of normal size which are scattered among them. Viewers must, therefore, wait until the one-mans of the individual artists turn up at the gallery to assess the work of painters Xavier Gonzalez, Philip Hicken, Artemis Jegart, Eugene Massin, Jack Amoroso and Frank S. Dorsay.

At Beach Center

THE BEST SHOW of the three new ones at Miami Beach Art Center is the group show of prize-winning paintings garnered from the American Watercolor Society's various annuals.

It is interesting to note that many of the painters who win awards in this medium continue to use watercolor with the carefulness of oil, rather than with the natural exuberance characteristic of the medium — and a few use mixed media to simulate oil even more closely.

Within this limitation, however, the work shown is mostly excellent and commendable. Our choices from the show include Shinji Ishikawa's "Ducks", William Thon's "Spruce Woods," Antonio Martino's "West Manayunk," A. Lassell Ripley's "The Brothers," and Greta Matson's "Grief."

Joseph Newman's one-man in the middle gallery specializes in portraits, landscapes, figure studies and still lifes. The paintings are all out-and-out realistic, unimaginative, and rather mundane.

The most interesting are the interiors, particularly "In the Studio" and "Interior of a Camp in Rockport." These are well composed and have flavor.

Jacob Greenleaf's canvases in the south gallery, mostly landscapes, simply record, without mystery or flair, or even much sense of selection, what the painter has seen in nature.

At Tucker

AT THE TUCKER Galleries Tom Fresh takes the same straight-from-the-shoulder approach — only, since he is a mere 21 years old, there is a chance he may begin to inject something of emotion or meaning into his work before long.

Some of the canvases on view do not put forth a spark, but a few — notably "Sunbather," "Interior," and "Willie" — indicate something stronger for the future and a greater effort to make contact with the viewer now.

Peter Delfino's pieces at the Tucker, on the contrary, are perhaps a little over-poeticized deliberately, and consequently convey an effect of wispiness and withdrawal. Some of the clown pieces are well integrated, and we like "Impatience at the Paddock" for its airy feeling. Among the other canvases the best are "The Bridge" and "Toreador."

* * *

At Barry College

ANOTHER very young artist, Beth Arthur of Sarasota — who is about 22 — has a showing of prints at the Barry College Art Gallery that indicate sensitivity, originality, and spirit.

The work is detailed but at the same time poetic, and she has already developed an effective style of her own that seems not to be imitative of the style of any other printmaker.

The most intriguing pieces are "Guitar Player," which has a rich Oriental feeling; "Fruit," "Bird Tower" and "Spider Web."

We would prefer an absolutely plain hanging of this show, without drapes to interfere with the pieces' own impact.

Show Has Prizes Worth $1,000

The second annual art exhibition of Miami Artists School and Gallery of 7029 Biscayne Blvd. will be held Monday through Saturday this week in Burdine's auditorium.

Competition will be held in both fine and commercial art, and winners will receive awards worth more than $1,000 in cash, scholarships and art supplies.

The work of Walter B. Colebrook, water colorist, will be shown at the Schramm Upper Level Galleries, Fort Lauderdale, this month. The preview is scheduled for 4 p.m. today.

Music and Art

Quartet At Barry Tonight

The Chanticleers, a male quartet which sings important music of the classical repertoire, will present a concert at 8:15 tonight in Barry College auditorium. This is an event of Barry's Culture Series.

The ensemble is returning to Barry by popular demand, following a successful concert there several seasons ago.

The personnel of the group, which has not changed since its first appearance here, includes a former Miamian, tenor William Diard. Other members are Richard Wright, tenor, Raymond Keast, baritone, and James Martindale, bass. Herman Allison is accompanist.

More than half the songs in the group's presentation are new to its repertoire this season. A few, such as the Gilbert and Sullivan "Fantasy," are popular Chanticleer favorites.

The performance has been staged by Gene Bayliss, a well-known New York choreographer. It has been musically directed by Donald Smith, assistant conductor of the New York City Center Opera.

The Chanticleers are traveling 40,000 miles on their current tour.

LIGHT EVENTS FOR SERIES FANS

Dance Jubilee, Song Cavalcade Arriving

Both Civic Music Association and Community Concerts Association will come up this week with what is spoken of in music series circles as "the lighter event of the year."

Community's program, which will be the opening event of its second series of concerts, will be the Dance Jubilee of Bambi Linn and Rod Alexander.

It covers the history of dance in America "from minstrel days to swingtime," which will be presented by a lively company of 16 dancers, singers and musicians.

Dance Jubilee will be presented at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday in Miami Beach auditorium.

Civic Music's "lighter entertainment" is titled "Cavalcade of Song," and presents vocal conductor Ralph Hunter, the 18-man Hunter Chorus, American mezzo-soprano Carol Jones, and an instrumental ensemble.

Carol Jones made three American tours and one European tour with the Robert Shaw Chorale, and has appeared on Broadway in Menotti's "Saint of Bleeker Street" and "The Unicorn, the Gorgon and the Manticore," and in NBC televised productions of "Tales of Hoffman" and "Salome."

This event for Civic Music Association members is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in Dade County auditorium.

No single tickets are available to the public for either event, since they are open only to members of the respective series.

Conductor Hunter boasts that there is something on his Cavalcade program for every taste, and indeed he has not geared it solely toward "middlebrow" acceptance. The first half of the concert may be considered fare for the normal concert - goer who likes the best, for it features Gregorian chant and Monteverdi and Schubert songs.

Hunter

From there it proceeds to what should be the most exciting presentation of the evening — a dramatization of the opera-oratorio, "Oedipus Rex," by Igor Stravinsky. Excerpts from this were sung here some years ago by the Harvard University Glee Club, and it proved to be wonderful music.

Then the program branches out into a Vachel Lindsay Rhapsody in which chorus and soloist are backed up with plenty of percussion, and proceeds through a group of American Revolutionary songs, and a group of cowboy songs and folk ballads, into a finale of show music by Jerome Kern.

Hunter is in his fourth season as conductor of one of New York's outstanding choral ensembles, the Collegiate Chorale, which he took over from Robert Shaw. He has helped prepare the Cherubini and Verdi Requiems for the late Arturo Toscanini, while at the same time serving as choral director of Radio City Music Hall.

He has served as conductor of the American Society's distinguished series of Town Hall recitals, and prepared the chorus for the Dallas State Fair Musicals.

The Linn - Alexander production will include revivals of many of the duo-dancers' favorite numbers from Max Liebman's "Show of Shows," as well as the Ginger Rogers-Fred Astaire takeoff from "Command Performance" and the rooftop ballet from the Steve Allen show.

Also turning up on this lively program will be minstrel dances, excerpts from the heyday of vaudeville, reminders of the Charleston and of Vernon-and-Irene-Castle days, New Orleans Jazz, and swing numbers.

Background music will be provided by a small band the company brings along, and singers have been added to set the various moods.

The company, in its first year, is making a three-month tour of the United States.

Latin Expert To Speak

"Peruvian Baroque Art" will be the topic for an illustrated lecture by the distinguished Peruvian art authority Dr. Alejandro Miro Quesada at the Lowe Art Gallery at 8 p.m. Monday.

Dr. Quesada, a guest of University of Miami's art department, is professor of art history at University of San Marcos, oldest university in the western hemisphere.

Martello Montage

Ann Eckert Keenan is having a one-man showing of watercolors at the Martello Gallery, Key West, through Feb. 1.

Salt Lake Organist In Miami Concert

The well-known Salt Lake City Tabernacle organist, Alexander Schreiner, will make his first Miami appearance in a concert scheduled for 8:30 Friday evening, Jan. 30, in White Temple auditorium.

The event, sponsored by the Miami chapter of American Guild of Organists, is free to the public.

Alexander Schreiner
. . . oldest radio program

Schreiner has programmed two Bach works, the Chorale and Prelude "O, Man, Bemoan Thy Fearful Sin" and the Toccata, Adagio and Fugue in C major. He will also perform Cesar Franck's Fantasie in A Major.

The rest of the program will consist of shorter works — among them Louis Vierne's "Water Nymphs", Marcel Dupre's "Prelude and Fugue in B-major", "Meditation Religieuse" by Henri Mulet, Leo Sowerby's "Fanfare", and "Star of Hope" by Richard Keys Biggs.

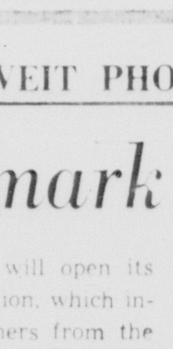
This is the only public event planned by Miami's AGO chapter for this season.

Schreiner was a full-fledged church organist at the age of 8. In 1929 in the Salt Lake Tabernacle he began the oldest continuous radio broadcasts in existence. Millions hear him every Sunday morning.

WOLFE, VEIT PHOTO EXHIBIT ALSO BEGINS

Hallmark Show Opens at Lowe Today

Lowe Gallery will open its Hallmark exhibition, which includes prize-winners from the fourth international Hallmark competition, with a preview from 3 to 5 p.m. today.



Wolfe

Opening simultaneously will be a photographic showing of the work of two Miami photographers, Jacques Wolfe and Richard C. Veit II.

On view from the permanent collection will be two new acquisitions, a portrait of "Antonio Canova, Sculptor" by the 18th century English master, Sir Thomas Lawrence; a "Portrait of a Lady" by Rembrandt Peale, 19th century American painter; and a watercolor by the contemporary American painter William Heitland.

The Lawrence canvas is a recent gift from Dr. and Mrs. Robert Halsband of New York City. The Peale painting was given to the gallery by Carman H. Messore, also of New York. Mrs. Mortimer C. Addoms of Coconut Grove gave the Heitland watercolor.

Jacques Wolfe's photographic show, entitled "The Sapphire Country," includes photographs made on a month's vacation in the North Carolina mountains last summer.

Wolfe, who has had several previous photographic shows in this area, is composer of "The Trysting Tree", a folk opera premiered in Miami two years ago. He is the composer of "Shortnin' Bread" and "The Glory Road." He has shown photographs at the Atlanta Museum of Art, North Gallery of West Palm Beach, and Miami Beach Art Center.

Veit has had photographs in such publications as Yachting, Motor Boating, Skipper and Sports Illustrated. He will show boating and travel photographs in the present exhibition. He has exhibited paintings in many local shows.

Included in the Hallmark exhibition will be 50 watercolors by 50 top contemporary artists from 16 European, North and South American countries.

* * *

MIAMI BEACH'S Huber Gallery will have a showing of advanced and beginning students who are studying at the gallery with Bernard Sachs. The classes were added to the gallery's activities last fall.

Sachs has a master of fine arts degree from Syracuse University. He has taught at Syracuse, Rollins School of the Arts and University of Miami.

Milstein Solos with Symphony

Violinist Nathan Milstein, returning to Miami this week-end for his first performing visit since 1952, will play the Brahms D-Major Concerto with Fabien Sevitzky and the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra tonight at 8:30 in the Miami Beach auditorium.

His only previous appearance with the ensemble was in 1952, when he performed Lalo's Symphonie Espagnole.

Sevitzky has planned a somewhat unusual program which includes two first-in-Miami performances—one of a Concerto Grosso for Three Trombones and Tuba by Arcady Dubensky, a member of the violin section of the New York Philharmonic for many years, and the other of Peter Mennin's Moby Dick Concertato for Orchestra.

Nathan Milstein Fabien Sevitzky
. . . guest artist and maestro

Leopold Stokowski premiered the Trombone-Tuba Concerto Grosso with the New York Philharmonic in 1949, and first reviews indicated Pubensky wrote it for fellow bass-players who seldom have an opportunity for solo display.

The Concertato by the 35-year-old composer Mennin was written in 1952 for the Erie Philharmonic, which premiered it.

In addition to these works and the Brahms, Sevitzky will conduct the orchestra in the overture to Berlioz' "Benvenuto Cellini" and Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" in the concert arrangement by Robert Russell Bennett.

The Russian-born Milstein, 52, made his debut in this country with the Philadelphia Orchestra in 1929, and has been one of our top established violin virtuosos ever since. He played one recital in Miami, in 1950 for Civic Music Association patrons.

The program will be repeated at 8:30 p.m. Monday in Dade County Auditorium.

Latin Artist To Speak And Play

Raul Spivak, Argentinian pianist, will play a concert at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in University of Miami's Beaumont Hall.

Spivak

He will also deliver a lecture at noon the same day in the Volpe building of the UM school of music. His topic will be "Characteristics of Latin American Music."

Spivak's evening program will include Beethoven's Sonata Op. 31, No. 3; Brahms' Rhapsodie in G minor, Op. 79, No. 2, Capriccio, Op. 71, No. 8, and Intermezzo, Op. 119, No. 3, and Chopin's Nocturne, Op. 48, No. 1, and Scherzo, Op. 31.

He will also play a group of Latin American works and two short works by Miami composer Mana-Zucca.

Spivak played recitals last winter at Barry College and Mazica Hall, home of Mme. Mana-Zucca. He has appeared as guest soloist with the New York Philharmonic and the Detroit Symphony.

This Is the $18,300 Waterfront Sand Lake Model Open Today at Westwood Lake in the Southwest

Winding Up At Mackle's Westwood

IT WAS FOUR YEARS and one month ago that the Mackle Co. opened its Westwood Lake development with four models, one of them a two-bedroom, one bath house priced at $6,900. Today at SW 110th Ave. and 48th St., Mackle is opening eight models for the final section of 252 houses that will round out a community of 2,700 South Florida families.

There are five homes designed for regular 75 by 100-foot lots. Lowest priced is the $10,570 Birch Lake with two bedrooms, one bath and screened porch. Down payment under the FHA program is $320 plus about $100 for prepayments of taxes and insurance. Monthly payments are $69. There is one other two-bedroom model and three houses with three bedrooms and one bath.

The other three models are three-bedroom, two bath homes for 75 by 120-foot waterfront lots on the second of the two large lakes in Westwood. These are priced from $17,150 to $18,550.

Pictured at left is the $18,300 Sand Lake waterfront home which has Florida room, dining area and carport. Square footage is 1,253. Down payment is $1,500 plus prepayments of about $175. Monthly payment is about $120, including taxes and insurance.

Westwood Lake has community water and sewage system, storm drainage, sidewalks and sodded parkways. Best route to the new models is south on SW 112th Ave. from Bird Road.

Southernaire Homes

SOUTHERNAIRE HOMES has opened four models in the Scott Lake Manor development on NW 175th St. at 17th Ave.

One of them is a rarity in the busy northwest section, a two-bedroom, one-bath home with terrace and carport. This is the Sands model and is priced at $12,990 with FHA financing. Down payment is $390 plus about $100 for prepayment of taxes and insurance. Monthly payments run about $85.

There are two homes with three bedrooms and two baths priced at $14,990 and $15,700 and a four-bedroom model with family room at $15,990. Prices under the VA program are higher.

All four Southernaire models feature carport, built-in oven and range, space heaters, bathroom vanities, shower enclosures. The area is served by community water and sewage systems, underground gas.

Best route to the four models is NW 17th Ave.; south from NW 183rd Street or north from the Palmetto expressway (NW 163rd Street).

Coral Ranch Homes

FOUR MODELS are being offered by Coral Ranch Homes in Cutler Ridge, the planned community east of U.S. 1 near Perrine in South Dade. The homes are on Cutler Ridge Dr. at Ranch Rd., south of Caribbean Boulevard which is the main thoroughfare in the development.

Feature house is the $17,990 Sun Valley model with three bedrooms, two baths and a filtered swimming pool in a screened patio. Under FHA financing, the down payment is $1,400 plus about $175 for prepayments of taxes and insurance. Monthly payments are about $120, including taxes and insurance.

There are two three-bedroom, two-bath models at $14,500 and $14,900 and a four-bedroom home at $15,500. These have screened porch.

All four homes offer carport, Westinghouse range and oven, central heating, Fiberglas insulation, bathroom vanities and glass shower enclosures. Minimum lot size is 75 by 110.

Cutler Ridge has community water and sewage system, underground gas, storm drains, sidewalks and sodded parkways.

They're Beating A Path

By FREDERIC SHERMAN
Herald Real Estate Editor

ON THE COVER is a story that says the Mackle Co. has only 252 lots left at Westwood Lake out on Bird Road at SW 112th Ave. The three brothers, Elliott, Frank and Robert, have been leaders in the homebuilding field in Dade County since the end of World War II.

SHERMAN

In the last three years, they have moved into six other Florida areas. Biggest are the retirement communities in Pompano and Port Charlotte.

Is Mackle going to clear out out of tourist-rich South Florida just when this area is attracting some of the nation's top homebuilding firms?

Here's the answer from the company: "The Mackle Co. and General Development Corp. are as bullish as ever on Florida. We believe the entire state, and particularly Dade and Broward counties, have only begun to feel the impact of future tremendous growth. We are Miami residents. Our headquarters are here. We have no intention ever of curtailing our community work in South Florida.

"In the near future, we will announce plans for a large home community in Dade County and expansion of our home community and land development work on both Florida coasts."

Best guess is that it will be another lake and canal development in the southwest Dade.

* * *

This Is the Hot Spot

THE MACKLE brothers have lost what once was almost a monopoly on that bullish feeling about Florida. Dozens of builders moved into Dade and Broward counties two years ago when homebuilding dragged to a crawl up north.

In 1956, there were more than 4,000 unsold homes in the Los Angeles area. Herb Heftler gave up California in 1957 for a limitless supply of lots in Arthur Desser's Carol City in North Dade.

News of Heftler's success got back to Los Angeles. The word is out around the country that Miami today is the Los Angeles of 20 years ago. This is where the people are coming.

Big news will be the opening in March of a dozen homes in Carol City by Willard Woodrow whose Aldon Construction Co. has been an industry leader in Southern California.

Work on the models is underway. Other builders are curious because Woodrow has made no secret of the fact he is out to offer something different in a Miami development house.

* * *

Four Basic Plans

HERE'S WHAT is known so far: There will be four floor plans with three exteriors for each. All will have three bedrooms and two baths. Woodrow says each house will have about 1,500 square feet of indoor space, plus a double carport. Incorporated in each plan is an indoor garden under plastic roof domes. Paula Hausner of Jordan Marsh will furnish and decorate the 12 models.

Woodrow is using a lot of textured concrete block to relieve exterior plainess. Kitchen cabinets will be suspended to achieve a contemporary look.

Prices are to be close to the $17,000 mark. That's high for Carol City. Woodrow knows this, but has already announced he figures on selling 2,000 homes in Carol City this year. He concedes those plans hinge directly on what Congress does about FHA and VA mortgage money.

In California he will start only 200 in 1959. Says Woodrow, "Los Angeles is overbuilt and there's too much competition out there. I'm sold on Florida's future."

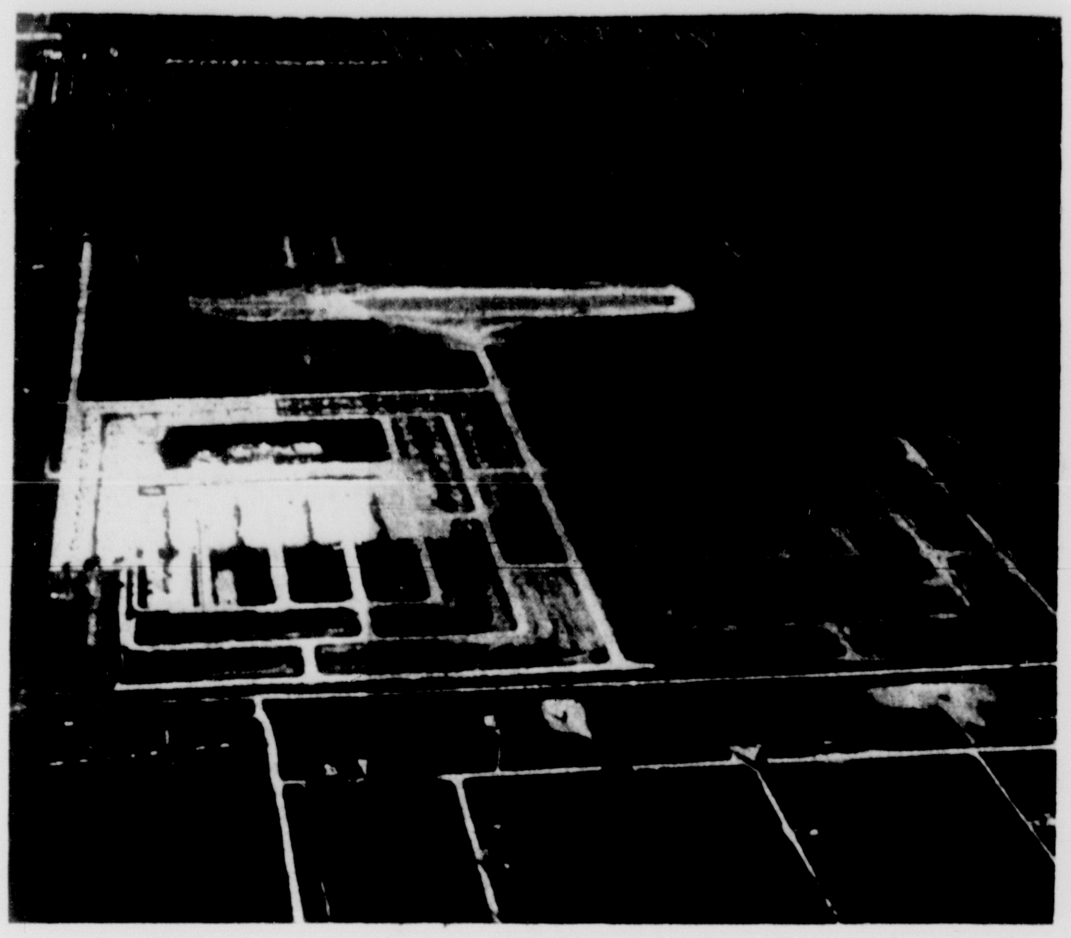
* * *

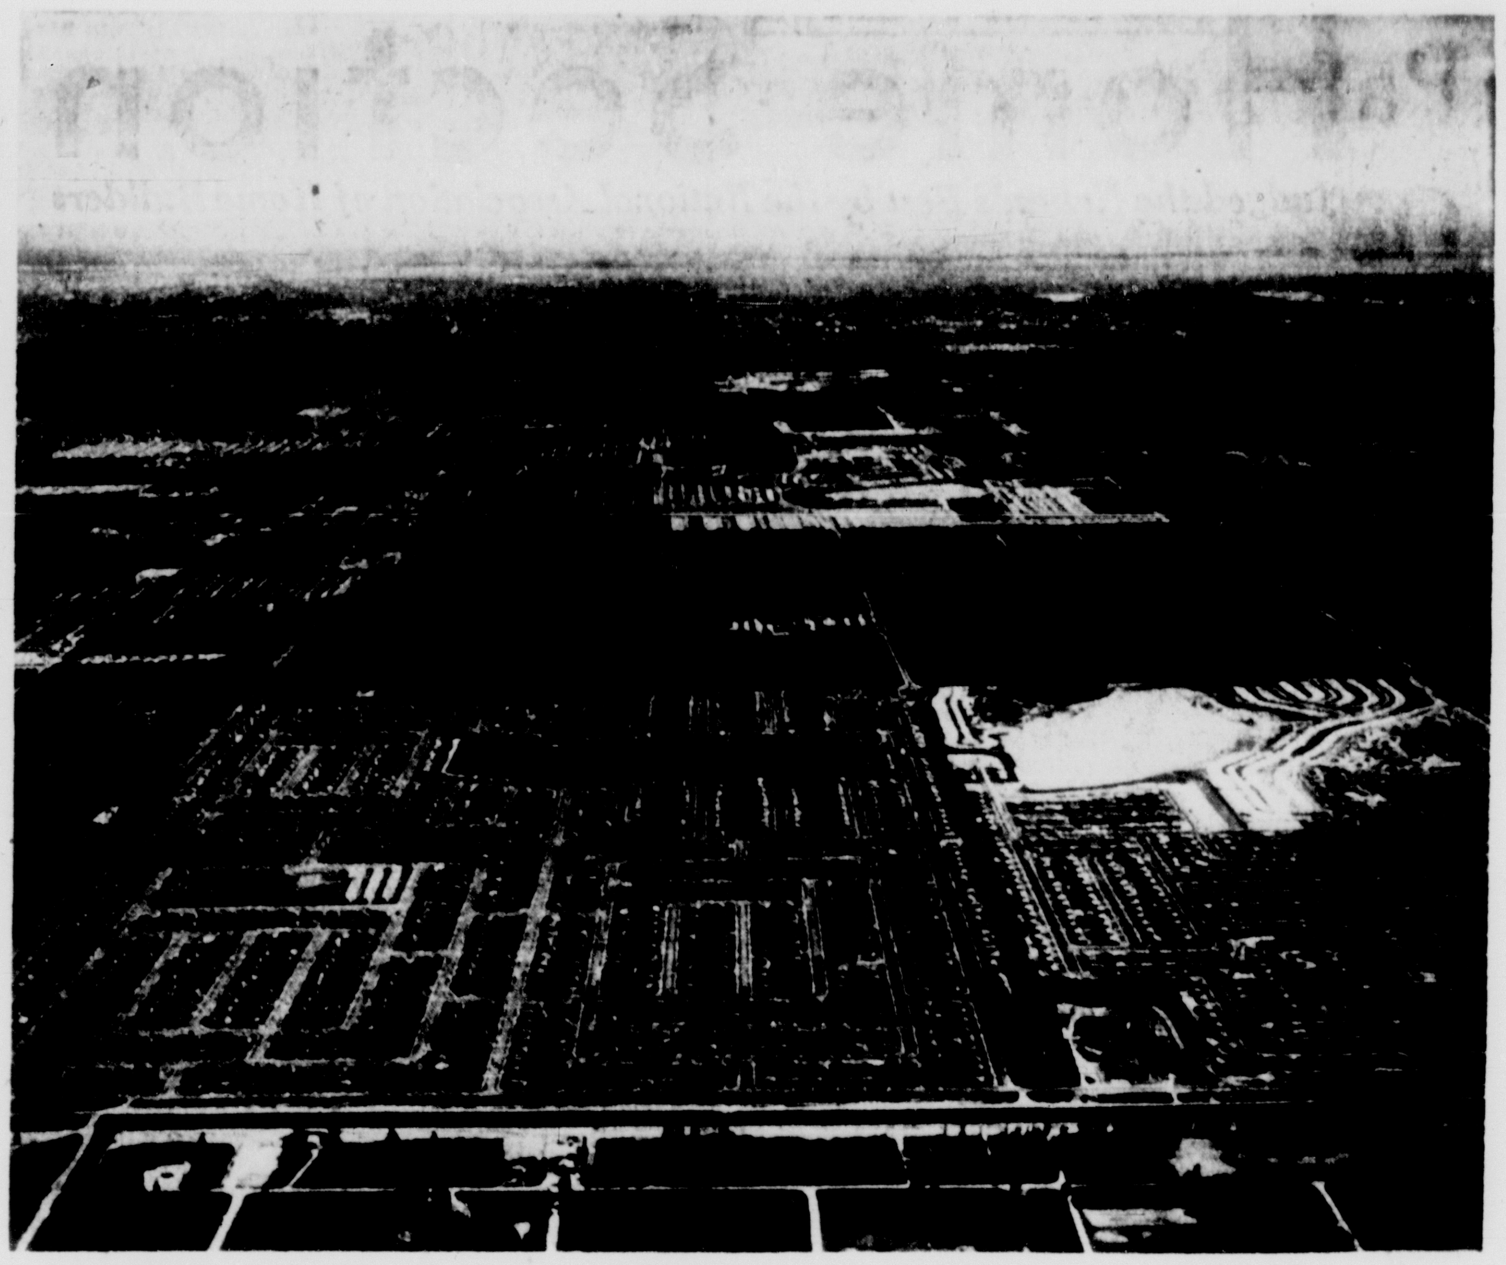
Retirement Houses

ALSO IN WOODROW'S plans for 1959 are 100 high priced homes on Desser's south end of Key Biscayne. Engineering work is now being done for a series of canals. Woodrow says it will be May or June before he can get started on that job. Desser has worked out another deal for several thousand acres in Palm Beach county near Pratt & Whitney.

Woodrow is going in there, too, with a budget house of about $8,500. Aiming at the retirement market, he says he will be able to sell 2,500 a year.

The Californian knows he has created a lot of "show me" antagonism among South Florida builders and mortgage men. The next six months will reveal who's wrong.





Looking East at Westwood Lake as It Is Today With 2,448 Homes

THERE ARE FOUR YEARS between the two photos of the Mackle Co.'s Westwood Lake community on Bird Rd. The first picture was taken early in 1955 as the first houses began to go up. In the four years, Mackle has spent millions on a sewage and water system, lakes and canals for storm drainage, more than 27 miles of streets. One of the lakes is 35 acres and the other is 27. Exactly 2,448 houses have been built in the development. In the southeast corner of the community is the second lake around which 118 of the final 252 houses will be erected. In the 1955 photo, you can see the 1,141-home Tropical Estates development which Mackle built in 1952. The undeveloped tract between the two Mackle communities was purchased last year by Herb Heftler, a California builder attracted to Miami by the Mackle success story.

Patchwork Pays Off–Dividends Are Decorative

By KAY MURPHY
Herald Decorating Editor

KAY

No art is ever lost apparently.

Take the art of quilting. It's been ignored for a generation or two — but by no means lost.

Quilts are turning up in the most elegant surroundings these days. This means somebody's still practicing the art.

Today's quilts are used for their color and decorative designs, rather than as a means for warding off the winter chill at night.

Quilts no longer are hidden beneath the bedspread but serve instead as a substitute for the spread.

Patchwork quilts are the most common variety. Probably because they're the easiest to make. Since these usually are as colorful as Joseph's coat, soft pedal color, as well as pattern, elsewhere in the bedroom.

If you have twin beds, try to match the quilts. Or at least pick two that have harmonizing colors. If the patterns are identical, so much the better.

You might drag out great-grandmother's quilting rack and make your own in order to have coordinated colors and patterns.

Quilts, of course, go hand in glove with Early American or Colonial furniture. But they also add a note of nostalgic charm to a bedroom furnished in trimly tailored modern.

Another art—that of crocheting — creates coverlids more in keeping with other types of traditional furniture. French or Italian or 18th Century English, for instance. These look best with a plain colored spread underneath.

The quilt is responsible for a new idea in chair coverings introduced at the winter home furnishings market in Chicago. The chair covering has a patchwork design.

You can piece your own patches, send them to the manufacturer and he will cover the chair with your handiwork. It's a rocking chair, incidentally.

More and more furniture is featuring quilted upholstery fabrics. Quilting points up the design elements in the allover repeat pattern in any fabric.

Quilted toss pillows are popular sofa and chair accessories, too.

If piecing patches for a quilted bedspread is too much trouble, then buy a fabric with a pleasing pattern and have it quilted as a spread. You may want to use your bedroom drapery fabric for this.

This advice is for those of you who plan to dig out your heirloom quilts. Treat them tenderly. And they should be dug out and used occasionally. They'll "live" longer.

Remember to wash them with mild soap — and pick a fast-drying day. Fabrics were not always colorfast in great-grandmother's day.

A New Way to Warm Up

CHICAGO—(UPI)—A new apartment building in Skokie, a northwest suburb of Chicago, is real cool or real warm and it's all done with water.

An unusual method of heating and cooling entirely by water has been installed in the apartments. In winter, hot water is piped into units concealed in a ceiling above the closets. There fans blow the heat through wall openings down into the rooms.

For air conditioning, chilled water is piped to the units and the cooled air blown into the rooms.

The flow of air is from the top to the bottom rather than bottom to top, resulting in "evenly controlled heat and coolness," said builder Sidney J. Sparberg.

The system eliminates radiators or baseboard heating units, but costs about twice as much as conventional heating systems.

A Moving Story

Air always moves from warm to cool. That's why efficient insulation in walls and ceilings is useful all the year round: a barrier, such as rock wool, not only keeps warm air inside in winter but also keeps it outside in the summer.

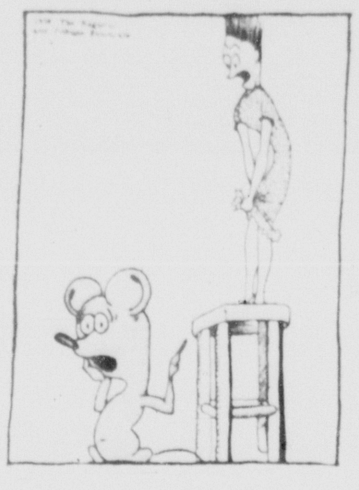
The House Doctor

By HERMAN BAUM

(Readers with questions on the maintenance and repair of the home may receive answers by addressing The House Doctor, care of The Miami Herald. Please limit letters to one question and enclosed stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.)



DEAR MR. BAUM:

We have an old house that periodically becomes infested with mice. We have caught several by trapping them, but this is so messy. The mice seem to always get themselves caught in the daytime and I haven't the stomach to dispose of them and so I am quite unnerved by the time my husband gets home. Is there any better way to discourage them from coming into the house? Mrs. W. P.

ANSWER — Some manufacturers of poison bait say that the mice eat it and die outdoors where they have gone in search of water. This old fur trapper will tell you that trapping is the easiest and best way to get rid of mice.

One of our big ballistic missiles has proven to be one-hundred per cent efficient as a mouse exterminator, but it really isn't necessary to go to that expense when you can accomplish the same results with a ten-cent trap.

The traps that are made of some wire and springs, and attached to a small flat board are the best type. That wire that hooks under the treadle must be set very carefully, so that you can trigger the trap just by blowing on the treadle. Let your husband dispose of the remains.

Wife's Nylons Come in Handy

DEAR MR. BAUM:

What can be done about paints in cans that are sealed up tight but which still form a scum after standing for a while. Are such paints still usable? A. H. J.

ANSWER — Oxygen in the air trapped inside a partly empty can, causes the scum to form on the surface. A product is available from paint stores that can be added to the paint to prevent this. It is liquid that floats on the surface of the paint to protect it from oxidation. I take care of this problem by saving all empty paint cans and transferring paint to smaller cans that are completely filled. Your paint is still usable but you must strain it first. One of the wife's discarded nylon stockings makes the best paint strainer.

Get Your Steam Up for This

DEAR MR. BAUM:

It took two months to remove the paper from the walls of one room. I used hot water to soften the glue. A friend now tells me that there is a product to be added to the water to make the job easier. Mrs. J. S. D.

ANSWER — The product that you mention lowers the surface tension of the water so that it soaks through the paper faster. Soap does the same thing. To make the job real easy, rent a wallpaper steamer from a paint or hardware store.

Divining Rod No Help Here

DEAR MR. BAUM:

My husband has wrecked the plaster in my pantry trying to locate wall studs so he can fasten shelf brackets to them. Is there any certain way to tell where they are located? Mrs. G. S.

ANSWER — Sometimes you can locate the nails in the studs by using a small pocket magnetic compass. The needle will be deflected by the nails when it is moved past them. Another method is to look for nails in the baseboard. By careful examination you may be able to find some of these nails although the holes will have been filled with putty and painted over.

A third method is to locate the studs from electric switches and receptacles. A stud will be about three inches to one side or the other of all electric outlets. Locate the stud by pushing an ice pick through the plaster just above the baseboard. Other studs will generally be 16 inches apart.

New Floor Covering About to Make Debut

A new type of floor covering—soft to the step, resistant to stains, and easy to clean—will be market-bound soon.

Made of foam rubber, with a tread surface of tough patterned vinyl, the material is recommended particularly for stairs, halls, entrances, and other areas where easy cleaning is important.

Wear resistance of the new material was checked in a series of abrasion tests conducted by an independent testing laboratory. Results showed the vinyl top surface to be almost twice as resistant to wear as a rubber floor covering, about five times more resistant than a hair carpeting with sponge rubber backing, and wore almost six times longer than a wool carpet runner in the same price range.

Since dirt does not penetrate the vinyl top side of the product, it can be vacuumed, swept, wiped or washed clean. The foam cushioning gives it a soft resiliency and prevents skidding.

Strong fabric reinforcement will hold tacks and resist tearing, making the material ideal for the do-it-yourselfer to install.

The floor covering will be offered in 27-inch rolls, in beige, green, or gray, priced to retail under $4 a yard.

Hits the Nail On the Head

Common nails and box nails are almost identical in appearance. The one difference is that common nails are heavier in weight and larger in diameter.

Both are used for general construction work; the common nails for heavy-duty jobs, the box nails for light-duty.

Norman P. Mason Is Moving Up After Five Years as Boss of the FHA

. . . he tells Washington newsmen he doesn't mind getting into a scrap with a Democratic Congress

Mason Ready to Defend Ike's Housing Program

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Eisenhower's new housing boss, Norman P. Mason, will step squarely into the middle of a first class row shaping up between Congress and the Administration.

Mason told a reporter that "anyone with a little fighting spirit and red blood in his veins" should welcome the give and take that goes with presenting a controversial program to a critical Congress.

The controversy in this case: The extent of government housing programs under Eisenhower's efforts to hold down spending.

Mason, now head of the Federal Housing Administration, was nominated by Eisenhower to head the parent Housing and Home Finance Agency.

The top HHFA post was vacated by Albert M. Cole.

* * *

STEPPING INTO a hot spot is a repetition of history in Mason's case. He left his lumber business in North Chelmsford, Mass., in 1954 and took over at FHA after his predecessor was bounced.

Mason's assignment was to pick up the pieces after Congress turned up evidence that FHA did little to stop chiseling by some home improvement firms or to recover excess profits from builders of apartment projects who obtained loans for more than the projects cost.

The pieces were picked up.

For many men, Mason's new job would be even more unwelcome. He must defend before Congress a housing program which — except for the FHA sections — he had no hand in preparing.

Mason said he is satisfied with the Administration's blueprint because, he said, it fits his idea of the proper role of the federal government in the housing field.

His idea: "To make it possible for people to do things for themselves."

Small, stout and now gray, Mason was born in Willsboro, N. Y., Dec. 24, 1896. The family moved to Plattsburgh, N.Y., 14 years later, when his father set up a lumber and hardware business there.

* * *

MASON WORKED in the hardware store, signed on with the Navy in World War I, and married Helen Proctor, daughter of a North Chelmsford lumber dealer.

When his father died in 1923, Mason liquidated the Plattsburgh business and joined the William P. Proctor Lumber Co. in North Chelmsford. He was executive officer and treasurer of the Proctor firm for many year, was twice elected president of the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association, was a director of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and an adviser to a long list of government agencies.

Nothing Off Base About This Story

Make lamps of cut down table legs and "antique" them to match your real antiques. Wood shutters can be finished this way, as well as picture frames and other wood items.

Preliminary sanding is not necessary, as the rough surface of the wood increases the antique effect. By the one-step, dry brush method you can also eliminate completely the old custom of wiping off as you go with a dry cloth.

All you do is dip the brush into the paint, and remove the excess by pressing the brush against the edges of the paint can. Finish "drying" the bristles by brushing smoothly on a testing surface until most of the paint is removed.

Then apply the brush lightly to the article to be painted, using light strokes so the highlights of the wood grain or raised surfaces produce an interesting finish.

Paint-brushes having nylon bristles are best for dry-brush painting of un-sanded surfaces. This type of bristle does not wear as readily as natural hair bristles.

The Finish Depends On a Careful Start

Stain will not take too well over fir plywood without a special preparation. This is because of the variations of grain in this type of wood, which tends to "take" the stain unevenly.

Your hardware or paint dealer will sell you a sealer made especially for fir plywood. There are two kinds—so make sure you ask for the type used when the finish coat is to be clear, such as varnish.

After the sealer has dried thoroughly, apply a mahogany stain, wiping if off quickly if you want a light shade and letting it stand several minutes if you want a dark shade.

It might be well to experiment on a piece of scrap fir plywood to determine how long to let the stain penetrate in order to get the desired color.

Varnish is perfectly satisfactory as a finish coat. But remember that some persons consider a high gloss too overpowering on walls. It might be better to use a flat varnish, which will provide an excellent wearing surface without the high gloss.

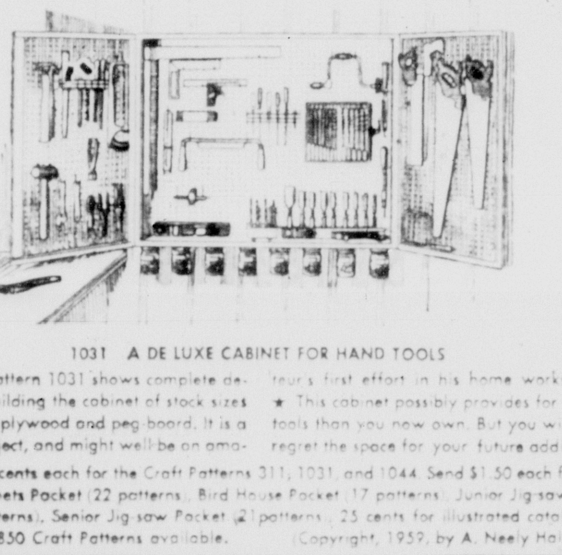
CRAFT PATTERNS

BY A. NEELY HALL

For the Home Workshop

1044 AN ASSEMBLY BENCH

★ The most complete home workshops, and the small shop that must disappear between jobs for lack of space, need this brutally strong portable assembly bench. For Scout, or some other community craft work, the bench is almost indispensable. End pedals bring base casters into action at the touch of a foot, allowing the bench to shift from spot to spot, or swing about to convenient working angles, or for better light conditions. Another touch of the foot retracts the casters and the bench again rests solidly upon the floor. Craft Pattern 1044 shows complete drawings for building the bench from ¾" plywood with little waste. 18-room bird house is Pattern 311.



1031 A DE LUXE CABINET FOR HAND TOOLS

★ Craft Pattern 1031 shows complete details for building the cabinet of stock sizes of boards, plywood and peg-board. It is a simple project, and might well be an amateur's first effort in his home workshop.
★ This cabinet possibly provides for more tools than you now own. But you will not regret the space for your future additions.

★ Send 35 cents each for the Craft Patterns 311, 1031, and 1044. Send $1.50 each for the Home Cabinets Packet (22 patterns), Bird House Packet (17 patterns), Junior Jig-saw Packet (19 patterns), Senior Jig-saw Packet (21 patterns). 25 cents for illustrated catalog of more than 850 Craft Patterns available.

Metal's In The Wind

New ideas for using metal, still on the drawing boards and in the laboratories, may revolutionize homebuilding in the 1960s.

House & Home, the housing industry magazine, reports in a recent issue that metal producers, designers and fabricators are working on new ideas which may score the breakthrough which has so far eluded them.

They have cause for optimism. For the first time they are developing plans which make the most of the advantages metal has over other materials. In the past they have often offered metal as a substitute for other materials.

Now, new components will exploit metal's advantages, like fast and easy fabrication in a factory, and its strength and light weight.

This means the metal home probably will be a much different structure from the conventional house of today, House & Home predicts. For instance, consider a new and still experimental panel developed by engineer Paul Kratzmaier of Neoteric International Ltd. of Nassau, the Bahamas. Kratzmaier has invented three basic metal shapes which slide together to form a sturdy, precise and ingenious interlocking system. The joints form strong beams or columns for roof or wall.

A house made of such panels would have these advantages, says Kratzmaier: It would cost less than half as much as a comparable conventional house, including fixed utility costs. It could be erected in 60 man hours, would require no nails, screws, welding or riveting. It would need no gasketing, adhesives or covering strips. It would be fire, termite, rodent and rot resistant.

The house also would take only 1-25th the shipping space of a conventional prefab home, weigh 1-16th as much, require a much lighter foundation. It would need no finishing materials except paint and exceed the performance requirements of basic codes.

Research in the use of aluminum in homebuilding is already showing up on building sites. Reynolds Aluminum is showing builders how to use a host of new products ranging from sills and siding to insulation and interior trim. Alcoa has developed two new aluminum roofings. Kaiser is producing new Diamond-Rif aluminum sheets in panel sizes, to be used in patio screens and fences and carport roofs.

The big producers are also turning to entirely new building systems. Kaiser has pioneered construction of aluminum geodesic domes, also plans integrated roof and wall panel systems of aluminum. Aloca is testing experimental wall panels at Pennsylvania State College. Several aluminum fabricators are working on cheaper roof and floor decking systems.

Builder-developer John Stelling of Tampa is building 2,500 homes for retirees there, using aluminum wall and roof panels. The project is one of the first and most important uses of so-called sandwich panels in a homebuilding tract.

Construction is so simple a house can be erected in a single day. And they sell for an astonishingly low $10 per sq ft ($5,990 for a 600 sq ft home). The panels were designed by V. E. Anderson Co. and are fabricated by Bellaire Products, both of Bradenton.

More steel fabricators are also looking to homebuilding. US Steel has announced that its US Steel homes subsidiary, maker of prefabs, will build only steel-framed houses from now on.

I-beams and other members basic to industrial and commercial building are being studied by producers and designers to see how they can be adapted to home-building. The need for painting exposed steel has held back its acceptance. But this problem is being solved by better protective paints and coatings and by cheaper non-corrosive steels.

Home Builders Hope Congress Remembers '58

CHICAGO —(AP)— The 15th annual convention of the National Association of Home Builders opens today. On hand are leaders of a 40,000-member organization that knows its future depends on what happens in the next few weeks to housing legislation now in the congressional mill.

Last year started with the same uncertainty. But the industry's amazing comeback on the strength of government financing helped to arrest the recession.

Out on the corn fields and the potato farms, builders merrily hammered away at an assortment of split levels, ranches and two-story colonials, creating new and enlarging old communities under the beneficent stimulus of easy money.

One of the first things the Federal Government did, when it became convinced the 1957-58 recession was real, was pass a bill to stimulate housing. This bill lowered down payments and eased the path for channeling more money into home building.

The results were quite spectacular. Home building starts in February, before passage of the government bill, had slumped to the lowest level for that month in nine years. Private starts were at an annual rate of only 890,000 homes.

From then on the trend was upward until near yearend, when a slight slump developed. The year's residential construction ran between 1,100,000 and 1,200,000 homes, enough to cause further growing pains in Mortgage Manor.

Although business spending for commercial and industrial building lagged, other sections of the construction industry expanded. The national highway program started to pick up speed. More money was spent on schools, hospitals and similar buildings.

For the full year it was estimated new construction totaled $49,200,000,000.

While there is some worry money won't be quite as easy to borrow in 1959, the combined opinion of authorities in the construction field is that 1959 will be a better year than 1958. It may well be a better year than all the other years that have gone before it.

New housing starts, which depend to a large extent on the availability of money, provide the chief worry for 1959.

The demand for homes depends upon the number of buyers who can borrow lots of money at low cost. As interest rates rise, the amount of money available at the fixed interest level of VA (4¾ per cent) and FHA (5¼ per cent) loans dwindles.

Some experts feel inflation will send interest rates higher next year, thus choking off the amount of money available for housing. This feeling, however, is disputed by others, who contend inflation will be contained and new housing starts, therefore, should be about the same as in 1958.

Other components of the construction industry — notably highways, schools and sewers — are expected to be built at a record pace. It is generally believed new construction in 1959 will exceed 50 billion dollars for the first time in history.

As the suburbs and the exurbs boomed, social students continued to point out defects in the happy, happy world created by the great housing boom.

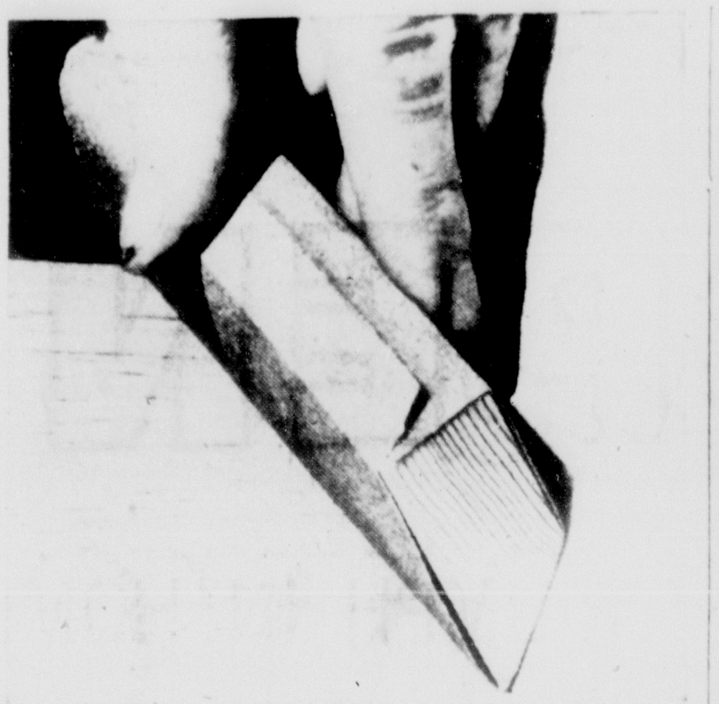
One of the most serious was the disappearance of open country around some major cities. It no longer was possible to drive leisurely out into the countryside. There was no countryside. Everything looked like Brooklyn extended.

Poor planning left communities without parks, playgrounds or swimming pools. Many schools continued on double sessions. Taxes mounted and commuters found a growing transportation crisis made it more difficult to get into the central city.

An increasing number of novelists looked at the suburbs. They found sex there, too.

Love Count

Of the five largest cities in the country, Los Angeles alone showed an increase in marriages in 1957.



SANDING tools in special shapes, rather than merely blocks, often ease the job. A block with beveled edge permits working close to corners, as pictured. (Copyright, Better Homes and Gardens)

A Veto Looks Like a Good Bet

Democrats to Push for Housing Bill

By EDWARD COWAN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate and House Democratic leadership has passed the word to Democrats to produce a housing measure as quickly as possible.

If the legislation doesn't get bogged down in lengthy hearings or by intra-party differences, housing may turn out to be the battleground for the first major test of strength with the Administration.

The betting in many offices on Capital Hill is that President Eisenhower will veto the bill on grounds it is too extravagant.

Behind this expectation are: The heavy Democratic majority in Congress, a majority with a liberal bent when it comes to issues such as housing.

The President's determination, already announced and to be detailed in the new budget Monday, to hold government spending to an irreducible minimum.

If the bill is vetoed, Senate majority leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D., Tex.) and House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) will energetically marshall their forces in an attempt to muster the two-thirds vote necessary to override the veto.

Confident of winning, the leadership may welcome such a trial sooner rather than later. How soon it can be brought about remains to be seen. Johnson spoke of getting a housing measure to the White House by Feb. 1, but congressional aides believe he was too optimistic.

Although hearings were held on last year's bill, a measure that died in the House and another reason for this year's haste, it is doubted that the lawmakers can whip through a bill, even one substantially unchanged from last year's, without giving the various interest groups a chance to be heard.

Mainly because of the press of the business of getting organized and into the legislating groove, House members are not expected to be ready to give full consideration to a housing bill, or to hold hearings, before the end of this month.

As for the Senate, although Sen. John Sparkman (D., Ala), chairman of the Housing subcommittee, has indicated a feeling that only brief hearings would be necessary, there have been rumblings from other subcommittee members.

It is understood they think the bill Sparkman introduced last week is too skimpy in some respects. Full hearings would help them develop a case for more ample legislation.

The bill, when it comes, will be broad. It will include authority or funds for mortgage insurance, college housing loans, low-rent public housing, slum clearance, GI home loans, urban planning and possibly federal mortgage support programs.

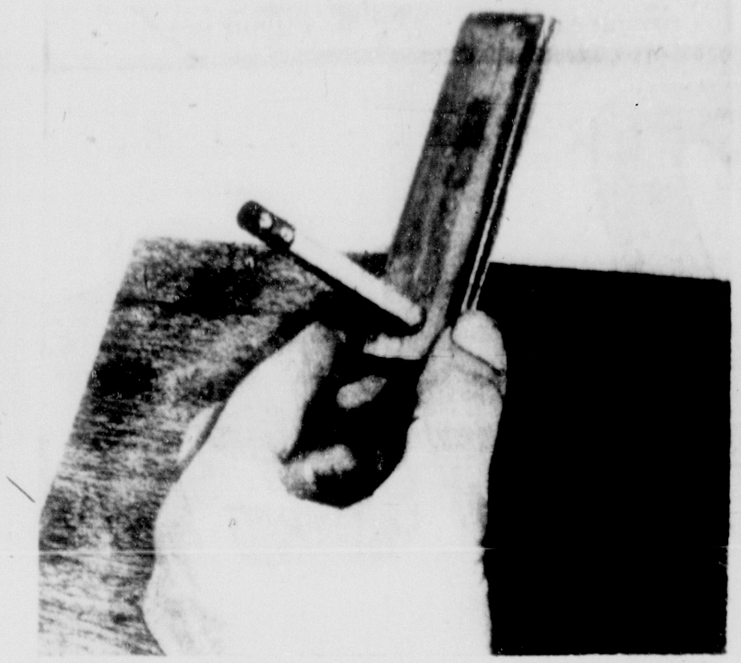
RENOVATION JOB at the Beach Tower, 6061 Collins Ave., Miami Beach, is finished and it reopens today as the Beach Tower Apartment Hotel. Remodeling of the Tower, built 20 years ago by Harold A. Clark, South Florida land developer and racing enthusiast, was supervised by architect Russell T. Pancoast. Interior designer James Merrick Smith decorated the apartments.

The Tower is now owned by Clark's widow, Charlotte Clark Husted.

Steel Yourself For This Fact

It has been estimated that about 35 per cent of all iron and steel is irretrievably lost by rusting or burial or is abandoned as worthless.

The other 65 per cent returns to the steel mills for remelting and reuse — about 20-25 per cent in a short time, the rest within thirty years or more.



MAKE-DO COMPASS for scribing jagged contours and irregularities is quick to fashion from scrap piece of plywood and a pencil. Push fit pencil in hole so you can adjust it. Square edge of scrap follows contour; pencil follow it. (Copyright, Better Homes and Gardens)

Courthouse Job Awarded

Remodeling job on the 10th floor of Dade County courthouse will be handled by Apgar and Markham at a cost of $773,000, according to Miami Builders Exchange.

Connell, Pierce, Garland and Friedman are the architects-engineers.

Statistics Depend On Your Viewpoint

The Florida Building Journal's February issue will carry results of a statewide survey that reveals many of the state's major cities suffered a sharp cutback in building activity during 1958.

David Shubow, the editor of the magazine, takes the optimistic side in a headline that says "50 Per Cent of Florida Cities Show Gains." But the table below reveals sharp losses for Miami, Hialeah, Fort Lauderdale, Hollywood, Miami Beach, North Miami, North Miami Beach and several other key cities. Bright spots are Orlando with a 75 per cent increase, Tampa, Tallahassee and Jacksonville. However, before a casual glance gives you the idea the losing cities are falling by the wayside, it must be noted that the Building Journal did not get a single reply from a county building department. With most cities running out of building sites (consider Miami and Miami Beach) building permit valuations must show a decline.

But Dade County reports 19,842 permits issued in 1958 for work in the unincorporated area valued at $120,488,264. In 1957, the totals were 18,351 permits valued at $112,715,524.

Here in Dade last year, permits were issued for 7,937 single family homes valued at $80,289,281. In 1957, only 6,611 permits were issued with valuation of $65,166,219.

There was a slight decrease last year in the unincorporated areas of Broward County, but nothing like the Fort Lauderdale and Hollywood figures would indicate. In 1958, the county permits totaled $68,477,385. This included 5,485 home permits valued at $51,726,041. In 1957, the grand country total was $71,370,461 with 5,936 home permits valued at $53,324,069.

O. D. Peavy, zoning and building director for Brevard County, reports $27,827,947 worth of permits issued in 1958, but there are no comparison figures because the county didn't start keeping records until January, 1958. However, Peavy believes last year's figure is a substantial increase over 1957.

Below are the figures compiled by Florida Building Journal.

Builders Off for Chicago

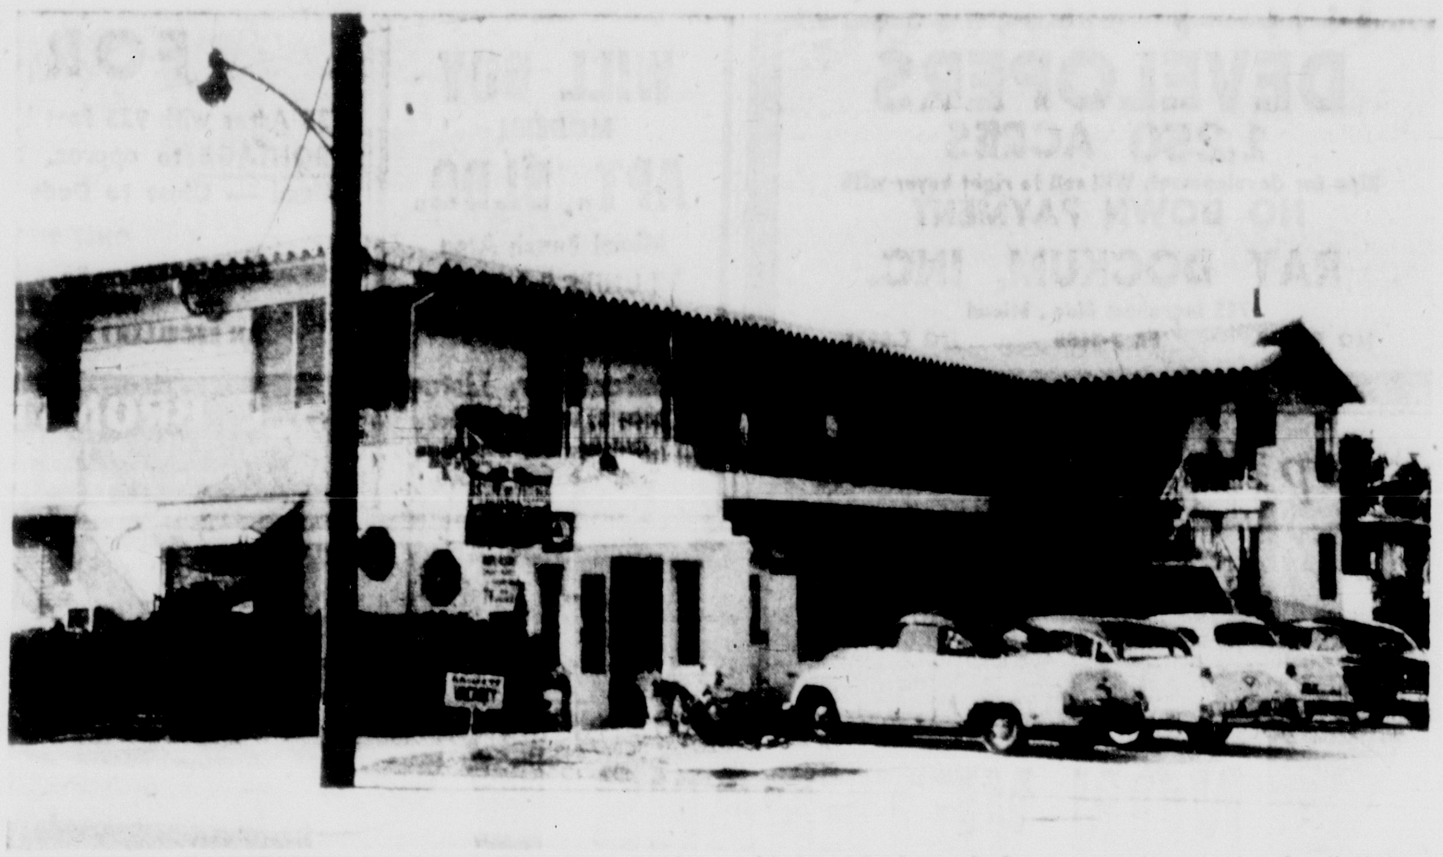
Paul B. Martin, president of the Home Builders Association of South Florida, will lead a delegation of 65 to the national convention opening today in Chicago.

More than 30,000 builders and manufacturers of building materials will be on hand for the five-day convention.

Among the headline speakers are George Romney, president of American Motors; George W. Reed of London, former president of the British Federation of Registered House Builders; John J. Sparkman, Norman Mason, administrator of Housing and Home Finance Agency.

Convention interest will focus on better ways of merchandising. J. W. "Bill" Underwood, chairman of the merchandising committee, will introduce the subject before a big ballroom session followed by work shop meetings throughout the remaining three days. These conferences have been the picturesque title of "Million Dollar Circle."

Industrial designer Raymond Loewy will lead a discussion on better design—better value in homes with improved design. "What research is doing for home builders" will be dramatized at another general session.



LYNWOOD APARTMENTS at 8926 Collins Ave., Surfside, has been purchased by Israel and Gregory Malin from the Poudrier Holding Co. for $110,000. There are 16 furnished one-bedroom apartments in the building. Phil Schoenberg's office sold it.

Plywood Edges Take to Cover

It now is possible to buy wood veneer strips made especially for covering plywood edges. These come in various colors and grains to match different kinds of wood.

They are glued into place and do an excellent job of covering the edges of plywood.

You'll Need Some Expert Advice

Building a new home often is the largest financial transaction in the life of an average couple. That's why it's doubly important to consult an expert — the architect.

An architect will make sure that only quality building materials are used in construction. The architect actually acts as the home owner's agent on the building site.

A Sad Day

The Liberty Bell was cracked while being tolled in memory of Chief Justice John Marshall in 1835.

Husbands Like Chairs To Fit Their Frames

"If you're going to buy your husband a new chair buy one that looks like him" . . . so said several delegates to the recent Congress of Better Living.

These women had solved the problem, at least for themselves, of how to choose the just-right comfortable chair for papa and still make it fit into a decorating scheme.

Thinking of her tall Texan, one rancher's wife commented, 'It's the inside of the chair that has to fit . . . it's not how wide the arms are, or how extra thick the back is, or whether the upholstery comes down to the floor or the chair has feet . . . that makes it comfortable for a man.

"It's whether the seat is long enough from back to front for his legs from the hip to the knee, and whether the back is slanted for resting and is high enough for his shoulders and neck."

New Battle In the Mall

NEW YORK —(AP)— Downtown merchants should provide more elbow room and breathing space for pedestrian shoppers.

GRUEN

The establishment of downtown "malls" from which all auto and truck traffic would be barred was one of several proposals aired at the 48th annual meeting of the National Retail Merchants Association here.

New York architect Victor Gruen said many downtown shopping districts have become "battlegrounds" with pedestrians and motor traffic fighting each other and "a battlefield is not a good place to do business."

Pedestrian and motor traffic should be separated, he declared. There should be a pedestrian area surrounded by stores, shops, restaurants, cultural, social, business and recreational facilities — a central mall that would "fulfill all the needs of the inhabitants of a metropolitan area in a convenient, complete and efficient manner."

On the fringe of the mall there would be underground or multilevel garages for parking, and bus or transit stops. Gruen predicted the auto will follow the horse and the railroad out of central shopping areas.

"The separation of traffic is the logical next step in historical development," he asserted. "It isn't just 'good' for downtown, it represents the only possible means for its survival."

Gruen did some preliminary planning for a downtown mall in Miami and discussed his ideas two years at a dinner for business and civic leaders. But there was little response to a call for financial backing of more detailed investigation of the idea.

In a vigorous dissent Seymour Stillman of Community Housing and Planning Associates, New York, said malls are not the answer.

"If one must accept the portrait of downtown as a patient on its deathbed, then the mall-bearers offer an asprin to cure a brain tumor," he declared. "What is needed is not 'a' plan but a basket of plans."

An over-all program would include zoning and tax change, coordinating of transportation, and a financing plan as well as architectural innovations, he added.

Details of a "ride-'n'-shop" plan to lure downtown shoppers with free bus tokens were outlined by Philip Zeller Jr., executive secretary of Downtown Toledo Associates in Ohio.

The association, which is sponsored by Toledo merchants, buys bus tokens in bulk at a 5 per cent discount. Each downtown-bound bus rider gets a coupon when she climbs aboard.

After being stamped or punched in a member store, the coupon is exchangeable for two 20-cent tokens — one to get the shopper home and another to bring her back downtown at some later time.

Many merchants dislike the plan because they consider giveaways a vicious evil, Zeller said, but we are living in an age of giveaways and suburban shopping centers are "giving away free parking" in an attempt to draw shoppers from downtown.

He said downtown associations providing "ride-'n'-shop" privileges must also provide free parking because to have one without the other "would be discriminatory."

Ike Calls for Planning

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Eisenhower wants careful planning of the development of America's cities instead of haphazard growth and unsound financing.

"We must see that this growth is not like that of Topsy," the President said at a meeting of the Association of State Planning and Development agencies.

Eisenhower said it seems clear that in the not-too-distant future the Eastern seaboard from Portland, Maine, to Norfolk, Va., will be one continuous urban area.

"A new term — megalopolis — has already slipped into our vocabulary to describe these giant groupings of central cities and suburbs," the President said.

Then he added that such growth must be carefully planned.

He said the federal government stands ready to stimulate such planning at the state and local levels, but added "we are equally determined not to supersede local responsibility."

Eisenhower also said the planning should be based on needs objectively determined, and not just on desirable projects, in order to make the dollars go as far as possible.

With the population increasing rapidly, more first-rate people must be attracted into the planning profession, Eisenhower said.

"We are a nation on the move; from country to city, from central city to suburbs, from metropolitan areas to urbanized regions in the corridors between metropolitan areas," Eisenhower continued.

"In the decade just past, more than 12 million people have moved to the suburbs — the largest population movement in the shortest time of our history. Today, the suburbs grow seven times as fast as the cities.

Japan Now First

Britain Slumps In Shipbuilding

Industry Founders

The worst slump in more than 25 years has hit Britain's once-mighty shipbuilding industry. Japan has taken her place as the world's No. 1 builder of ships, and West Germany threatens to oust her from second place.

If the decline continues, officials fear a return to the mass unemployment of the Thirties in the grimy cities of the river estuaries where the industry once flourished.

LONDON — (UPI) — Britain's once-mighty shipbuilding industry is wallowing today in its worst slump in more than 25 years.

Japan outstripped Britain more than two years ago as the world's No. 1 builder of ships. And booming West Germany now appears to be on the verge of easing Britain out of second place.

If the slump in Britain's shipyards continues, officials fear a return to the mass unemployment of the "hungry thirties" in the grimy cities of the Tyne, Tees and Clyde river estuaries. They are the heart of the nation's shipbuilding industry.

In 1956, for the first time, Japan built more ships than Britain. In 1957, with 433 ships totaling 2,432,506 tons, Japan's output was nearly double Britain's 260 ships of 1,510,000 tons. West Germany was a close third with 418 ships totaling 1,231,000 tons.

Final figures for 1958 are not yet available. But J. A. Milne, president of Britain's Shipbuilding Conference, warned that the 1959 outlook is "less bright" and that "some redundancy" — in other words, unemployment — in the British shipbuilding industry is in store this year.

Milne said the industry entered 1959 with 5,500,000 tons of orders, worth about $2,240,000,000 on its books. About 1,000,000 tons, valued at $364,000,000, are for export.

But, Milne pointed out, these include practically no new orders. Some smaller firms have reported serious difficulty in getting any new orders at all, and they are the most likely to be hit first.

Milne's warning followed earlier official disclosures that orders for more than 300,000 tons of shipping in British shipyards were canceled during 1958 because of the world-wide shipping slump.

Britain's shipping exports have taken a disastrous nose-dive in recent years.

In 1955 she exported 539,000 tons, but by 1957 this was slashed to 261,000 tons. Exports of ships in 1958 were expected to total only about 208,000 tons.

The industry reported that not a single new foreign order was received by British shipbuilders during the first eight months of 1958.

The most disturbing feature of the whole situation to the British industry is the fact that Japan and West Germany, whose shipyards were virtually wiped out in World War II, have surged ahead so fast.

As a result, both Japan and West Germany have completely new shipyards, far more modern in every way than those of this country.

Figures published by Lloyds show that the average time for construction of a ship in British yards is about 18 months, and only nine months in Japan and West Germany.

Repeated strikes and crippling labor practices in Britain's shipyards also are held responsible by the builders for the declining position of the industry in this country.

LEON HART—a human tornado who used to play football for Notre Dame? Hart, carrying 225 pounds on a 6-foot, 5-inch frame, was close to unstoppable as an end or fullback. In the fall of '49, he collected practically every major football award, was named an end on all All-America teams. He switched to the pro Detroit Lions in 1950 and labored in their livery for seven years before retiring.

Today at 30, the greatest football player ever to come out of Turtle Creek, Pa., is living in Birmingham, Mich., with his wife and four children. Hart's chief business interest now is a Volkswagen agency at Flint, Mich., which he owns.

It Only Hurts When It Pays

SEATTLE —(AP)— C. W. Liston stuck his neck out — and held it there while a city bus closed its doors on the neck three times. It was all in the line of duty.

An assistant in the city claims department, Liston was trying to prove to an awe-struck jury that lined the sidewalk that having a bus door shut on one's neck didn't really hurt at all.

The jury didn't believe him and awarded Mrs. Mirdza Toland, who had testified it hurt her plenty, $9,500.

Dictate letters by means of a built-in tape recorder; brew coffee, tea or cook breakfast on an attached hot plate; speak to any room in the house or answer the doorbell over an intercom system; raise or lower the head and foot of either side of the bed; open and close windows; turn off lights; make phone calls; watch TV and shave.

The "special" currently being featured by Florida Fruit Packers and Shippers means good news to their customers.

"For a limited time," announced Norman N. Katz, owner, "shipments of premium Indian Temple oranges and grapefruit may be ordered at the same price as shipments of regular oranges.

"Since Temple oranges are a premium variety and usually higher in price, this will mean a considerdale saving to those ordering at this time. Temple oranges, especially those from the famous Indian River district, often are acclaimed as the world's finest eating orange. The are golden red and easy to peel."

Florida Fruit Packers and Shippers, Inc., formerly Cooper's, has a 25-year background of shipping quality citrus. This pioneer firm specializes in spot-picking only the "best of the grove" for their customers.

"The prized Mineola Tangelos also are ready for shipment," said Roger Barnes, manager. "These are a rare variety, a deep, rich red in appearance and exotic in flavor.

"In limited supply, Mineola Tangelos rarely are obtainable in the North. This delightful fruit invariably evokes pleased and gratified surprise from those who receive these fine gift packages.

"Remember, all phone and mail orders are filled promptly. To order by phone, call us at PLaza 4-9616. A letter or post card to our firm at 261 NW 36th St. will bring full information about gift packages available for shipment.

"Many local residents like to stop by and get some fresh, tree ripened fruit to take home. People come from all parts of Dade County for our special fresh-squeezed orange juice and premium citrus."

Featuring varieties of citrus not generally found in northern markets, Florida Fruit Packers describes their baskets as "prize packs."

"We guarantee safe delivery," Katz said. "And we ship only first quality fruit, in new containers.

"Since Cooper's customers always have demanded the best, we are buying only the finest fruit available. To do this we send our own pickers into carefully selected Indian River groves with instructions to 'spot-pick' only the finest tree ripened fruit. Naturally, this costs us more, but it assures our customers of better fruit.

"Gift packages of oranges, grapefruit, jellies and candies are as popular with friends and relatives in Miami as they are up north. We have various sizes and types available in all price ranges.

Low Cost Roof Coating Kits Are Easy to Use

Complete do-it-yourself roof coating kits now are available for the low price of $24.50, at Everwhite Products, 3577 W. Flagler St.

"These kits contain all the materials needed to clean and coat the roof of an average size home," says M. J. Spellman, owner of the firm.

Developed for the do-it-yourself home owner, each roof coating kit contains Everwhite cleaning compound, two brushes, and a specially prepared roof coating.

"This is a gleaming white roof coating," Spellman said, "that last longer, repels water better, resists mildew and mold, and costs less than many other products.

"For more than a year, we have been testing this coating on roofs throughout South Florida. We are satisfied that we have as nearly perfect a combination of ingredients as it is possible to find.

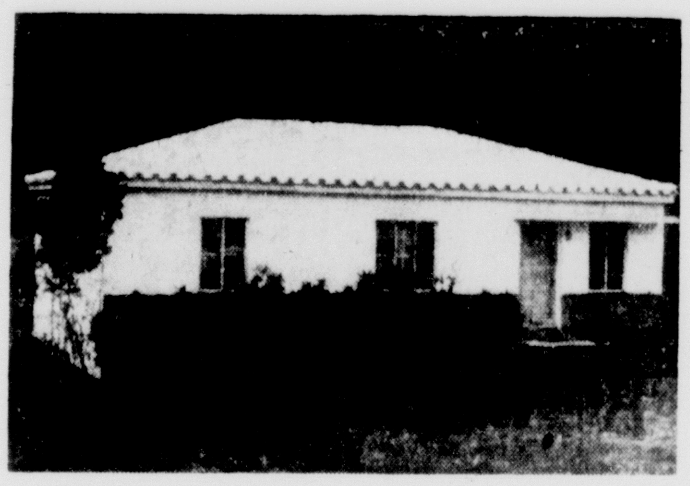
"The present coating, as a result of experimentation, is heavy with cement and lacking completely in sand. It is strengthened with titanium and a waterproofing compound. It also contains a powerful fungicide to ward off the formation of unsightly mold and mildew.

"Another item featured at Everwhite Products is Everwhite cleaning compound. It works miracles on tile, terrazzo, porcelain and other similar surfaces.

"And what a timesaver it is in tile bathrooms! You just rub it over the tile, let it stand a few minutes and then wipe it off. All mildew and mold are removed, and your bathroom looks spotless."

Everwhite Products sells their cleaning compound for only $1.50 a quart.

Further information and free delivery of Everwhite roof coating kits may be obtained by calling Spellman at HIghland 5-2727.



ECONOMICAL roof cleaning and coating are possible when a special do-it-yourself kit is used. The roof on the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Brady, 1500 NW 133rd St., shown above, was cleaned and coated with an Everwhite Products do-it-yourself kit. Everwhite cleaning compound also is available.

MAINSTREAM of AMERICA

From Messenger To Steel Tycoon

Carnegie Made It

By STEWART HOLBROOK

THE HONOR of first taking notice of the future steelmaster of America belongs to the Pittsburgh Gazette. On November 2, 1849, that newspaper printed a heart-warming little story about a messenger boy for the O'Reilly Telegraph Company, a small and sprightly immigrant from Scotland named Andrew Carnegie.

He had found in the street a draft for five hundred dollars, and, "like an honest little fellow, promptly made known the fact and deposited the paper in good hands, where it awaits identification."

The honest little fellow was almost fourteen. Within a few more months he went to work for the Pennsylvania Railroad, whose operating genius, Tom Scott, made Carnegie his private secretary, and later superintendent of the road's Pittsburgh division.

* * *

WHILE employed by the railroad, the young man invested what cash he had saved, and more that he borrowed, in a firm that made iron bridges, a healthy business in an era when railroads were expanding rapidly.

Carnegie also got to know the Kloman brothers of Pittsburgh, whose plant was turning out the finest railroad-car axles on the market. The Klomans were doing very well, but they needed more capital.

With the help of his brother Tom, and two friends named Tom Miller and Henry Phipps, Carnegie supplied the needed cash. The four men became partners of the Klomans.

The iron business was booming. Carnegie resigned his job with the railroad. He combined the iron-bridge firm with his Kloman interest to form the Union Iron Mills, which was prepared, at exactly the right time, to roll the huge beams needed to span the western rivers over which the Union Pacific must lay its tracks.

* * *

ANDREW CARNEGIE knew little about iron, then or later, but he was possibly the greatest traveling salesman of his time. He may have been also the smallest, for he stood five feet four inches, weighed 130 pounds, and was extremely vain of his number five feet.

There was nothing small, however, about the orders Carnegie brought in. The Union Iron Mills roared and thundered constantly. They had been roaring and thundering no longer than two years when Carnegie felt it was time the most gifted of the partners should take absolute management.

Carnegie proceeded typically to deprecate the company's future, telling partner Tom Miller that the good days had passed. After emanating pessimism for a good while, and even talking of trying to sell his own stock, Carnegie discovered a naive person named David A. Stewart who said he wanted to buy into Union.

He did so, buying the shares owned by Tom Miller. Only after the sale had been consummated did it become clear that no matter who David A. Stewart was, the new and real owner of Miller's interest was Carnegie. From this point on, there was no question as to which partner in Union Iron Mills was boss man.

* * *

IN 1867, when Andrew Carnegie came to dominate Union Iron Mills, he saw that if his company was to grow into the biggest ironmaker in the United States, as he intended it should, then it must continuously get more and larger orders. The one incomparable place to obtain orders was New York City.

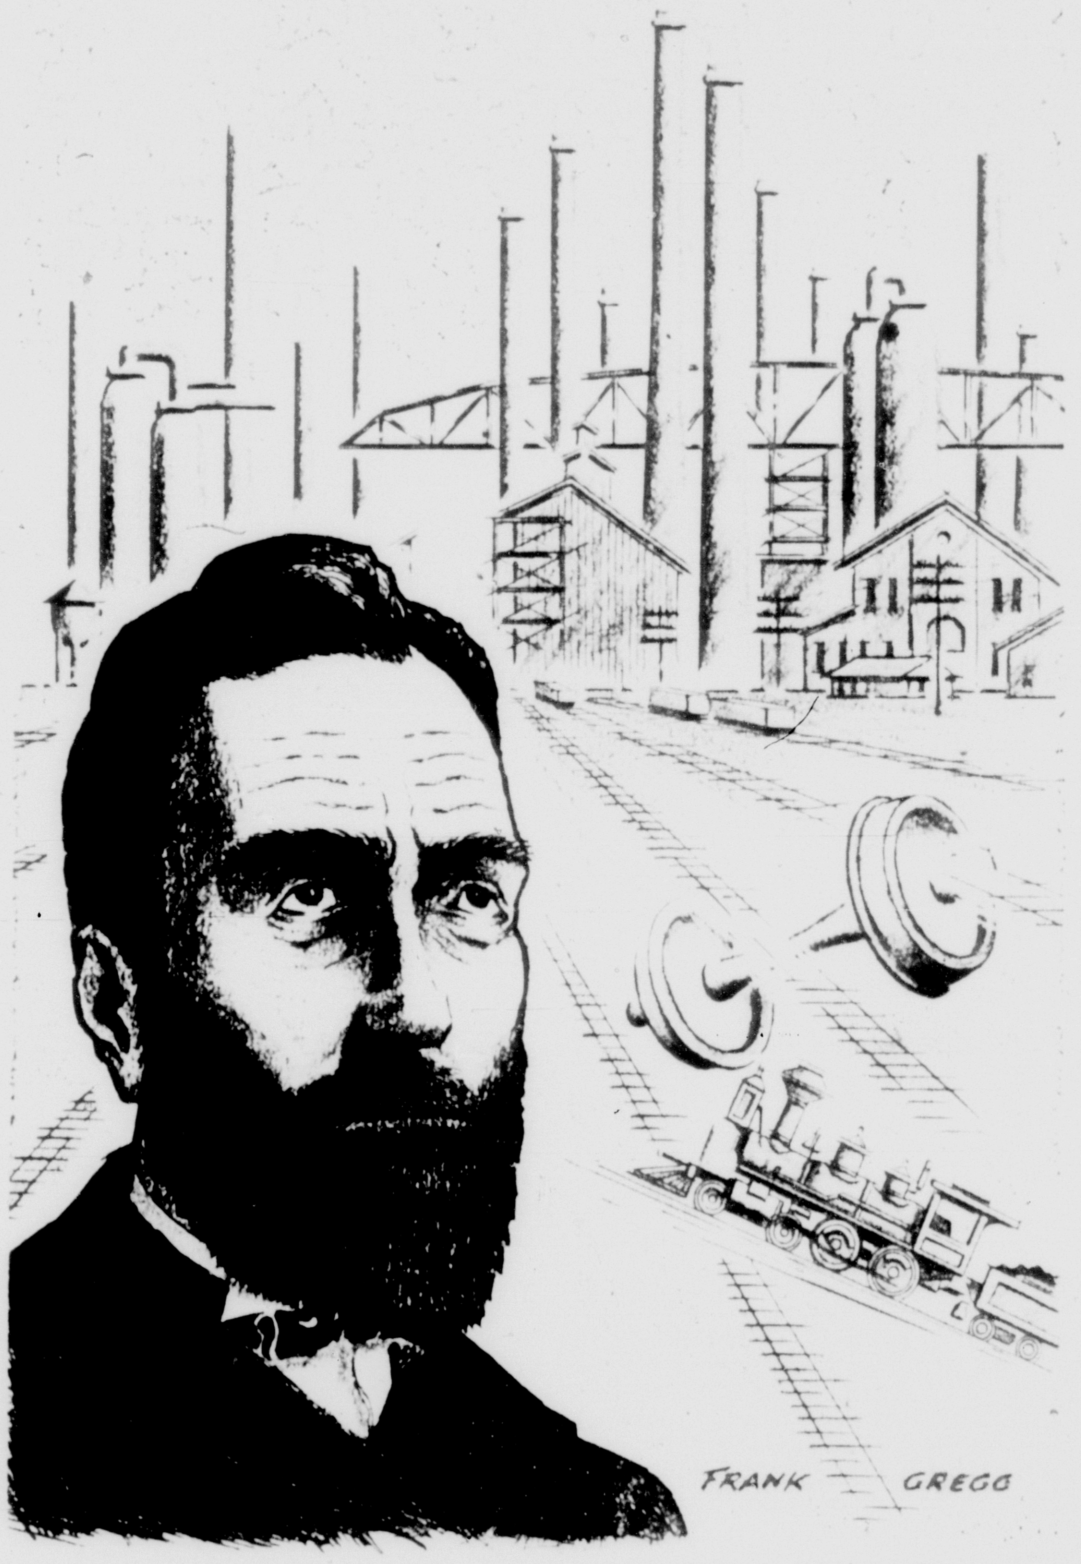
With his widowed mother, who had made him, her oldest son, promise never to marry as long as she lived, Carnegie moved to the metropolis and took living quarters in the St. Nicholas Hotel.

In Broad Street he opened an office on the door of which was no notice of the Union Iron Mills. The sign said: Andrew Carnegie, Investments. Carnegie was no man to have one iron in the fire.

A year after his arrival in New York, Carnegie set down specific plans for his future. They appear radically different from the ambitions of other rising young men of the era, and equally different from what actually happened.

First noting that he was thirty-three, he next wrote, "and (have) an income of $50,000 per annum!" He told himself he must so arrange his business as to secure $50,000 every year, but "Beyond this never earn." He would go to England, "settle in Oxford and get a thorough education." He would make "the acquaintance of literary men."

He would then go to London and buy a controlling interest in some newspaper or review. He would also take part in public affairs, "especially those connected with education and improvement of the poorer classes."



What Made Our Giants Tick?

This is another installment from the Stewart Holbrook book "The Age Of Our Moguls." Published by Doubleday and taken from the pages of American history, it deals with the men who gave birth to the very heart of American industry.

* * *

"NO IDOL," he remarked twice in the memorandum, was "more debasing than the worship of money." Therefore, he would "resign business (in two years) at thirty-five." (Carnegie's abdication of business came not two but thirty-two years later.)

The investments sign Andrew Carnegie put on the door of his first office in New York was not for effect. Within the next four years he placed thirty million dollars' worth of American securities in England and on the Continent, many with the London house of Junius S. Morgan & Company.

Carnegie was not neglecting Union Iron Mills. His increasingly large orders began to exceed Union's capacity. But Andy Carnegie had a few blind spots. One of these was his stout opposition to the new process of making steel from pig iron in ten minutes.

Tom Carnegie and Henry Phipps had seen a Bessemer converter at work in Johnston, Pennsylvania, and another in Cleveland. They urged adoption of the Bessemer process. Andy Carnegie demurred. This meant no.

So Tom Carnegie and his father-in-law, William Coleman, who had often aided the brothers with both cash and sound advice, decided to go ahead without Andrew. They bought land twelve miles up the Monongahela, where General Braddock was defeated by the French and Indians, and interested several well-to-do Pittsburghers in putting up a new plant to make steel by the Bessemer process. The panic of 1873 caused the work to be dropped temporarily.

* * *

THE TROUBLES of '73 gave Andy Carnegie a chance to freeze the Kloman brothers out of Union Mills. Andy also changed his mind about the Bessemer process and asked to buy into the new steel plant.

The mill at Braddock was the largest and finest in the world. It was designed by an authentic genius named Alexander Holley. To operate it Holley brought to Braddock a first-generation Welsh American, Captain Bill Jones, who had been working in iron or steel since the age of ten. The title of Captain stuck to Jones after his gallant record as a soldier in the Civil War.

As a steelmaster Captain Bill Jones was fully fifty years ahead of his time. Convinced that men should not be driven twelve hours at a stretch in the little hells of steel manufacture, he installed three eight-hour shifts at Braddock. His men made one production record after another.

No matter in what form great ability appeared, Andrew Carnegie recognized it. In Captain Jones he had the peerless steelmaster of all, and he sought to have Jones buy stock in the company.

Jones knew nothing of stocks and bonds except that he did not wish to be bothered with them. "But I tell you what you can do for me, Andy," Captain Bill shouted above the thunder of the rolling mill. "You can pay me one hell of a salary." Andy did so, too, giving him $25,000 a year, the same salary paid to the President of the United States. Captain Bill was content.

* * *

IN MAY of 1889, Captain Bill gave dramatic proof of his ability to command in even a wider field than the immense plants of what had become the Carnegie Steel Company.

A dam had broken near Johnstown, Pennsylvania, and let go a flood. Captain Bill waited for orders from nobody. He blew the big whistle and called for volunteers. Hundreds of his men climbed aboard a special train, already loaded with supplies, and away they went to the scene of the tragedy. In the stricken city, Captain Bill and his devoted men did heroic work in rescue and relief.

But Captain Bill's end was near. On the twenty-eighth of September, in the year of the flood, one of the great furnaces at Braddock got to acting badly. It had a "hang." The molten metal was not flowing as it should. Captain Bill went to see about it just as the furnace exploded with a roar that was heard in Pittsburgh twelve miles away. Six helpers were turned to cinders where they stood. Captain Bill was blown backward and died from burns and a fractured skull.

It was a proper way for death to call for Captain Bill Jones, in a slag pit, and with his boots on.

There was only one man to take the Captain's place. That was his trusted assistant, young Charlie Schwab, who was put in charge at Braddock.

* * *

CARNEGIE'S influence was so great in regard to railroad steel that uncounted tons of rails piled up in the Duquesne Steel Company's yard, because he predicted a big future for them.

Pretty soon, too, the Duquesne people were glad to sell out to Carnegie. The arrangements for adding Duquesne to the Carnegie group were in the hands of Carnegie's new manager, Henry Clay Frick.

Frick was already a millionaire and notable as the "king of coke" before he accepted Carnegie's invitation to consolidate the various Carnegie properties into a single and smoothly running corporation. He was also to be one of many in the company to whom Carnegie and all others granted the honor of "Mister." He was that sort of man.

Henry Clay Frick was born in the year of the California gold rush in Pennsylvania, where he worked on his father's farm, got a little, though not much, schooling, and spent a year as bookkeeper in the distillery of his maternal grandfather, who was none other than Old Overholt himself. While still retaining this job, he and a few carefully selected associates built and operated coke ovens in the Connellsville coal region.

By 1879 more than a thousand men were digging Frick's coal, then baking it for forty-eight hours until it turned into gray lumps. On December 19 of that year, when he had turned thirty, Frick spent a few hours with his well-kept accounts (he "hated messed-up figures and sloppy writing all his life") and learned that he was worth a little more than one million dollars.

* * *

TOM CARNEGIE considered this king of coke as a young man of great abilities. He urged brother Andrew to buy into the coke monopoly. Andrew listened to Tom, and was permitted to buy a modest amount of Frick & Company stock. He learned too that Mr. Frick planned to run his company as he had run it in the past, the way he thought best.

Frick had announced an increase of a million dollars in capitalization of the coke company. Andrew Carnegie didn't approve, and wrote Frick a peremptory letter. Mr. Frick promptly wrote Mr. Carnegie, "I do not like the tone of your letter." Then he put through the capitalization as planned.

Frick was obviously a man who was going somewhere. Mr. Carnegie proposed that Mr. Frick become general manager of all the Carnegie properties and a stockholder in the company. Mr. Frick thought it over and casually accepted. One of his first jobs, as related, was to buy the fine new plant at Duquesne. From there, he went on to assemble this and other mills into a solid, compact, harmonious whole.

It is of interest to know that all of the mills of the group were soon making steel rails by the same direct rolling process as that pioneered at the Duquesne, one which, only a couple of years before, had appeared to little Andy to be a hideous menace to the railroads and an even greater danger to the life and limb of the traveling public.

* * *

THE FUTURE held great things for Mr. Frick. It also held many trials, and the greatest of these

Mikoyan, On His Visit, Can See Us As We Are

Views On The News:

THE VISIT to the United States by Anastas I. Mikoyan has been the greatest road show since last year's triumphal tour of the Moiseyev dancers.

The shrewd little Soviet deputy prime minister with the Hitler mustache set a pace in his cross country junket that even our sturdiest presidential candidates will find hard to match.

KNIGHT

Undaunted by hostile pickets and cries of "murderer, go home," Mikoyan managed to charm a few capitalists and win grudging admiration from the rest.

Holding babies in his lap and hamming it up with Jerry Lewis were all part of the act. He visited supermarkets, admired our ladies, joked about parking problems and tossed off American-made vodka with evident enjoyment.

When the sun broke through a dull sky in Detroit, Mikoyan cracked to Henry Ford that the capitalists can even make the sun shine. Henry, a fast man on the verbal draw, retorted, "Why we thought you could."

Mikoyan was impressed with Chicago's lake front and its diversified industry. In New York, he found Macy's "a very good store" and liked the self-service layout in the food section.

Anastas Mikoyan

. . . let there be mirth

The capitalists in Wall Street thought Mr. Khrushchev's Armenian-born deputy "made a powerful impression."

One guest said "it was that of a man whose mission it was to create good will. He spoke in suave and soothing terms. But he did not mince words in defining the Russian position."

* * *

He Didn't Captivate — But Ducked No Queries

UNDERSTANDABLY, Mikoyan provoked a wide variety of reactions in America.

There are those, like President Eisenhower, who are cautiously hopeful that the deputy prime minister's visit will create a better climate for discussing arms limitation.

The businessmen who heard Mikoyan were impressed with his knowledge of world trade and American politics.

Others, like Robert Morris, counsel to the Hungarian Federation, said that cordiality to Mr. Mikoyan was "causing our allies to doubt our ability to withstand Soviet wiles."

And Lieut. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, the Army's chief of Research and Development, expressed alarm that "many gullible people" were being influenced by Mr. Mikoyan's "smiling face" and friendly gestures.

Having attended a luncheon at the Chicago Club given for Mikoyan by Edward R. Ryerson, retired chairman of Inland Steel, I came away neither captivated nor convinced by everything I had heard.

Still, it is fair to say that Mikoyan ducked no questions, gave direct answers and talked persuasively of the need for a better understanding between the United States and Russia.

Drew Pearson recalls that Mikoyan is the man who tried to persuade Josef Stalin to accept Marshall Plan aid from the United States. He is known to be the most pro-American of the Kremlin leaders.

* * *

Just Exchanging Views Can Be Useful For Us

IT SEEMS TO ME that Americans who fear exposure to Russia's leaders either suffer from an inferiority complex, or are conceding the inevitability of war.

It was a year or more ago that President Eisenhower suggested visits by Russians "who are very important in the political world."

And why not? Any exchange of views which serves to clarify even minor points of difference is useful.

When Mr. Mikoyan said that the Kremlin did not want war and that Mr. Dulles had assured him that the United States did not want war, I asked the deputy prime minister: "What, then, is there to worry about?"

The answer came quickly: "Our respective allies."

In considerable detail, Mikoyan discussed the areas of danger. Russia would stand by her allies in the Warsaw Pact; the United States would honor her NATO alliances.

While there might be no direct conflict between the U.S. and the USSR, he continued, we could be drawn into war if our allies on either side got out of hand.

* * *

But A Divided World Won't Be Acceptable

WHAT MIKOYAN was actually saying is that the United States and Russia should divide up the world in respective spheres of influence; that other countries do not count.

This is not a view that could or ever will be accepted by our country.

But it reveals that the modern Kremlin leaders, far from resembling the bomb-tossing Bolsheviks of old, are hard-headed, pragmatic men prepared to deal and wheel with the one capitalistic nation they fear.

Mr. Mikoyan seemed pleased with our country and its people; impressed by what he saw.

Far better for the Russian leaders to know us as we are, than to reach decisions based upon faulty and incomplete information.

The freer the contacts are between us, the better our hopes for peace.

What Happened To Our News Services in Cuba?

American newspapers depend largely upon the Associated Press and United Press International for their domestic and foreign news.

A wisp of gunsmoke in Nicaragua, a train wreck in New York, fires, disasters, deaths, Winston Churchill's tummyache or an item on Liz Taylor's latest boy friend—all these and hundreds of thousands of words daily on every conceivable subject make up the wire reports which flow to the nation's editors.

The "good, old reliable AP" and the highly readable UPI are excellent news services which usually deliver the goods.

So what happened in Cuba?

For two years, both news agencies have been filing stories about a bearded young revolutionary named Fidel Castro, holed up in the hills, making sporadic raids with a few followers but never strong enough for an open battle.

* * *

'Situation Was Obscure,' Is The AP's Explanation

ON THE NIGHT of December 31, the AP filed a story telling of sweeping Batista victories at Santa Clara, slaughter of the rebels and triumphs everywhere for the government forces.

"Government forces are driving the rebels eastward," reported the AP, and would "keep on fighting until the revolutionary movement is utterly wrecked."

Then suddenly came the story of Batista's flight and the collapse of his regime.

Castro had won the war. Just like that.

"From all we can gather," apologizes the AP, "the situation on December 31 was obscure."

It sure was to the wire services even though two of Batista's children had fled the country earlier and Roy Rubottom, assistant secretary of state, had told a Senate committee that the dictator's chances to win were slight.

* * *

We Can Use More Light For Our Readers' Sake

EARLY IN THE REVOLUTION when AP and UPI were relying on government handouts and submitting to censorship, Herbert L. Matthews of The New York Times interviewed Fidel Castro at his mountain retreat.

His subsequent dispatches reported accurately the growing strength of the revolutionary movement for which Matthews was called a "Communist sympathizer" by supporters of the Batista government.

Fidel Castro

. . . let there be light

Editors who value resourceful reporting and integrity in news have a legitimate complaint against both press associations.

The AP and UPI maintain permanent bureaus in Cuba and are supposed to know what is going on.

The situation may have been "obscure" in Havana on New Year's Eve but newspapermen are supposed to give light, remember?

Our readers could see better if you gave us a little more of it, gentlemen.

Reds Perfect 'ginking' Art

Editor The Herald: The fine art of 'ginking' was first used in Russia back in the days of Catherine the Great. "gink" (never capitalized) was the name given by the Russian people to Catherine's boy friend. After allowing the "gink" to run her nation's rural areas for some time, Catherine decided she had better go on a tour and see things for herself.

No fool, this "gink". He raced ahead of her with a company of smiling children, happy and well-fed "peasants", nice fat cows and all the other proper props for happy, prosperous, villages.

At every stop Catherine found the villages prosperous, the people happy and well contented. She returned, enthused by the wonderful things she had seen.

Sound familiar? Henry Wallace has since told us about how he was "ginked" years ago when he visited in Siberia. The recent reports from Adlai Stevenson and Cyrus Eaton show the grand scale and the perfection brought to the old art of "ginking" by the rulers in the Kremlin.

The extent to which the Red army is a "gink" army was proven by the mass desertions to the Nazis in War II and more recently by the need to use Mongolian troops to crush the Hungarians after the Russian troops defected to the side of the Freedom Fighters.

"ginking" is not a harmless sham, it is a deadly and effective tactic that can only be defeated by real force, by real prosperity, by real liberty and freedom, and by the truth which is always real.

Floridians Want Free School Books, But Must Roll Sleeves To Keep Them

Editor The Herald: Allow me to thank you for the sentiments expressed in the editorial entitled "Books, Cards, and 'Frills,'" and especially for your terse yet strong statements in defense of the free textbook program.

Although I agree with you that "the advantages of free books have been well established," and that this program should not be eliminated, I fear I do not always share your optimism as to the future of this program.

Over the years it has been necessary for those of us in education, especially those of us in leadership positions, to fight aggressively to retain free textbooks as part of the state school program. With the support of a majority of the people, we have been successful in retaining this program, although the state appropriation has never been sufficient to meet all of the needs of the boys and girls of Florida.

The state free textbook program is estimated to cost $8,502,000 for the coming two years. This represents only 2.38 per cent of the total expenditures of the state government for elementary and secondary schools for the same period, and only about 1 per cent of the total state and county expenditures for schools.

I know you agree with me that it is only sound business and good education to spend this relatively small amount of money on these vital tools of learning. Conversely, I know you will agree with me that for the state government to appropriate approximately $391,000,000 for elementary and secondary schools for the coming biennium and then to curtail the expenditure of $8,502,000 for such a vital service as textbooks would be poor business and sheer folly.

I would like to offer a slight explanation of that phase of your editorial which dealt with adult education. First, as a matter of clarification, there are NO state funds being used anywhere in Florida for such courses as "dancing and card playing." This has been pointed out to Senator Adams, but the fiction is difficult to erase.

The great majority of adult education classes, 86.97 per cent, are devoted to general education courses which lead to a high school diploma. I am referring to such courses as literacy and elementary classes, mathematics, science, social studies, English, and foreign languages.

An additional 6.91 per cent are for such courses as music, art, and reading improvement, which are also considered as high school courses leading to a diploma.

Only 5.47 per cent of the courses are those which could be considered "special interest classes" and I think you will agree that even these have a place in the curriculum. These courses include law for laymen, water safety and navigation, problems of the aging, ceramics, occupational and educational guidance, preparation for substitute teachers and home crafts.

From 1947 to 1958, a total of 32,039 high school diplomas were earned under the adult education program. This, to me, is a wonderful record and I think we should all be proud of this contribution of the education of our people.

Yes, there are courses in dancing and card playing in three or four of our larger counties. Some of these courses are being offered today in Dade County schools as part of the program of Lindsey Hopkins Educational Center. But NO state funds are being used in the program. A fee is charged the student so that the course is offered at no cost to the county.

However, even if such courses were being offered in a given county from local tax funds, I have serious reservations about the wisdom or propriety of the state passing a law or regulation prohibiting the county from making its own decision as to the best method to spend its own money. This would certainly be a usurpation of local control and I would be opposed to such a course of action.

Florida has one of the best school programs to be found anywhere in the nation and I am strongly opposed to any attempt to curtail this program.

Johnson Determined In Challenging Ike

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—When Sen. Lyndon Johnson challenged President Eisenhower to lead or be led, he really meant it. Almost immediately after reading the President's State of the Union message, Johnson began charting his own course of leadership. This may be one of the most important developments of the year, because ordinarily Congress waits for the White House to lead.

Pearson

"I plan to have a public housing bill on the President's desk by Feb. 1," Johnson told friends, "and we've got to do something about the old people. The cost of living has gone up while their income has remained the same. Their neglect is a crying shame."

Johnson ticked off a long list of important problems facing the nation on which he planned action.

Among them was juvenile delinquency. He hopes Sen. Tom Hennings of Missouri will work further on this problem. Another is the growing trend toward monopoly which Sen. Estes Kefauver will explore further. Another is a labor bill.

Johnson is particularly worried about the stymied state of affairs with Russia. During the height of the filibuster fight, while he was successfully wooing votes over to his side, he was also on the phone urging that top U.S. leaders be included in the Eric Johnston dinner for Deputy Premier Mikoyan.

"We've got a great chance to show this man what the USA is like," Johnson told some of his intimates. "The State Department isn't doing much about him, so let's make sure he sees the right people."

As a result, some of the top leaders on Capitol Hill attended the Mikoyan dinner.

* * *

IT'S NO secret that Lyndon Johnson held out choice committee assignments as bait to win new senators to the Southern side in the fight to save the filibuster. His right-hand man in the backstage wheeling and dealing was Montana's somber Sen. Mike Mansfield. After one backstage huddle, Illinois' big, gentle Sen. Paul Douglas, leader of the anti-filibuster forces, wrapped an arm around Mansfield's shoulder and told him throatily: "We have no committee assignments to offer, Mike. We have nothing to offer except an opportunity to serve our country."

* * *

HERE ARE some of the statements dropped by Deputy Premier Mikoyan as he invaded the citadels of big business across the nation:

"There is a difference of time of eight hours between Moscow and Washington. So when you stop working we only begin working . . . We are neighbors, especially since your new state (Alaska) is very near to Siberia. I would like to congratulate you on having this new state, our nearest neighbor.

"Today we have set it as our objective to catch up and overtake America from the point of view of living standards and productivity. Some Americans even look upon that as a sort of an insult. 'How can anyone catch up with us?' they say. But, first of all, I want to say that if we set this as our objective, we recognize for the time being you are above us from the point of your material productivity, which means that there is much to learn from you . . .

"In former times, some people might even have been able to make money on war. Formerly, only the people at the front died in the war. Now people, if there were to be a war, would be dying everywhere . . . Perhaps you do not trust our traders enough, although in the history of our trade with America there have been no conflicts with American businessmen. Russians like to bargain hard, but when the bargain is made they fulfill it. You, of course, are better businessmen than we are. It isn't a compliment but a fact."

Elections Not Vital In Unifying Germany

By WALTER LIPPMANN

AT HIS PRESS conference on Tuesday, Mr. Dulles opened the door to negotiations on the future of Germany. He was scrupulously careful to say that he was not now negotiating with Mr. Mikoyan. But he has made it possible for Mikoyan to report back to Moscow that there is "a desire on both sides to get together and talk."

Lippmann

Dulles did this by making two points. The first is that while the formula of reunification by free elections is the "agreed formula," he "wouldn't say that it is the only method by which reunification could be accomplished."

The second is his acceptance of the principle that for a reunited Germany there must be military guarantees to reassure the Soviet Union: — "If there is going to be any reunification of Germany, it has got to be under conditions which take into account realistically some of those very elemental, primitive facts of life."

* * *

THE REAL question about free elections is whether they are the necessary first step to German reunification. Those who hold this view are in effect demanding the liquidation of the East German state.

The trouble with this view is that it is absolutely impossible to achieve it in any forseeable time. It demands an unconditional surrender of the Soviet position.

I think it is not unfair to say that those who demand free elections as the first step are not urgently interested in bringing about reunification. Some of them want to believe, hoping against hope, that the Soviet Union will somehow collapse. Many of them do not want to have to face the enormously complicated problems which a reunified Germany will pose.

* * *

AGAINST all these difficulties there has, however, to be weighed the grave dangers of the continuing partition of Germany. For, sooner or later, there will be uprisings against the Soviet hold on East Germany and on Poland, and we may all be sucked into the struggle. To avert that it is necessary to proceed to the reunification of Germany.

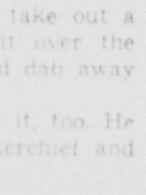
If that is our purpose, there is no reason why German reunification should not begin with a provisional regime—that of a dual state with some common political institutions—under a pact or constitution which promised that there should be a gradual integration over a period of years, culminating in a free election to elect a constituent assembly, which would form an all-German state.

Confident Living

What To Do About Troubles

By Norman Vincent Peale

I WAS RIDING on a New York subway train recently and couldn't help observing the two people seated directly across from me. They were a man and a woman, in their mid-40's, apparently husband and wife, and they had a troubled look about them.



Peale

I guess I stared, but they did not notice. They sat there looking straight ahead beyond me into the tunnel walls and stations as they flashed by. As I watched, they moved even closer together. She was a little woman and he a rather large man whose bulk overshadowed her. I saw her open her handbag, take out a handkerchief, put it over the end of a finger and dab away tears from her eyes.

Her husband saw it, too. He took out his handkerchief and blew his nose vociferously. Then he put it back in his pocket and reached out and took her hand. She pressed his and turned to give him a sweet but sad smile.

* * *

JUST THEN the train came to my station and I had to get off. I looked back through the windows at the couple and watched them disappear as the train vanished into the dark tunnel. I shall never know them, nor shall I ever know what it was that troubled them. But I shall remember this vignette of human sorrow and feel that their sorrow, whatever it was, touched my life too.

"The whole world is full of trouble," is one of the oldest of cliches. And, of course, it is true. But when I once repeated it to a wise old philosopher, he answered me, "Yes, the whole world is full of trouble, but it is also full of the overcoming of trouble."

And that is the glory and the genius of religious faith. For faith has an effervescence, an indomitable and undefeated quality about it, an optimism that can never be quenched. It tells its followers in every generation that, while there is always tribulation in the world, they can be of good cheer, because through God they can overcome the world.

* * *

ONE OF THE greatest statements ever made is found in the most dynamic book ever written, the Holy Bible. It is this: ". . . the kingdom of God is within you."

Do you know what those significant words mean? Simply that God's goodness is in each of us. They mean that God's own strength is in us. They also mean that God's pattern of thinking may be our own. In other words, all of God's riches are potentially within us awaiting our appropriation of them.

And these are tremendous resources too. They are much more than enough to overcome any and all of your difficulties. So draw upon them; learn to use them.

LOOKING BACK

THE "JUSTICE" of Fidel Castro's vengeance kept ruling Cuba: 238 were sent to death; 5,000 to jails. And he defied the world.

ELSEWHERE, the news boiled down to this:

IN THE WORLD OF FASHION, she will really go mad and wear a flip-lid hat.

IN THE WORLD OF LOVE, Zsa Zsa Gabor plans to marry number four.

IN MIAMI BEACH, the hotel union got ready to "participate" in the season.

IN MIAMI, the port authority contract squabbles blew over.

IN THE NATION:

GEN. MARSHALL suffered a mild stroke.

SCIENTISTS unveiled a new, powerful pain-killing drug.

IN WASHINGTON:

THE SENATE voted to limit filibustering.

IKE delivered his State of the Union message.

IN EGYPT, Communist officials from East Germany called on Nasser. (Politics.)

IN INDIA, the government began to liquidate 2,400,000 rats. (No politics.)

IN TOKYO, a cold wave produced a boom in hot pants. (Battery-heated.)

IN SPAIN, a dam broke and floods took the lives of 100.

IN FRANCE, De Gaulle's austerity program bounced against its first opposition.

IN BRAZIL, a Lufthansa plane crashed into Rio bay; 36 lost their lives.

IN HAVANA, Castro gave HIS okay to casino gambling (for tourists ONLY).

BUT THE WEEK'S most unhuman story came from Connecticut:

The Town Crier

BY Jack Bell

BELL

I WONDER how a Cuban member of a firing squad feels when he pulls the trigger and sees his neighbor slump to earth, lifeless—and they drag his body off to throw it in a shallow grave.

I wonder how the slain man's wife and children and relatives and friends take it; a man who was alive. Then they shot him down.

I wonder what the new government figures to accomplish by this fanning of hatred among its own?

I wonder, I wonder, I wonder.

Above the rattle of firing squad rifles and the wailing of women and children the man talks of a peaceful, tolerant, compassionate government for all the people.

I wonder what he means: all the people. Will a slain man's friends and his loved ones forget and join the cheering? I wonder.

One rainy day in the Burma jungles I saw an Australian soldier dragging a wounded Japanese through the mud. He had a wire around the man's body, under his arms. He tugged and yanked as branches and logs caught the Jap's head and arms. The Australian was cruel, ruthless, incapable of human compassion. Man's inhumanity to man.

* * *

Such Brutality

I SAW a Chinese officer tie a private to the limb of a tree and beat him to death, as the company watched, seemingly without emotion. I have been told of Russian soldiers, on the swift spring march toward Berlin in 1945, who shot their fallen comrades to death in the snow drifts alongside the road.

I sat in a barn-like building in New York one day and heard mobsters tell of putting a rival's feet in a tub of cement, letting it harden and dropping him into the sea. Drowning is relatively a merciful death, 'tis said. But the torture of waiting isn't.

I've seen brutality all over the world. I've heard stories too incredible to believe, of tortures and murder in German concentration camps. I've seen some of the victims, and some still alive would tell that the Russian camps were just the same.

I wonder. Oh, how I wonder.

I can understand a man on the battlefield who, when his pal falls dead at his feet, goes berserk and vows to kill the first enemy he sees. But I cannot understand how a nation of supposedly normal people will listen to their own propagandists with such faith that they term an enemy a nation of sadistic murderers.

* * *

Poor Cuba

I CANNOT understand why a civilized nation cannot solve its domestic problems without neighbor killing neighbor. I cannot understand a man who permits hatred to burn so deeply in his soul that he loses human dignity.

But I can understand this: Listen: One morning in Italy an American soldier was wounded in a valley. German soldiers were above him on one side, Americans on the other. Two American medics started down to the wounded boy. Two German medics started from their foxholes.

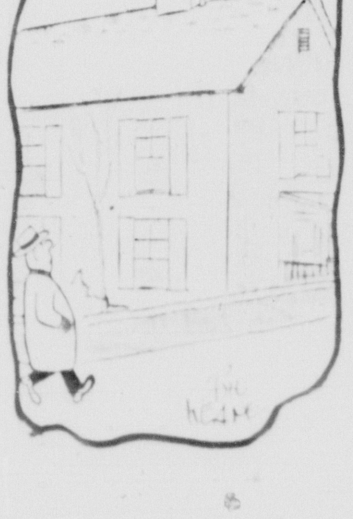
The four bound the boy's wounds, made a stretcher and carried him back to our lines. The Germans then went back, jumped into their foxholes — and the two armies resumed fire.

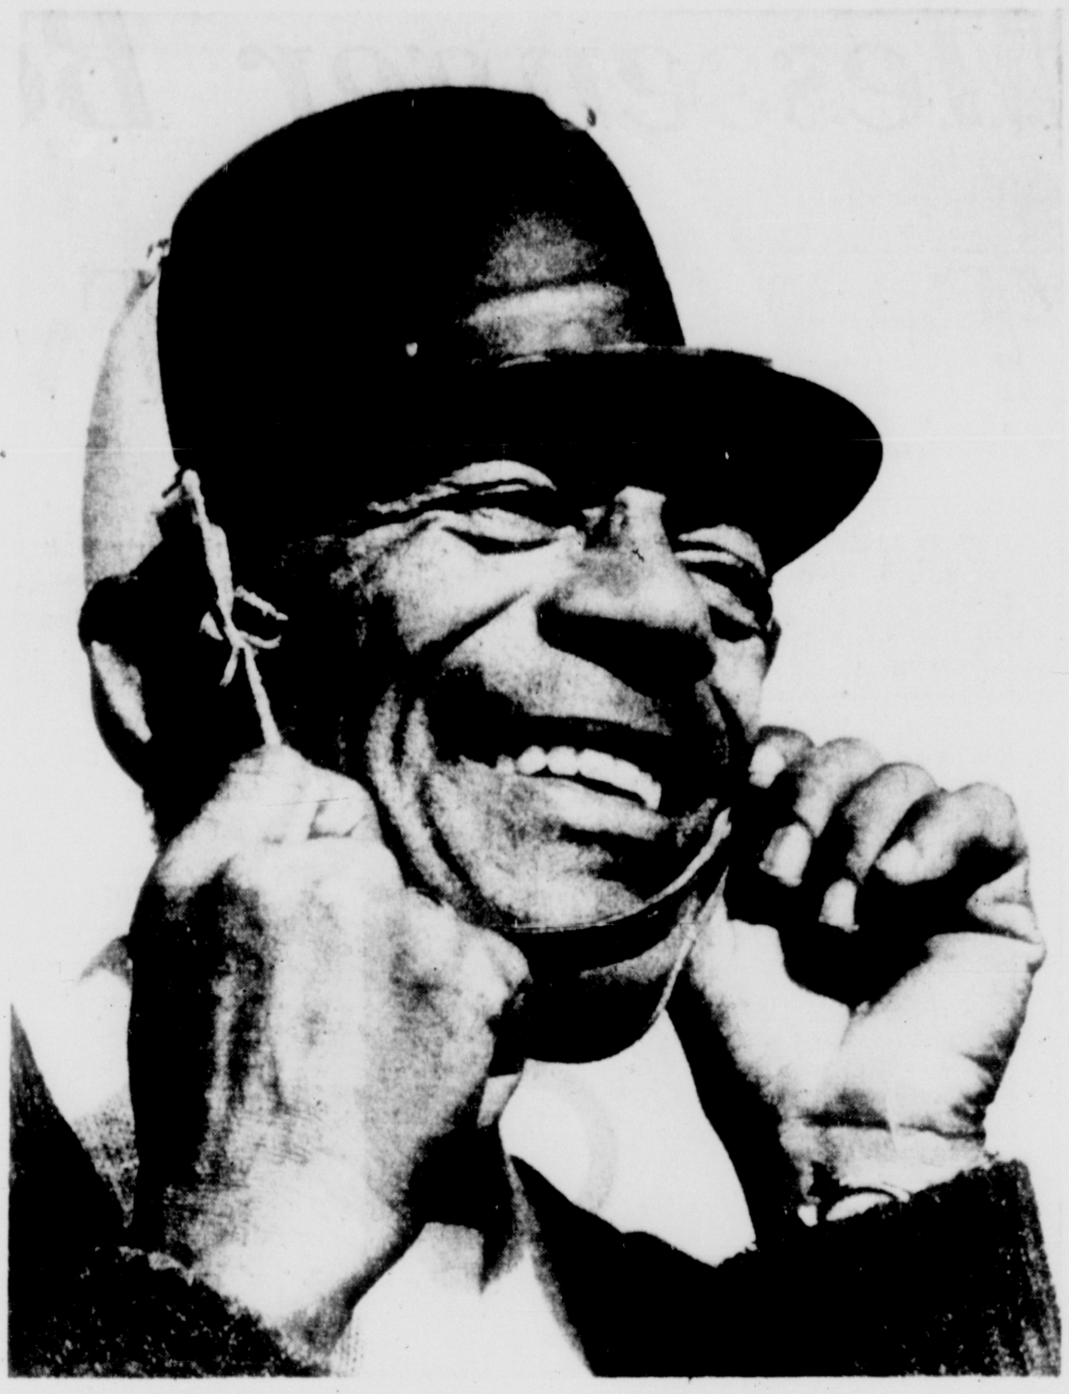
In beautiful Cuba men are being shot by Cubans. The revolution has been causing death and sorrow for two years. The hasty revenge of the new government harks back to the peoples of the Old Testament, the reigns of ancient Egyptians and Greeks and Romans.

Cuba deserves a better fate than dictatorship by one, then another strong man lusting for power. And strong men must pay those who put them in power.

Poor Cuba.

When will her people be free? I wonder. I wonder. I wonder.





THERE ARE some rare combinations in this world when it comes to people. Take, for instance, Leon J. Newton: He is either riding horses or—the piano. And he has done so ever since he was 10. That adds up to 47 long years. Leon is an exercise "boy" at Hialeah race track. He came here from Sheepshead Bay, N.Y. and has given the workout to quite a number of famous horses. Right now he is working for the C. T. Chenery stables and his hopes are high on First Landing. (Beware, this is NOT a tip.) Leon has been married 36 years and his wife says not only to her—to the piano, too. In fact, she says, "he's a demon on the piano."

Intoxicated Drivers May Find Going Rougher

By JOHN BOYLES
Herald Capital Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE—Sen. Nick Connor of Brooksville has indicated he will join Rep. Cliff Herrell in introducing a bill to jail all intoxicated drivers.

BOYLE

Herrell helped his former Dade County colleague, John B. Orr, Jr. push the bill through the house of representatives in 1957 but the measure was clobbered in the senate.

Herrell says the bill probably will be similar to the proposal two years ago, providing a mandatory 24-hour jail term for a first offender and stiffer sentences for repeaters.

While such driving cases actually figure in a percentage of total accidents they are most prominent along with speed violations in traffic fatalities. Herrell says in citing the need for the law to improve Florida's highway safety record.

Connor's only son was killed in an accident while enroute home on a service furlough when his car was struck by another steered by an intoxicated driver.

Connor, a staunch advocate of tighter traffic safety laws, says he may co-sponsor Herrell's bill. He supported the 1957 effort in the senate.

Judges now have the authority to impose jail sentences on first offenders but Herrell thinks a law making it mandatory is the only way to reduce effectively the infractions.

THE old game of merit vs. political patronage in the selection of employes in public office is never out of season.

State officials who believe in the merit system should never cease trying to make it work by fully utilizing its machinery.

Critics are waiting for an opportunity to exploit its weaknesses and return thousands of state jobs to the spoils system.

State Industrial Commission Chairman James T. Vocelle announced Dec. 22 that Harry Van Brunt, veteran employment official, would become head of the State Employment Service Feb. 1.

Vocelle indicated he was given the impression that it was a provisional appointment and Van Brunt could take a non-competitive examination for the job anytime within six months.

* * *

STATE Merit System Director Angus Laird balked and ruled a competitive exam would have to be given so that all eligible applicants could be considered for the job. This won't keep Van Brunt from getting the job as long as he makes a qualifying grade.

We don't question Van Brunt's qualifications in consideration of his background with the department.

But it seems that in the future officials could avoid any reflection on the value of a merit system if competitive exams were given for top level jobs before appointments are announced.

Collins Has Right Slant

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT
Herald Political Writer

Florida Politics

THE PROPOSAL made by Sumter L. Lowry of Tampa, former gubernatorial candidate, that Gov. LeRoy Collins try to block a visit to Florida by Russian Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan represents isolationist thinking.

One pertinent fact this writer learned from his trip to the USSR—we just got back — is that the United States Government should encourage Russian leaders to come to this country and see how we live.

The Russian people have no real concept of conditions in the U.S.A. and the only way they can learn is to have representatives come here and find out. An example of this was brought home to me during a chance meeting in Red Square when, through an interpreter, I had a conversation with some dozen or more passers-by.

* * *

They Need Facts

THESE MEN and women, representing the average man-in-the-street, were concerned about the fact that "unemployment" is rampant in this country. They had read of this condition repeatedly in the highly censored Russian press. They were obviously surprised by my assurance that most people who want to work have jobs in our country.

McDERMOTT

I feel sure that Gen. Lowry's intentions in wanting Mikoyan to be kept out of Florida are well meaning. But if we put an "iron curtain" around our country, how will the Soviets get a true picture of just how good conditions are here?

We live in a land of luxury which, to the Russians, is almost beyond the realm of belief. The greatest "luxury" I experienced in Russia were the plush accommodations and delectable dinner aboard the K.L.M. Royal Dutch Airliner over the USSR on the last leg of a flight from New York to the snow-draped Moscow airport.

* * *

Remember Nixon?

THIS IS not to imply that I experienced hardship of living while there. I didn't. The hotels were adequate, clean and well heated. The food was plentiful and good, although not particularly inspiring with the exception of "Chicken Kiev."

The Russians tried hard to be friendly to the foreign visitors—a factor which we would do well to emulate when Russians or other foreigners are in our country.

Most of us recall the revulsion which swept this nation when Vice President Nixon was spit on and insulted during his "good will" tour of Latin America.

Yet, has not Mikoyan been given comparable treatment during some of his stops at American cities?

Admittedly, these demonstrations are being sparked by Hungarian refugees or sympathizers who have good reason to hate the USSR and its official functionaries. But do these demonstrations against Russia's No. 2 man do any good? I think not.

* * *

Let Others Come

GOV. COLLINS told Lowry he sees no need for urging the U.S. State Department to keep Mikoyan out of Florida. He does not feel, as does Lowry, that Mikoyan may "lull us to sleep."

Lowry claims that allowing Mikoyan to visit here would be an insult to every patriotic citizen, a betrayal of the memory of Florida men who lost their lives in Korea.

Collins advised Lowry he felt Floridians were able to take care of themselves during Mikoyan's visit—that he did not feel Floridians were in danger of being contaminated by Communism simply because the Kremlin's No. 2 man was passing through.

And, pointedly, he suggested to Lowry that if the former National Guard general felt a danger of being improperly influenced, he and any other persons of like thinking could:

KEEP AWAY from airports or any other places where Mikoyan might be during his visit.

REFRAIN from listening to radio broadcasts or watching television shows which might feature the Russian big-wig.

SKIP OVER newspaper accounts which describe his visit or which report on interviews with him.

In the opinion of this writer, based on his own experiences in Russia and covering the Cold War in Europe for some eight years, I'd say that our best weapon against Communism is to expose the Communist leaders to what this land of democracy has to offer.

And where else but Florida can we show a better example of American living at its best?

How A Messenger Boy Rose To Be A Tycoon

was the "Battle of Homestead." This savage affair had its inception on April 4, 1892.

On that day, from his mansion in New York, Andrew Carnegie wrote, signed, and sent to Mr. Frick a "Notice to Employees at Homestead Works," which said that no members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers, a labor union, would be employed. Mr. Carnegie then took ship for a vacation in his native Scotland.

Mr. Frick did not post the notice. Instead, he had his plant superintendent inform a workmen's committee of employees of "the necessity for a cut in wages." Frick knew that the union was weak in every Carnegie mill except that at Homestead.

At Homestead, in the days before Carnegie took over, the Amalgamated had achieved a fairly strong membership and had even got several minor concessions from the management. It was now time to wipe out the union for good.

Mr. Frick gave notice that June 24 was the day on which the union must accept or reject the wage cut. It was rejected. On that day Frick asked Pinkerton's National Detective Agency to send three hundred guards for "service at our Homestead mill."

★ ★ ★

THE HOMESTEAD mill had been closed by Frick's orders; and around it had been erected a high fence—a fence with small holes, just about the right size for a Winchester barrel, bored in it.

On July 6, two great armored scows, contents unknown but guessed at, were seen being pushed up the dirty yellow water of the Monongahela by tugs. It was still early morning. Just as the flotilla of trouble came abreast of Homestead, a long moan came from the whistle on the City Electric Light Works. It had been blown by the alert chief of the union's forces, Hugh O'Donnell, to arouse the sleeping working-stiffs.

The dreadful stark town back of the steel mill leaped to sudden life. From hundreds of shacks came men, shouting and running for the docks. As the scows came in and tied up and gangplanks were let down, somebody's nervous forefinger pulled the trigger of a rifle. And all hell broke loose.

The Pinkerton men were hopelessly outnumbered. Perhaps about ten to one was the ratio. They did the only thing they could; they stayed in their armored scows, taking potshots through the portholes.

The battle raged around the scows until almost night, then Hugh O'Donnell walked alone and unarmed to the scows to parley. The Pinkertons asked only for safe conduct out of Homestead. O'Donnell promised them as much. He was an honest man, but overly optimistic.

★ ★ ★

AS THE thoroughly cowed Pinkerton men were being escorted to an old skating rink, boys stoned them. Women clawed at them, and one harridan ran the sharp end of an umbrella into a Pinkerton's eye. Then, large infuriated men hauled Pinks from the line of march and beat them unmercifully.

Forty-odd Pinkertons, reduced to pulps of flesh, had to be dragged or carried to the skating rink.

For another five days mobs ruled Homestead. State troops moved in on July 12 to take charge. Fourteen men had been killed. The seriously wounded numbered 163. The Homestead works of the Carnegie Steel Company soon reopened with a wholly non-union crew.

★ ★ ★

MR. FRICK was damned by press and pulpit. Then, an alleged friend of downtrodden workers committed a piece of idiotic violence that set public opinion to swinging the other way.

On July 23, as Frick sat in his office in the Hussey Building in downtown Pittsburgh, a slight, dark man entered the room, pulled a revolver from his pocket, and shot the steelmaster twice. One bullet lodged in Frick's neck. The other took off a part of his left ear.

Blood poured down over Frick's well-trimmed beard as he arose and grappled with his assailant, who thereupon drew a wicked knife and stabbed Frick again and again. Office workers collared the thug. Frick was bloody, though still game. "Hold him up," he said. "Let me look at his face." He pointed to the fellow's mouth. "What is he chewing?" Frick asked. The man was choked and a small capsule taken from his mouth. The melodramatic pill "contained enough fulminate of mercury" to have blown up the office. The young man chewing it was Alexander Berkman, a Polish-Russian immigrant who had come, said he, to help the workers. His idea of helping the workers was to kill Henry Clay Frick.

HENRY FRICK did not die from the bullets or from the knife wounds. With determination that matched his nerve, he remained in his office, bound with bandages, until the day's work was done, when the doctors came to remove the bullet from his neck. He refused anesthetic.

"I can help you probe better without it," he said. And that night, from his home in Homestead, Mr. Frick issued a statement. "I do not think I shall die," he said, "but whether I do or not, the Carnegie Company will pursue the same policy and it will win."

Frick was right. Not for another forty-five years would a steelworker's union amount to anything in the United States.

It was Andrew Carnegie on whom the wrath of a nation fell in volume. The press charged that Andy had hidden away in Scotland in order that Frick should have the blame for Homestead.

The Scot returned home to a country contemptuous of him. But it was also a country endowed with an acutely brief memory. Within a year or so, it is probably that only the battered survivors of the Homestead battle could recall where Andy had been when the shooting started.

Andy was still in business. Very much so.

A GREAT SALESMAN
. . . Andrew Carnegie

A GREAT MANAGER
. . . Charlie Schwab

A GREAT FINANCIER
. . . J. P. Morgan

DURING the brief war with Spain both Carnegie and the Federal Steel Company, Morgan-controlled, did a rushing business, having observed a gentlemen's agreement about prices. With the postwar lull, Carnegie reverted to a character which, so far as the steel industry was concerned, had been likened to that of a hyena. The comparison is hardly apt.

What it attempts to convey is merely that the little Scot ignored the gentlemen's agreement and cut prices of steel. In a short time he had broken the steel-rail pool by underselling the market.

Judge Gary of Federal Steel urged his master, Morgan, to buy out Carnegie. Mr. Morgan, a good hater always, refused. He said he did not like Carnegie. But Mr. Morgan had come to like the steel business, and now he picked up several small concerns, and a war of the titans was on.

Andy Carnegie was enjoying his oatmeal and his bagpipers at his laird's castle of Skibo in Scotland, in the early summer of 1900, when the first subterranean rumblings of trouble were heard. Cables from Pittsburg began to bring bad news.

The flag soon came down from atop Skibo Castle, for the laird had left his glens and was heading for Pittsburgh. And at Pittsburgh, even if only figuratively, the Carnegie battle flag went up. What followed in the next few months surely was war.

★ ★ ★

SENSING correctly that the strategy of the forces opposing him was first to ruin the prestige of the Carnegie empire before moving in to force its sale at a bargain rate, little Andy told the press that the Carnegie Steel Company was due for a vast expansion, in keeping with the growth of the United States.

Soon Carnegie agents appeared at Conneaut, on Lake Erie, to purchase 5,000 acres of waterfront property. Contracts were let, or allegedly were let, to build a plant to cost twelve million dollars.

Carnegie called the newspaper boys of Pittsburgh to his office and said he would begin construction at once on "the largest steel-rod plant in the world, right in Pittsburgh." The Carnegie steel rods would serve to break the unspeakable monopoly of rods held by an unnamed trust.

When another few weeks had passed, the American railroad world was astonished, and part of it alarmed, to read that Mr. Carnegie, through happy arrangements with George Gould's Western Maryland Railroad, was to extend Carnegie's own Bessemer Railroad from Pittsburgh to a junction with the other, and thus give Carnegie plants an outlet to the Atlantic seaboard other than those of the Baltimore & Ohio and the Pennsylvania railroads.

Mr. Carnegie referred to the B&O and Pennsylvania "community of interests" as strangulation of industry.

★ ★ ★

J. PIERPONT MORGAN, who had a great deal of money in steel, and even more in railroads, did not like the look of it. He was heard to complain that Carnegie was "demoralizing" both railroads and steel. Gates and Gary had long been urging the financier to buy out Carnegie and build a real monster of a corporation.

By now Morgan had become sufficiently worried to ask Charlie Schwab, Carnegie's manager, to come and have a talk. Schwab ignored the summons.

But at an historic dinner, held on December 12, 1900, in New York City, Charles Schwab, president of Carnegie Steel, was the guest of honor. Gathered around the festive board at the University Club of New York City, were some eighty leaders of finance and industry. Mr. Morgan was placed next to the guest of honor, Mr. Schwab.

When the dinner, which has been loosely described as a sumptuous collation, was done, Mr. Schwab arose to pass a few remarks. He opened his speech, as always, by saying that because he knew absolutely nothing about anything except steel, he would talk about steel.

Then his organ-like voice wafted his listeners away from the coffee and cigars and took them high upon the mountain top.

Here on the mountain, Charlie Schwab, almost thirty-eight years old, spread before the assembled colossi the splendor of the universe of steel as he envisioned it could be. It was a dazzling prospect.

Only a corporation infinitely larger than anything in existence, said Mr. Schwab, could place the steel industry on a really scientific basis. Such a corporation must not be a mere monopoly for the restriction of output and the increase of prices. No, a thousand times no! The ambition of this consolidation should be to put prices down to the lowest possible level.

★ ★ ★

THUS ENDED, on a note of high purpose, the most celebrated speech ever delivered by an American industrialist.

After the applause had subsided, says Carnegie's biographer, Burton J. Hendrick, Mr. Morgan, profoundly impressed, "took Schwab by the arm and led him to a corner. For half an hour the two men engaged in intimate conversation."

The enchanting vision revealed by young Charlie Schwab from the mountain top had indeed impressed J. Pierpont Morgan. For several days following the dinner he spoke of it often to his associate Robert Bacon; and finally he sent for John W. Gates. "Do you think the Carnegie properties can be acquired?" he asked. Gates said he did.

Gates suggested that he should arrange a meeting between Morgan and Schwab. Morgan agreed. Gates so arranged the meeting, and he and Robert Bacon sat and listened while Schwab and Morgan talked away the night. Morgan asked questions about this or that steel company, demanding production figures, costs, and so forth. Schwab seemed to have the answers at tongue's end.

At dawn, Morgan told Schwab that "if Andy wants to sell, I'll buy. Go find his price."

★ ★ ★

CARNEGIE let Morgan have Carnegie Steel for a sum usually reported to have been $492,000,000. There was no haggling. The deal was consummated with less fuss than commonly went into a horse trade of the era.

A few days after he had sold out, Carnegie booked passage for Europe, and on the way to board ship in New York stopped to see Morgan. The two men chatted a few minutes, then Andy shook the banker's hand. "Now, Pierpont," he said, "I am the happiest man in the world. I have unloaded this burden on your back and I am off to Europe to play."

Mr. Morgan was ready to shoulder the burden. On April 1, 1901, organization of the United States Steel Corporation was formally announced.

It was capitalized at $1,402,000,000—a figure to stagger anyone but an astronomer. And the House of Morgan came out of the deal with an estimated eleven and a half million dollars of profit.

DOWN TO EARTH
. . . Louis Dunn and daughter Linda

Meet Our Spaceman

By RALPH DIGHTON
Associated Press Staff Writer

INGLEWOOD, Cal.—Late in fateful 1929, the slightly spoiled young scion of a prominent South African family sailed to America — and smack into obscurity and depression.

"The thing I missed most," Louis Gerhardus Dunn recalls wryly, "was servants. I had my personal servant during most of my childhood. They were always thick as fleas on the family ranch."

Now, Louis Dunn is again prominent and well-to-do. He's the new president of Space Technology Laboratories, partly as a reward for his expert direction of the Air Force's first moonshoot.

Dunn's interest in aeronautics goes back to the day when a World War I fighting plane landed in a field near the South African ranch that had been granted by the British Crown to his Scottish great-grandfather.

★ ★ ★

LITTLE Louis ran inside the house and told his father: "That's what I'm going to be when I grow up."

Dunn was 21 when he set out for America. But instead of winning his wings, he wound up in the California Institute of Technology and stayed to win a Ph.D. in aeronautical science.

At Caltech he became a protege of Dr. Theodore von Karman, one of the great figures in aerodynamics and propulsion. Later, in World War II, von Karman founded the school's jet propulsion laboratory that built the Explorer satellites.

★ ★ ★

DUNN was director of the laboratory from 1946 to 1954. While there he was in charge of developing the Army's Corporal missile, the nation's first surface-to-surface ballistic guided missile.

In 1954 he joined STL, which shares facilities with the Air Force ballistic missile division in a complex of buildings near the Los Angeles International Airport.

He played a leading role in setting up the Atlas, Titan and Thor missile programs and was on hand in the computing rooms at Cape Canaveral, Fla., when Pioneer moonshot was launched last October. It fell short of the moon but reached 79,000 miles, then man's highest.

★ ★ ★

CURRENTLY, Dunn is deep in research programs that someday may take man to Mars and Venus. How near is that day? Dunn, now 50 thinks he may live to see it.

"Within 10 to 15 years," he says "it should be possible to explore Mars and Venus. This may be done solely with instruments at first. But, if the country wishes to spend enough money in the meantime, it can be done by man himself."

Dunn the missileman and Dunn the businessman are a strange combination of caution and vision. He can forsee the day when man will scoot from planet to planet but he insists on adding:

"I am speaking strictly from an engineering standpoint. We have the capability to put into space a vehicle large enough to contain one or more men. But I cannot answer the biological questions of how to keep him alive. If those problems can be worked out, we can give man his vehicle."

★ ★ ★

DUNN is a handsome man of athletic build who leans to gray suits and pin-dot ties. He has a full head of gray-streaked hair and still goes on hiking trips in the High Sierra with his two sons.

He has no hobbies. His work and his family take all his time. That's understandable, with five children. They have problems that to them are as important as any STL can toss to their dad, and they're important to Dunn too.

Take the time his eldest daughter came home from school protesting that the teacher was marking correct answers wrong.

★ ★ ★

"THIS woman had sent home a list of state capitals for the children to memorize," says Dunn. "The list was not correct. The capital of Texas is not Dallas, but Austin.

"A little later my daughter reported the teacher was insisting that zero times five is five. The most elementary arithmetic book states that zero times any number is zero.

"I went to the principal and demanded that something be done. He said he could do nothing unless I could get 10 or 12 parents to sign a petition against her.

★ ★ ★

"FOR days I tried to get other parents interested. Most of them just shrugged. Not one would go the trouble of putting his name on a petition."

Finally a lawyer suggested a solution. Teachers in California can be required under certain circumstances to take a mental examination. If they fail, or refuse to take the test, they are discharged.

After weeks of fighting, Dunn won his case. The teacher failed to show up to take the mental test.

★ ★ ★

DUNN isn't licking his chops over the incident. He simply did what he felt he as a parent had to do.

"Parental complacency is the greatest crime in education today," he says. "We have the kind of teachers and schools we deserve. If we demanded better schools, we'd get them."

This is not Dunn the missileman or Dunn the businessman speaking. This is Dunn the educator. He held a professorship at Caltech for years and some of his top executives now were once his students.

His ideas on education are felt throughout the STL facilities. Any employe who feels the need for additional training has only to say so. STL will pay half his tuition.

Who Still Recalls The Cattle Wars?

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

Morgan

ARCADIA — The cattle wars are nearly forgotten.

They live dimly in the memories of the lean, lanky old men who gather sometimes on street corners and peer back with faded eyes into a dusty past.

Seventy-five years have beat their way up the slopes of time since Arcadia was established — a tiny village deep in the heart of Florida's lusty cattle country.

The town of Arcadia sits almost in the center of DeSoto County like an old woman grown harshly respectable.

Arcadia is still a cattle town; grown in size, it is the county seat.

Thus high-heeled boots pound the sidewalks.

Weatherbeaten Stetsons slanted atop leather-tough, wind and sun torn faces reflect the essential character of the area.

★ ★ ★

ARCADIA'S streets differ from most town streets in Florida — especially it's main street. It is stiff and sombre, unadorned with flashy store fronts or tourist trap glitter.

For the tourist, or unknowing Floridian, who cuts through the town this community would hold few stirring thoughts.

In truth, the average Arcadian would give you a curious, questioning stare if you suggested that shielded behind the prim facade of the town, and by the silent years, is one of the more turbulent chapters in Florida history.

You must talk to some of the old men to learn about it — men who were around at the turn of the century and knew Arcadia when peace lay not on the cattle country and violence shattered the nights.

★ ★ ★

THERE was a time when Arcadia was a hell-for-leather town in the middle of a bloody, vicious cattle war.

Florida has always been a great cattle state. But one rarely thinks of it as one foes of the Western cattle states, conjuring up memories of brawling men and rawhide living.

Few today are aware that once Florida's cattle history matched the thundering days of the West.

But sometimes the old, lean men who meet in Arcadia remember. There aren't many of them left.

And even those who are still around must search long and hard in the closets of memory for the ghosts of those days.

★ ★ ★

A. C. WRIGHT is a tall, wide shouldered, big-boned cattleman of 80. His blue eyes are still sharp. A soft smile drifts across his face occasionally.

We sat in a dim office in the city hall and he talked some about those early days.

He sat in a straight-backed chair, one arm slung around the chair, one arm resting on a table.

"I was born in what is now Osceola County but was then part of Orange. Started to work when I was 15 . . . went to work for the Summerlin's. They owned one of the biggest spreads in the state . . ."

The Summerlin ranch was one of the great suppliers of cattle to the Confederacy. It also used to send vast amounts of beef to Cuba.

". . . Then I worked for the Moody's for years. One of the biggest cattlemen around Osceola and Okeechobee Counties."

It was in 1895 when the cattle war flared up.

"Started around Arcadia and spread. It was a funny kind of a thing in a way because for some reason the cattlemen started stealing from each other.

"Wasn't as if rustlers from someplace else started it . . ."

★ ★ ★

EXACTLY what set-off the long cattle war, which lasted six years, no one seems to recall.

"There was a lot of open range and a lot of fence in those days. Maybe someone started cutting the fence. Don't know for sure. But pretty soon it got wild."

Wright leaned back in the chair. He half shut his eyes as he grappled with recollections of past years.

"I was working around Okeechobee. It never got so bad around our part. But we kept hearing about what was going on here and around Lee County."

And he told a little of those tales.

Tales of violent death, quick ambush.

This was not a Florida of real estate, beauty queens, and tourists. From Kissimmee to Ft. Myers, the general limits of cattle country in those days, the ranchers waged their sanguinary raids.

"I remember of four men killed in one gun fight . . . that's so long ago . . .

"And a fellow named Norton was killed, and Whidden, and another fellow—all shot from ambush in another fight.

"I don't think we had many real gunmen of our own—our own cowboys, I mean.

"I think a lot of those hard fellows were imported gunhands. And there were a lot of them."

★ ★ ★

HE STOPPED for a moment. The past and the present had come together for him momentarily. You could see it in his eyes.

"It went on for maybe six-seven years. And it was so bad most of the time that no cowboy dared sleep in the open or around a fire.

"Every fellow got his bedroll at night, found a clump of palmetto patch to hide behind, and slept away from anyone else."

Again his voice trailed into silence.

You could almost feel those fear-drenched nights; you could see silent horsemen working their way through the deadly quiet. You could sense the restless herds.

It was indeed a way of life worlds apart from the tourists driving past on their way to the gold-plated East Coast.

A half-smile cracked across the old man's face. "Hard to believe today how tough it was around here then."

★ ★ ★

R. E. GARNER is 81-years-old. He stood in front of a store on the main street of Arcadia and recounted how it was during those long-ago years.

Although his skin is mottled with age, he still stands erect — still is in the cattle business.

We looked down the street.

"I can tell you," he said, "there were some savage years here.

"Place had a lot of saloons. Lot of men who went to them.

"Sure we had a number of hard characters in those days. It was hard living then—especially during the cattle wars.

"Had some men here who were as wild as anyone you ever heard of in Texas or those places. Would shoot you down as soon as not.

"Fights were breaking out in town all the time. Men were shot down in the street. Some maybe because of the cattle fight—some maybe just from drunken brawls."

★ ★ ★

THE mind's eye washed out the current scene and restored a dusty street. As Mr. Garner painted a picture of early Arcadia it wasn't hard to recapture the past.

You could see a group of serious-faced men leading a horse into town — and a body tied across the horse.

The elderly cattleman was saying:

" . . . And this fellow Jim North, I think that was his name, was one of the men who would kill as easy as breathing . . .

"They finally got him outside of town. Brought him in with his body slung across the horse . . .

"We had some tough ones, I can tell you . . ."

"This was a rugged town in those days . . ."

★ ★ ★

R. E. BROWN is 85-year-old. He's a practicing attorney, born and raised in Arcadia.

I talked to him while he was eating lunch in a small restaurant.

Brown is a tall, courtly man who wears his years easily and with grace.

He moved a piece of beef on his plate around with a fork while he talked about the time of the cattle wars.

" . . . That was a long time ago . . . I'm not quite certain but I think maybe it all started over some fence cutting.

"Pretty soon the whole cattle country was mixed up in it."

I told him the things I had heard, and he nodded his head.

"It's true. All of it. People just don't realize what it was like in this country, and in Arcadia in those days.

"Talk about Tombstone, and Nevada City and those places. Well Sir, it's hard to believe now but we were just as rough as they were."

He gazed steadily and a whisper of a grin curled his lips:

"We held some kind of a record then—had a record of 50 fights a day . . . and I don't know how many killings around the country . . ."

★ ★ ★

HE ATE for a few moments and then talked some more.

"There was a fellow named Bass — worked for King's Ranch — he'd kill you at the drop of a hat.

"Others like him, working for other big ranches and the little ranches, had some wicked characters too.

"Got so bad with everyone stealing from everyone else, fellow would never know if he had a herd come morning.

"I think it finally stopped when old Zibah King called all the ranchers together.

"They agreed to stop and the war sort of died out.

"It had just gotten so much out of hand everyone was losing—big and little cattle ranchers.

"So they quit. Darndest thing you ever heard. Just agreed to stop the raiding . . ."

Thus ended the cattle wars of Florida.

★ ★ ★

SHORTLY thereafter I drove out of quiet, somber Arcadia, still looking like an old lady grown harshly respectable.

But I could hear the echo of gun shots fired years ago.

And a clatter of hoofbeats where no horses ran.

Men Have Real Fun

By JOSE MARIA ORLAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay — When a moon rocket exploded on its launching pad in fashionable suburban Pocitos recently, neighbors merely shook their heads and smiled.

Pocitos folks are quite used to such goings on in the "Parva Domus Magna Quies" republic, which claims to be the smallest and most eccentric nation on earth.

The rocket wasn't real — and neither is the republic.

★ ★ ★

ACTUALLY, the "Parva," whose Latin name means "Small House, Big Joy," is an old and exclusive club where some of Uruguay's most prominent citizens retreat to forget the serious sides of their lives.

In the Parva, a grave-faced business executive can be found dressed in a soap opera field marshal's uniform blowing a tin horn under the republic's motto: "Here, Men Become Children."

Politicians, doctors, bankers and others take pride in belonging to the Parva. But membership is restricted to 250, and many Uruguayans have to wait years before death clears the way for a new citizen.

★ ★ ★

THE Parva was founded by 13 businessmen and politicians as a place where they could eat, sing, jump and laugh as they pleased without hearing it whispered: "Look at the minister; he's losing whatever mind he had."

The sanctuary of the citizens of the Parva, who are called Parvenses, is an old, spacious, three-story building and grounds occupying one square block in Pocitos.

Its avenues, three yards wide, converge on the "Statue of Joy," an eight-foot, white marble, amply proportioned nude bearing a guitar in one hand and a glass of wine in the other.

★ ★ ★

SHE is the only woman in the Parva. Long ago, it was decided that citizens could live in peace in their republic only if women were banned. The rule has been observed strictly ever since.

The Parva is ruled by a president and his cabinet of five ministers. But the most sought-after post is that of the Great Priest, appointed by the government for his erudition in luxurious living.

The Great Priest reigns over the Parva's 240-square-yard kitchen, chooses the several course menu for Sunday banquets and keeps a careful eye on the citizens who act as amateur chefs or waiters.

★ ★ ★

GOOD eating is a vital part of the Parva's "Friendship" religion. At a recent banquet, the American and Russian ambassadors sat together in friendly fashion. They didn't talk politics. That subject is banned by the constitution.

Carnivals and celebrations are frequently the day's chief business.

Occasionally, Parvenses venture "abroad," parading in horse-drawn carriages or 1910 autos down Montevideo streets, dressed in bemedalled uniforms or brightly colored robes.

★ ★ ★

ONCE, the former war minister of the Parva, Alberto Mangino, a 65-year-old businessman, dressed himself as a Uruguayan general and spent a happy afternoon ordering real policemen around.

Not long ago the Parvense government decided to enter the space age.

The 20-foot "Moon Rocket," made of wood and paper, never got off the ground. When the countdown reached zero, it exploded. The fireworks hidden inside rocked the neighborhood when they went off.

Later, when the republic's president, Luis Julio Demicheri, announced that the rocket had been sabotaged, Parvenses did the only things good Parvenses could do.

The entire populace drowned its disappointment in a great banquet. And they agreed it was one of the Great Priest's finest offerings.

New Battleground In Fiction: Office

THE PAST YEAR brought more volumes of short stories than formerly, fewer novels about homo-sexuality and more about the organization man. Also the minorities are changing position.

There have been several outstanding novels on the Jewish question, and their place in American society. They are no longer stories of the ghetto, of the immigrants' adjustment to their new homes, but of the Jewish businessman, the successful financier or junior executive who often lives in Connecticut and is married to a Gentile wife.

In a sense, the fact that they are Jews is only incidental. It is a subtle recognition of the fact that many of our successful men, those who control big business, the theater, and often the arts, ARE Jewish. Then there is another switch. Never have there been so many stories about men, substituting the grey flannel suit or the Brooks Brothers executive for the little woman.

Restless, Classless

IT IS SIGNIFICANT that the career woman, though there are 50,000,000 of them in the country today, has never quite caught on. Oh, she is there, of course. Even the office has its love interest and the office — whether on Madison Avenue, Main Street or Hollywood and Vine formed the background for many novels of the year. Their battleground has replaced that of Korea or Japan and, according to the authors, is just as bitter and violent and leaves almost as many wounds.

No cannons, bayonets or bombs, perhaps, but inter-office strife, rivalries, promotions and resignations can leave painful scars although they do not bleed. In a sense they do though; show me a novel in which someone — generally the hero — doesn't suffer from ulcers. We might almost say that the business novel is our American contribution to contemporary fiction. Could it be because so many of us live in motels, apartments, planes, subdivisions and trailers?

We move so frequently between cities, suburbs and jobs that the American novelist is up against a hazard that does not concern his English prototype. In this nation we have attained an almost classless society — the filling station man may be a student, a scientist or a millionaire, the truck driver of today is the millionaire of tomorrow, the debutante of this year the Hollywood star of next, the humble laborer may make enough on his union wages to buy a house and swimming pool or maybe a yacht.

England Has Remnants

WE ARE BORN in hospitals, buried from funeral parlors. Few of us have an address that is more than five years old. In England, on the other hand, there is still the remnant of a hierarchy and it is much easier to write about. Anthony Trollope and, later, Angela Thirkell, owned their success to the village unit.

Travel books are in the ascendancy of course. If you must change places let's choose interesting ones. And, though it was over 90 years ago, the Civil War is still riding high.

And now let me explain to the man who telephoned about the Irene Castle review that, of course the dance was the maxixe — not Maxine. No excuse for the other blooper. Vernon Castle was killed in World War I, not World War II.

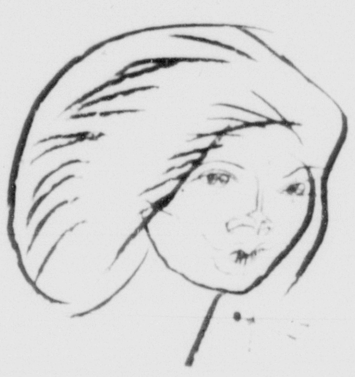
He Takes Cars for a Ride

THE INSOLENT CHARIOTS, by John Keats, (Lippincott $3.95)

John Keats is the man who took a crack at the housing developments in a book called The Crack in the Window and now his barbed humor is released on what he calls America's love objects — automobiles.

"Cars are venerated, lovingly polished and assigned the same virtues we once gave to ponies, veterans and dogs. We lavish gee-gaws on the family car as Hindus deck their idols."

In 1900, he points out, "we had scarcely enough paved surface in North America to fill a tooth. Today there is enough to blanket New England." This leads to the contention that all American cars cost too much, all fall apart at the same time.



How Girl Would Look
. . . if grotesque as our cars

The average dealer sells 150 new cars and 225 used cars a year. He must accept the used car as part payment on the new car because new cars are so fantastically expensive that taking the old one in trade makes the customer imagine he can really afford a new debt, which, of course, he can't.

The only way to continue this sequence is to bring out a car each year a little different, a little more spectacular, more crazy so as to allow time for this year's dreamboat to become another year's dog.

Keats goes caustic about the new monsters. They are too big for parking, the grotesque fins make them look like whales, the added gadgets add up to everything but safety.

This book, if they read it, is going to give Detroit manufacturers ulcers. What is the advantage of a window that moves up and down electrically? he demands.

"In the coldest Vermont winter of the year a Cadillac's electrical windows jammed open and in the middle of a Dallas heat wave they jammed shut. Why are power brakes necessary if not to stop the over-powered car? Power steering can throw a novice off the road and power brakes can hurl him through the windshield.

When anything breaks these days it breaks expensively. If your old hand-cranked window stuck, you could fix it yourself. Today you pay an expert in a white suit to take the door apart and you have to subsidize an electrical engineer to wrestle with a mass of multi-colored spaghetti to make his diagnosis."

Isak Dinesen Welcomed

Danish Author Is Visiting U.S.

Special To The Herald

NEW YORK—Isak Dinesen, distinguished Danish author, is making her first visit to this country. Her trip, arranged by The Fund for the Advancement of Education, is under the auspices of The Encyclopedia Britannica.

Miss Dinesen is making a series of filmed talks based upon some of the tales from her various works for the Britannica educational film series. She will also speak before the Institute of Contemporary Arts and be honored at a dinner given by the Academy of Arts and Letters late this month.

In 1934 Miss Dinesen's Seven Gothic Tales was chosen as a Book-of-the-Month Club selection and overnight became a best seller.

Isak Dinesen, actually the Baroness Karen Blixen of Rungstedland, Denmark, is carrying on the literary tradition of her father — born Isak Dinesen, who made a considerable contribution to Danish literature.

Besides Seven Gothic Tales, Miss Dinesen is the author of Winter's Tales, also a Book-of-the-Month Club selection, Out of Africa, Last Tales and the recently published Anecdotes of Destiny.

In 1944, as Pierre Andrezel she published The Angelic Avengers, a novel boldly condemning the Nazi conquerors in whose power Denmark then lay helpless.

King George VI
. . . 'and for a good people'

'Thank God for Good King'

KING GEORGE VI, by John W. Wheeler-Bennett, (St. Martin's, $10)

Reviewed by Arthur Griffith

This is the story of England's George VI, a man who did not want to be king.

Yet when kingship was thrust upon him, he manfully and successfully met the "inevitable mess" that confronted him with the abdication of Edward VIII, his brother, for what his mother called "that woman," Wallis Simpson.

This biography is a tribute to the patient research of the author and to his ability to bring his fact-finding into a fascinating recital of the achievements of one of the era's outstanding figures.

"By your quiet, useful work you have endeared yourself to the people," George's father wrote when he married Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon. The beautiful and gracious Scotswoman further endeared the young prince to the people.

Handicapped though he was by stammering speech and shyness, the King faced danger as a naval officer in World War I and refused to leave London in World War II.

Londoners took him to their hearts when he would not leave the city under air attack. He remained in Buckingham Palace though it was hit nine times by bombs.

To what purpose this biography? It brings a realization to the developing atomic age of the stuff of which Britain is made and its contribution to World War II victory. It is recent history that people will understand, providing an insight of the character of George VI as a man of common sense, deep religious convictions and a Navy-taught sense of duty.

"Again and again," says the author, in those warm September days, when East and South London were staggering beneath the first shock of the enemy's bombardment, the King and Queen would appear suddenly and without formality among the rubble and the ruins."

On one occasion, as the King paused in his inspection of a recently bombed area, a man cried out, "Thank God for a good King," and there arose a ragged cheer. "Thank God for a good people,' was the King's instant response, and again there arose a cheer of defiance.

". . . If anything could have established the monarchy even more firmly in the hearts of the people, it was this, and no one was more aware of the fact than Mr. Churchill."

Students especially will appreciate the comprehensive index in this great and well-illustrated work.

How Oldest Dictator Reigns

Trujillo Confidante Bares Rule of Terror

TRUJILLO: LITTLE CAESAR OF THE CARIBBEAN, by Dr. German E. Ornes; (Nelson, $5.00)

Reviewed by Ned Aitchison

Now that Generalissimo Dr. Rafael Leonidas Trujillo Molina — "dean of all the world's dictators" — is providing haven in the tightly-ruled little Dominican Republic for deposed dictators such as Gen. Fulgencio Batista of Cuba and the unlamented Juan Peron of Argentina, this 338-page book provides a merciless look at what manner of "strong men" are these characters who rule by terror, intimidation — and murder.

Dr. German E. Ornes Gen. Rafael Trujillo
. . . courageous Dominican exposes a tyrant

To be fair, it must be understood that Dr. Ornes, a former confidante of "The Big One," once a member of the Dominican congress and a newspaper publisher now living in exile in Santurce (San Juan), Puerto Rico, is among Trujillo's bitterest critics.

And not without reason. For he, his father, brother and other members of his immediate family, have suffered cruelly at the hands of the "Benefactor."

In acknowledging some of Trujillo's great accomplishments — "all well advertised as the embodiment of patriotism and selfless dedication to the welfare of the Fatherland," Dr. Ornes adds that these "are difficult to appraise accurately since they are always surrounded by an almost impenetrable fog of lies and deceit."

Diane Ornes

Ornes has done a great job of reporting, based on long, close, personal observation of "the oldest, harshest and most fiendish personal distatorship in today's Latin America."

Only 11 when Trujillo assumed power 27 years ago, the author underwent the full treatment later when he rebelled in his student days and suffered imprisonment, social and economic ostracism.

Finally, "due to my own weakness or the strength of my adversary," he says, "I eventually succumbed, as do most Dominicans living within the country and many who live outside, and was broken, becoming an active collaborator of the regime."

* * *

BUT the "indestructible instinct of freedom" prevailed, and Dr. Ornes and his wife, Diane, "awakened by new desires for liberty," left the Dominican Republic in 1955 when Trujillo was at the summit of his power. "I chose to leave wealth and social and political prestige for the uncertain world of exile under one compulsion: longings for freedom and dignity," he explains.

While Trujillo pays lip service to constitutional forms, Dr. Ornes says, actually he ignores these "when they conflict with his personal desires for more power or greater riches."

"Terror runs . . . through the fabric of Dominican society under a misleading surface of seeming peace," Ornes says.

"Dominicans fear one another and are in mortal dread of strangers. They suspect their servants, doubt their friends. They fear denunciation; they have the spooky fear of constantly being watched; they dread the shattering, harsh decrees and the mesh of regulations that, in totalitarian style, prescribe their course from cradle to grave.

(In the matter of constantly being under surveillance, the book, in a footnote, quotes as follows from a story written in 1957 by George Beebe, managing editor of The Miami Herald, who at the time was in Ciudad Trujillo to interview the Generalissimo: "In a 15-minute wait at the palace, an assortment of guards and attaches came into the waiting room, and I could feel their searching eyes trying to detect any bulge of weapons that might be on my person.")

* * *

DR. ORNES derides some widely-publicized claims of the dictator. While now asserting he is the world's No. 1 opponent of Communism, he "once saluted Stalin and his regime as one of the greatest forces for welfare and progress on which the democratic world can count."

The author reports, too, that Trujillo played footsie with Europe's two fellow dictators, Hitler and Mussolini, co-operating to the extent of making available Dominican bases for Nazi U-boats to refuel.

A one-time juvenile delinquent, convicted of theft and other misdemeanors, Trujillo, according to the author, never went beyond the fourth grade in school before proceeding on to the greater crimes of "national terrorism, mass murders and assassinations, sadistic treachery and ruthless, unprincipled dictatorship which made him into a feudal despot."

Among these crimes, the author recounts, was the bloody slaughter of 15,000 Haitian peasants.

Today, "absolute master of more than 2,000,000 people," Trujillo has a personal fortune estimated at more than $500,000,000, Dr. Ornes reports. "Practically every industry and trade is under control of one person."

But the author makes it easy to understand how these vast riches were accumulated, by explaining that anyone who starts a profitable enterprise in the Dominican Republic soon is apt to find he has unknowingly acquired the dictator or some members of his immediate family as "business partners," claiming all or most of the profits.

Further, the Trujillo family, Dr. Ornes says, has monopolistic control of virtually all big, profitable businesses, including sugar, the greatest of them all, where the dictator owns 12 out of 16 operating mills.

One aspect of the book may puzzle readers. Dr. Ornes points out that "while twice divorced, Trujillo somehow manages to retain the favor of the Vatican . . . The Dominican (Catholic) church is overwhelmingly pro-Trujillo, and the clergy, headed by the two archbishops, is among the foremost propagandists for the regime. At every propitious opportunity, the Pope cables cordial greetings to Trujillo."

* * *

MANY United States people do not realize, the author says, that Trujillo was the creature of their own Marines who occupied the little country in 1916 to "maintain domestic tranquility."

Dr. Ornes suggests Trujillo inveigled his way into the good graces of the Marines by acting as a pimp and drinking companion for a high United States constabulary officer, and as an informer on his own countrymen — in effect a spy and traitor. He also served jail terms during this period for forgery.

In 1918, Trujillo applied for enlistment in the National Constabulary; from Aug. 15 to Dec. 22, 1921, he underwent formal military education at an "academy" established in Haina, and under the aegis of the Marines, was commissioned a second lieutenant Dec. 22 of that year. As trained by the Marines, the force was meant to be non-political, "but after becoming its chief, Trujillo turned it into an instrument of personal power."

That was the turning point in the "Era of Trujillo." Thenceforth, the author says, "by deceit, by merciless persecution and assassination or banishment, he eliminated any opposition, real or assumed."

Indifference was as quickly and ruthlessly punished as real opposition, usually, first, by being smeared as a Communist or homosexual, then by relentless persecution which more often than not ended in killing.

Dr. Ornes's book is intensely interesting but you may be sure it will not be read in the Dominican Republic where it is banned. Nor are the downtrodden Dominicans likely to see even this mild resume of what is undoubtedly one of the most scathing denunciations of the world's oldest dictator. For there is no free press in the island "republic."

Just Call Him 'Mr. Paper'

Dard Hunter and a Rare Paper
. . . he gives fragile subject vitality

MY LIFE WITH PAPER by Dard Hunter (Knopf, $5)

People write best of what they love and Dard Hunter, famous throughout the printing world for his contributions to publishing, started in Steubenville, O. where his father owned a newspaper.

The son contributed cartoons and cute cut-ups, learned the art of printing from the bottom up, went on to Elbert Hubbard's Roycroft shop which will be remembered by old timers as the instigator of those soft, leather-bound books for the library table.

Hubbard, who went down in the Titanic, had more influence in the development of book collecting than anyone in his generation, says the author.

He stimulated interest in the individual book, the gift book or the conversation piece to awe the neighbors.

"The making of paper by hand fascinated me," says Hunter who pursued a paper chase all over the world. He traveled up the Nile to see papyrus growing, studied in Austria and London, studied tool making, the technique of oats and paper molds.

He studied, "spirit paper" from Japan, bamboo paper from India, paper of all types from Mexico, Europe, South Pacific, Java, Malaya and the Orient.

Hunter, who owned his own paper mill in Connecticut, probably knows more about printing and paper manufacturing than any man alive. His book is not only for the trade. It has the vitality that any devotee gives to his own subject.

And Parent's Guide Will Help You Help Youngsters Through Age 13

It's Fun for Child to Learn to Read These New Books

By MAY H. EDMONDS
Miami Public Library
Children's Department

So you have resolved in 1959 to do more to encourage your child to read! Well, here is the book for you — A Parent's Guide to Children's Reading, by Nancy Larrick, (paperbound, Pocket Books, 35c, also cloth binding, Doubleday, $2.95).

May Edmonds

This is a book to have at home and to consult frequently. Beginning with the baby carriage age and extending through age 13, it suggests specific books for each age level.

Dr. Nancy Larrick is an internationally known reading specialist who was selected by the National Book Committee to write this handbook for parents and teachers. She had the assistance of 18 consultants from national organizations concerned with children's reading.

In the simplest and most practical way, she answers questions commonly asked about children's reading: How reading is taught today, how to select books that will appeal to children, how to use reference books in the home, how to locate books that will tie in with TV programs, what magazines for children.

If finding books for a beginning reader is your problem, there are three new series of interesting and readable storybooks done entirely in words that first and second graders can read themselves.

The "Beginner Books" series published by Random House at $1.95 each features The Cat in the Hat Comes Back, by the justly famous Dr. Seuss and includes among its four other titles, A Big Ball of String, by Marion Holland and A Fly Went By, by Mike McClintock.

Another outstanding series is Harper & Brothers' "I Can Read" books.

We have a heightened interest in this one since Miami Beach author-artist, Syd Hoff produced Danny and the Dinosaur, very successful second title in the series. The story of a little boy's friendship with a museum dinosaur is his first book for children, but Mr. Hoff is nationally known for his New York cartoons.

The original "I Can Read" book was Little Bear by Elsa Minarik which became a classic within a year. She repeats her hit performance in the new No Fighting, No Biting.

'I Can Read' Book
. . . by Miamian Sid Hoff

Also in the "easy book" field is the Follett "Beginning-To-Read" books at 96c each. These are written on three reading levels:

First grade includes In John's Back Yard, Nobody Listens to Andrew and Something New at the Zoo; the second level offers The Four Friends and Mabel the Whale, about a whale with a sunburned fin. The third level has Peter's Policeman and This is a Town.

The Follett Books are especially colorful and attractive.

The Little Country Schoolhouse, by Virginia Ormsby, (Lippincott, $2.25) is another primary level book by a local author-artist. Mrs. Ormsby teaches third grade in Sunset Elementary. Her story of the little schoolhouse once outgrown, but now pressed into service will have special meaning for the children of Sunset. This like her other picture-story books, It's Saturday and Twenty One Children can be read by second graders.

Virginia Ormsby Sid Hoff
. . . popular with young

Pony for Three by C. W. Anderson, Macmillan, $2.) has the appeal of an easy horse story for second and third graders, enhanced by the excellent drawings of the author.

When the Cows Got Out by Dorothy Koch, (Holiday, $2.50) tells of an adventure that happened to Tim when he visited grandfather's farm. First and second grade reading level.

One Little Drum by Margaret Hodges (Follett, $2.40). It all began with one little drum Johnny got for Christmas, but within two years he acquired a snare drum, cymbal, second hand bass drum and membership in the school's new band. A businesslike record that other 3rd and 4th graders can read and be impressed with.

Pirate's Promise by Clyde Robert Bulla (Crowell, $2.75) is an easy-to-read book on a slightly higher level, (grade 3 and 4). This has a real adventure plot as 12-year-old Tom Pippin is sold into bondage, escapes from pirates and makes his way to freedom in America. Also for older, slower readers.

Pages, Pictures and Print by Joanna Foster, (Harcourt, $2.95) is a book about children's books from a slightly different viewpoint. It's how a publishing house works with your manuscript once you are inspired to write a children's book, what you do first to have your work considered, then what happens to your book in production each step of the way.

This is must reading for those who want to try their hand at writing or illustrating children's books.

This Mutiny Is a Bounty

Mutiny, by Frank Tilsley, (Reynal, $3.95). It is 1796. Napoleon overruns Europe. England's very existence depends on her fleet — and the 38-gun frigate Regenerate is manned by the cast of this exciting novel.

There are encounters with the enemy, and pretty girls appear at start and finish, but mostly this is men among men.

Out of the brutal but efficient discipline, the mastering of wind and storm, the savage clash of jealous, ambitious and vindictive sailors and officers, and endless hardships there rises the unmistakable salt tang of the sea.

This is unusually able storytelling.

Nassau Vacationers Do Lot of Real Bargain Hunting

Sightseeing and Shopping Is Part of Winter Fun
. . . guide points at interior of Nassau's Fort Charlotte

Special To The Herald

NASSAU, Bahamas — Price tags tell a pleasant tale in Nassau. So do sales slips.

They spell out bargains on foreign imports in dollars and cents, or pounds and shillings if the buyer happens to be dabbling in Bahamian currency. And the story's the same all year round, with 20 to 60 per cent savings on the United States price—and no sales tax.

China, crystal, liquor, cashmere sweaters, golf balls and cameras imported from the world's best markets are among the low-priced items that lure vacationers from Nassau's sun-tinged beaches to her Bay Street shops. The ladies lead the way, but the men aren't far behind when it comes to filling the duty-free purchase quotas allowed visitors.

"I better handcuff my wife," said one male vacationer who had a $200 quota because he'd been out of the U.S. more than 48 hours. "She's already bought enough sweaters and china to fill her quota. Now she's working on mine," he groaned, listing the bargains he'd have to forego.

With the savings possibility afforded on Nassau's shop items, all vacationers find something to suit their tastes and pocketbooks.

Newlyweds add to their chosen china and crystal patterns here, where Royal Doulton's "Coronet" dinnerware sells for $11.55 per 5-piece place setting compared to $17.95 plus tax stateside and Stuart's hand-cut crystal goblets cost half the U.S. price. For glamorizing their living quarters, they select Royal Doulton figurines like "Top o' the Hill" priced at $25.20 instead of the U.S. stores' $36.50 plus tax.

Hospitable hosts whose home liquor supplies are depleted by overzealous guests replenish their cabinets with Nassau bargains on scotch, $3.50 compared to $6.50 plus tax elsewhere; gin, $2 instead of $4.12 plus tax; drambuie at $5 compared to $9.20 plus tax.

Winter vacationers can't take Bahamian sunshine back home, so they purchase smart cashmere sweaters and doeskin gloves to diminish hometown cold fronts. Scotland's cashmere cardigans, priced at $17.95 compared to $26.95 in the states, and soft doeskin gloves tagged as low as $1.95 help ease the season's chill, stylishly as well as warmthwise.

Bahamas Seminar

Travel News

NASSAU — Florida airlines personnel and travel representatives were among 30 participants in a three-day group travel seminar at the British Colonial Hotel.

The conference, presented by Gill Hotels, Inc., in cooperation with Pan American World Airways, was designed to stress the importance of small and medium-sized group travel business, especially during the slack season.

"There can be no doubt that there is a great untapped potential in the field of small and medium-sized group business, especially during the off-season months," said David A. Randall, group sales manager for the Gill organization.

"Through this seminar and others like it, we hope to demonstrate this potential to airline personnel who influence all phases of travel."

Americans 'Discover' Poland OK

By NED AITCHISON
Herald Travel Writer

UNITED STATES travelers touring Europe are finding, in ever-increasing numbers, that Poland is an attractive country to include on their vacation itineraries, Zenon Piekarek, Polish vice consul in Washington, said in Miami this weekend.

"In 1956, when United States passports were validated for use in Poland," he explained, "there were only about 600 American tourists.

AITCHISON

"But by 1957, this total had increased to more than 3,000; by 1958 to some 7,500, and this year we are expecting from 12,000 to 15,000 United States citizens will tour Poland."

Here on a brief vacation, the Polish vice consul took time out to confer with Jacques E. Turner, regional manager of Air France, which transports many of the travelers abroad for their Polish visits, and with Wallace Wnonowski, 1334 SW First St., who, in addition to handling food parcels sent by Americans to the Polish people, also arranges group tours to that country.

"While Poland does require visas, it is a relatively simple matter to obtain them," Piekarek said. "They are obtainable only from the consulate in Washington, and normally a period of about eight days is required for their issuance.

"United States or Canadian residents need only to make out two brief applications, submit two passport pictures, their passport, and have their vaccination certificates which are needed not only for entry into Poland but for return into the United States from Europe."

Piekarek said the requisite forms are available from Wnonowski, who also will provide any needed information relative to procuring visas.

Warsaw Is Rebuilt

"TOURISTS VISITING Poland have completely free access to the country, either traveling by themselves or on group tours," the vice consul said.

"They will find that Warsaw, destroyed in World War II, has been 95 per cent rebuilt, and probably is the largest entirely new city in the world, with its population of more than a million, virtually what it was before the war.

"The 'old section' of the capital, which was totally razed, has been fully restored to its original form of architecture and art works, while the 'new' part of the city, erected in ultra-modern fashion, has beautiful buildings and wide streets.

"The newest hotel there, the Grand, is one of the largest and finest in all Europe, with accommodations for from 800 to 900 guests, TV, telephones and private baths in each room. And a heliport atop the hotel which, in a matter of minutes, transports travelers to Okecie airport, some five miles south of Warsaw.

"Foods are in plentiful supply, and cheap. First-class living accommodations are available at reasonable prices."

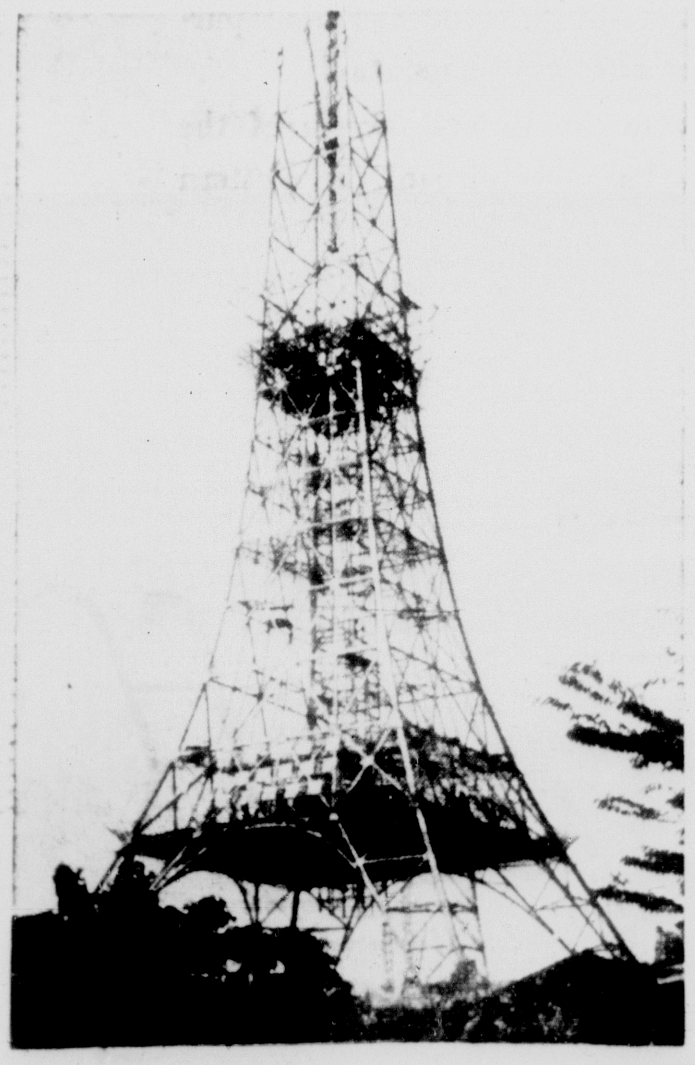
Annual Fair in June

BUT, THE VICE CONSUL suggested, tourists should not confine their visit to Warsaw, alone.

"For Americans," he said, "Poland is an intensely interesting country.

"Take Cracow, for instance; or Poznan, where the great international trade fair is held annually from June 6 to 26, with all the world's leading nations, including the United States, exhibiting, or the many villages and towns off the beaten path where true Polish life may be seen close-up; the mountains, lakes, popular resorts and other interesting and historic places — well worth the time to visit."

In the smaller communities, many visitors, Piekarek said, find the native handicraft — fabrics, wood carvings, crystal ware, etc., are attractive souvenirs of the country to take or send home.



JAPANESE EYEFULL may look as though the famed Eiffel tower is being torn down, but this scene is actually located in Tokyo. The 1,088-foot TV tower —the world's tallest—was completed in December. It tops the Eiffel tower by 104 feet.

Changing of the Guard Is a MUST

By LUCIA LEWIS
Herald Travel Writer

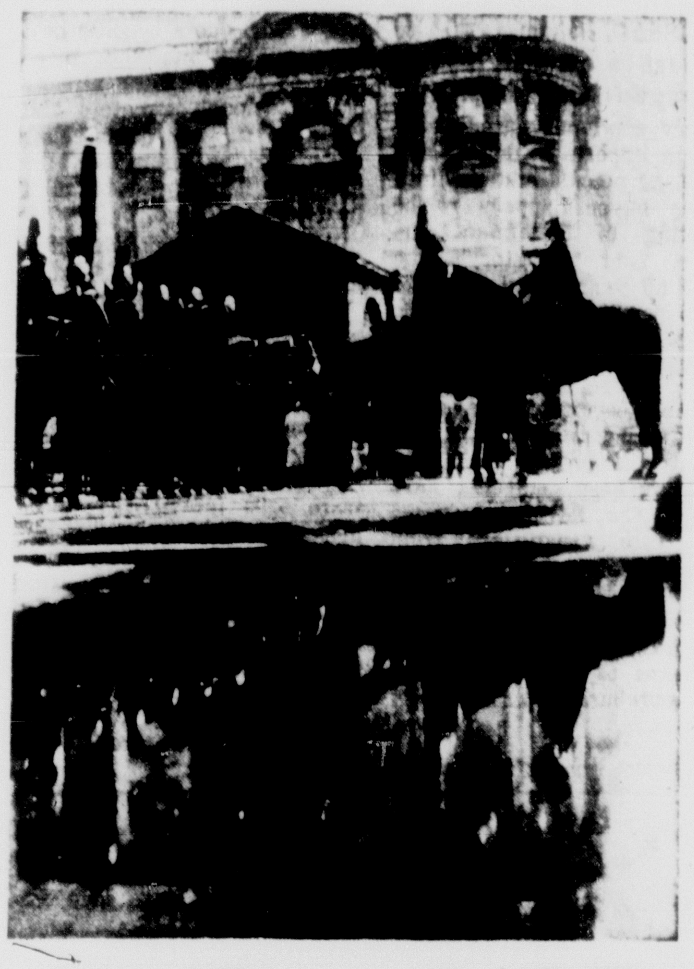
LUCIA

LONDON — Of course, you will feel like a gullible tourist but don't fail to see the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace. You'll have plenty of company.

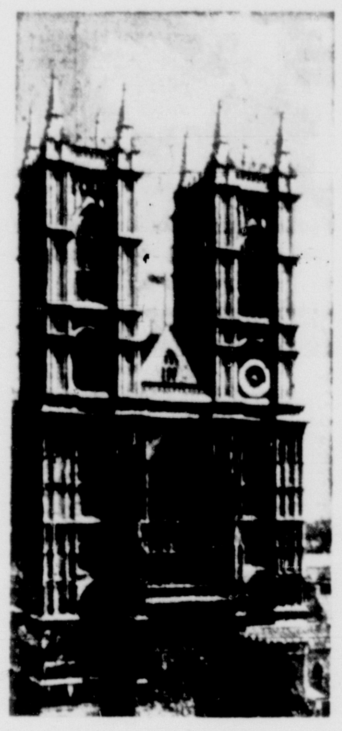
The trick is to get there early enough to establish a good beachhead, especially if you plan to take pictures. Whether it's the crowded summer season or any other time you'll find the sightseers packed six to eight deep along the palace fence, where you can watch the ceremony inside the gates.

Across the boulevard are thousands of others lined up along the curb, jammed in tiers on the steps of the Victoria Memorial Monument.

Youngsters clamber up to sit on shoulders of sculptured figures and are patiently ordered off by the Bobby; only to climb up again the minute he turns his back.



Mirrored Majesty in a Giant Puddle
. . . changing of horse guards in London



Westminster Abbey
. . . kings crowned here

When the guards in crimson tunics swing around the corner behind their stirring band you'll find the show is worth waiting for.

The British love it as much as the tourists, which is why it's a good idea to get there by 10 or 10:30, though the ceremony doesn't start till 11 a.m.

After the palace spectacle is over everyone starts drifting away but if you drift in the right direction, towards the mall, you'll see the horse guards clattering up the avenue in an even more colorful parade.

The white plumes waving from their gleaming helmets, the sparkling red, white and gold uniforms and snowy sheepskins draped over the saddles of coal-black horses make a dazzling picture.

Proper timing is important at Westminster Abbey, too. While you may want to attend the beautiful services on Sunday, the best time for sight seeing is a weekday.

On Sundays the three magnificent chapels behind the high altar are not open. If you don't see these it's like going to St. Peter's and the Vatican galleries without seeing the Sistine Chapel.

The chapels of Edward the Confessor, King Henry V and Henry VII are not only impressive because of the great figures entombed in them. Some of the finest art and sculpture in Europe is assembled there.

Previous visitors will be glad to see that those shillings and pounds they dropped in the fund for preservation of the Abbey are being put to good use.

The arches and various sags of the ages have been bolstered up, the facade and interior are being cleaned. About half the lovely pillars and arches in the nave now glimmer in their original white, with the grime of the centuries removed.

Now if they could only remove that phalanx of Victorian prime ministers, whose tasteless statues are lined up near the altar as if for an auction, all would be well.

Curacao Wants More Than Overnight Stops

By HORACE SUTTON
Herald Travel Writer

SUTTON

CURACAO — Until recently, this 40-mile-long island, 170 miles from the top of South America, was considered hardly more than a dazzling bargain basement, albeit located about as far south as a basement can get. Scarcely a winter's day passed without a cruise ship slipping into the harbor to disgorge hundreds of passengers for a few hours shore leave.

Although Curacao still has dozens of shops offering low-duty merchandise and scores of ships still steam into the harbor, the island would also like to attract travelers who want to come south for a vacation.

For one thing, it has an airport with an 8,000-foot lighted runway, with direct nonstop service with Miami and New York, and it won't be long before the jets shave the trip to a mere 3½ hours.

While transportation is still relatively expensive, hotel and food prices are well below the going rate in the more highly touted island resorts to the north.

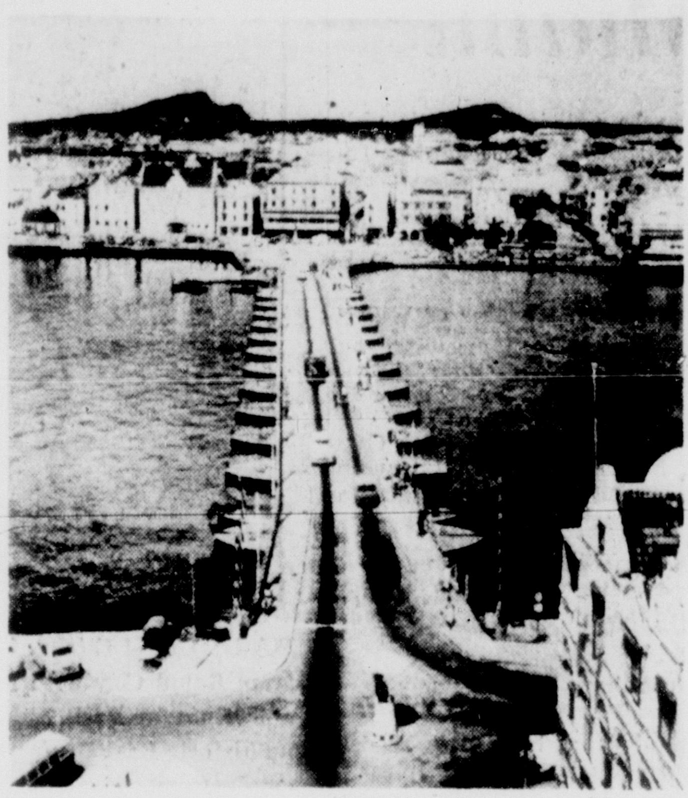
The houses along Handelsgade look strangely like Holland, and Anna Bay, the body of water that borders them, appears strikingly like a Dutch canal. On the other hand, when it comes to Curacao weather, Amsterdam never had it so good.

The average for the early winter months is about 80 degrees, and unseasonal cold spells of the type that have badgered winter resorts not so favorably located have never been experienced down here.

Without skating down a canal to Rotterdam, Amersfoort, or Apeldoorn, one can stay both Dutch and warm by skipping over to the Old Dutch Tavern at Columbusstraat 17-A for Holland-style fried sole or Java Honden Portie, which is a plate the size of a cartwheel loaded with French fries, steak, carrots, asparagus, onions, cole slaw, tomatoes, and kroepoek which is a sort of shrimp chip.

After dinner you can smoke a clay pipe and conjure up pipe dreams of Peter Stuyvesant, who was once the island's governor.

Doubtless Peter Stuyvesant would be aghast at what has been done with the waterfront built at the harbor's entrance during his tenure as governor. Although the walls, the cannon, and the powder magazines remain, the inside has been fashioned into a splendid hotel called the Curacao Intercontinental.



Curacao's Queen Emma Bridge Has Pontoons
. . . bridge swings aside to let ships pass into docks

It is decorated in many shades of orange and fitted out with teakwood furniture, a huge outdoor pool, and a small indoor casino. Indoors or out you can get in over your head.

While the Curacao Intercontinental, wrapped in its ramparts that date from 1634, is rakish and new, the Hotel Avila de Curacao, at the edge of the sea, is old and colorful. Built in 1807 as a governor's palace during the British occupation of Curacao, it is operated as a sort of expensive hobby by an elderly eye specialist, Dr. Harry Maal.

Trupiaals, a kissing cousin of the oriole, twitter in the courtyard, and the bar, built like a schooner, seems ready to sail at a moment's notice. There is a small pool and another is being built at the Caribbean's edge looking toward South America.

Two miles out of town, the Piscadera Bay Club is a resort with cottages strung out along the sea, a Dutch chef, and an artificial beach. The bathing is natural, however, within the confines of a wire net enclosure designed to keep out fish who are not members.

One of the perplexities of Curacao is that while its hotel life is relatively inexpensive by other Caribbean standards, is taxi rates are pegged so high, they must be considered carefully by anyone booking rooms out of town.

And it is a curious inequity that the ferry that plies back and forth across Anna Bay is free, but a copy of a New York newspaper that costs a nickel in Manhattan sells for 65 cents down here.

There used to be a five-cent charge on the Queen Emma pontoon bridge for anyone with shoes, two cents for those without.

Curacao people quickly adopted the habit of removing their shoes when crossing the bridge, proving that everything is not only better with your shoes off, but cheaper.

Lake Worth Offers Range of Activity

Special To The Herald

Lake Worth, Florida, located only 58 miles north of Miami on the blue Atlantic Ocean, flanks on both sides U.S. Highway 1 for three and a half miles.

Florida
Keeps Growing

This charming vacation fun spot for visitors offers a wide choice of activity ranging from fresh or salt water fishing to fast moving jai alai and polo matches.

Tropical palms and the rolling surf of the breeze blown Atlantic make Lake Worth a colorful winter vacation area.

Visitors can walk or drive the mile from downtown to the municipal beach. Visitors have ample opportunity to relax on the long row of benches of the 500-foot covered boardwalk of the Municipal Casino. A convenient shopping center is located in the Casino.

The 100-foot-wide beach, within a few feet of both Casino and boardwalk, is a sun lover's paradise. Bathers loaf on bright sunny sands or swim in the Atlantic or in the Casino's big pool. A park nearby has facilities for picnickers with a view of Atlantic waters.

Lake Worth bows to the sun during a high point in its winter season when Fiesta Del Sol, a celebration held March 9-15, attracts upwards of 80,000 persons.

The Fiesta features a big parade, barbecue, Fiesta Queen and a pancake breakfast served on the final Sunday of the event. Thousands attend this Sunday morning breakfast. Tables are arranged in a downtown park.

Fiesta time also features a turtle race with highly colored turtles plodding along on a circular track to the delight of spectators.

Adequate accommodations are available for visitors in the Lake Worth area. Motels, hotels, apartments and trailer parks are numerous. Ten motels were built in the Lake Worth area during 1958, for a total of 400 units.

Deep sea and fresh water fishing are also popular with wintertime visitors. Lake Osborne, a 15-mile-long fresh water lake a mile from downtown, offers bass and bream angling. Ocean surf fishing attracts enthusiastic fishermen.

Vacation Packagers Zooming Into Miami

By AL FINKELSTEIN
Herald Travel Writer

THE STOCK MARKET, weather and the Cuban situation will make or shake — but "definitely not" break — the 1959 travel trade, according to three Greater Miami vacation-package specialists.

Right now, it's booming.

"The year 1959 will be one of the biggest travel years ever," said veteran travel man Robert T. Bellchambers of United Tours, "providing the stock market doesn't go to pieces."

His reasoning: "If the market is up, people figure they are making money and are, therefore, willing to spend it . . . If it's down — they stay home."

And "they are not staying home now," he added.

* * *

EVEN THOUGH the tourist flow to Cuba has been damaged by internal government strife, Harold Kaplan Jr., manager of Miami Beach's Allied Travel Service, reports "interest has tripled" since the first of the year.

"They (the tourists) have been waiting for the word when the gambling casinos would re-open," Kaplan said.

"They seem to be anticipating their visit there, rather than showing any fear over recent events."

Travel to Caribbean ports, he said, has been "very heavy."

* * *

HAROLD A. BINDER, manager of Willy's Tours, said his office has been receiving "an increasing number" of inquiries from Miami-based visitors for Havana.

"Castro, (revolutionary leader Fidel Castro) apparently, has now recognized tourism is his country's second major crop next to sugar," he said.

Nightclubs have reopened and "our representatives there tell us," Binder said. American tourists are being "openly welcomed again."

Trips to Europe have been "simply terrific."

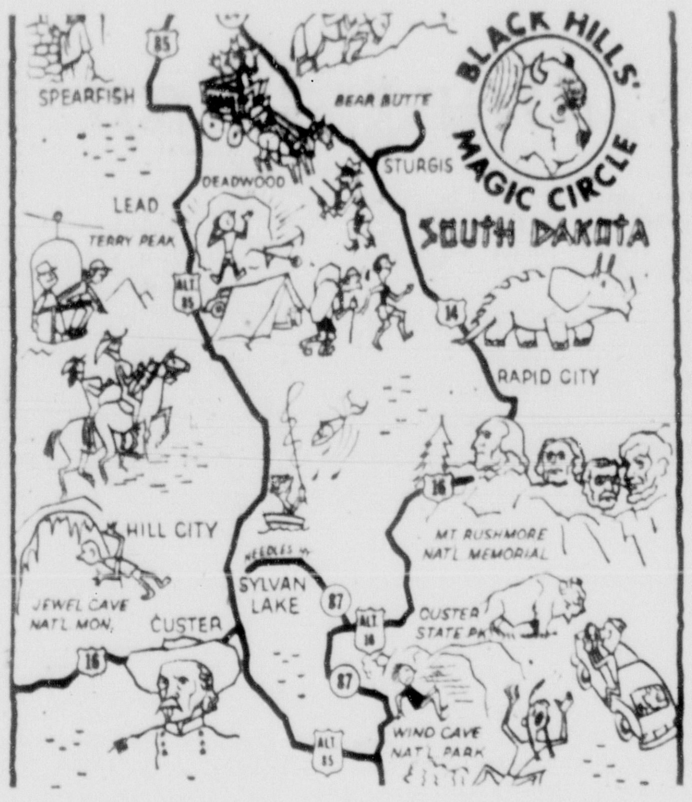
"People follow fads and trends," Binder said. "Going abroad has become 'the thing'."

But most important of all to the tourist business, he said, was the weather.

"If we got weather . . . we got business."

And all three travel experts agreed: Right now, they've got both.

49TH STATE offers sunshine and dry powder snow and sends Lorie Jenkins of Anchorage out skiing on the slopes of Mt. Alyeska.



MAGIC CIRCLE trip of South Dakota Black Hills starts from Rapid City with its Geology and Indian museums and Dinosaur Park. Enroute is Sturgis, for a burro ride up historic Bear Butte; Belle Fourche, capital of a cattle empire, and Spearfish, home of the celebrated Black Hills Passion Play. Deadwood still roars to the delight of visitors. On the way back you see Mount Rushmore National Memorial and the faces sculptured on the granite mountain.

Russia Is Bidding For U.S. Tourists

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT
Herald Travel Writer

MOSCOW—The Soviet Union will make a bid for the cream of next summer's American tourist business in Europe, Vladimir M. Ankudinov, president of the official government travel organization "Intourist" said in Moscow.

McDermott

More Russian cities will be opened to tourists than previously, he said in an interview.

In addition to the 25 itineraries now available, covering cities from Leningrad in the west to Tashkent in the far Asiatic part of the U.S.S.R., new cities along the Volga River will be opened to visitors.

These will include Gorkey, Kazan, Kubishev and Saratov, Ankudinov said.

H. J. Vanderstaak, manager in Russia for KLM Royal Dutch Airline, reports the "Flying Dutchman" planes are expected to carry capacity loads from the United States via Amsterdam to Moscow once summer arrives.

More than 7,000 American tourists visited Russia in 1958.

New hotels are being readied along the Black Sea resort coast and in the Crimea and the mountain regions of southern Russia.

Every incentive is being given to attract the potential traveler.

The tourist exchange rate of 10 rubles for $1 is 2½ times better than the official rate.

The tour programs are among the best handled of any in the world.

As for Russian travelers visiting America, Ankudinov shrugged that possibility off lightly.

"It costs too much," he said.

He then recalled — with a shudder — his own experience of paying $43 per day at the Waldorf Astoria hotel in New York and $38 for a raincoat in Washington.

Rubles exchanged in New York for dollars would cost about 20 or 25 to one. Figuring the average Russian's salary at 1,200 to 1,600 rubles per month, this rate would allow him only $60 to $100 for his month's earnings.

No Thumb Twiddling Is Ahead in Florida

Special To The Herald

Florida's greatest influx of winter visitors arrives in February, the peak vacation month which is considered by many as one of the liveliest.

Vacation thumb twiddlers are scarce in Florida during February. The state features colorful fairs and festivals, flower shows, Grapefruit League baseball, boating, auto racing, rodeo, golf and tennis tournaments and a continuing schedule of horse and dog racing, jai alai and fishing tournaments through the winter season.

Highlights of the February calendar include the Florida State Fair at Tampa, Feb. 3-14 and the Buccaneer Gasparilla Festival, when pirate invaders "capture" the city for six days, on Feb. 9 through Feb. 14.

The Florida State Fair, showcasing the state, is the largest mid-winter exposition in the world. The sprawling grounds near midtown Tampa cover 15 city blocks. More than 25,000 persons actively participate in the huge fair and more than 1,000,000 Floridians and visitors constantly keep the turnstiles clicking.

February Fun
. . . in Florida

Gasparilla, always an intriguing favorite for visitors, is an explosion of color, fun and excitement as fierce Pirates wielding flashing cutlasses arrive in Tampa on a fully rigged pirate ship, escorted by hundreds of smaller boats.

The Jolly Roger flag of piracy will be hoisted over Tampa's City Hall and the pirates leap ashore to begin immediately their parade of triumph.

Dozens of floats, marching bands and pretty girls join the victorious Buccaneers in a four-hour parade to the grounds of the Florida State Fair.

The parade, the crowning of a new king and his queen during the festivities, a large children's parade complete with bantam size floats and bands and fireworks, makes this social and fun festival a happy event for all ages.

Rural Florida comes to the fore as the state's county fairs also take over the spotlight. Fairs scheduled for February in the Sunshine State include the Central Florida Fair at Orlando, Feb. 23-28; Pinellas County Fair and Horse Show, Largo, Feb. 24-28 and the Suwannee River Fair and Livestock Show at Fannin Springs on Feb. 25-27.

Other unusual and varied celebrations for visitors of all ages include Miss Hialeah Pageant at Hialeah, Feb. 14; Ft. Myers' Festival of Light, Feb. 7-16, Beach Day and Blessing of the Shrimp Boats, Feb. 15; Bradenton's DeSdto Celebration, Feb. 15-22; Kissimmee's Silver Spurs Mid-Winter Rodeo, Feb. 20-22 and the Sarasota Pageant at Sarasota on Feb. 22-28.

Also scheduled for February in Florida are Moore Haven's Chalo-Nitka Festival, Feb. 21; Washington's Birthday Celebration at Eustis, Feb. 22; Plant City's Florida Strawberry Festival, Feb. 23-28 and Palatka's Azalea Festival on Feb. 28-March 1.

The Detroit Tigers are scheduled for Grapefruit League training and exhibitions at Lakeland, Feb. 15-April 15 and the Milwaukee Braves, at Bradenton, train and play their exhibition games from Feb. 20-April 7.

Auto racing dates at Daytona Beach for speed enthusiasts run from Feb. 15-22.

Boating in the state scheduled for February includes the Mid-Winter Outboard Regatta at Miami, Feb. 6-7.

Golfing in Florida takes place at Hollywood, the Women's Invitational Four-Ball Tourney, Jan. 29-Feb. 21; St. Petersburg's $7,500 Women's Open Golf Tournament, Feb. 12-15 and the National Base-Ball Players' Championship Golf Tournament, at Miami Springs on Feb. 19-22.

Six flower shows are scheduled around the state in February. They include Tampa, Feb. 3-14; Fort Myers, Feb. 11; Redington Beach, Feb. 17-18; Miami, Feb. 20-23; Jupiter, Feb. 21-22 and Avon Park on Feb. 26.

Florida is ablaze with colorful activities during the winter season for everyone of all ages.

Gas Coupons Save Money in Europe

Travelers planning to tour Europe by car — that's fifty-one per cent of all American visitors, according to the European Travel Commission — should not fail to buy the gas coupons sold by French and Italian authorities to foreign motorists.

Make inquiries at the border station as you drive into either country or, in France, of the dealer from whom you buy or rent a car.

The coupons give you a thirty- to forty-per-cent discount on pump prices, which run up to a backbreaking eighty-five cents a gallon in both countries.

In France, the discount is yours whether you bring your own car, buy a French car with dollars or rent a self-drive.

But watch out for Italy. A car with Italian plates does not rate the discount. Rent yours outside the country.

How You Can Be 'Smart'

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The easiest and most satisfying way to become a smart aleck is to buy the World Almanac. The 74th edition of this wonderful book came off the press last week.

LAHEY

For years I have pointed out to people that it's the woman who walks back from the graveyard. In support of this statement, I mention that widows outnumber widowers in this country by roughly eight million to three million.

Such a depth of knowledge rarely fails to impress people. When they put you in a corner and demand sources, you have to confess that figures like this come from the World Almanac. But most of the time people just look admiringly at this fund of facts that the World Almanac man rolls off at parties.

* * *

A RANDOM opening of our new office edition of the almanac reveals, for example, that somebody other than the Democrats and the Republicans have a problem in selecting candidates in 1960.

The Hall of Fame, an endowed institution at New York University, must also select some candidates for admission in 1960. A college of electors, made up of 100 highbrows, meets every five years to put some new, or rather old, Americans, in the Hall of Fame. They have met every five years since 1900.

A candidate has to be dead 25 years before he makes the Hall of Fame. This means that Franklin D. Roosevelt won't make it until at least 1970.

In 1955 the college of electors came up with only three new tenants for the Hall of Fame. They were Thomas Jonathan Jackson, George Westinghouse, and Wilbur Wright. I dig Westinghouse and Wright, but Jackson is a stranger to me.

So far there are 86 names in the Hall of Fame. Twenty-nine of them were nominated in 1900, when the institution was established under an endowment from Mrs. Helen Gould Shepard.

The lady undoubtedly was from the family of Jay Gould, but that Wall Street buccaneer is not in the Hall of Fame.

The first batch of 29 in 1900 included only three warriors, Gen. Lee, Gen. Grant, and Adm. Farragut. George Washington of course is a member, but obviously for more than his military genius.

* * *

ANOTHER random table of statistics in the World Almanac shows that the marriage chances for a female decline with much greater rapidity after 30 than they do for males.

This is pretty obvious, but when you see the cold figures in comparative tables, it gives you some understanding of the panic that seizes a girl when she hits 30 without a husband.

Cyprus War

Cavalrymen Put Aboard Donkeys

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

NICOSIA, Cyprus — The polo players of a skilled British cavalry regiment are now riding donkeys day and night.

The Royal Horse Guards thought the end of hay, boots and saddles had come when they were given armored cars. After man's noblest friend, mechanization was a letdown.

But astride the hip-high donkeys, they are learning to put on the brakes by digging their heels into the ground.

The reason for the downgrading of the cavalrymen is that in searching for EOKA guerillas in winter, they must climb the snowy ranges of Cyprus.

The tiny hoofmarks of donkeys are no telltales in the snow as jeeps or horses would be, because the mountains are full of semi-wild mules and donkeys.

Kids Took Mom Along--Wow!

LONDON — (UPI) — Two new pupils enrolling for the winter session at the American school in London attracted an excited crowd of children because they brought their mother along.

Mother is screen star Lauren Bacall who has moved to London for six months. She registered her two children by the late Humphrey Bogart, Lesbe, six, and Stephen, 10.

Fast Growing Immaculate Conception School
. . . this new addition to Hialeah school is already full

Church School Overflows

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

If hard-pressed public schools in Dade County think they have trouble keeping up with the growing number of pupils, they should look at Immaculate Conception Catholic School.

Located at 4501 W. Second Ave. in Hialeah, the school has tripled its enrollment in a little more than two years.

This month, an addition was completed which is larger than the original school completed in 1956. It has 13 classrooms, while the original building has nine.

Msgr. Dominic Barry, the parish priest, attributes the enrollment gain from 400 to 1,174 to the general growth of the area.

"At this rate, we'll need a high school here before long," he said.

Msgr. Barry, who is kept busy baptizing future pupils at the rate of eight a week, hopes for the eventual forming of a new parish northwest of Hialeah to ease the load.

Another possibility being considered, he said, is to build a new church nearby and convert the old one into a school building.

Hospital Hails Nurse's Triplets

EVANSVILLE, Ind. — (AP) — The head nurse is the most celebrated patient in the St. Mary's Hospital maternity ward.

The population in the hospital's nursery rose in a hurry when the nurse, Mrs. Roy Fowler Jr., 32, gave birth to triplets within 13 minutes. They are a boy and two girls.

The Fowlers have another child, Sherry Lynn, five.

OWEN PHILLIPS, director at the Coconut Grove Playhouse, told Reporter Beatrice Washburn (page 4) that he had never had any yearning to be an actor himself. What he didn't mention at the time of the interview, but which became apparent when Tennessee Williams' Period of Adjustment opened at the Grove recently is that he did nurse ambitions for his dog Buff to tread the boards.

There was a rather handsome part for a cocker spaniel in the play and by happy coincidence Buff is a cocker. It must be admitted though that Buff let his master down lamentably. Nobody has had the heart to ask Phillips what happened, but in the end Buff appeared only briefly—and firmly leashed—on stage after which he was banished to "the kitchen" and oblivion since this was completely out of sight of the audience.

* * *

PEOPLE for some reason get very edgy about ketches and yawls, as we have twice had occasion to discover. Couple of weeks ago, captions under sketches of a ketch and a yawl were transposed (gremlins did it) and poor Don Mucklow who wrote the accompanying piece was widely blamed. He defends himself in a note to his critics on page 27.

That wasn't the first time these two pesky boats—which look enough alike to be twins to a landlubber's eye—have been mixed up. Some three years ago Fun magazine's cover photo showed a handsome sailing vessel swooping grandly over the blue Atlantic. It was identified as a yawl whereas it was really a ketch — or vice versa — forget which after all this time. Whichever way around it was, the incident triggered off a flurry of letters and calls that ranged from the most acid sarcasm to gentle scolding. Twice burned and apparently eternally hexed, we now have a policy that never again, under any circumstances will we run photos of either ketch or yawl.

Betty Garnet

On the Cover

Billy Bowlegs, grand old man of the Seminoles, loved and respected by all who know him, has arrived at the age of 96 lean, wiry and strong as most men a half century his junior.

Unless you're familiar with the involved way that tribal names are handed down, you might get the wrong idea about Billy. Not at all bowlegged, he stands straight as an arrow, six-feet tall and a fine figure of a man. To bear the name Bowlegs is a great honor. Billy Bowlegs I was a magnificently fierce warrior whose feats are now a legend and a later Billy Bowlegs, the present Billy's uncle, also distinguished himself in service to his tribe.

Reporter Mike Morgan and Photographer John Walther visited Billy on the Brighton Reservation to get the story and photos on pages 6 through 9 today. Walther took also the cover color photo of one of the most colorful men in Florida's colorful history.

"Better than 5 Wheelbarrows"

Do you own a wheelbarrow?

If so, here's wonderful news for you — news about the COUNTRYMAN'S CART which is SO MUCH more useful than a wheelbarrow!

When you've owned it a week you'll wonder how in the world you ever did without it! The all-steel COUNTRYMAN'S CART has many, many more uses than a wheelbarrow. Holds 3 times the volume, 5 times the weight. Pushes much, much easier thanks to TWO BIG 30" wheels.

Even women and children find it much easier than a wheelbarrow to use. The weight balances on the axle — you don't carry it in your hands! And it won't tip over!

The COUNTRYMAN'S CART is built by Vermont craftsmen to last 100 years. Leave it outdoors all year long. Just paint it every year or so. Hard use can't hurt it. Tight, welded construction keeps things like loose dirt and sand from spilling out the sides. Removable tailgate makes for easy dumping.

Satisfaction guaranteed. Use the Cart around your place for three months. If you are not delighted, just send it back and we'll refund every penny of the purchase price!

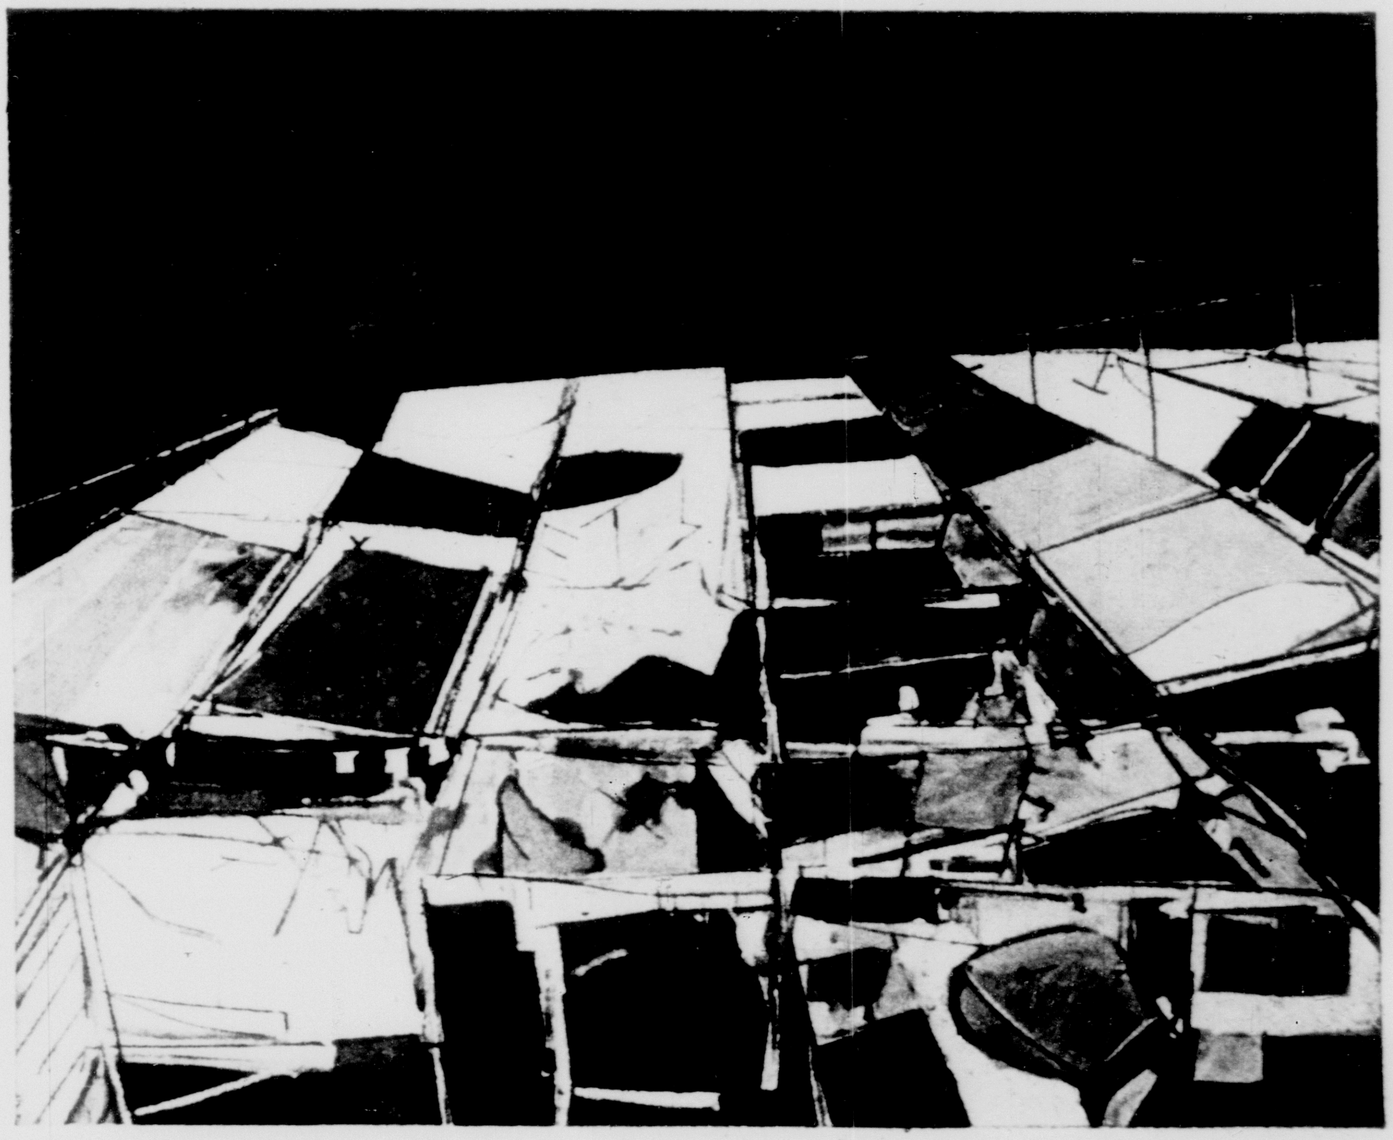
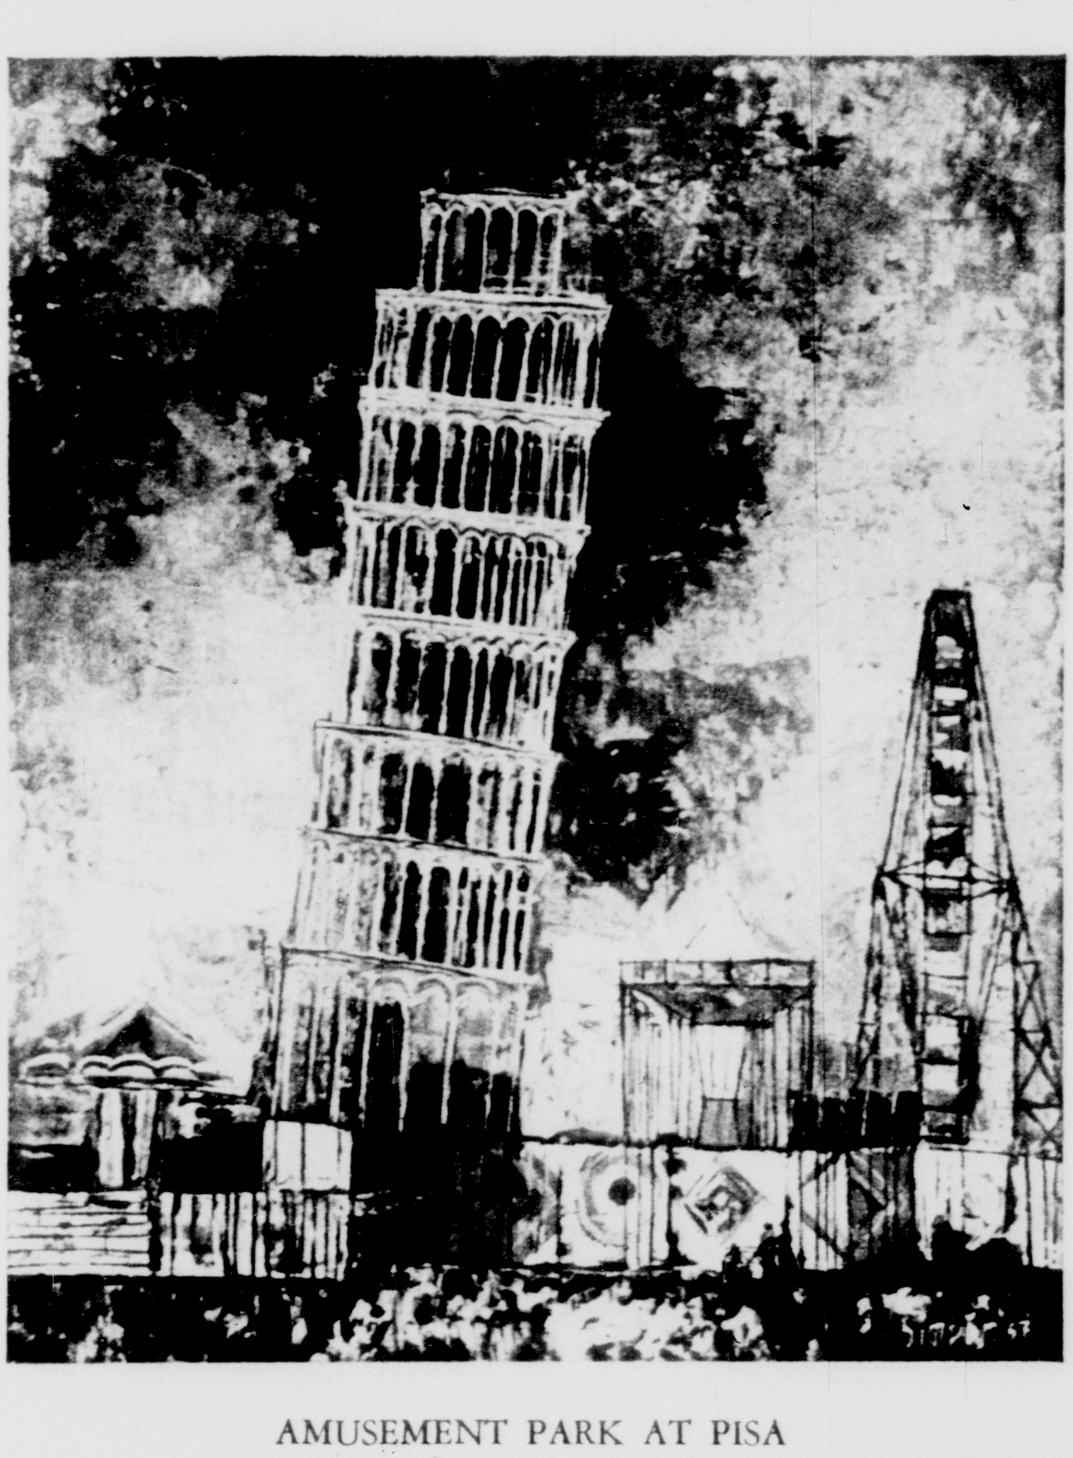
YOU Are The Judge At This Art Show



U.S. ARTIST JOHN HULTBERG MAKES BOLD USE OF PRIMARY COLORS
... in his painting, Leading Edge, in Hallmark exhibit at UM's Lowe Gallery

YOU CAN BE a world traveler in the realm of art simply by traipsing around the Joe and Emily Lowe Art Gallery on the University of Miami campus during its showing of the Fourth International Hallmark Art Award exhibition.

After a special preview for gallery members this afternoon, the show, featuring art from 16 nations, will be open to the public Tuesday for viewing through Feb. 15. In keeping with University policy, there is no admission charge to the gallery which is under the direction of C. Clay Aldridge.



AMUSEMENT PARK AT PISA
... by young (32) Italian artist, Nicola Simbari

Fifty contemporary artists from Europe, North and South America vied for the $7,000 offered in prize money by Hallmark, which granted an additional $50,000 to artists in commissions for the invitational competition.

All paintings are in the watercolor medium but for the first time since the competition began in 1949, no theme or subject of any kind was suggested to participating artists.

Unique feature of the show is the opportunity provided all viewers to cast their votes for the paintings they like most. Following the close of the national tour some time in 1960, Hallmark will give $1,800 in additional awards to artists, based on the popularity poll of all gallery viewers.

VLADIMIR VISSON of Wildenstein Gallery, New York City, who directs the competition, is in Miami for the Lowe Art Gallery opening.

Gallery visitors will see 28 paintings from the U.S., five from France, two from England, three from Italy and one each from Canada, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Venezuela, Denmark, Germany, Holland, Norway, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland.

In addition to reflecting different national traditions, paintings also represent several current trends in art including abstraction, expressionism, abstract expressionism, cubism and realism.

First prize of $2,000 went to Edward Hopper for his "California Hills." Now 75 years old, Hopper has pioneered a new chapter in American realism. His objective paintings of small-town America, its people and architecture, as well as his city scenes, have won him a host of honors and awards.

With "Two Against the White," a painting bridging the gap between realism and abstraction, Charles Sheeler won the second award of $1,000. A native of the United States, also in his 70's, Sheeler paints what he sees but with an emphasis on abstract composition.

"Nailsworth, Gloucestershire," a work by the noted English artist John Piper, won the $750 third prize. His work combines the light and color of the impressionists with contemporary realism.

* * *

AMONG the other artists represented in the exhibition is 30-year-old Bernard Buffet, current darling of French art circles who has already made millions by dint of his brush. He scored a recent coup on this side of the Atlantic when he was chosen to do the cover portrait of Time Magazine's Man of the Year, Charles de Gaulle. His painting in the Hallmark exhibit "The Canal Saint-Martin, Paris," is in the realist tradition.

Anyone wanting a globe-trotter's view of world art is welcome to tour the Lowe Art Gallery. It's open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays and from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sundays.

And don't forget to vote for your favorite painting.

New Playwrights Have Slim Chance of Fame But They Keep on Pounding 'Em Out Anyhow, Says Coconut Grove Director Owen Phillips

By Beatrice Washburn

Photos by Bob East and Ray Fisher

EVER THINK of writing a play?

If not you are about the only one who hasn't, according to Owen Phillips, director of the Coconut Grove Playhouse who is one of the 10 men in his profession to receive the Ford Foundation for the Preservation of Arts award. He plans to spend some of it putting on new plays in Coconut Grove, a luxury that the average theater has to do without. At least 10 plays a month come in to him for consideration written by amateurs, or those who have never written plays before.

"New playwrights tend to follow two great trends," comments Phillips who is on his second year of running the Playhouse, came down here from the Volmer theater in Abingdon, Va., started directing by the modest task of putting on Iphigenia for the Music Department of the University of Cincinnati. In fact he really started out to be a musician, took degrees in it and everything and then switched to the theater. As head of the drama department in the Conservatory of Music in Cincinnati, he really served two masters, or rather two muses, the piano and the stage.

"Either they (the new playwrights) take the Arthur Miller technique as a model—man in the grip of some power greater than himself, man driven by invisible masters, as in All My Sons or Death of a Salesman—or else they follow the footsteps of Tennessee Williams.

"His thesis is that we all have hidden violence in our natures. Both of these ideas are tough ones to translate into action. Only the fact that Williams and Miller are artists at their craft enables them to do so.

"Great danger of the amateur playwright," sighs Phillips, "is that he puts himself in the place of the characters. His creatures of the imagination aren't strong enough to stand by themselves. It takes great skill to portray an idea through a person which is, after all, what all art is."

Men tend to write more plays than women at least in Florida," says Phillips who holds auditions not only on drama students but on playwrights as well. "Generally speaking they are written by doctors, lawyers or the type of person who is in intimate contact with human behavior. When women write plays they tend to dramatize something in

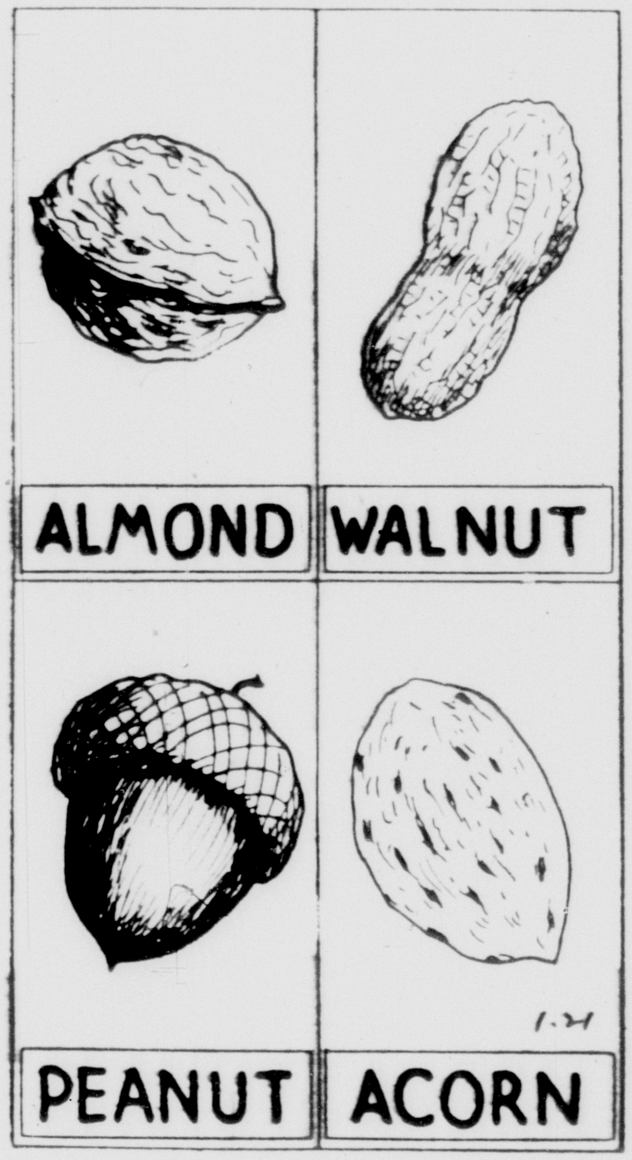
Here's a Puzzle Which You'll Be Nuts About



PAIR UP NUTS WITH NAMES
. . . they're scrambled in puzzle

By Cappy Dick

A MYSTERIOUS sliding box that will change a penny to a dime, or vanish a coin, then cause it to reappear, is the prize offered in today's puzzle contest. Ten of these amazing tricks will be given away, one to each boy or girl who sends in one of the 10 most neatly prepared correct solutions to the scramble-nuts puzzle in the adjoining picture.

The trick, which is a classic in the field of magic, is very easy to perform. Because the sliding box is small, it can be carried in pocket or purse where it will be constantly ready for use.

To try for one of these clever prizes, all you have to do is pair up the nuts with the names in the picture. Beneath each nut is a name which does not apply to the nut. Cut out the pictures of the nuts. Also cut out the names. Paste the nuts on a sheet of paper. Beneath each one paste its correct name. When the paste has dried, color the nuts with your paints or crayons or decorate your contest entry in any other way you consider neat and attractive.

Print your name, age and address beneath the nuts, then address your contest entry to Cappy Dick at The Miami Herald, Box 630, and mail it before midnight of day after tomorrow.

The contest judges will examine all entries to find the 10 correct ones that are the most neatly prepared. The coin-changing boxes will be awarded to the young readers who sent those entries. Names and addresses of the winners will be published here and their prizes will be sent to their homes by mail.

their own lives, a broken marriage or a lost child — something that has touched them personally."

* * *

BORN IN the little town of Claryville, Ky., Phillips has at least a speaking acquaintance with the roots of America material.

He moved to Cincinnati when he was still a child, went to high school there, graduated at the University of Cincinnati, started out as a musician, switched to the drama because the art of direction fascinated him.

Most people see themselves as actors, he points out, "I always saw the stage as a whole, people in their places, characters reacting on one another." His first directing job was Iphigenia, a simple little number by Euripides.

Classical drama requires a lot more than fancy costumes, a knowledge of history and the ability to interpret difficult lines, he points out.

It takes at least two months preparation to produce a superior job of Shakespeare, he claims, and hopes to use some of his award money to do just that — put on a superior performance of Shakespeare at the Grove Playhouse.

If you send Phillips a play and he likes it he will request a personal interview, if not you get it back by return of post. Don't get your hopes up, he warns. With the high cost of production and the scarcity of theaters, few plays ever see the light of day.

* * *

AS HE HAS the deciding voice in selecting plays for Playhouse audiences what will he go for?

"Entertainment," he says slowly. "And what is entertainment when you like bop and I prefer Brahms, you enjoy Maurice Evans and I go for Groucho Marx?"

If there is a formula Phillips thinks it is in the fact of identification. The audience must feel itself behind the footlights, must be part of it. In Auntie Mame every woman saw the dashing, attractive creature she would like to be, every man saw the dazzling hoyden he would like to date. Come Back, Little Sheba, is not only Shirley Booth at her talented best, it is every middle aged woman trying to hold a drunken husband.

* * *

IF THERE IS such a thing as sure-fire success, it probably lies in family plays. Each of us belongs to a family or have at one time been part of one. The emotions in family life are the universal ones, hope, frustration, love, anger, even despair and murder. Family doesn't necessarily mean soap opera or As The World Turns, he points out. What is Hamlet but a stepfather motif, twisted with the well known silver cord? What is Macbeth but a domineering woman driving her husband to murder. The theme varies all the way from Desire Under the Elms to Death of a Salesman. You could do worse than look into your own family for material.

What is Phillips' life outside the theater? He doesn't have any to speak of. He is busy reading plays, directing, rehearsing, teaching at the Grove Workshop, contacting managers in New York. He lives in Miami with his mother and a cocker spaniel named Buff, has a small garden which he loves. "I am one of the lucky ones," he asserts, "whose work is his play, and vice versa."

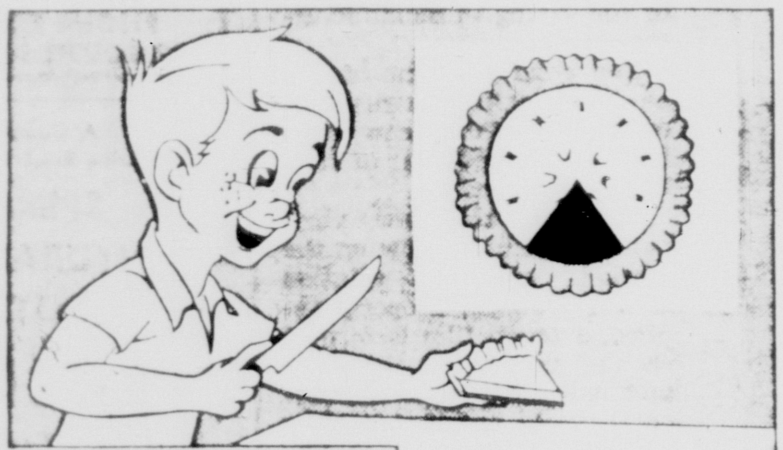
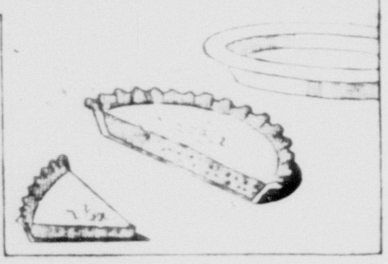
TASK'S AS EASY AS PIE!





IT'S AS easy as pie, the old saw says, and most pies hold in accord with this reputation. But here is a pie that takes legend to task. Sharp wits are needed to take its measure—

It seems there were eight persons present at a dinner. Dad was given the pie to divide among the diners and immediately pulled a boo-boo, cutting out a piece that was one-sixth of the whole. Mother, recognized the error and, seeing that the pie would not go around, immediately took over.

Sister, noticing Mother's dilemma, said, "I want just a small piece." Auntie chimed in, "Just a small slice for me, too." Two others said the same. Uncle said, "I'm full, none for me."

Brother, looking at the pie, said, "Say, you can easily cut a whole pie into eight portions with four straight cuts, but that part of the pie remaining in the plate would only yield six portions in four straight cuts."

"So what?" grumped Dad.

"Well," Brother went on, "I can cut what's left of that pie into six portions with only two straight cuts."

The diners were skeptical. But Brother did it, and in the process satisfied those four who had asked for small portions.

Using a piece of pie-shaped cardboard, with a sixth portion cut out, see if you can cut the remaining pie into six portions with two straight cuts.

A solution appears elsewhere.

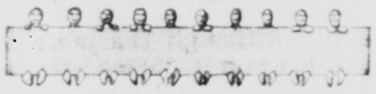
An Old Question Is Raised Again

A VERY old question has been raised again by a reader. It is how to put 11 persons into 10 single beds, in accordance with the ancient tale told about an innkeeper who had a sudden influx of travelers, 11 arriving in one party and demanding separate beds. The host had only 10 beds at his disposal, but he managed to accommodate them as follows:

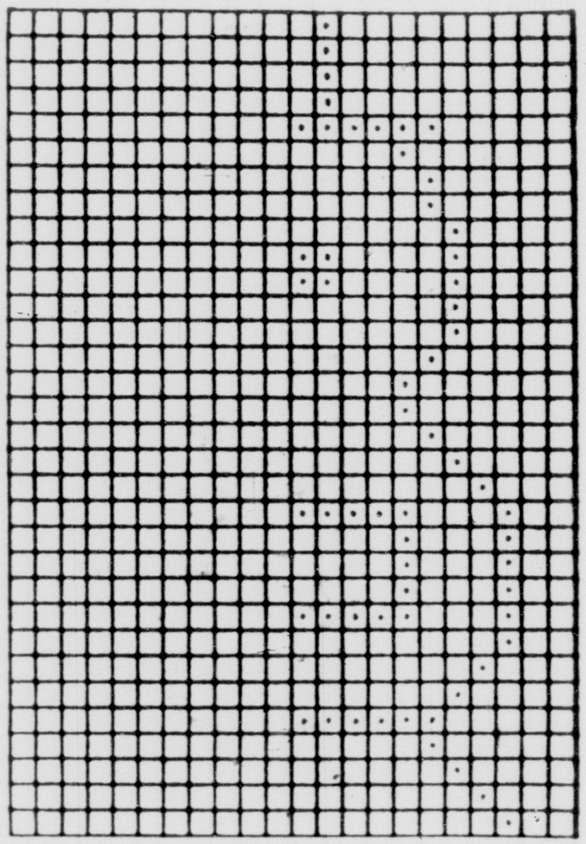
He put two in the first bed, with the understanding that the second would have a bed to himself later, after the others were settled. He then put the third in the second bed, the fourth in the third bed, fifth in the fourth bed, sixth in the fifth bed, seventh in the sixth bed, eighth in the seventh bed, ninth in the eighth bed and tenth in the ninth bed. He thus, the tale concludes, had one bed left, which the eleventh man, who was temporarily located in the first bed, was then given.

It naturally will be understood by our readers that this problem is not supposed to be capable of rigid mathematical proof. It is based on a paradoxical proposition, but the error is so cleverly concealed that it often eludes detection. Do you see it?

Explanation: The tale infers that the 11th man was the extra man in the first bed. Actually, of course, there were ten men in the first nine beds, with a 11th man still to be bedded.



Pot-Bellied Screen Star



YOU might call this a screen test for doodlers. By shading in each box containing a dot and then duplicating the scheme on the opposite side in reverse, a surprise picture is formed. Old-timers will remember the subject, a pot-bellied favorite of yesteryear, with glowing affection.

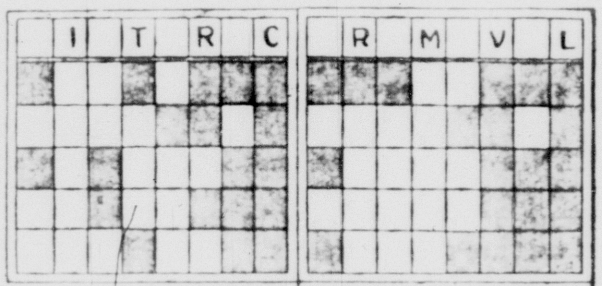
Read Sense Into Figures?

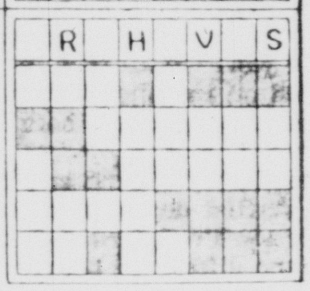
THE FIGURES below represent in numerical order the different letters of a nine-letter word from which the trio of word squares have been formed. In a word square, of course, the words read the same vertically and horizontally. With this as a clue, see if you can determine what each figure represents and the nine-letter word.

1 2 6 9 5 1 4 7 8
2 6 5 5 3 2 7 3 5
6 5 8 1 2 3 8 5 6

Solution: The nine-letter word is "marketing," the figures representing the letters in numerical order.

REAL GONE TEST





A TRIO of words related to the past has been skeletonized in the diagrams above and right. You are asked to identify them.

To begin, copy all letters now showing in the empty space or spaces directly below them. Then using a system of trial and error, insert additional letters to form shorter horizontal words as dictated by remaining blanks. Trial letters are inserted in all blanks of vertical rows, as before. Desired letters will function in all horizontal words, including the top or key words which you are seeking.

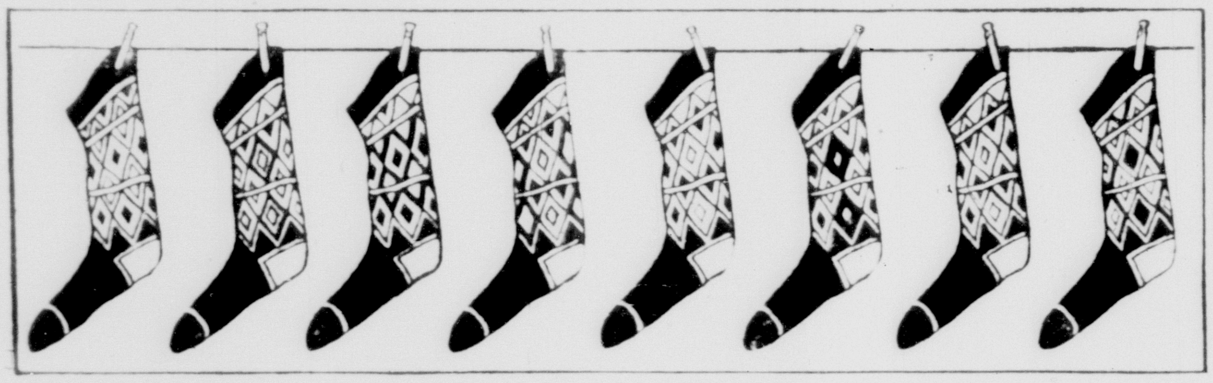
Answers: One trio of possible answers is historic, primeval and archives.

A Mixed Up Candy Counter

A CONFECTIONER buys two grades of hard candy, one at 32 cents a pound, and a better grade at 40 cents a pound. He mixes together some of each, and sells the mixture at 43 cents a pound as a "special," and makes a profit of 25%. That being the case, how much of each kind must he put together to make a mixed lot of 100 pounds that'll bring 25% profit?

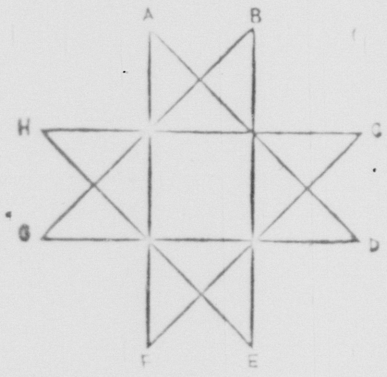
Solution: Seventy pounds of the 32c candy; Thirty pounds of the 40c candy.

CAN YOU SINGLE OUT A PAIR OF SOCKS?



PITY the owner of the socks on the line above. What with mates being lost, strayed, or otherwise inevident, there is only one pair of matching hose in the entire group. That is to say, that of all the socks shown, only two are exactly alike. Which two?

Button Hooker



YOU must proceed in a certain order to be successful here. See if you can puzzle it out successfully.

Take one of eight small buttons. Place it upon any one of the points of the diagram and push it across to an opposite corner. Repeat this until every point is covered as you place the eighth button on the last point. How quickly can you master the order?

No fair peeking at answer.

Solution: If first coin is slipped from A-D, others in turn must be F-A, C-F, H-C, E-H, B-E, G-B, and eighth coin on G. Each starting point is finish of next move.

Take Any Number

IT'S all very mystifying, but no matter what number is selected between 10 and 1000, the answer will always be 9 or 18 if you do the following:

First: Add the digits in the number and subtract the result from the number itself.

Second: Add the digits again.

Let's take an example—721 is a number picked at random. Add its digits and you get 10. Subtract this from 721 and you get 711. Add these digits and the result is 9. Now you try one.

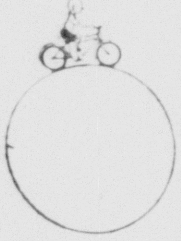
Turnabout Trick



HOW often would each wheel of this bicycle turn in making a trip around the world at the Equator? Length of Equator: 25,000 miles—one mile equals 5,280 feet, of course—circumference of wheel, eight feet.

Ignore oceans, mountains, skidding or mishaps; also suppose that the earth is a stationary mass.

Answer: Sixteen million, five hundred thousand and one (25,000 times 5,280 divided by eight; plus one). Don't forget that you, the bike and the wheels turn once in the circling process.

Cutting Remarks

GRACE found a piece of silken sash at her grandmother's house. She was told she could keep it if she could tell how to cut it in two parts so that one length was exactly four-fifths of the other. The cord was 36 inches long. Where must it be cut?

Answer: One piece is sixteen inches, the other twenty inches.

Nautical Know-How

It's Now 'Down to the Sea in Steel'

By Don Mucklow

THE USE of steel as a medium of construction in pleasure boats gradually has become accepted. Through the years it has been the only material which lends itself to the construction of larger ships and commercial boats, but limitations of contour and the traditional aversion of the pleasure boatman to anything other than wood kept this material from being-used successfully in pleasure boats.

Steel's greatest advantage is tremendous strength, which adds to safety. Collisions with underwater rocks, coral heads or other objects which would stave in wooden hulls seldom do more than scrape a little paint from a steel hull. This makes steel desirable for boatmen navigating shallow bays or for cruising the reef-ridden Bahamas.

Modern steel hulls are welded and can't leak. They never need caulking. Dry rot, a big problem in boating, is eliminated. The toredo, the boatman's ancient enemy, breaks his bicuspid when he bites into steel.

Many of the steel boats being built today compare favorably in styling and gracefulness with wooden boats. Many are difficult to distinguish from the conventional wooden hull. Performing and welding have made this possible.

The steel hull, was once considered too heavy for use in the pleasure boat field, but the use of special alloys to reduce weight and the effect of "crimping" the material for rigidity permits the use of lighter materials without the loss of needed strength.

STEEL-EXPRESS CRUISER TOPS IN STYLING
. . . 31-foot boat built by "Safticraft'

As a result of this weight reduction, speed and maneuverability are claimed to equal, or surpass, that of the comparative wooden boat with identical horsepower.

Although the price of any boat will vary with the engine; equipment, accommodations and finish, steel boats often cost less than comparative boats of wood because of the saving in manufacturing costs.

The chief problem of the steel boat skipper is rust and corrosion, and until now many boatmen steered clear of steel for that reason.

However, the new vinyl paints, which are now on the market, offer a solution to this problem. Properly applied, a tough film is formed on the surface of the steel and, unless broken or scratched through, one coat a year will give full protection under normal conditions in this area. The bottom will still need paint two or three times a year.

One manufacturer, the E. W. and A. P. duPont Co., of Patterson, La., builders of the "Safticraft," have done a fine job on styling and finishing of their boats.

Models available are in sizes from 26 feet to 42 feet, and are in cruiser, sedan or sportfisherman with flying bridge and large cockpit for fishing and fighting chairs.

Steel may not be the answer to all boatmen, but if interested in ruggedness, safety and low maintenance, it would be worthwhile to investigate the several makes now offered for sale.

We Ketch You-Know-What From Yawl in Sail Goof

IT HAS BEEN estimated that one out of every six people in this area goes in for pleasure boating. Assuming that this is accurate, it would be safe to say that of this multitude at least half are sailing experts.

This became hideously obvious when sketches of the various types of sailing boats were printed (Fun in Florida, Jan. 4) with the yawl identified as a ketch and vice versa. I have been called on the phone, accosted on the street and the mail has been a nightmare both for me and the postman.

Gremlins got into the type and switched those identifications. They started out with correct labels. To answer publicly the question I've heard so often the last few days: Yes, I do know the difference between a ketch and a yawl. The astonishing thing is that so many of you noticed the goof.

The pesky boats are shown correctly herewith.

Fuel Tank Blues Go!

AT LAST someone has come up with an answer to the problem of fuel tanks with the new fiberglass reinforced fuel tanks.

These tanks eliminate the dangerous chance of motor failure caused by rust getting into the fuel system of the engine.

Also eliminated are the unsightly stains on the deck of the outboard boat where the tank must rest.

* * *

MADE OF fire-resistant resins and glass cloth, these tanks will withstand stand-pipe test of twice the recommended length in the manufacture of metal fuel containers.

The "cruiser" tank has a transparent strip down the side which enables seeing just how much fuel remains in the tank.

The fittings are of standard size and can be adapted to any inboard fuel system. The smaller tank is for outboard use only and is fitted for use with the newer motors which have a built-in fuel pump.

BRIGHTON RESERVATION — It was February, 1863 and the Creek Tribe of the Seminole Indians hunted bear at Arbuckle Creek close to where Sebring Air Force Base now stands.

Here in this wilderness fastness of forest, swamp, and sawgrass, of alligator and snowy egret, the white man's problems were matters of no concern.

That month General Grant was placed in command of the expedition against Vicksburg; ground had just been broken for Central Pacific Railroad at Sacramento, Cal.; Emperor Napoleon III had offered to mediate between the North and South.

Of this the Indians knew nothing, cared nothing.

They were concerned only with getting "plenty bear" to insure a supply of the precious bear oil used for cooking.

And an abundance of bear meat — one of the essential ingredients of pemmican Seminole style.

It was during this particular hunt that an Indian mother gave birth to a baby destined to become a fabulous hunter, a firm friend of the whites, and one of the most respected of all Seminoles by both white and Indian.

The point of timber where he was born still stands.

The baby born that day still lives: Billy Bowlegs — cherished patriarch of the Seminoles.

* * *

HE IS nephew of the Billy Bowlegs who agreed to lead a tragic remnant of his tribe to Oklahoma after one of the more shameful chapters of Florida history. And grand nephew of legendary Billy Bowlegs I, whose warrior achievements are part of Florida lore.

Clinging to the old ways, he lives alone in his camp on the reservation, bending but slowly to the weight of 96 years.

His only direct descendent is a 72-year-old son, Eli, who also lives on the reservation.

Billy's squaw died shortly after the birth of the son, and Billy never remarried in all the years.

Once a solidly fleshed man, Billy now is lean of frame. He carries himself with immense dignity; easy pride rides every inch of his six feet.

His face is the deep color of fine, age-darkened leather against which thick patches of silver eyebrows arch above his eyes, and a heavy silver mustache sits under a jutting nose.

The sharp angles and hollows of his face, the deeply recessed, brooding eyes, all compose themselves into a singularly distinctive, unforgettable pattern.

* * *

LIKE ALL camps on the reservation, Billy's huddles in one of the hammocks of pine and palms—lonely little islands of trees rising from the sea of the dun-colored reservation.

Each Indian family lives unto itself in one of these hammocks, usually quite removed from any neighbors.

A fat, hot sun rode the sharp blue heavens and spilt sunlight through the trees — sunlight which poured into small pools of gold under the trees and around the chickees, the thatched roofed, open huts of the Seminole.

Albert Devane, retired cattleman and grove owner, a long-time friend of the Brighton Seminoles, was with me the day I visited Billy.

The three of us sat on upturned crates near one of the chickees. Chickens pecked around; a couple of battered-looking hound dogs dozed in the dust.

We sat, and as the tide of shadows moved with the sun, the aged Indian answered our questions.

* * *

WE ASKED HIM many things about the old days.

A wonderful and curious magic occurred as he struggled with the bonds of time to free himself of the present and go back to reclaim those half-remembered days.

He talked, and in my mind the character of the land around changed. The waters of the swamps returned —waters which had been on the land before the time of the tremendous drainage projects.

Ghosts of the clouds of plume birds swept and wheeled in the skies. Otter and fish made the waters alive. Game of all manner filled the glades, roamed the sawgrass.

Only by a wrench of the mind could one realize that a pittance of miles away Cadillacs spun along on highways leading to a way of life completely foreign.

The old man spoke — and tendrils of smoke occasionally curled from the embered heart of the five logs which formed a spoke on the ground and held the traditional, never dead camp fire.

He told of the first time "Me killum deer," and started his famed hunting career. Only 11 years old, he shot a big buck with a worrisome muzzle-loader. Shot it not too distant from where he now lives.

It was still the time when the land was thick with timber, wild land and game — land now equally thick in many places with civilization of the white man.

Gad! More Boats on the Road Than There Are Sailing Seas

By John Bohannan

WHEN YOU'VE been driving in your car, how many times have you said, "This is a beautiful body of water. If I only knew where I could get a boat around here . . ."

Next time take your own boat with you.

The outboard motorboat has become a familiar sight on the highways. And the same freedom of wide open spaces and unlimited cruising can be applied to the sailboat if it is small enough to be hauled easily on a trailer.

Light weight is important for ease in loading and launching, and so is the centerboard which also permits the use of the boat in shoal waters.

If you run aground, merely pull the centerboard all the way up, secure it, climb overboard and shove the boat off into deeper water, remembering of course to get back aboard in time.

Plenty of sailboats which meet these requirements are available today, ranging from small dinghies to larger craft such as the Lightning, Highlander and Raven class sloops. Hull materials also offer a wide selection — conventional wood planking, plywood, canvas-covered canoe-type construction, aluminum and fiber glass.

★ ★ ★

WITH A BOAT like the 19-foot Lightning a good-sized family can go for a sail. Also, sleeping facilities can be had by placing an air mattress on each side of the centerboard trunk and a tent-like cockpit cover over the boom attached to snap fittings along the coamings.

More complete protection against sudden rain can be provided if the forward and after ends of the shelter may be closed with the aid of zipper or press-the-dot fasteners.

A surprisingly good night's sleep can be enjoyed with a rig like this, especially if the boat is riding to an anchor so she weathervanes into the wind, allowing the breeze to flow through the cockpit while the hull rocks gently and the waves slap softly against the bow.

Meanwhile the cover keeps off the dew and the bugs, too, if mosquito netting is placed in the end openings.

Now add a 3 h.p. outboard engine with a transom bracket and you have a small auxiliary cruiser capable of taking you on exploring parties to interesting bays and inlets — fascinating places you couldn't have reached if your boat weren't small enough to be transported on a trailer.

By having a sailboat, your cruising range is greatly increased, since the only time you need use the outboard engine is when the wind goes flat.

Your home may not be on the waterfront, but you can take yourself and your boat to the sea — behind your automobile.

"Plenty ducks — bear, lions, alligator, deer," Billy recalled. And his eyes held tight to some image from that past.

AS HE GREW his hunting prowess increased.

One day he killed and skinned out nine deer . . . killed them where the T. J. Durrance Ranch now stands.

It was that month "Me killum 53 deer." He averaged about 90 cents for a dressed hide.

Billy hunted all over South Florida. His was a fimiliar figure to the steamboat captains who plied the Kissimmee River. For years he sold them meat.

He was a fine alligator hunter.

He stood and made clucking noises deep in his throat; "grunting up" a gator was what he was doing.

Only a couple of years ago he won a world's championship contest at Moorehaven for turkey calling.

The ancient Indian cupped a gnarled hand around his mouth and demonstrated his art. He peered at me from under his eyes and a wisp of smile broke his lips:

Everybody's a Count or Duke and Reality's No Part of the Plan

Hop an Aria-Plane for Fantasyland

By Beatrice Washburn

DON'T GO to the opera expecting to see real people. You won't. This is fantasy, fabulous costumes, fairyland, the horns-of-elfland country where everybody bursts into song at the slightest provocation.

If they lose their tempers they don't sulk or swear. They sing.

When they are in love, which is almost constantly, they go into arias that shake the rafters.

Opera is written on the supposition that the human race hasn't much sense. Girls are so birdbrained that they can't tell a duke from their own father, or a brother from a lover. The dears are in a constant state of confusion which leads to such mixed up plots that you have to buy not only a libretto but a translation of a libretto to find out what it's all about.

Most operas are written in Italian, though French and German come in a close second. Don't ask me why. Maybe it's to disguise the foolish things they are saying.

Our own Dr. Arturo di Filippi is one of the strongest advocates for turning opera into English but, personally, we are against it. You can give a man his walking papers in the language of Dante and it sounds great. Tell him to get the hell out of here and keep his hands off your daughter and you can imagine the effect.

* * *

DYING IN OPERA is a career in itself. The heroine has to expend her last breath in trills and octaves while the rest of the cast stands around and listens. If there's a doctor in the audience he must be especially pained when Mimi in La Boheme has to strike that high C before she passes out.

The absurd situations in opera add up to what would be a real reflection on the intelligence if it were not that they are the framework for some beautiful music. What could be more ridiculous than the ladies in Cosi fan tutte not recognizing their own lovers when they come disguised as Albanians? But who cares when it is transposed into some of Mozart's most delicate and lovely music.

And then there's Faust, the standby for opera lovers the world over. If Marguerite had had an ounce of brain in her flaxen head she never would have gotten herself into such a fix and the world would have lost the jewel song, and that famous love song in the garden.

IT'S HARD to recall a sillier plot than Rigoletto, which you will be seeing at the Dade Auditorium on February 28th. Today's audiences may be amused to learn that the book on which the opera was based, Victor Hugo's Le Roi s'amuse was so shocking that it was withdrawn from the Paris stage after two performances. Originally it was written about Francis I and it wasn't any healthier to make fun of the big brass then that it is today. So Verdi changed the king into a duke, named the jester Rigoletto, and gave him a daughter so innocent that she had never even heard of the facts of life. Gilda is, of course, fair game for a rich wolf like the Duke of Mantua. While the girl may not have a very high I.Q. she can certainly sing and her beautiful duet with her daddy is one of the high points of the show.

In civilian life famous Giuseppe Taddei is Rigoletto, if that is any help. The Duke — bear in mind he is good looking Flaviano Labo who would set any girl's heart a-flutter — plans to abduct the dumb but beautiful Gilda from her father's house. Actually he doesn't realize the girl is his jester's daughter, thinks she is just a floozy who's been around. A bunch of hired assassins; just ordinary thugs dressed up as coutiers even blindfold the old man and have him place the ladder.

Meanwhile the duke, if you are still with me, I told you it was confusing, is brazenly making love to another girl while outside the inn the blameless Gilda, too unsuspecting for her own good, bewails his faithlessness to her father. These four voices intertwined, one couple inside the inn, one outside, and invisible to each other, add up to that beautiful quartet that is known in every land and by every music lover.

* * *

ONE THING I like about opera is that it is so very high toned. Everyone is either a duke or a count and couples make love against a background like the Taj Mahal or in a room borrowed from Buckingham Palace.

Of course there are exceptions — Carmen's locale is a cigaret factory and the heroine actually smokes cigarets, a pretty daring thing to do in the 1770's.

One of the snappiest wedding scenes on record is the one in Lucia where Edgardo unexpectedly returns from France to find his fiancee forced by her brother to marry Lord Arturo Buclaw. Edgardo understandably flies into a rage whereupon the faithful old chaplain, the wicked brother, the bride's companion already dressed up like a bridesmaid, and a couple of others try to explain everything in a loud voice. In real life somebody would call the police but in opera the resulting fracas terminates in one of the most superb offerings in all of opera, the celebrated sextette from Lucia.

* * *

EVEN THE ANIMALS are unusual in opera. The camels in Aida march across the stage all night but we have seen performances where the elephants refused to appear with the horses and vice versa. For many years I thought the swan in Lohengrin was real. It was as great a blow when I learned he was stuffed as the disillusionment over Santa Claus.

Lohengrin, which is for my money one of the loveliest of all Wagner, is the eternal story of the girl who wouldn't let well enough alone. She began needling her husband almost before he had the ring on her finger. "None of your people came to our wedding," she comments or words to that effect. "I don't even know your real name. Who are your friends, anyway, and why didn't they show up?"

Actually Lohengrin has nothing to be ashamed of. He is a Knight of the Holy Grail which today would be tantamount to maybe a member of Eisenhower's cabinet or something. Come to think of it there is nothing it even remotely resembles. It is just one of those lovely, out of this world touches that distinguishes the Middle Ages. In common with many deeply religious and consecrated men Lohengrin is very unforgiving. He hasn't known enough about women to make allowances for their natural curiosity. So the swan comes back again with a little boat and bears him away. Nothing can ever quite dim the magic of this swan scene, of the rippling music that accompanies it and of the magnificent chorus in Scene II which is familiar to every bride who ever approached the altar to the solemn music of the Wedding March.

YOUNG SQUAWS LISTEN AS BILLY TELLS OF OLD DAYS

. . . he is regarded with great love and respect by all Seminoles

Nobody Has Questioned Billy's Unswerving Honesty Since the Time Long Ago When He Walked 125 Miles To Confront Man Who Accused Him of Telling a Lie

"Turkey he come pretty close and me shoot 'um."

We listened as he gave thrilling body to the day he shot four bear, told of making pemmican with bear meat, dried huckleberries, bear oil.

And of the first dugout canoe he built at Lake Hatchnehaw.

* * *

BILLY WAS one of the first Seminoles to learn how to write and read English to some small extent. He was held in esteem by the white men and, because of his linguistic achievement, often acted as spokesman for his people.

Billy has a reputation for unswerving honesty.

A book written in 1911 about the Seminoles of Florida relates several anecdotes about him in his prime.

One story tells how he walked 125 miles from a camp at Okeechobee Marsh to Kissimmee when a rumor reached him a white man accused him of a lie.

Billy made the trip to tell the white man "Me no lie." His word was accepted.

At the turn of the century he participated in a Jacksonville parade and was described by the Florida-Times-Union thusly:

"Billy was a conspicuous figure in the parade — no savage, but a magnificent specimen of physical manhood, with a dignity, a reserve, a keen intelligence and an honest heart."

* * *

THE DAYS of the big hunts have gone with the game. Many years have melted into time since Billy came from the glades and forests loaded with skins, meat, gator hides.

He still essays an occasional hunt but, as he sadly stated, now there are, "Too much bad hunters, — too much pasture."

The old ways though, still are his ways as much as possible.

His camp is surrounded with little patches of sweet potatoes, cassava, sugar cane, bananas, pumpkins which, despite his years, he tends. His chickens and pigs wander under the huts.

Fire-blackened pots hang from the tired-looking chickees. He makes his meals over the open fire as his father before him, and sleeps in the open chickee.

During the day he visits friends both Indian and white — walking surprising distances to visit if he can't get a ride.

Dusk was gathering swiftly in the skies when we had finished talking.

Billy walked to the car and shook hands with Albert and then with me. He bade us a stately farewell, and turned back to his chickee.

As he slipped into the thickening gloom I had the feeling one gets upon putting down a book which had brought the past back to life — and a nostalgia for a yesterday I never knew.

Modern Jazz

Album Breaks Moody Spell

By Fred Sherman

HAL McKUSICK HEADS THREE COMBOS
. . . on new Cross-Section-Saxes

A YEAR AGO, Decca made a splash with a new series called Mood Jazz, about a dozen albums. Some were excellent, but most were more mood than jazz. After a long layoff, the series is renewed with an album which indicates Decca took a long look and realized the fault.

It's called Cross Section-Saxes (DL-9209), with Hal McKusick heading three combos. Keynote of the sessions is the imaginative writing of George Russell, Jimmy Giuffre, George Handy and Ernie Wilkins. In six of the 10 numbers, McKusick plays alto and clarinet with trumpeter Art Farmer, plus rhythm section.

On the other four, you have McKusick and Frank Socolow on alto, Dick Hafer on tenor and Jay Cameron on baritone. Mixing standards with originals, the album is one of the freshest sounding sessions in some time.

Art Farmer, coming on fast as a jazz trumpeter, is showcased in a contemporary album titled Portrait of Art Farmer (C-3554). It's quartet work and will remind you of the recent sessions by Miles Davis for Columbia.

Farmer is backed by the clean and tasteful piano of Hank Jones, with brother Addison Farmer on bass and Roy Haynes on drums. An eight-tracker, three of them ballads.

* * *

JAZZ AND MURDER get together each week on the Peter Gunn TV show. It's been popular exposure for Shorty Rogers. Now, RCA-Victor has issued an album called The Music From Peter Gunn (LPM-1956).

The idea has been to use the jazz to help punch the story line. Even without the story line, the music of Henry Mancini makes dramatic sense. Not throbbing jazz in the Basie or Ellington tradition, but it sounds good. Fine work by Larry Bunker on vibes and Pete Candoli on the trumpet.

* * *

RE-CREATIONS of jazz classics don't always come off. Time tends to dull the taste. But here is an album which captures the freshness of the original. The Herd Rides Again (Everest LPBR-5003) is Woody Herman and a modern crew in a program which takes you back to 1945-46.

Credit goes to Nat Pierce for piecing together the arrangements. There are 10 numbers starting with Northwest Passage and winding up with Bijou. Heady stuff.

* * *

STARTING OUT the year, here are some guideposts for record counter sampling after all the Christmas bills have been paid and the budget can stand some additions to the home library:

Latin for Lovers (Fantasy 3279) is yet another fine set by vibist Cal Tjader. This one combines the Afro-Cuban Tjader trademark with strings.

Sing Along With Basie (Roulette R-52018) is a different sort of session by the Count. It's that "Farmer's Market" sort of singing by Joe Williams, Annie Ross, Jon Hendricks and the Dave Lambert Singers. Covernotes provide the words to the chants. Jumpin' at the Woodside becomes a new experience.

Jazz Rolls Royce is the first of what promises to be a great series by Lighthouse Records of Hermosa Beach, Calif. (CS-300). That's right, you guessed it. Here's Howard Rumsey's Lighthouse stars in a concert performed at Royce Hall on the OCL Acamus.

This is strictly listening jazz arranged and written by Bob Cooper who appears on tenor sax and oboe. A full orchestra, starring such West Coasters as Stan Levey, Frank Rosolino, Stu Williamson, Pete Candoli and Milt Bernhart. This is modern concert jazz in a high form.

Composer, 80, Plays With Fervor of Young

By Doris Reno

THE 80-YEAR-OLD composer Ernst von Dohnanyi, now a resident of Tallahassee, plays with the fervor and strength of a young man his own Piano Concerto No. 2 with Sir Adrian Boult and the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra. He also performs his Variations on a Nursery Tune, Op. 25 — his most popular orchestral work — on the same disc.

The Concerto, written in 1946, is of the conservative school adhered to by Dohnanyi but nevertheless a work of charm and structural soundness. The composer plays it freshly, with a brilliant tone and with great dexterity and clarity.

* * *

HUGUES CUENOD, a French tenor who has been specializing in the early vocal music for the past 25 years, has a new Westminster 12-inch disc called "French Troubadour Songs," in which he is accompanied by lutenist Hermann Leeb.

He seems devoted to this music, and his voice is of fine quality, sympathetic, and sensitive toward the material.

He sings works by Guillaume de Machaut, Hugo de Lantins, Guillaume Dufay, Adam de la Halle, Thibaut IV de Navarre, and Clemens non Papa, all of whom died between the years 1253 and 1572.

Cuenod is also featured on an Angel Great Recordings of the Century disc, where he is soloist with Nadia Boulanger's Vocal and Instrumental Ensemble in madrigals by Claudio Monteverdi.

This recording, made in 1937, gives us Mme. Boulanger at the piano, Paul Derenne, tenor, and Doda Conrad, bass. Mme. Boulanger was one of the first to revive this music on discs, and the first to record works by Monteverdi. Included are some extracts from "Il Ballo delle Ingrate."

* * *

GIOVANNI GABRIELI'S Processional and Ceremonial Music is found on a Vanguard (Bach Guild) disc, with Edmond Appia conducting the Choir and Orchestra of the Gabrieli Festival, which was held in Venice in 1957. The disc utilizes lutes, winds, brass and four organs.

The motets and other works are polychoral (for multiple choirs), and are typical of an early 17th century Venetian religious style. The whole thing is well done.

* * *

THE FIRST vocal recital on discs by coloratura soprano Maria Stader is now available on a Decca 12-inch LP, and it is an interesting and lovely though not very vital voice. What the voice lacks, more than anything else, is personality. It is well produced and well managed, and many of the individual songs in this Schubert-Mendelssohn-Schoeck Recital are exquisitely sung.

The songs by Othmar Schoeck, a Swiss song-writer who died last year, are of special interest, since they are not frequently recorded, or even sung much. They are in the direct tradition of German song. The titles of the ones chosen for this disc are "Das bescheidene Wunchlein," "Mit einem gemalten Band," "Nochruf" and "Reiselied."

Here's Where You Carry a Torch

By Evelyn De Tardo

IT'S TIME to get the torches out of the attic and ready them for some more late night burning.

And to make torch carrying a little easier are two fine new releases: Gogi Grant's appropriately titled new album Torch Time, RCA Victor (LPM-1940), and Beverly Kelly Sings, Audio Fidelity (AFLP 1874).

Accompanied by Henri Rene and his orchestra, Gogi leaves you in a somewhat melted pulp with Bewitched, The Thrill is Gone, I Didn't Know What Time It Was, Young and Foolish, and other searing favorites.

Beverly King Sings, with the Pat Moran Trio, is another fine album. Both gals have excellent, well-trained voices. The three bands, Embraceable You, I'm Glad There Is You, and Sometime's I'm Happy are more Beverly Kelly than some of the other imposed styling on the album, but all are nice listening.

Beverly was a graduate of Chicago's north side, Los Angeles and Birland in New York before receiving full recognition through a guest spot appearance on the Steve Allen Tonight show.

PHIL HARRIS
. . . shut my mouth

HUGO WINTERHALTER Goes Latin, RCA Victor, (LPM-1677), is something which has been in the back of Winterhalter's mind for a long time. He's been wanting to come out with an all-Latin album, and here it is. Selections include Vaya Con Dios, Delicado, Valencia, The Peanut Vendor, and La Macarena.

* * *

SOME LIGHT orchestration of your favorite show tunes is nicely wrapped up in Broadway Spectacular, RCA Camden (CAL-467) with Norman Leyden and his orchestra.

Included are Some Enchanted Evening from South Pacific, So In Love from Kiss Me Kate, You're Just In Love, from Call Me Madam, and If I Loved You from Carousel, as well as many other Broadway classics.

* * *

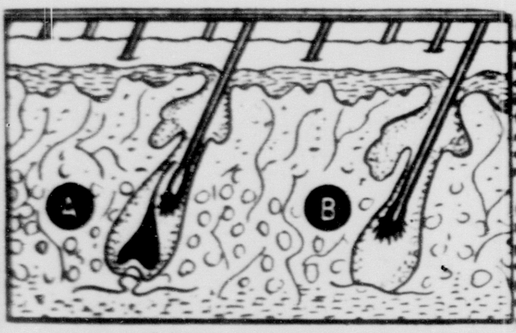
WELL, SHUT my mouth, if it isn't Phil (That's What I Like About the South) Harris behind that heap of ham hocks, black-eyed peas and turnip greens. And with a magnolia blossom climbing out of his mint julep.

This is a Harris classic, and Phil is reviving "his songs" in the RCA Camden album titled, what else, "That's What I Like About The South." (CAL-456).

That rowing romeo Johnny is still Row Row Row-ing Flo up the river. The Preacher and The Bear, Goofus, The Thing, and Is It True What They Say About Dixie, are just a few of the Harris trademark tunes.

Harris also gives you some instructions on how to play poker if you should ever sit in with The Dark Town Poker Club, and turns serious for one band to retell the story which became famous during the last war, The Deck of Cards. If it's slipped your mind, this is the story of the young soldier who found a prayer book and Bible in his deck of cards.

It's Not The Hair You Lose That Makes You Bald!



(A) NORMAL LOSS Hair remains firmly connected with its root for one to four years, growing one-half to three-fourths of an inch per month, then is pushed out of its follicle by a strong new hair.

(B) ABNORMAL LOSS Hair separates from root prematurely and drops out without being replaced by new hair. Root may recede and lose ability to grow new hair.

ALLISON USES THESE 5 STEPS TO HELP YOU SAVE YOUR HAIR:

1 EXAMINATION by Allison expert determines which of 18 common disorders affect hair growth.

2 ULTRAVIOLET stimulates blood circulation, prepares scalp for effective treatment.

3 MASSAGE by trained operators loosens scalp, increases circulation, works in formulas.

4 HIGH FREQUENCY destroys bacteria and helps action of oil glands.

5 GERMICIDES, unguents — 16 different formulas — applied as needed in treatment.

NOW THERE ARE 2 ALLISON OFFICES . . in MIAMI & FT. LAUDERDALE!

Topside View of Average Man Today

"Let's take a critical look at the typical twentieth century man from his topside," said A. V. Williams, well known hair expert.

"He has dandruff. Not just the almost imperceptible skin scales that are normal, but real infectious dandruff. Often as not the dandruff is embedded with oil and other debris down in his hair follicles. And the way he washes his hair, he never gets those follicles really clean.

"So each generation of his hair grows shorter and weaker. In time, the follicles seal up completely and cannot produce any kind of hair."

Also, said Williams, this typical man's scalp is too tight. Hair life is sustained in the pad of fatty tissue between skin and skull, remember. There's where the blood circulates to nourish hair roots. "When this pad is compressed by scalp tension and lack of exercise," Williams said, "hair growth slows and eventually stops."

Can these typical scalp conditions be corrected? you ask.

"Yes," said expert Williams. "If you consult us before follicle shrinkage goes too far. We can keep you growing as much hair as you have now. That's the least you can expect. And where you're growing only 'fuzz' now, we can often grow new hair of full length and thickness."

How do the Allison experts do it?

Not with any magical "cure-all." Each scalp is a different problem, and their treatment for each is based on painstaking examination. But in general, they use ultraviolet, high frequency, massage, vibration, and some 16 special formulas.

But his most convincing fact is this: 90% of ALLISON CLIENTS, most of whom were skeptical at the start of treatment, are well satisfied with results!

Written Guarantee

You receive a Written Guarantee at Allison Hair Experts that clearly states you must be satisfied in 30 days or your money back!

You simply cannot lose at Allison Clinics! Each client accepted for treatment receives a legal, written guarantee and if you are not thrilled with results, you pay nothing!

This Quote Can Spell Unsuspecting Male's Doom:

'Almost as Good as Mother Used to Make'

By Lawrence Thompson

THERE ARE few things more aggravating for a woman than to have a husband who doesn't eat like a hog to show his appreciation for her cooking.

My wife is one of those unfortunate women. I do not eat much, a fact she takes as a personal insult at every meal. And even if I finish second helpings, I am apt to say, "That was almost as good as mother used to make."

Next to telling a woman she is ugly, there is no greater insult than this. She may be able to make excuses for you if you merely are inconsiderate and don't express appreciation for her cooking. But she feels like clobbering you if you indicate that her cooking doesn't quite measure up to that of somebody else. This is particularly true if you compare her cooking to that of your mother.

★ ★ ★

SO FAR, my wife has restrained herself and has not clobbered me, but I saw such a glint in her eyes after dinner the other day that I hid our son's baseball bat. This glint lighted up when I remarked that she had fixed a mighty tasty spaghetti dinner, but that I wished she'd ask my mother for the sauce she used to use.

My wife is very fond of my mother, except for one thing. That is her cooking. She is sensitive about my mother's cooking. I think her happiest moment came last summer when we were visiting my parents home and had fried chicken.

For years I have been telling my wife that her fried chicken was wonderful, but not quite up to that which my mother used to make. On this day last summer, when I had finished my fourth piece of poultry, I told my mother that her fried chicken was wonderful, but that she ought to ask my wife for her recipe.

My mother acted pretty cool to me for the rest of our visit, but my wife acted as if I were young and handsome.

And then, to make her cup of happiness run completely over, my mother fixed a spaghetti dinner.

"This is very good," I told my mother, "but why don't you use that sauce you used to fix when I was a boy?"

My mother looked as if she wished she had a baseball bat handy as she told me it was exactly the same sauce, and my wife beamed so happily she nearly split her lips.

★ ★ ★

NEVERTHELESS, I insist on having memories of the favorite dishes of my childhood days.

For instance, I can't imagine any dish to compare with the strawberry shortcake we used to have. If you've only had this dish in fancy restaurants or hotels, you don't know what I'm talking about.

The shortcake was made of biscuit dough. In fact, it was one big pan-sized biscuit.

The strawberries were big and juicy, often picked from our own patch.

You'd have a big bowl, and there'd be one slice of shortcake on the bottom, then a heavy layer of crushed strawberries, sweetened slightly, then a top layer of shortcake, and a big covering of more strawberries. The rich juice would soak through the shortcake while you waited for the cream.

No, we didn't have whipped cream on top. That's for sissies. We had good, rich Jersey cream, poured on generously until the strawberry shortcake was saturated.

It simply is impossible to describe how delicious that was, because the only way you can realize it is to have a helping yourself. And I doubt if it tastes as good now as it did when I was a boy, even if anyone knew how to prepare it properly.

★ ★ ★

ANOTHER fine dish was bread and cream. All it took was a couple of slices of fresh bread, sugar and cream. These were thick slices, cut with the butcher knife. You broke the bread into small pieces, applied a thick covering of sugar, then drowned the works in cream.

Naturally I could try this in my own home most any day, but I'd rather treasure my memories. And besides, they don't make bread like that any more and you can't get that kind of cream these days.

There are many other of those dishes of my youth that I recall. Buckwheat cakes, hot biscuits and honey, homemade apple butter sandwiches, catfish fried in corn meal, parents' home and had fried dozens of those delectable delicacies. Come to think of it, when I was a boy everything tasted good, and I hope my wife can forgive me for growing up.

Meet the Press Adds Time for Mikoyan

By Jack E. Anderson

AN HOUR RATHER than the usual 30 minutes will be devoted by NBC's Meet the Press at 6 tonight to questioning Russia's visiting deputy premier, Anastas N. Mikoyan.

ANDERSON

The little mustachioed official, one of the most durable members of the Soviet Comintern, is a real catch for Meet the Press and its producer Larry Spivak, has no intention of wasting the occasion.

Harry Cain and his V.I.P. program are yielding their time on WCKT (Ch. 7) so that local viewers can watch the full treatment. Cain's show normally follows Meet the Press at 6:30.

Spivak who lives here between weekend flying trips to New York or Washington for his interview show told me the other day Meet the Press has an exclusive on Mikoyan.

"Our program now has the largest audience on television for a program of its type," said Spivak, "and in considering television appearances the Russians, I think, want the largest audience possible."

Ambassador Knows the Ropes

IT ALSO helped, Spivak believes, that Soviet ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov has gone the Meet the Press route, appearing on the program several months ago. Menshikov is able to inform his boss exactly what he may be in for.

Mikoyan's English is limited, Spivak says, and so the interview will be carried through by simultaneous translation, the Russian's replies bounced back to the panel and the audience by a translator off camera.

I hope the Meet the Press panel can get more out Mikoyan today than it did out of Menshikov. The smiling ambassador brought along with him to the studio his portable iron curtain and any time a panel member attempted to point out a contradiction of fact, he used it.

When The New York Times' Clifton Daniel who had spent some time in Moscow asked Menshikov why the Russians continued their heavy-handed censorship of outgoing news dispatches, you could almost hear the curtain clanking into place.

His Sunny Smile Disappears

MENSHIKOV'S smile went into eclipse. Stubborn stolidity took its place, and out came the reply: "You must be mistaken. There is no censorship." And no amount of insistence by Daniel that just the contrary was the truth could get any other answer from the ambassador.

That crafty old French diplomat, Tallyrand, used to say that the most important equipment a diplomat could carry was his snuff box. The time it took a man to dip into it and take a sniff of the stuff gave him the necessary leeway to compose a careful answer to a touchy question.

Tallyrand should have lived to see a professional Marxist at work—without so much as pausing to light a cigar.

No doubt Menshikov's counsel to the Mikoyan on the way to the television engagement today will go something like this: "Comrade, when the one of the capitalist press people states what he pig-headedly says is the truth, just say isn't so."

The program will originate from New York where the visiting Soviet official will be taking a last look at capitalist shop windows and squirrels before hustling back to Moscow.

DAVE GARROWAY

DAVE GARROWAY PREDICTS:

To Improve Television

Video's Elder Statesman Theorizes That as World Conditions Worsen There Will Be Less of the Present Fantasy Fare on Our Screens

By Charles Mercer

Associated Press Writer

DAVE Garroway has an interesting theory: as the condition of the world grows worse, and he is convinced that it will, the condition of television programs will improve.

"I feel that we're passing through a kind of fantasy phase in television programming," Garroway said the other day. "By fantasy I mean the shows that offer escape from the reality of the world in which we're living.

"Westerns are currently the most prominent type of fantasy show. They're the type of programs that are getting the most promotion and publicity — and the type that people are looking at.

"People watch fantasy shows these days, I believe, because they want to escape from reality as never before. The world situation is so frightening that they want to withdraw from it.

"But as the situation of the world gets worse — which I'm convinced that it will — people are going to want to turn from fantasy to television's reality programs so that they can be informed about the condition of the world, terrible though it may be."

At the age of 45, Garroway already qualifies as a kind of elder statesman of television on the basis of his long experience both in front of and behind the cameras.

His "Today" program (NBC-TV) weekdays, 7-9 a.m., Ch. 7 is a "reality show" in which he talks about the news, weather, politics, people, books, and interviews everyone from peripatetic politicians to precocious pre-teenagers.

When he recently took a month's rest from the daily grind of "Today," and passed some time twirling the dial of a TV set, he was surprised and pleased to find that there are quite a few "reality shows" on the television channels, he said. "They don't receive much publicity, but they're there."

Another thing he discovered during his month off was that "I like hard work. I'm absolutely no good at doing nothing."

Thus he refuses to find anything unpleasant about his daily work schedule which requires him to rise at 4 a.m. and keeps him busy in his office until 5 p.m.

In the spring he expects to take "Today" to Paris for a couple of weeks. The program will be taped there and flown back daily to New York.

"I want to show Paris to Americans in the way that only television can. Tape, you know, has a live quality quite unlike film. Every day we'll go to a different place in Paris —a sidewalk cafe in Montmartre, for example — and we'll tape 'Today' for two hours. Thre won't be any editing or re-takes. I'll talk and interview people and generally be a guy showing Paris to friends back home."

Garroway said his wife, the former Pamela Wilde, who lived in Paris for 18 years, will go with him. "She knows a lot of people there. There won't be any language difficulty with the program. All the French who interest Americans speak English."

Since 1952, when the program began, Garroway has put in about 4,500 hours before the "Today" cameras. He says he is interested in doing a nighttime television show, though he knows the hazards of such a switch and realizes that "I'm practically unknown to many nighttime viewers."

Nevertheless, he continues to study the possibilities of a nighttime "variety-type show. And variety shows, I insist, are reality shows."

She's Still Studying

Actress Never Stops Learning, Says Nina

. NINA FOCH

. . . still studying

A veteran of over 600 live TV shows, Nina Foch feels she still has much more to learn about acting — even though she has been studying for 17 years.

"There is always something new to learn from everyday experiences, if one studies," the beautiful actress asserted.

Miss Foch will star in "Ten Little Indians," a mystery thriller based on Agatha Christie's book, "And Then There Were None," on NBC-TV Sunday, Jan. 18 (7-8 p.m., EST).

Miss Foch loves all media of entertainment, but is particularly devoted to live television. She is one of the few actresses who truly enjoys and prefers live TV. She believes that "working live" gives the performer an opportunity to impart greater depth and realism to his performance.

* * *

"I FEEL I can express myself more fully and with less restraint and, also, can interpret a character in terms of acting and in dimensions I feel it is impossible to achieve on film."

Miss Foch always expresses herself freely and is never afraid to state an opinion or point of view, even when it is controversial or unpopular.

Being a firm believer in the "method," Miss Foch refuses to accept the theory that method acting implies a T-shirt and a leather jacket.

"I have always been a method actress, and I have never owned a leather jacket. Lawrence Olivier doesn't own one either and he is a method actor!" she exclaimed.

* * *

THERE ARE two definite schools of method acting, according to Miss Foch — the Adler and the Strasberg. Miss Foch is an Adler student, has been for 17 years, and is still taking lessons.

"Adler's method," she explains, "is based on the principle that the actor must express himself to the audience. He must come to the front of the stage and act!

"Actually, with all the confusion that seems to accompany the idea of 'method acting,'" Miss Foch maintains, "it is merely a short cut to getting to the core of the subject.

"Method or no method, I love a challenge," asserts the actress, "and this role in 'Ten Little Indians' certainly offers one. I still don't know whether I live through the whole play or not."

She has been killed on so many shows that it would be nice to see her pull through alive on this one.

Bad Boys Can't Keep Occupied

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK — (AP) — Innumerable people are forever uttering innumerable words on the subject of juvenile delinquency. But Producer Robert Northshield defined the problem from the viewpoint of youths the other day:

"Their problem is that they have 24 hours in a day to fill. And how do you pass a day?"

His observation is the result of six weeks he spent recently in Detroit filming and taping a television report on a successful battle against delinquency there by an organization called Youth Anonymous.

ABC-TV (Ch. 10) will present an hour report on "Youth Anonymous" on Monday, at 7:30 p.m.

Northshield explained that Younth Anonymous, headed by an ex-convict named Ernest "Tip" Rumsby, aims to aid the 15 per cent of "hard-core" troubled youngsters who normally cannot be reached by other organizations.

One of the most interesting aspects of producing the report, in Northshield's opinion, was how he and a camera crew won the confidence and respect of three troubled youths in order to record the way they spend a trypical day.

"At first they tried to shock up," Northshield said. "But we laughed at them or ignored them.

"Basically the kids were trying to make the simplest things complex simply to kill time. That is their problem—killing time."

COMMENTATOR Don Goddard surrounded by members of Detroit's unique Youth Anonymous group which is helping to combat juvenile delinquency. The group will be featured by ABC at 7:30 Monday night on WPST-TV (Ch. 10).

Irene was married to Vernon Castle who was killed in a World War I airplane accident at a time when the Castles were the leading dance team in the country.

Rolling Crib Stymies Culp

Trackdown star Robert Culp is regretfully withdrawing from the motorcycle-enthusiasts, now that he's a family man. Explains Culp: "Our son Joshua, who's seven months old, loves to ride on the bike. But I can't figure out how to put a car bed on the handlebars!" The Culps are shopping for a staid family car.

TELEVISION'S NEW STAR ENTRY IS MUSICIAN BUDDY BREGMAN

Buddy To Be NBC's Answer To ABC's Dick Clark

But Handsome Musician to Aim for Adult Audience As Well as Teen-Agers with New TV Record Show

By JOE FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD —(UPI) — NBC started off early in '59 with a new show aimed at making musician Buddy Bregman into another Dick Clark, at least as far as teenage audiences are concerned.

The network hopes that Bregman, currently musical director for the Eddie Fisher Show, will be the answer to the personable Clark who commands a large teen-age audience with his ABC-TV shows.

But, the baby-faced Bregman also has his sights set for the Pat Boones and Ricky Nelsons.

"Dick Clark aims for the teen-age recording artist but I'll also want the Dean Martins, Frank Sinatras and Eddie Fishers too," Bregman said.

"It'll be easier for me to get them out here in Hollywood," he said, "and if the show clicks, they'll all come on."

"When the vocalists come on, they'll mouth their own records," Bregman explained. "The kids want to hear the same sound that they hear on records.

"I'm aiming for a junior type Steve Allen show which will also attract adults."

As for the kids, Bregman admits he's in a spot if they don't like the cut of his jib.

"If the kisd like me, fine, if they don't there's not much I can do about it," he said.

"I've never done anything on TV where I talked before," he revealed, "I've always been a musical director."

Rock 'n' Roll

SEEKING favor from his potential audience Bregman gave assurances that rock-and-roll won't get slighted on his show.

"I like rock-and-roll, I really do," he pleaded, "but, I haven't had much professional background in it."

Starting off with a "good guy" approach to his rival, Bregman called Clark's show "one of the hottest" and described him as a "good looking American boy."

Bregman, who recorded and arranged for such personalities as Bing Crosby and Ella Fitzgerald, is cutting down on waxings until his show gets established.

"I'll still have the Eddie Fisher show, though," Buddy remarked.

Mom Objects

BREGMAN also arranges for singer Ann Maria Alberghetti and her sister, Carla.

Marriage plans for Anna Maria and Bregman have been met by shouts of opposition from "Momma" Alberghetti.

The new year holds many potential problems for the 28-year-old Bregman.

Not only is he connected with the trouble-haunted Fisher show and concerned with a popularity contest against an entrenched teenager's hero, he could end up with mother-in-law trouble.

HAL HUMPHREY

George Burns Performs Own TV Surgery

Jackie Gleason has given up, but George Burns hasn't. He is revamping his entire show, and viewers will see the first of the NEW George Burns series on Jan. 20.

George hasn't been any happier with his TV show this season than some of the critics who were hanging crepe on his efforts to "go it alone."

GEORGE BURNS
. . . won't quit

The difference is that the veteran vaudevillian has been able to put his finger on the flaws and figure out a way to fix them.

"What I have been doing so far this season has been too close to what I did with Gracie. The break wasn't clean enough," George says.

"But I've hit on an idea now that is so good I've been applauding myself for three days. I'm going to do something that's never been done on film before.

"Instead of those lapses you see when the cameras cut to black between a change of scenes, we will have a curtain. After each scene or act I will step in front of the curtain. When the curtain opens again, you'll see a new set. It will be like a revolving stage."

George experimented with this technique on his two "live" shows last month, and with excellent results. The pace was fast, and his moving back and forth between the variety acts and sketches gave a definite "new look" to a TV show.

On the second "live" show George also proved his acumen as a showman by being the first man to hit upon a formula more fetching than a boy and a dog — a western hero (Dale Robertson) and the Lennon Sisters. When George joined the Lennons for a chorus of "Don't Take Me Home," it was sheer genius.

Show's Shortcomings His Own Responsibility

HE HOLDS No ONE responsible but himself for any shortcomings in the George Burns Show.

"Look, changing your style after working the same way for 35 years is not an easy thing to do. Another thing, we had to film nine shows before we went on the air last October. So there were nine we couldn't do anything about."

When George's TV rating sagged, friends and business associates told him it was because he was unlucky enough to be slotted against ABC's "The Rifleman," a new western which almost overnight popped into the "Top Ten."

"Listen, that's business. I don't care about 'Rifleman.' It's apparently a good show and people like it, and that's fine. When I come up with a good show, they'll like it, too.

"This may be hard to believe, but I'll be 63 on January 20," says George, grinning slyly, "and I've got as much enthusiasm about this business now as when I first started. When I'm drowning, that's when I fight the hardest."

About the TV Scene He's Full of Quips

GEORGE IS A LONG WAY from drowning. His monologue on that Dec. 30 "live" show was the funniest any comedian has delivered all year.

"It was a great year for television," said George, poised and filled with facts. "Statistics showed that 50% of the people who had their sets turned on were watching it. And, it was the year the Russians launched the Sputnik, and we answered them by firing back a 'Playhouse 90.'"

Video Scoop

Flyboy Got Gunned . . .

Dean Fredericks

"STEVE CANYON'S" backers decided to foot the bill for the last eight films, which, with re-runs, will carry the series through the end of the season.

But NBC has transferred the fly-boy (Dean Fredericks) from Saturday to Thursday night to get him out of range of "Gunsmoke's" heavy artillery in some locations in an effort to bolster his tail-spinning rating.

Naturally, the Saturday eve spot has gone to another oater, "Black Saddle," a yarn about a gunfighter turned lawyer co-starring Peter Breck, Russell Johnson and Anna-Lisa, a Norwegian nicety with a striking resemblance to Ingrid Bergman.

Arden For Mayor . . .

Eve Arden

EVE ARDEN, with a hit ("Our Miss Brooks") and a miss ("The Eve Arden Show") on her TV record so far, is said to be contemplating a rubber match — a series in which she would play a lady mayor.

If it goes through, husband Brooks West probably will have a supporting role, but not the production say-so he had on her last, ill-fated show.

If it doesn't, Paul Gregory and Leslie Stevens, whose "Marriage Go Round" with Claudette Colbert and Charles Boyer is making merry boxoffic music on Broadway, are writing a play for Eve.

American Preferred . . .

Robert Alda

ROBERT ALDA, who filmed a cloak-and-dagger TV series in Europe, says advocates of overseas production should have their mainsprings repaired.

Not only are weather conditions rough and the technical work below American par, reports Alda, but the salability of the finished product is limited because Europe, the world's number two viewing market, wants no part of such shows.

They much prefer American-made programs over there.

She Chickened Out . . .

"IT COULD BE YOU," which Ralph Edwards packages for NBC, invited Mary Astor to plug her eyebrow-lifting autobiography on the show and then got cold feet and canceled her appearance.

So why not put her on "This Is Your Life," Ralph?

Birddog for Talent . .,

AL RITZ OF THE zany Ritz Brothers is campaigning to have non-network TV stations across the land resurrect the old "amateur nights" and stock companies to give new talent a chance to develop with the nourishment of "live" audiences.

As of now, Al notes, the vast majority of TV performers, and particularly comedians, consists of old pros who polished their talents on the hard stone of experience in the small-time.

CHARLES DENTON

Fred Astaire's Finally Sold On Television

Fred Astaire, whose first fling at TV terpsichore may win him an Emmy, has just about made up his mind to reserve his fancy footwork for the little lenses from here out.

And not only because his recent video revue brought down a few million houses around the country, either, although he admitted with a satisfied grin that the applause drowned out any gnawing little doubts he may have harbored about television.

FRED ASTAIRE
. . . he's convinced

"Actually, the only reason I didn't do television before was that I didn't have the time," he explained. "Now I have the time because I'm not doing those big musical comedy pictures any more."

Astaire stretched his famous underpinnings under a coffee table at his Beverly Hills bungalow and angled a glance at his suede - shod bunion banks.

"Frankly," he went on easily, "I think I've had those big musicals. Unless something extraordinary came along and someone was awfully anxious to get me in it, I don't think I'd have any interest in that sort of thing any longer.

"Oh, I liked the last three or four I did, but after all, I've done about 30 of them, and some of the plots got terribly musical comedy-ish, if you know what I mean."

Television Not as Hard On His Legs as Movies

ASTAIRE ALSO noted that television is much less trying on his pedal extremities than movies because it takes him seven to eight months to tap together a flicker.

His TV smasher — which NBC will reprise Jan. 28 — took him ONLY three months, he said.

Right now, Astaire plans to give his bread-winning boots a rest by concentrating on drama. He starred in his second song-less, danceless TV show, "Man On A Bicycle," for the Jan. 11 GE Theater on CBS, and he's due in Australia for a straight role in the feature "On The Beach."

"I like to break that ice once in a while," he said thoughtfully. "No one objected when I did the first GE Theater without dancing. In pictures they would have been very fearful of objections if I'd tried to do something like that.

Unless a Leg Falls Off, He'll Keep on Hoofing

"IT MAY be that I can establish myself in pictures as a guy who does this once in a while. Then I can do my hoofing on TV, because I certainly don't want to give that up until it gives me up — one leg falls off or something."

Astaire, who has slated two more TV revues in the next two years, is frankly amazed at the tremendous success of the first one.

"It's unprecedented," he said with genuine wonderment. "I expected it to be a good show, but I had no idea the roof was going to cave in. It's the first show in my whole career in which no one has picked on anything.

"Really, it's a little frightening. I just don't understand it."

PAT SULLIVAN

. . . hunting, fishing

PAT SULLIVAN is the 260-pound prognosticator of what's happening or going to happen among the fish and other Florida wild life for WGBS. His program at 5:30 each morning is must listening among fishermen and hunters packing their gear for a day in the wide open. The 57-year-old Sullivan is a native of Huntington, Ind. The outdoor life has been his lifelong interest and activity. He came to Miami in the early 1940's simply for a vacation. He was asked to do a guest stint on station WINZ. The broadcast clicked so well, he stayed here and in broadcasting for good. He pioneered outdoor programming on local television on WTVJ (Ch. 4). When he went back to radio in the early 1950's, his program was carried regularly on the Mutual network. He's been with WGBS since May, 1956. He is married and the father of two sons.

Television Stars Come Visiting

Red Skelton, Arthur Godfrey and Jan Murray To Originate Their Shows From This Area

THE GOLD COAST television season swings into full tilt this week with the arrival here of Red Skelton, Arthur Godfrey and Jan Murray to originate their networks shows.

Godfrey will do his daily morning (10:30) and his Tuesday night (8:30) shows for CBS, starting Monday, for two weeks. The same day Murray and his morning (10:30) NBC Treasure Chest show start a three-week visit.

Skelton will be here almost three weeks but will do only one of his CBS shows — on tape. The rest of the time he will fulfill a supper club engagement in the Fontainebleau Hotel's La Ronde.

The Fontainebleau will be the headquarters for both the Skelton and Murray shows. Godfrey will headquarter at his Kenilworth Hotel in Bal Harbor.

Telecast at Airport

EXCEPT FOR Murray's show which will stay anchored on the Fontainebleau's pool deck, the other two, particularly Godfrey, will range all over Greater Miami for backgrounds.

He wants to do two of his morning shows from Miami's spanking new International airport terminal. He has two more projected for Vizcaya.

Godfrey will bring with him a farmer and his wife, Sue and Pete Secondino of Shirkieville, Ind., for regular appearances on his shows. There is a report that he and Skelton wll exchange guest shots.

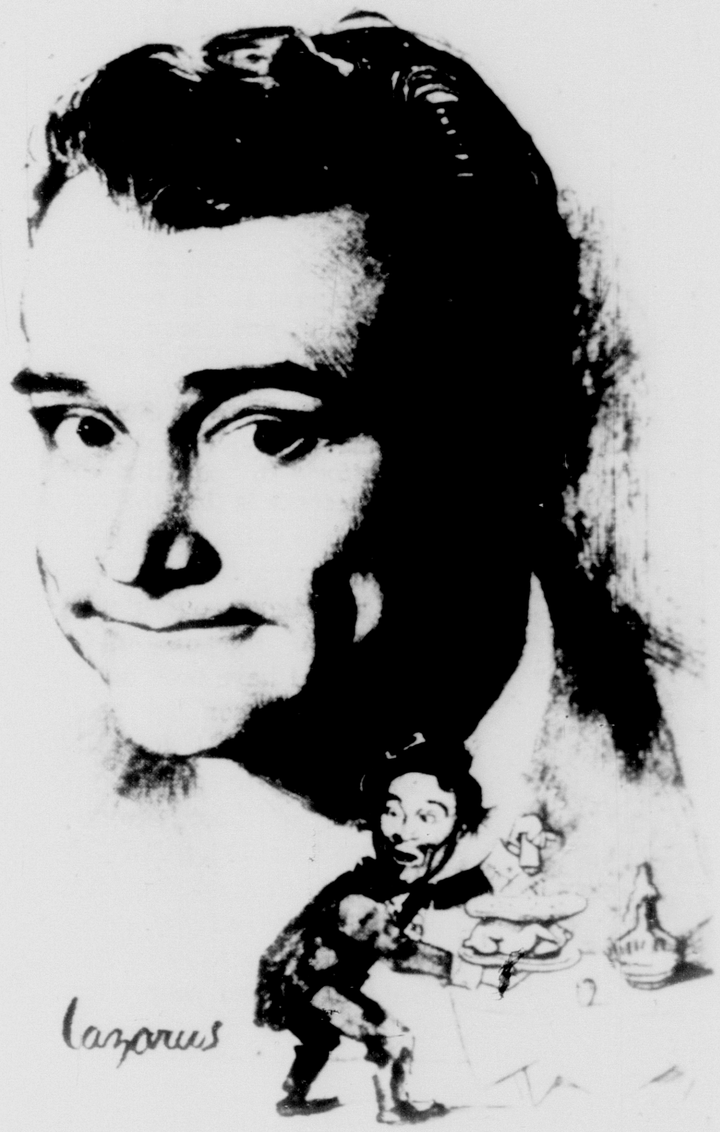
Skelton, too, will include varied Miami Beach backgrounds on his show, in addition to clowning around the Fontainebleau's pool. The finished tape will be used by CBS some time in February.

Audience Limited

TREASURE CHEST is the only one of the shows which has made arrangements for a public audience. A limited number — about 150 — will be admitted each day to the Fontainebleau's pool deck to watch the show.

Admission will be by ticket only. By this time the tickets — which are free — probably have all been given out. If any are left, they can be obtained by going to the Miami Beach publicity bureau at 1700 Washington Ave.

This will be Skelton's first network origination from here. It's another step in the new trend this year toward bringing California based network shows here, for a visit. NBC's Queen for a Day made the trek southeastward earlier this year.



RED SKELTON WILL TAPE SHOW AT BEACH

ARTHUR GODFREY PLANS A TWO-WEEK VISIT

Milton Berle Is Named 'Comedian of Century'

HOLLYWOOD — Milton Berle, who for years has been known as "Mr. Television," has a new title—"Comedian of the Century."

The NBC network headliner was so named at a banquet recently, in the Beverly Hilton Hotel, Beverly Hills, Calif., by the Sunair Foundation for Asthmatic Children. The banquet marked the near completion of Sunair's new half-million-dollar home, hospital and research center at Tujunga, Calif.

Berle was honored as the entertainer "holding the star spotlight on TV longer than any other artist." The 1,200 Sunair members who made the selection also saluted Berle "for raising more than $30,000,000 for many worthy causes" and "for filling America's living rooms with more laughter than any other comedian."

Berle hailed the foundation for its work, saying, "although asthma is one of the most critical diseases, it is also one of the most neglected in the research laboratories of the world."

The foundation also named Mitzi Gaynor "actress of the year" for her performance in the motion picture "South Pacific."

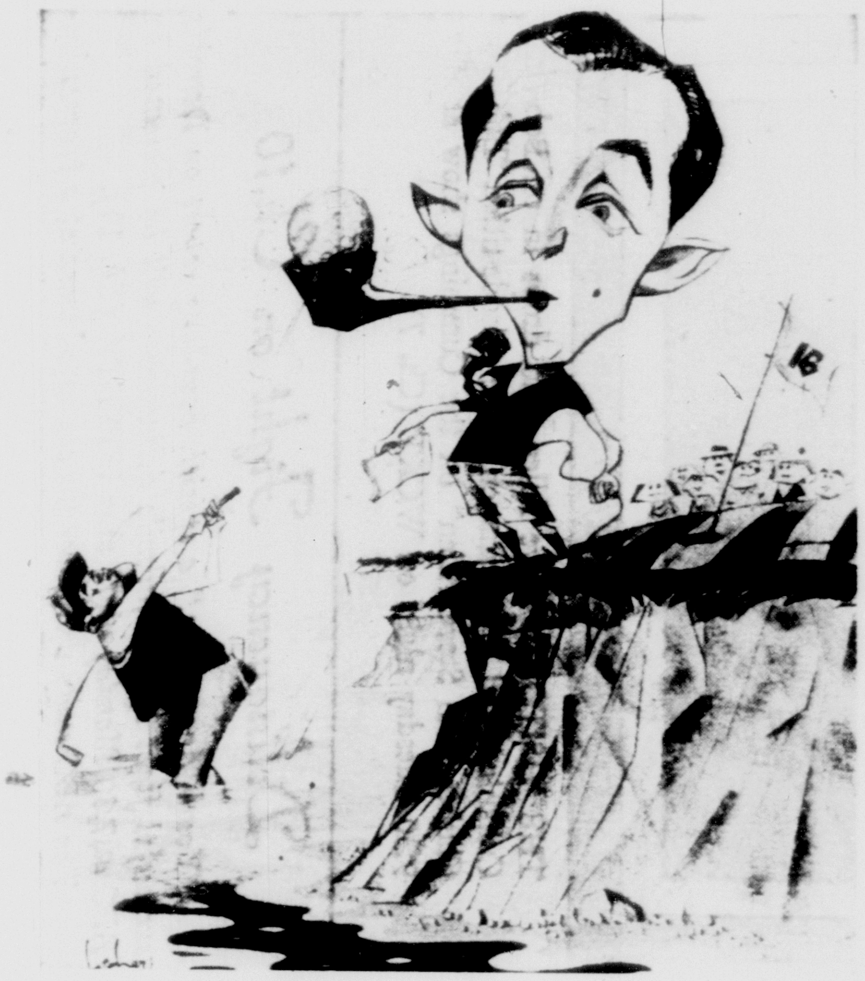
Was Nothing But Saloon

Writer-Director Doug Heyes of the "Maverick" TV show, produced at Warner Brothers, leads into his episode titled "Two Beggars on Horseback," this way: "FADE IN: INT. GAMBLING HELL. SENSATIONAL SHOT (STOCK) — NIGHT.

"The time it took Mike Curtiz to set this up — what with the cranes and the booms and the dollies, nine hundred extras, crystal chandeliers, plush drapes, and dancing girls — was all well spent, to present our viewers with a true picture of a typical cheap saloon in an average Western town of our period."

To the uninitiated this simply means that the studio used some film of a gambling hall scene from a million-dollar production made previously by Curtiz.

JAN MURRAY OPENS TREASURE CHEST HERE



COMMENTATOR for the 18th annual Bing Crosby Golf Tournament to be telecast at 5:30 tonight over ABC on WPST-TV (Ch. 10) will be the groaner himself. The tournament is being played at Pebble Beach, Calif.

Delinquency Fight on Ch.10

"Youth Anonymous," a special, hour-long report on Detroit's successful fight against juvenile delinquency will be presented by ABC at 7:30 Monday night over WPST-TV (Ch. 10).

The ABC study will cover the concerted work of a progressive-minded police force, regular social agencies and a unique self-help group called "Youth Anonymous," headed by an ex-convict named Ernest "Tip" Rumsby.

An ABC team of newsmen, headed by John Daly, will report the Detroit story, telling how it is the only major city in the nation to show a decrease in delinquency the past year.

Norfolk School Report on Ch.4

A report on the school integration deadlock in Norfolk, Va., under the program title, "The Lost Class of '59," will be presented by CBS at 8 Wednesday night on WTVJ (Ch. 4).

Produced by Edward R. Murrow and Fred W. Friendly, the hour-long report is the result of five weeks spent by the CBS news staff in Norfolk filming the progress of Virginia's massive resistance plan.

The program will show how Norfolk is meeting the complex problems of continuing the education of some 10,000 school-age children without the use of buildings or classrooms which were closed last September by Gov. J. Lindsay Almond, Jr.

We Won't Leave Berlin, President Tells Mikoyan

You Can Have One, Too

Look at Me, Fellas--I've Got an Ulcer!

Proud--But Unhappy

Today's man of distinction is the man with an ulcer. He mentions it proudly while flashing his antacid pills. That's because he's supposed to be made of the stuff that lifts him above the flock. But there never lived an ulcer victim who was happy about his affliction. The writer, New York Newspaper Editor Herbert Kamm, can attest to this. He's had an ulcer for 22 years, and that makes him somewhat of an authority on the subject. In five articles, starting here, he tells about the causes, the "cures" and sundry facts concerning this pesky ailment.

By HERBERT KAMM
Special To The Herald

ONE SNAPPISHLY COLD afternoon in February some years ago, a lean young man entered the office of his doctor and announced, "Doc, I think I've got an ulcer."

A sour look, much like that induced by a swig of citrate of magnesia came over the doctor's face. You do not, as a rule, endear yourself by walking into a doctor's office and diagnosing your own case. He's supposed to tell you.

But the lean young man was not to be deterred.

"I've had this gnawing in my tummy for several weeks now," he went on. "It comes an hour or two after eating, and I also get it in the middle of the night. If I drink a glass of milk, it goes away. Besides, I've been working too hard and smoking too much, and I guess I haven't been too careful about what I've been eating, either."

"Well," the doctor said grudgingly, "they do sound like the classic symptoms."

So they took the lean young man to the hospital, and they had him drink a glass of white, chalky stuff called barium, and they took a bunch of X-rays, and they found an ulcer of the garden variety — a peptic ulcer of the duodenum, the small, valve-like organ which connects the stomach to the small intestine.

The Sufferer
. . . man of distinction

The case is significant for two reasons. While patients quite often will try to tell a doctor his own business, it isn't often that they score with such accuracy. Also, the patient was me.

I had, in a way, arrived. Not that ulcers are a rare ailment. A fat 10 per cent of the population in this country has them, and new cases turn up at the rate of 1.4 million a year.

Add to this the number of people who are troubled by acid distress, heartburn or general discomfort from eating, and you have a whole legion of people who figure that maybe they're getting ulcers.

Usually, however, there is no mistaking this pesky ailment, and studies have shown that, in the large majority of cases, the ulcer sufferer is a person of extremely high intelligence, of great urging to move ahead in this competitive world, and the stuff that lifts him above the flock.

* * *

He Wears Misery Like a Medal

Knowing this, he wears his misery like a badge of honor and takes a strange sort of pride in displaying his antacid pills at social gatherings. He also draws comfort from knowing that he's in pretty fast company.

It should not, however, be assumed that ulcers are solely a disease of modern, fast-moving civilization. In fact, they seem to be as old as civilization itself.

The traditional ulcer type, though, is supposed to be

But Lands Again Safely

Plane Catches Fire After Takeoff Here

An Eastern Air Lines Super G Constellation caught fire seconds after it took off from Miami International Airport Saturday but landed again safely with flames streaming from its right wing.

The four-engine plane's landing gear collapsed as it rolled to a halt following the emergency landing, the airport control tower said, but there were no serious injuries reported to the 12 passengers and five crew members.

An ambulance was rushed to Runway 9, however, after the Constellation, Flight 704, landed.

The control tower said the plane, bound non-stop for Detroit, began trailing smoke and fire from around the right inboard engine seconds after it was airborne.

The tower radioed the pilot and cleared runways for an emergency landing. The plane came in, its wing still burning, after circling to the south.

The tower said the pilot "made a good landing," and that the plane had almost come to a stop when the right landing gear collapsed, toppling the big airliner crazily onto its wing.

Firemen Battle Pre-Dawn Blaze in Hotel Commodore at Stuart
. . . two persons died and nine others fled into 32-degree weather in night clothes

Two Killed By Flames At Stuart

Four Die in Detroit . . 15C

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

STUART — Two men burned to death Saturday in a predawn hotel fire apparently caused by an ex-jockey smoking in bed.

Nine other persons, including the owner of the Hotel Commodore, ran from the flaming structure in their night clothes in 32-degree weather, only minutes before the roof of the 33-year-old structure collapsed.

One of the victims was Daniel Brice, an exercise boy at a Martin County horse training track before he spent five days in jail on a drunk charge. He was released from jail Thursday.

Smoke was noticed first boiling from a window in Brice's room. He jumped from the second floor window but his body already was a flaming torch. He apparently was dead by the time he hit the ground.

The other victim was the hotel bartender, George Jackson, 31. His body was recovered in the burned ruins.

Ernest Lee Daugherty, who came here Dec. 29 from Dublin, N.C., said a hotel employe came running down the corridor screaming that the hotel was on fire.

"I grabbed what clothes I could and got out," Daugherty said.

The hotel was built in this east coast city 100 miles north of Miami in 1926. The Miami Marlins baseball club of the International League trained here last spring.

Three firemen, James Holt, Johnny Moore and Adolph DeLoach, were overcome by smoke and exhaustion. They were hospitalized for treatment.

Paul R. Bailey, 24, of Atlanta, who lived in the nearby St. Lucie Hotel, was hospitalized with shock after seeing Brice's body covered with flames hurtle from a second story window and land at his feet.

Bailey said the "human torch" only missed him by inches.

Only a few hours earlier, Bailey and his roommate, George Johnson, jerked Mrs. E. L. Tressler from the path of a freight train at a crossing in Rio, between Stuart and Jensen Beach. The train missed them "by three inches," an officer said.

Fire Chief Milton Griffin said Brice evidently fell asleep while smoking.

Damage was estimated at $100,000 by Griffin. The Martin County fire department, Stuart units and equipment from Salerno, Jensen Beach, Rio, Palm City, Jupiter Island and Fort Pierce fought the fire.

Gambling Raiders Nab 'Alfie' Mart

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

Alfred Mart, central figure in a stormy Port Authority concession deal, was arrested on bookmaking charges with three others in a fast-striking gambling raid at a Miami Beach Hotel Saturday.

In a joint assault, seven agents from four law enforcement agencies broke down the door of Room 207 of the Commodore Hotel, 1360 Collins Ave., to break what they called "one of the biggest operations in the area."

Mart, 42, of 1211 100th St., Miami Beach, was recently awarded the variety store concession at the new airport terminal despite disclosures that a Herald reporter placed horse bets at "Alfie's," one of Mart's two Miami Beach stores.

Metro commissioners voted 6 to 5 in favor of giving the lucrative concession to Mart.

Following his arrest Saturday, Mart kept a grim silence. He shielded his face from photographers with a handkerchief and a New York tabloid newspaper.

When questioned by investigators he at first gave a fictitious name. His real identity wasn't known until after he was taken to the county jail and required to produce identification.

Participating in the raid were officials of the Metro Public Safety Department, the state attorney's office, the attorney general's office and the Florida Hotel and Restaurant Commission.

Arrested with Mart were: Charles Kaminski, 50, of 735 15th St., Miami Beach; Benjamin Gardner, 44, of 1819 Meridan Ave., Miami Beach and Ella Morgan, 51, of 1358 Pennsylvania Ave., Miami Beach.

The three men were charged with bookmaking and operating a gambling house and later released under $3,000 bond each.

The woman, a switchboard operator at the hotel, was charged with conspiracy to

Your Teeth Will Still Chatter

The tail-end of a crop-withering cold wave that gripped North Florida early Sunday will keep Miamians' teeth chattering at least until Monday.

Freezing weather was expected early Sunday as far south as the lower East Coast farmlands. Farmers in central and North Florida had smudge pots burning furiously in an effort to save their crops.

And the warmup that the Miami Weather Bureau predicted earlier has been postponed until after Monday morning, the forecasters said.

The Frost Warning Service predicted the mercury would nosedive sharply early Sunday, dropping even lower than the low 20s in several North Florida spots Saturday.

Although frost was forecast for most farming areas, the service said it would be mostly light because of dryness of the air.

The temperature was expected to skid to as low as 15 in pockets and mucklands of the Suwannee and Gainesville districts of North Florida.

Here is the Florida weather picture:

South Florida

Low about 40 on the Beach Sunday; bottom temperatures ranging from 32 to 36 in the suburbs and farmlands with scattered frost. Forecast: Not much warmer Monday.

Central Florida

30 to 35 near Lake Okeechobee early Sunday; 25 to 20 away from the lake in the Everglades.

Indian River District — 26 to 31, except 22 in the interior.

West and North

West Coast: 24 to 31, with 20 in pockets and mucklands.

Upper East Coast — 22 to 27, with 18 in pockets.

Telethon Rolling

Is your dial set for the 17 hours of star-loaded entertainment coming to you over WCKT, Channel 7?

It's the Eighth Annual Telethon — the United Fund and United Cerebral Palsy Chapter's major shot in the January United Fund Victory Drive.

The United Fund is reaching for a $3,477,000 goal; United Cerebral Palsy campaign hopes to get at least $341,000 of this goal through telethon efforts.

Remember. It won't be over until 2:30 p.m. Sunday and might last even later.

Ike Declares U.S. Will Never Accept Khrushchev's Plan

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Eisenhower solemnly told Russia Saturday the U.S. never will accept Premier Nikita Khrushchev's plan to turn East Berlin over to the East German Reds May 27.

Eisenhower was reported to have given this notice during a 1¾-hour meeting with Deputy Soviet Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan.

The White House conference, climaxing Mikoyan's two-week visit to this country, ended with no sign of concession by either side on Berlin, Germany or disarmament.

Despite this, informed officials predicted a Big Four foreign ministers conference will be held sometime this spring before the date Russia has fixed for ending four-power Berlin rule.

The 63-year-old Mikoyan, relaxed and smiling, went immediately to the Soviet embassy. Presumably, he will draft a report to the Kremlin on his round of talks. First, however, he went for a drive in Washington's Rock Creek Park.

His morning meeting with Eisenhower capped 11½ hours of talks with administration leaders, four of them directly with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

In view of the continued East-West deadlock, Eisenhower was understood to be banking heavily on Mikoyan's personal insight into U.S. policy, gained by his talks and travel, to pave the way for what this government regards as a more reasonable attitude.

Authorities familiar with Mikoyan's talks said that despite his relatively mild language, he reaffirmed Russia's Berlin plan while disclaiming any thought it should be considered a peace or war ultimatum.

Eisenhower and Dulles were said to have met this by reemphasizing that the U.S., with pledges of solid backing by its allies, will refuse to accept Soviet moves to scrap international agreements on Berlin's status.

Informants gave this point-by-point summary of the outcome of the confidential discussions with Mikoyan:

A SUMMIT MEETING — Neither side mentioned this, despite Mikoyan's advance public remarks urging a high-level conference without any formal agenda.

A BIG FOUR MEETING — No effort was made to set the time, place, or agenda. But U.S. authorities expressed confidence a foreign ministers meeting would be arranged.

DISARMAMENT — Dulles stressed there is an urgent American desire for an East-West ban on nuclear weapons explosions, provided adequate inspection is included. Eisenhower and Mikoyan agreed that modern armaments impose a crushing financial burden on governments.

GERMAN ELECTIONS — Mikoyan vigorously denounced the idea of free elections despite the West's continued insistence they are the foundation for uniting Eastern and Western zones into a single democratic nation.

Mikoyan Drops Trip To Florida

By ELVALEE SWIFT
Herald Staff Writer

Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan abruptly canceled plans Saturday to visit Florida reportedly because he feared the balmy weather.

Washington sources said the Kremlin leader thought he might catch cold if he came to Florida and then left here for Moscow's sub-zero winter.

He was to be in Miami Wednesday and Thursday after a quick one-day tour of Tampa and Central Florida's citrus belt.

In Washington Saturday the low was 10 degrees, with snow turning to ice.

Mikoyan's fears about balmy Florida weather were well grounded, weathermen here said, for had he arrived Wednesday as scheduled, the present cold snap would have been only a memory.

In announcing his Florida switch, Mikoyan also said he will go to Moscow three days earlier than he had originally planned.

He will leave Tuesday rather than Friday and will be the guest of honor at a reception Monday night given by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov.

Mikoyan's change of plans will halt the demonstrations planned throughout Florida by Hungarians. A group here was preparing to greet the ambassador with a black coffin.

Bells of Catholic Churches throughout the state were to toll in protest, at the recommendation of Archbishop Joseph Patrick Hurley of the St. Augusinte diocese.

Mikoyan will also miss Red Skelton's Miami night club act. The Russian had said he wanted to catch Skelton's performance.

His Hands Held a Heart: A Life Was Saved

By JOY REESE SHAW
Herald Staff Writer

OFFBEAT
with Joy Reese Shaw
MIAMI

The strong, sure hands rested easily now on the white-clad knee — hands that had held a heart.

Suddenly, for just an instant, they seemed caught up in a sort of glow.

Maybe it was just a shaft of light. Or maybe it was just imagination. Still . . .

The heart they'd held belonged to Albert Brussman, 55. Upstairs, somewhere else in the hospital, it was ticking away steadily. But only days ago, it lay deathly quiet.

The hands — these particular ones — belonged to Dr. David Roth, 26, first-year surgical resident at Jackson Memorial Hospital. He had held a man's life in his palm — and won.

But they might have belonged to any of the hundreds of Miami medics who daily battle for life.

David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Roth, 1036 SW Third St. He studied and interned at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, and when the time comes, he wants to be a neurosurgeon. Right now he's on emergency duty at Jackson, 24 hours on — 12 off.

"I was asleep when they called me," young Dr. Roth said. It was the early morning of Jan. 9.

Brussman, a carpenter of 240 Albatross Ave., Miami Springs, had slammed his car into a tree. His jaw and ribs were fractured. He was in shock.

In the emergency room at Jackson, a team of doctors and nurses worked diligently. Moments after Dr. Roth arrived, the accident victim was gasping for breath. Then he stopped breathing completely.

Quickly Dr. Roth acted — an incision and a tracheotomy tube.

Then, in a flash it dawned on Dr. Roth. When he had slashed the throat for the tube, there'd been no bleeding.

He felt for the pulse. Nothing. He listened for a heart beat. None.

"Get out of my way," he said tersely.

Three firm, swift moments of the knife across the chest and the doctor's hand was inside, warm between the ribs.

The fingers cupped around the heart, he squeezed it against the rib wall in a rhythm he hoped was 60 times a minute.

What does a human heart feel like?

"A little like dough, I guess. It was pretty taut. When it's flabby, that's bad."

Then came the first faint beat — the movement throbbing within his fingers.

"That was the thrill!" said the doctor. "At that instant all the years and all the study and all the weariness became worth-while."

On the battle went, for 15 minutes "but when you feel that first beat, you know you stand a chance."

All the while it was teamwork, one doctor breathing into the tracheotomy tube, another making a leg incision for blood transmission, another on the telephone calling surgery to make ready.

The dark-haired young man told of his visit to the patient in the recovery room.

"I was worried. I didn't know what to expect. I wasn't sure exactly how long the heart had been out of proper action. Up to seven minutes you're pretty safe, but there can be brain damage after too long a stoppage . . ."

The patient opened his eyes and smiled. His first words?

"How you feel, doc?"

Dr. Roth sat very still, remembering the stillness of that moment.

Then:

"Everyday, Miami doctors are doing more heroic, more skillful things than this," he said. "Not always as dramatic — but just as important."

He walked down the long corridor toward the door, one man in one hsopital, in one city.

Nearly 300 emergencies a day, and this had been only one of them.

A stocky man in a soiled yellow pullover and battered breeches panted up.

"Thanks, doc—! sure wanna thank you . . ." He jogged the doctor's memory. "I fell unconscious on the street and you saved my life. I'm going now . . ."

He twisted his cap and shuffled: "There's one thing, doc. I ain't got a quarter to get home."

David Roth grinned and reached into his pocket.

He held out a quarter.

This time it was certain.

There was a sort of glow about the hands.

U.S. Gets Castro Warning On 'Cannon Diplomacy'

'Invasion' By Batista Discounted

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — Fidel Castro has warned the U.S. against attempting to use "cannon diplomacy" to halt the executions of Batistans. At the same time he is starting a campaign of pressure against the U.S. to "return the war criminals."

These attitudes were outlined as revolutionary officials discounted reports that former Dictator Fulgencio Batista had landed a counterattacking force, or was planning to do so, somewhere in Cuba.

Maj. Victor Borden, acting commander at La Cabana, the fortress across the bay from Havana, told newsmen such an attack from Batista's refuge in the Dominican Republic was improbable.

"When he had 55,000 troops he couldn't hurt us," said Borden. "What can he do with 10,000?"

He apparently was referring to a report from revolutionary military intelligence that Batista was trying to organize an invasion force of 10,000 men.

Borden said, however, that his chief at La Cabana, Maj. Ernesto Guevara, had departed for the central province of Las Villas because revolutionary units were somewhat disorganized. He declined to explain further.

It was announced that Maj. Eloy Guttierrez Menoyo, who commanded 4,000 to 5,000 men in spearhead fighting in Las Villas, had led his men back to the province from Havana for demobilization. There was speculation, however, that the move was a precaution against any Batista counterblow.

Castro, the revolutionary armed forces commander, who masterminded the New Year's Day overthrow of Batista's dictatorship, made his remarks about U.S. diplomacy in a speech to about 10,000 persons in front of the Presidential Palace Friday night.

He called for a rally of half a million Cubans — representing labor unions, students, and civic and industrial groups — here Wednesday to tell the world they favor continued execution of men of the Batista regime accused of "war crimes" killings.

Ed McCollum of the attorney general's office said bets were being placed through the switchboard via a code signal.

"Investigation showed that bettors would call the hotel and ask for "Room One." The calls were then transferred to room 207 where the bets were taken," McCollum reported.

With other agents standing nearby, McCollum led the raid by kicking in the door and bursting into the room.

"You're all under arrest," he shouted.

The three men surrendered without protest. Mrs. Morgan, meanwhile, was picked up at the switchboard.

Investigators found $1,000 in bills, three telephones, scratch sheets and betting pads.

MRS. GOODMAN

An agent for the Hotel Commission said that the operator of the hotel, Mrs. Judith Goodman, is under investigation. She denied any connection with the gambling suspects.

The Commodore, a small South Beach hotel, is frequented mostly by elderly guests. While the raid was taking place, a group of women played cards in the lobby.

Week-Old Crashes Take Lives of Two

Dade's traffic toll for 1959 jumped by two Saturday when the victims of two separate week-old auto accidents died. There have been nine traffic fatalities so far this year.

Roland Schaff, 43, of 9560 NW 32nd Pl., died in Jackson Memorial Hospital. He was injured last Saturday in a crash at NW 10th Ave. and 20th St.

Weldon W. Elliott, 27, airman stationed with Miami International Air Depot's Squadron 2585, died in Doctor's Hospital of injuries received in a wreck Jan. 6.

A FEDERAL District Court jury recessed for the weekend Saturday after more than 30 hours of deliberation in the controversial case of the 1957 death of Miami Auto Dealer Harry Ablon. Ablon died from a gunshot while driving his car. The jury is attempting to determine whether it was suicide, an accident or foul play.

MIAMI'S weekend Cuba lottery number failed to come up Saturday for the third week in a row because of Fidel Castro's gambling ban. It is being predicted that local gamblers might soon be forced to institute their own Cuba numbers, based on the last two digits of Castro's firing squad toll.

The company foreman summoned police, who arrested Sampson on a charge of drunkenness.

a hardworking, over-conscientious, ambitious, successful person who can't "take it easy."

* * *

Much has been made of the prevalence of ulcers among those with the long, lean "thinker" constitution, their absence among primitives and Asiatics, and the greater frequency of ulcer in the postwar years of prosperity and nervous strain.

But let's keep one thing straight: Ulcers do not automatically confer business success on their victims. Regardless of how much money you've got in the bank and the kind of job you hold down, hasten to your doctor and let him call the play if you suspect you're on your way to joining the club.

An ulcer is a sore in the stomach or the duodenum caused by the secretion of more acid gastric juices than are needed to digest food. As with most ailments, it is accompanied by pain.

The pain is usually located right under the ribs and occurs in bouts of 15 minutes to an hour's duration. Food generally will relieve it, but the pain will return after the food has passed out of the stomach and those nasty juices can go to work again on your stomach lining.

* * *

If neglected, an ulcer can perforate the stomach or the duodenum, and death from such severe cases is not uncommon. Most ulcers, though, are manageable and need not be serious. In fact, living with them can be quite sporting if one is sensible about the things he eats and drinks and, more important, about his state of mind.

Woman Is Winner

Sunny's $800 Prize Helps Pay the Doctor

By SUNNY FORTUNE

Mrs. Eysmont
. . . never expected prize

A 50-year-old Miami telephone operator with a broken leg and a collection of doctor bills won my $800 jackpot last week.

SUNNY

Mrs. Mildred Eysmont, of 742 NW 52nd St., said she started working the Sunny Fortune puzzles when she broke her leg nine months ago.

"But I never thought I'd win," said the flabbergasted woman. "I'm so surprised I think I'll drop dead."

I talked Mrs. Eysmont out of any such drastic reaction and praised her for getting the word "NEAR" in last week's puzzle where so many others missed and put "NEAT."

Incidentally, that was the only word missed by Patty Motta, Miami; Edward Zwicker, North Miami, and H. F. Keller, Titusville.

I've been swamped with opinions about the new puzzle as compared to the old, and frankly, readers, so far it looks like a toss-up.

Some of you have complained the new one is too easy.

If that's the case, dig in. I'm willing to give you $300 if you solve my puzzle this week. It's on page 14C.

Revision Abolishes Constables

Three-Tier Court System Adopted by Judicial Council

Options Allowed Counties

Legislature May Balk at Reforms

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — A plan for the most complete revision of Florida's judicial system since the present state constitution was drawn up in 1885 was adopted Saturday by the State Judicial Council.

A product of years of work by the 17-member group of laymen and lawyers, the plan will be put before the 1959 legislature as a proposed constitutional amendment and incorporated in several proposed laws.

The heart of the plan is the consolidation of all trial courts into a single system, made up of three tiers — Circuit Courts, County Courts and Magistrate Courts.

Counties of 100,000 or more population would have the option of combining the County Court, or parts of it, with their Circuit Courts.

Other main parts of the plan would:

PLACE ALL judges on salary and abolish the fee systems on which many now operate.

REWRITE the laws on jurors and witnesses and other laymen in the courts. Fees for jurors and witnesses would be raised to $10 a day and jury commissions would be established in all counties with population of 25,000 or more.

DESIGNATE the state attorney as chief prosecutor in all courts and authorize him to appoint his own assistants now appointed by the governor, and designate the Sheriff as the chief enforcement officer for all courts, abolishing the office of constable.

LAY DOWN minimum procedural rules for administrative boards and agencies having quasi-judicial powers to insure the right of due process of law for those appearing before them.

REMOVE the constitutional limitation of 16 judicial circuits but require any new circuit to have at least 100,000 persons.

AUTHORIZE one Circuit Judge for every 50,000 population or major fraction, as at present, but allow the Legislature to create additional circuit judgeships, or abolish them, upon the showing of a "permanent need."

AUTHORIZE cities to operate municipal courts, but permit these to be combined with magistrate courts, if the city wishes.

Many features of the council's plan are expected to be controversial in the Legislature. Council Member W. A. Shands, retiring President of the Senate, commented that it would be hard to sell the Legislature on the need for removing restrictions on the number of Appellate Court districts and judges. He voted against that feature of the revision plan.

The council chairman, Supreme Court Justice Stephen C. O'Connell of Fort Lauderdale, says the council's aim is to eliminate the hodgepodge of existing trial courts for a single efficient system. The State Supreme Court would administer the three-court system.

Arthur Lundeen, council executive director, said special trial courts had been set up to meet needs when Florida began growing rapidly.

'Inciting' Racism Charged

Bryant Protests Vote-Tests Plan

OCALA — (UPI) — Former House Speaker C. Farris Bryant demanded Saturday that U.S. Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers either resign or retract a statement urging Negroes blocked from voting to try again so the government can pile up evidence of civil rights violations.

Bryant, an Ocala attorney and potential candidate for governor in 1960, wired his protest to Rogers with copies to Florida Senators Spessard Holland and George Smathers.

He said Rogers remarks at a Washington news conference "alarmed" him.

Under the law, he said, the Attorney General's jurisdiction and responsibility is to "prosecute crimes, not incite them."

"While I firmly believe in the inherent right of every citizen, regardless of race, color or creed, to exercise his voting privilege, I condemn your unprecedented action in openly seeking and promoting litigation through the medium of the press, television and radio," he said.

"Regardless of whether your action was in good faith or an attempt to justify the existence of the Civil Rights Commission, it is apparent that you have failed as a responsible head of the Department of Justice and a retraction of your statement or your resignation would be a service to our country."

Broward Man Heads Port Group

FORT LAUDERDALE — The appointment of Port Everglades Manager R. T. Spangler as temporary president of the newly-formed Florida Ports and Foreign Trade Council was announced here Saturday.

The non-profit organization will operate as an independent division of the State Chamber of Commerce with headquarters at the FSCC Building in Jacksonville.

Some 14 state ports will be represented on the board. Other members will be the FSCC executive vice president and the executive director of the Florida Development Commission.

The council's objectives are to increase the flow of cargos through Florida ports, improve facilities and promote cooperation between operators and users.

The council's first meeting will be Feb. 16, Spangler said. Application for membership can be made through the FSCC.

Guests Tell How They Fled As Flames Destroyed Hotel

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

STUART — How they fled from the flaming Commodore Hotel here early Saturday, after being awakened by smoke, or the fire sirens, was told by those who had been guests in the hotel.

Most were shaken by their narrow escape and by the news that two others had perished in the $100,000 blaze. Many lost virtually all of their baggage and personal belongings in the fire.

The fire was first seen by Homer Hudson of the Florida Power and Light Co., who with Conservation Officer Boots Byrd was driving past the hotel shortly after 4 a.m.

Hudson went to the fire station, only 20 feet from the hotel and sounded the siren. He then rushed into the hotel, but was turned back by the dense smoke.

At the sound of the siren, Paul Bailey, of Atlanta, Ga., who had a room on the third floor of the St. Lucie Hotel, about 100 yards south of the Commodore, awoke and noticed a glow in his window. "He saw smoke pouring from the room occupied by Brice," Bailey said.

"I was so nervous, following the near brush of death we had had earlier, that I couldn't sleep. When I saw the glow, and smoke, I ran downstairs to tell the night watchman so he could call the fire department.

"I had forgotten I wasn't dressed. I ran back upstairs, put on my pants and called my roommate, George Johnson.

As I came back downstairs, I noticed Police Chief Sam Harless, who lives at the St. Lucie, was on his way downstairs.

I rushed out the front door and down the alley toward the Commodore, where I had seen the fire through the second floor window . . . Just as I got below the window, a flaming figure came flying down and fell at my feet.

"It was a man, dressed in a robe and pajamas. He was burning all over. He made no sound. It was just an awful loud thump when his body hit the ground. I stood there stunned . . . Don't know exactly how I got back to the hotel. It was awful."

Bailey told how death brushed him just a few hours previously.

"Johnson and I decided to go to Jensen Beach to the bowling alleys. As we neared the Florida East Coach Railroad tracks on A1A near Rio the warning lights flashed on. A car directly in front of us slowed, stopped and then started across the tracks . . just then the gates came down and the car was trapped.

"A woman jumped out and tried to push the car off the tracks . . . we ran to her aid, and we saw the train coming. "We grabbed the woman, (Mrs. Tressler of Jensen Beach) and pulled her from the track just as the train went by.

"The train hit the car and carried it along the tracks. We were missed by inches."

Two employees of the Commodore, Robert King, 23, of Scottdale, Pa., and Gene Panipinto, 23, of Rochester, N.Y. were apparently the last men to see the second fire victim, George Jackson.

"We had gone to the Stuart Hotel for coffee after the Commodore bar closed, and returned to our rooms," Panipinto said. "I woke up smelling smoke.

"I woke up Robert King and we pulled our pants on and ran out of our door into the hallway. It was filled with smoke. Robert and I shouted the hotel was on fire and got everyone awake and out of their rooms.

"We went toward the stairs and to room No. 1, where George Jackson was. He was in the doorway but pulled back when we tried to get him out . . . he dashed back in the room . . . by this time we were all running down the stairs . . . we couldn't see a thing. When we got out front we saw that Jackson was not with us.

"We tried to go back in . . . but by this time the stairs were in flames."

"I got a ladder and put it up by Jackson's window and started up," King said. Just then I saw a man hurtling down several feet from me. He was on fire. I kept climbing up the ladder and broke in the window.

"The room was filled with smoke and I couldn't see a thing. I couldn't find Jackson . . . So I crawled out of the window and down the ladder."

Mrs. Dorothea Routs, executive secretary of the Red Cross chapter here purchased clothing for the two. They had been here three weeks, and this was the second loss of their clothes. Just before leaving Pennsylvania for Florida their car was broken into and all their clothing stolen.

Although hotel records were burned it has been established Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Harris; the victims, Jackson and Brice; King, Panipinto, Robert C. Schroth, Kenneth Johnson and Earl L. Stroud of Hampton, Va., were in the hotel at the time of the fire.

Whether there were more victims in the fire cannot be determined until the debris is cleared.

Brice was in room 27, and it was from his room the fire was first seen. His legs and right arm were charred, leading to the belief he was overcome with smoke while smoking in bed.

Residents of the St. Lucie Hotel, managed by Mr. and Mrs. John M. Davis routed their 20 guests from bed when they spotted the fire. Mrs. Kathleen Peck and her two daughters, Mary and Susan, left their home, a few feet from the Commodore. Guests at Resthaven, a home for the aged, were taken from their quarters. The hotel was separated from the City Hall and fire station by a narrow alley.

Jailor Henry Hoyt tentatively identified Brice. A cash bond receipt paper was found on him, with the name Daniel Brice. A check at the sheriff's office indicated Brice was arrested Jan. 10 for drunkedness, and released from jail Jan. 15.

Water supply was cut off in the city before 9 a.m. so water would be available to fight the fire. Pumpers also drew from the St. Lucie River.

One car, owned by Gustin Aubin was found, covered with wreckage, next to the hotel.

Brice's body could not be recovered for hours after he fell or jumped to his death. It was covered with wreckage from a wall that caved after his body was seen.

State Pay Raise Tied To Costs

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Budget Director Harry Smith said Saturday he will recommend "cost of living" pay raises, not in excess of three per cent, for most state employes.

But Smith said, some raises proposed by state agencies are out of the question in view of the financial pinch.

Smith's recommendations weigh heavily with the Cabinet Budget Commission in making recommendations to the Legislature.

The commission will get down to the budget balancing job Jan. 28, and it apparently is going to have to pare about $140,000,000 off proposed budgets to fit spending to income from present taxes.

The big increase in most budgets is salaries. Smith said he does not plan to recommend any cross-the-board general salary increases, but will consider each agency separately.

He'll recommend raises for the average employe of about two and a half to three per cent. The cost of living index, he said, is up about two and a half per cent per year.

Smith said he probably will suggest larger raises for some professional personnel.

Rites Held For Bishop

ORLANDO — (AP) — Services were held Saturday at the First Methodist Church here for Dr. John W. Branscomb, bishop of the Methodist Church in Florida and Cuba, who died Friday of a heart attack.

Dr. E. J. Pendergrass, pastor of the Church, officiated, assisted by a number of bishops, ministers and laymen.

Herald in Error; Anderson in Business

Herald Service

NAPLES — Reports that the real estate license of Clifford Anderson, acreage specialist, has been suspended are "in the same class as reports that I have fled the country for Hawaii, turned over my business to my associates or been using acreage air force to ship guns to Castro," Anderson said Saturday.

The Herald was in error Saturday morning in reporting that Anderson's license is under suspension. The Herald regrets the error.

In Fort Pierce, Henry Jernigan, chairman of the Florida Real Estate Commission, said there has been no hearing on any case involving Anderson.

Anderson is still open for business at his office here.

Victim Strangled

Micco Slaying Clues Hunted

By BILL BUNGE
Melbourne Bureau Chief

MELBOURNE — The body of a 43-year-old laborer was found early Saturday along the shoulder of the Flemming-Grant Rd. in Micco, an unincorporated community south of here.

Investigators believe the man was murdered.

Deputy Sheriffs Jim Drawdy and D. G. Gardner said the victim was identified as Carl Hill, 43, a West Virginia resident who came here to visit relatives about two weeks ago.

They said Hill had been staying with a sister, Mrs. Roy Webster, and a brother, William Hill, whose home is near the place where the body was found.

The deputies said, "It appeared that the man had been murdered, perhaps by strangulation." There were marks on his neck and deep scrathces on his back.

Hill was dressed in lightweight work clothing and had no identification. Mrs. Webster and William Hill came to the scene and identified their brother when they learned of the case from neighbors. They had not seen Hill since Thursday.

Drawdy and Gardner said there was no evidence of a struggle where the body was found and said they believed it had been dumped from an automobile. There were fresh tire marks and footprints.

Hill's body was found at 7 a.m. by Jack Byar of Micco, a mechanic on his way to work. The scene was about 500 feet from U. S. 1, on the road leading to Little Hollywood subdivision in Micco.

Investigators said the body apparently had been dumped along the road after 11 p.m. Friday.

The body was taken to Brownlie Funeral Home in Melbourne for an autopsy.

Lawman's Slayers Given Bail

CRESTVIEW — (AP) — Two brothers convicted in the 1940 slaying of a former northwest Florida police chief were granted bonds Saturday after two previous denials of their request.

Circuit Judge Charles Wade set bond for Doyle Cayson, 51, at $30,000, and for Jesse Cayson, 56, at $25,000, pending the appeal of their conviction to a higher court.

The brothers are under life sentence on their Nov. 23 conviction of the shotgun slaying of Lester Wilson as he sat in the living room of his Crestview home March 14, 1940. The elder Wilson was the father of Ray Wilson, then a boy of 12 but now Sheriff at Crestview.

Circuit Judge Erwin Fleet sentenced the Caysons Dec. 1, and at that time denied a defense motion for a new trial and also refused to permit their release on bond pending the appeal.

Davie Man Killed in Car Crash

FORT LAUDERDALE — Thomas V. Geiger, a 41-year-old Davie resident, was killed early Saturday when his car went out of control on U.S. 27 five miles south of Andytown.

He was believed to have fallen asleep at the wheel.

The accident occurred at about 4 a.m. Geiger was driving south alone in his 1952 sedan.

Trooper T. J. Sterns reported that the car veered off the road, rolled over "eight or nine times," and plunged into a ditch. It was demolished.

Geiger, who lived at 555 SW Davie Ave., was a serviceman for an exterminating company. He came here in 1946.

Survivors include his wife, Myrtle, two sisters, Mrs. Ralph Carie, of Davie, and Mrs. M. M. Levy, of Yulee, and three brothers, Donald of Fort Lauderdale, Frank of Vidalia, Ga., and Edward of Savannah, Ga. The Fairchild Funeral Home is in charge.

Agree on 10 Years for Hoax

Sheriffs Hedge on Bombers

ORLANDO — (AP) — Florida Sheriffs debated the proper punishment for bomb terrorists without reaching a decision at the closing session of their mid-winter conference.

In mapping a general legislative program, the Sheriffs were undecided whether the death sentence or only imprisonment should be provided in a proposed law to punish persons who terrorize communities with bombings.

They agreed sentences up to 10 years in prison are proper for persons who perpetrate bomb hoaxes.

Several other subjects were proposed and will be taken up by officials of the Florida Sheriffs Association, in detailing recommendations to the legislature.

For one, the Sheriffs want to complete the program of putting themselves on a salary and budget basis. Twelve of the state's 67 sheriffs still operate on the fee basis.

Other proposed laws would require doctors, nurses and hospitals to report treatment of any gunshot wound; prohibit giving false information about a crime; return primary elections to May; provide a copy of Motor Vehicle Registrations to the Sheriff of the county where issued, and require monthly reports by pawnbrokers.

The Sheriffs elected Ross Boyer of Sarasota County president; Dave Starr, Orange, second vice president; Don McLeod director of the Florida Sheriffs Bureau, secretary, and John Hall, Clay, treasurer.

Directors named were Emmett Shelby, Escambia; Roy Roberson, Jackson; W. P. Joyce Leon; Walt Pellicer, Putnam; Pete Reddish, Bradford; L. O. Davis, St. Johns; Rodney Thursby, Volusia; Luther Hobby, Seminole; Sam Joyce, Indian River; E. O. Carlton, Hardee; John Kirk, Palm Beach and John Spottswood, Monroe.

Enforcement, Publicity Cut Iowa Traffic Deaths

Let's Stop Killing Ourselves

DES MOINES —(AP)— Massive doses of law enforcement and publicity, prescribed by Iowa's traffic doctors, saved 95 lives on the streets and highways of this state last year.

They consider their prescription only partly successful — but they believe they've found a formula for a more potent medicine.

The traffic toll in Iowa was 595 last year as against 690 in 1957 — a fall of about 17 per cent. That was the largest reduction in the midwest and one of the biggest in the nation.

Besides saving lives, it has sharply trimmed the economic losses of Iowans. Many auto insurance companies have cut their rates for Iowa.

The state's chief traffic diagnostician, state safety commissioner Russell Brown, credits these factors for most of the decrease:

1—A "point system" under which the safety department assessed varying numbers of points against persons convicted of traffic violations. When a motorist accumulated 10 points, his license was suspended.

2—Use of radar speed detectors on the highways — the first time radar had been used for traffic control in Iowa.

3—"Excellent cooperation" of newspapers, radio and television stations and the wire services in publicizing traffic problems and the activities of law enforcement officers.

4—Unrelenting efforts by the State Highway Patrol, county sheriff's officers and city police to enforce the traffic laws.

None of these is new, Brown admits, but they added up to a fairly effective program for Iowa.

There has been no favoritism shown in operation of the point system. Brown himself lost five points when he was caught exceeding the speed limit in Des Moines. Atty. Gen. Norman Erbe, Maj. Gen. Fred C. Tandy, adjutant general of Iowa and state comptroller Glenn Sarsfield also have points on their records.

But Iowa can't afford to rest on its laurels, Brown said. If further gains are to be made, new ingredients must be added to the medicine.

"You can't concentrate on just one thing in traffic enforcement," he said. "That is like holding a tight bandage over one cut while your life blood spurts out another wound that you can't even reach."

In Iowa, that second wound is the 90,000 miles of rural roads. While lives were being saved last year on primary highways and city streets, deaths on secondary roads took a jump.

Brown has asked the legislature to beef up the State Highway Patrol so it can patrol the secondary roads. He says the patrol needs at least 150 more men. It now has 250, excluding driver license examiners, and that means only about 80 men — fewer than one per county — can be on the road at any one time.

He also wants a law requiring completion of a state-approved driver education course before a person under 18 years old can be licensed. Under present law 16-year-olds are eligible for a license.

Blast Kills 3 Workmen

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— Three workmen were killed Saturday in an explosion at the nearby Duquesne works of U.S. Steel Corp.

A company spokesman identified the victims as Albert Chorey, 34, of Port Vue; Homer W. Maley, 57, of Duquesne, and Petra Jenca, 59, of Duquesne.

The victims were working in a pig machine building of the blast furnance department.

A company spokesman said a ladle of molten iron apparently upset, touching off an explosion of some type.

The blast apparently killed the three men instantly. Nobody else was in the building and there were no witnesses.

We Won't Leave Berlin, President Tells Mikoyan

You Can Have One, Too

Look at Me, Fellas--I've Got an Ulcer!

Proud--But Unhappy

Today's man of distinction is the man with an ulcer. He mentions it proudly while flashing his antacid pills. That's because he's supposed to be made of the stuff that lifts him above the flock. But there never lived an ulcer victim who was happy about his affliction. The writer, New York Newspaper Editor Herbert Kamm, can attest to this. He's had an ulcer for 22 years, and that makes him somewhat of an authority on the subject. In five articles, starting here, he tells about the causes, the "cures" and sundry facts concerning this pesky ailment.

By HERBERT KAMM
Special To The Herald

ONE SNAPPISHLY COLD afternoon in February some years ago, a lean young man entered the office of his doctor and announced, "Doc, I think I've got an ulcer."

A sour look, much like that induced by a swig of citrate of magnesia came over the doctor's face. You do not, as a rule, endear yourself by walking into a doctor's office and diagnosing your own case. He's supposed to tell you.

The Sufferer
. . . man of distinction

But the lean young man was not to be deterred.

"I've had this gnawing in my tummy for several weeks now," he went on. "It comes an hour or two after eating, and I also get it in the middle of the night. If I drink a glass of milk, it goes away. Besides, I've been working too hard and smoking too much, and I guess I haven't been too careful about what I've been eating, either."

"Well," the doctor said grudgingly, "they do sound like the classic symptoms."

So they took the lean young man to the hospital, and they had him drink a glass of white, chalky stuff called barium, and they took a bunch of X-rays, and they found an ulcer of the garden variety — a peptic ulcer of the duodenum, the small, valve-like organ which connects the stomach to the small intestine.

The case is significant for two reasons. While patients quite often will try to tell a doctor his own business, it isn't often that they score with such accuracy. Also, the patient was me.

I had, in a way, arrived. Not that ulcers are a rare ailment. A fat 10 per cent of the population in this country has them, and new cases turn up at the rate of 1.4 million a year.

Add to this the number of people who are troubled by acid distress, heartburn or general discomfort from eating, and you have a whole legion of people who figure that maybe they're getting ulcers.

Usually, however, there is no mistaking this pesky ailment, and studies have shown that, in the large majority of cases, the ulcer sufferer is a person of extremely high intelligence, of great urging to move ahead in this competitive world, and the stuff that lifts him above the flock.

* * *

He Wears Misery Like a Medal

Knowing this, he wears his misery like a badge of honor and takes a strange sort of pride in displaying his antacid pills at social gatherings. He also draws comfort from knowing that he's in pretty fast company.

It should not, however, be assumed that ulcers are solely a disease of modern, fast-moving civilization. In fact, they seem to be as old as civilization itself.

The traditional ulcer type, though, is supposed to be a hardworking, over-conscientious, ambitious, successful person who can't "take it easy."

* * *

'Thinker' Type Is Likely Victim

Much has been made of the prevalence of ulcers among those with the long, lean "thinker" constitution, their absence among primitives and Asiatics, and the greater frequency of ulcer in the postwar years of prosperity and nervous strain.

But let's keep one thing straight: Ulcers do not automatically confer business success on their victims.

An ulcer is a sore in the stomach or the duodenum caused by the secretion of more acid gastric juices than are needed to digest food. As with most ailments, it is accompanied by pain.

The pain is usually located right under the ribs and occurs in bouts of 15 minutes to an hour's duration. Food generally will relieve it, but the pain will return after the food has passed out of the stomach and those nasty juices can go to work again on your stomach lining.

* * *

Sore 'Perforates'-It Even Kills

If neglected, an ulcer can perforate the stomach or the duodenum, and death from such severe cases is not uncommon. Most ulcers, though, are manageable and need not be serious. In fact, living with them can be quite sporting if one is sensible about the things he eats and drinks and, more important, about his state of mind.

Flames Spew from Wing of $2½ Million Eastern Air Lines Luxury Liner
. . . blazing sky giant jolted to stop as landing gear gave way

Death Cheated at Miami Airport

17 Flee Blazing Airliner —Thanks to Heroic Pilot

By CHARLES TAYLOR and JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writers

An Eastern Air Lines Super G Constellation caught fire seconds after it took off from Miami Saturday but veered back for a safe landing before crumpling into a fiery heap when its landing gear collapsed.

Twelve passengers and five crewmen, bound non-stop for Detroit on Flight 704, slid to safety down a canvas emergency chute as flames engulfed the right side of the four-engine airliner.

More than a dozen pieces of fire fighting equipment battled for nearly an hour before subduing gasoline-fed flames that all but burned away half of the 2.5 million dollar luxury airliner.

An Eastern spokesman said the plane might be a total loss. An investigation began immediately to determine the cause of the engine fire.

One of the passengers, 69-year-old Henry Fiedler, suffering from a year-old back injury, was taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital for observation, and Mrs. Helen Wallace, of Detroit, received minor burns sliding down the canvas chute.

Eleven of the passengers, however, were put on another Eastern flight to Detroit two hours after the spectacular 4:20 p.m. mishap.

Hero of the emergency landing was the plane's pilot, Capt. J. W. Rush, of 6200 SW 133rd St.

Rush, notified by the control tower at Miami International Airport that his right inboard engine was on fire when the plane was barely airborne, wheeled the big ship through a steep 180-degree left turn.

He set it down on a paralled runway in the opposite direction just a mile from the one he used to make his west-bound take-off.

The Eastern plane took off on the same runway and used the same flight path as a Braniff Airways DC7C which crashed into the Everglades last March 28, killing nine of the 24 persons on board.

The Braniff plane, like the Eastern Constellation, had a fire in the No. 3 Engine. But the Braniff pilot turned his plane to the right instead of the left to make his emergency return to the airport, then lost altitude and crashed.

The Civil Aeronautics Board last week blamed the Braniff pilot's failure to maintain altitude during the emergency for the crash.

Bright flames and thick black smoke streamed from the stricken Constellation's right wing and from under its belly as it landed.

His hydraulic brakes burned out and unable to reverse his propellars, Capt. Rush coasted the lumbering plane some 200 yards beyond the end of the runway.

There, just as it rolled to a halt on rock-stubbled ground, the right landing gear crumpled, tilting the airliner crazily onto its flaming wing.

While fire trucks spewed chemical foam onto the flames, passengers escaped from the left side of the airplane.

The passengers were on the ground three minutes after the plane was airborne at

Accused of 20 Holdups

Holding Family Hostage, Youth Gives Up to Police

GARDEN GROVE, Calif. —(AP)— Wounded and afraid, a teenager accused of more than 20 holdups surrendered meekly Saturday a few minutes after he entered a home here and demanded refuge at knife point.

The capture of 19-year-old Charles Averill climaxed an all-night, house-to-house search by 300 police officers.

Begging for mercy, Averill stumbled from the bathroom in the home of Robert Reines, pleading: "Don't shoot, don't shoot. I'm unarmed. Have some respect for my mother."

Reines, his wife and three young sons watched as a dozen armed men took Averill into custody.

Averill, of nearby Long Beach, gained entrance to the Reines home when six-year-old David Reines innocently admitted him at a rear door.

"He was blustery at first," said the father, relating that the young fugitive grabbed a butcher knife from the kitchen table after learning the family had no guns.

"But gradually he became more polite," Reines said. "The kid was obviously frightened out of his wits . . . He told us he had wounded a police officer and was afraid the police would kill him."

Police said Averill shot his way out of a trap in this Los Angeles suburb Friday night when he and an accomplice called at the home of a young girl friend. Acting on a tip, police were waiting. The pair had been sought for a week in connection with an Anaheim liquor store holdup.

But Averill spotted the officers as they entered the girl's house. Police said he fled, his gun blazing, but was wounded in the side. George Laughter, an Anaheim detective, suffered a superficial wound in the exchange of fire.

Averill rushed to a car driven by Joseph E. Armstrong, 20, of Long Beach, and they tried to escape, police said, but the car failed to make a turn and crashed into a curb.

Averill fled through a citrus grove but Armstrong was flushed from a nearby house and captured. Armstrong was carrying a rifle, but did not use it, the officers said.

Jets to Italy In 2 Jumps

UDINE, Italy—(AP)—Eighteen supersonic fighter planes completed a flight from America Saturday in two jumps, landing at Aviano Air Base near this northern Italian city.

The fighters — F100 Supersabres of the 356th Tactical Squadron — set off Tuesday from Myrtle Beach Air Force Base in South Carolina.

They were refueled by air-tankers over Bermuda and the Azores, but bad weather forced the planes down at an air-base in Morocco. The squadron took off from there Saturday morning and the planes landed at Aviano Air Base at two-minute intervals.

The first was piloted by Col. Francis Gabreski, famous fighter pilot who brought down 37 enemy planes during the Korean war.

D.C. Bandit Chickens Out

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A man stepped up to the ticket booth of a movie theater and handed the cashier this note: "Don't let me kill you."

Then, holding his hand in his pocket as if it clutched a gun, he said, "Give me the greenbacks."

The cashier, Mrs. Katherine S. McDonald, 56, looked at him for a moment, turned around, opened the booth's backdoor and calmly called to an usher: "There's a holdup going on."

The would-be robber dashed away.

Ike Declares U.S. Will Never Accept Khrushchev's Plan

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Eisenhower solemnly told Russia Saturday the U.S. never will accept Premier Nikita Khrushchev's plan to turn East Berlin over to the East German Reds May 27.

Eisenhower was reported to have given this notice during a 1¾-hour meeting with Deputy Soviet Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan.

The White House conference, climaxing Mikoyan's two-week visit to this country, ended with no sign of concession by either side on Berlin, Germany or disarmament.

Despite this, informed officials predicted a Big Four foreign ministers conference will be held sometime this spring before the date Russia has fixed for ending four-power Berlin rule.

The 63-year-old Mikoyan, relaxed and smiling, went immediately to the Soviet embassy. Presumably, he will draft a report to the Kremlin on his round of talks. First, however, he went for a drive in Washington's Rock Creek Park.

His morning meeting with Eisenhower capped 11½ hours of talks with administration leaders, four of them directly with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

In view of the continued East-West deadlock, Eisenhower was understood to be banking heavily on Mikoyan's personal insight into U.S. policy, gained by his talks and travel, to pave the way for what this government regards as a more reasonable attitude.

Authorities familiar with Mikoyan's talks said that despite his relatively mild language, he reaffirmed Russia's Berlin plan while disclaiming any thought it should be considered a peace or war ultimatum.

Eisenhower and Dulles were said to have met this by re-emphasizing that the U.S., with pledges of solid backing by its allies, will refuse to accept Soviet moves to scrap international agreements on Berlin's status.

Informants gave this point-by-point summary of the outcome of the confidential discussions with Mikoyan:

A SUMMIT MEETING — Neither side mentioned this, despite Mikoyan's advance public remarks urging a high-level conference without any formal agenda.

A BIG FOUR MEETING — No effort was made to set the time, place, or agenda. But U.S. authorities expressed confidence a foreign ministers meeting would be arranged.

DISARMAMENT — Dulles stressed there is an urgent American desire for an East-West ban on nuclear weapons explosions, provided adequate inspection is included. Eisenhower and Mikoyan agreed that modern armaments impose a crushing financial burden on governments.

GERMAN ELECTIONS — Mikoyan vigorously denounced the idea of free elections.

Sun-Shy Mikoyan Ditches Us

By ELVALEE SWIFT
Herald Staff Writer

Anastas I. Mikoyan, Russia's No. 2 man, abruptly canceled plans Saturday to visit Florida, reportedly because he feared too much sunshine.

An embassy spokesman in Washington said the Soviet Deputy Premier decided he might catch cold if he came here and then went directly back to Moscow's sub-zero winter.

Mikoyan was to be here Wednesday and Thursday after a fast look at Tampa and a tour of the citrus belt of Polk County.

Jubilant members of an anti-Communist refugee group, Guardians of Liberty, ditched plans for protest Miami demonstrations when they heard of Mikoyan's cancellation.

The group, made up mostly of Hungarians, was to meet the Kremlin leader dressed in black, driving cars draped in black and carrying crosses.

They also had fashioned a black coffin to present to Mikoyan.

Mikoyan's fears about balmy Florida weather were well founded, Miami weathermen said. If he arrived Wednesday, as scheduled, the cold snap would have been only a memory.

In Washington Saturday, temperatures skittered down to 10 degrees and the snow was turning to ice.

In announcing his change of plans, Mikoyan also said he will leave for Moscow three days earlier than he had planned. He will attend a Washington reception given by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov Monday and leave Tuesday.

Archbishop Joseph Patrick Hurley of the St. Augustine diocese had suggested mass bell-ringing in defiance of Mikoyan's visit. A diocese priest said Saturday he thought the plans had been abandoned.

Cold-Numbed East Busy Digging Out

NEW YORK —(AP)— Itense cold numbed much of the eastern half of the nation Saturday on the heels of crippling snowstorms in parts of the Midwest and East.

Emergency crews took advantage of clearing skies to dig through snowdrifts that halted auto production and closed schools in northwestern Indiana and stalled traffic in western New York state. Snow forced suspnesion of racing for the second straight day at Charles Town, W.Va.

Parts of Michigan were buried under four to 18 inches of snow.

A state of emergency was ended at noon Saturday in South Bend and Mishawaka, Ind. brisk winds had whipped an 18-inch snowfall into mountainous road-blocking drifts throughout the area.

Stores reopened with the end of emergency status but the Studebaker - Packard Corp. plant and University of Notre Dame remained closed. The main roads and streets were reopened after an all night battle with the drifts.

New York state had at least eight traffic deaths attributed to the storm. An infant died of exposure in Georgia when the mercury fell to 12 degrees at Athens.

Five-foot drifts stalled traffic on South Buffalo's Fuhrmann Boulevard along Lake Erie shoreline. Many cars remained bogged down overnight.

The snowfall was reported 21 inches on the level near Pulaski, N.Y., east of Lake Ontario.

Highways were slippery and travel was hazardous in parts of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Millinocket, Maine, and Tallahassee, Fla., had identical temperatures of 34 degrees Saturday afternoon.

But upper areas of the Midwest bore the brunt of the Arctic blasts. Bemidji, Minn., had an overnight low of 30 below and midday readings in northern Minnesota were 12 to 16 below zero. The subzero afternoon cold extended southward into Iowa.

Your Teeth Will Still Chatter

The tail-end of a crop-withering cold wave that gripped North Florida early Sunday will keep Miamians' teeth chattering at least until Monday.

Freezing weather was expected early Sunday as far south as the lower East Coast farmlands. Farmers in central and North Florida had smudge pots burning furiously in an effort to save their crops.

And the warmup that the Miami Weather Bureau predicted earlier has been postponed until after Monday morning, the forecasters said.

The Frost Warning Service predicted the mercury would nosedive sharply early Sunday, dropping even lower than the low 20s in several North Florida spots Saturday.

Although frost was forecast for most farming areas, the service said it would be mostly light because of dryness of the air.

The temperature was expected to skid to as low as 15 in pockets and mucklands.

A 50-year-old Miami telephone operator with a broken leg and a collection of doctor bills won my $800 jackpot last week.

SUNNY

Mrs. Mildred Eysmont, of 742 NW 52nd St., said she started working the Sunny Fortune puzzles when she broke her leg nine months ago.

"But I never thought I'd win," said the flabbergasted woman. "I'm so surprised I think I'll drop dead."

I talked Mrs. Eysmont out of any such drastic reaction and praised her for getting the word "NEAR" in last week's puzzle where so many others missed and put "NEAT."

Incidentally, that was the only word missed by Patty Motta, Miami; Edward Zwicker, North Miami, and H. F. Keller, Titusville.

I've been swamped with opinions about the new puzzle as compared to the old, and frankly, readers, so far it looks like a toss-up.

Some of you have complained the new one is too easy.

If that's the case, dig in. I'm willing to give you $300 if you solve my puzzle this week. It's on page 14C.

TWA Airliner Lands on Belly

KANSAS CITY, Mo. —(UPI) — A Trans World Airline Super Constellation screeched to a smooth and safe belly landing over a foam covered runway Saturday after the fate of the 33 persons aboard hung in the balance for more than five hours when the landing gear failed to function.

Sparks spewed out behind the huge craft as it glided along for 2,000 feet with fire trucks and ambulances racing alongside, but there was no fire and no one was injured.

Cries of "beautiful landing" and "thank God" rang out over the crowded Olathe Naval Air Station on the southwest edge of metropolitan Kansas City where the four-engined, three-tailed aircraft had been diverted.

The first passenger off said, "it couldn't have been a better landing if we had been on wheels."

All passengers paid tributes to Capt. Norman Schaeffer, a veteran TWA pilot from Kansas City who maintained control and kept panic from erupting during the ordeal.

Schaeffer's wife watched from her backyard as the plane circled. "I was scared at first — shaking and upset. But . . . Norm and I are both Christians and I knew that if it was the Lord's will, the whole plane would come down safely and if it wasn't it was supposed to be taken that way."

The passengers also told how Flight Engineer O. W. Mollohan of Ivydale, W. Va., and John Probey, 24, a mechanic for Capital Airlines who was a passenger, worked for almost the entire five hours to raise the left landing gear.

They poured coffee and water into the hydraulic system to build up pressure. If they had not succeeded, a much more dangerous landing attempt would have been in prospect with only one gear down.

It was the right gear that failed to lower as the Washington-Indianapolis-St. Louis-Kansas City airliner tried to make its regular landing at St. Louis.

When it failed to function, Capt. Schaeffer continued on to Kansas City to use up fuel and lessen the fire hazard while attempts were made to repair it.

He asked all women passengers to donate their lipstick and liquid cosmetics in an attempt to pressurize the hydraulic system on the right side but failed.

The plane had developed a leak in the hydraulic system and dimes and lipstick cases used in an attempt to stop it also failed.

The crew had been in continuous communications with mechanics on the ground who pored over blueprints to help find the trouble.

The passengers in the plane huddled over the wing section, considered the safest part, and braced and cushioned themselves with pillows.

A veteran Navy chief in charge of the control tower said he had witnessed more than a million landings and added that he had never seen a better one, "wheels up or down."

Airport Firemen Wash Down Blackened Wing of Wrecked Plane After Crash

4:21 p.m., an airline spokesman said.

"We took the quickest way down. We couldn't waste time," said the cool-headed Rush.

Co-pilot was R. P. Harkless. The other crewmen were R. E. Eshbach, flight engineer, and Stewardesses Pat Tharpe and Wanda Carr.

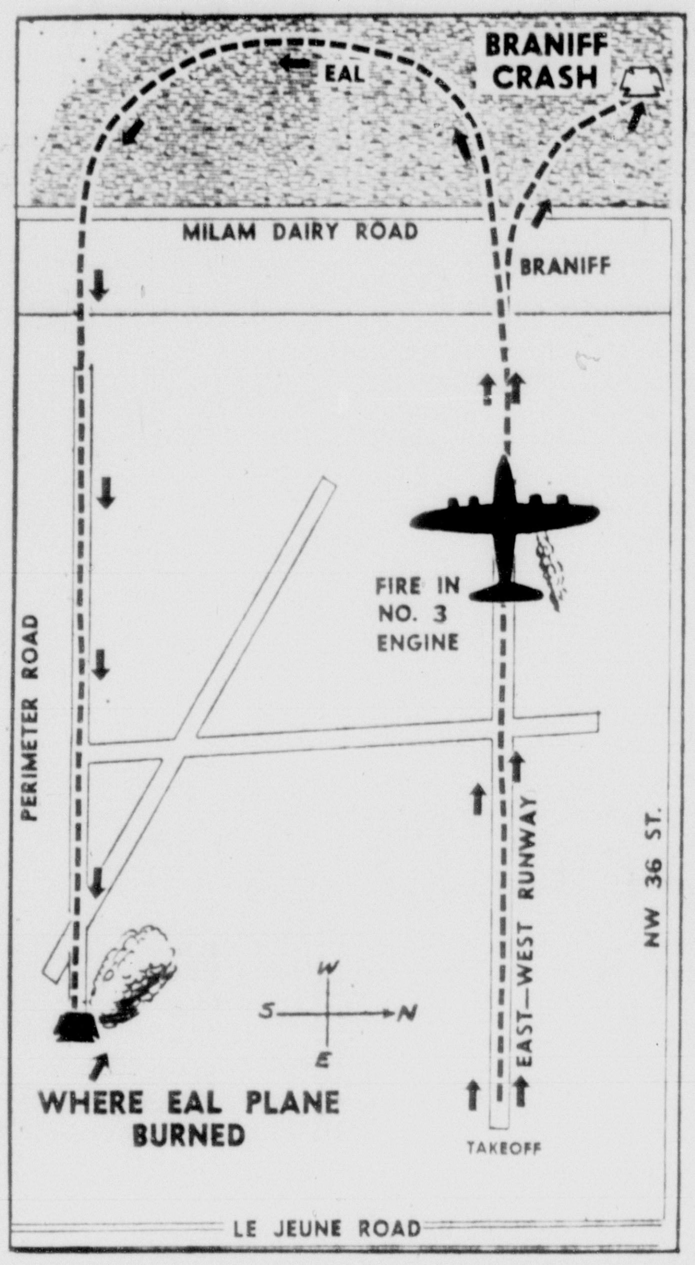
The Eastern plane was between 500 and 800 feet off the ground when Rush started his circle back to the airport, standing the plane on its left wing to keep the flames from the right side away from the cabin.

A control tower observor said Rush "didn't say much when he was coming in. I guess he was busy. But he told us to have the fire equipment ready."

Trucks from the Port Authority's fire station at the airport, Miami, Hialeah, Miami Springs and Dade County rushed to the scene of the flaming plane.

Some witnesses said there appeared to be a shortage of foam to douse the fire. They said when the flames were almost out, they suddenly broke out again.

But the Port Authority fire captain said "we didn't use all of the foam we had on hand."



U.S. Gets Warning From Fidel

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — Fidel Castro has warned the U.S. against attempting to use "cannon diplomacy" to halt the executions of Batistans. At the same time he is starting a campaign of pressure against the U.S. to "return the war criminals."

These attitudes were outlined as revolutionary officials discounted reports that former Dictator Fulgencio Batista had landed a counterattacking force, or was planning to do so, somewhere in Cuba.

Maj. Victor Borden, acting commander at La Cabana, the fortress across the bay from Havana, told newsmen such an attack from Batista's refuge in the Dominican Republic was improbable.

"When he had 55,000 troops he couldn't hurt us," said Borden. "What can he do with 10,000?"

He apparently was referring to a report from revolutionary military intelligence that Batista was trying to organize an invasion force of 10,000 men.

Borden said, however, that his chief at La Cabana, Maj. Ernesto Guevara, had departed for the central province of Las Villas because revolutionary units were somewhat disorganized. He declined to explain further.

It was announced that Maj. Eloy Guttierrez Menoyo, who commanded 4,000 to 5,000 men in spearhead fighting in Las Villas, had led his men back to the province from Havana for demoblization. There was speculation, however, that the move was a precaution against any Batista counterblow.

Japanese Drag Yank To Police

YOKOHAMA, Japan—(UPI)—Five irate Japanese citizens dragged an American soldier from a train and carted him to the police on charges of defiling a Japanese flag, authorities said.

SP-4 Cedric E. Nelson, 21, of Alexandria, Minn., was accused of draping a Japanese flag over a shelf aboard a passenger train and deliberately setting fire to it with a cigaret lighter.

An army spokesman said the Japanese planned to accuse Nelson of larceny and unlawful display and destruction of the flag.

Frondizi's U.S. Trip Slanted to Investors

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — (UPI) — President Arturo Frondizi said Saturday he will take a long list of projects to the U.S. today in hopes of attracting huge new amounts of U.S. government and private capital to Argentina.

The projects — involving waterworks, steel and oil production, transportation and agriculture — are regarded by the 50-year-old president as necessary to pull Argentina out of the economic shambles left by ousted Dictator Juan D. Peron.

Frondizi will meet with President Eisenhower Tuesday. He will be the first Argentine president to visit the U.S.

Aside from his talks with Eisenhower and other government officials, Frondizi will carry his campaign for investment in Argentina directly to businessmen and bankers in Chicago, Detroit and New York.

He said he was confident the 12-day trip and the talks would result in a "new era of mutual understanding and cooperation in all fields" between the U.S. and Argentina.

He said his meetings before his inauguration last February with the heads of government of Brazil, Chile, Uruguay and Peru already had proved invaluable in dealing with these states.

Frondizi made it plain that the main objective of the trip was to impress the U.S. with the soundness of his economic policies.

Chief of CIA Doubts A-Plane

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Allen W. Dulles, director of the super - secret Central Intelligence Agency, has told congressional leaders he does not believe the Soviet Union now has a flyable nuclear-powered plane, it was learned Saturday.

The CIA chief feels that the Russians are ahead of the U.S. in certain phases of missile development — notably in the range of intercontinental ballistic missiles. But he believes we also lead in some phases.

These, according to informed sources, were the highlights of a closed-door briefing Dulles gave a Senate armed services subcommittee Friday.

Pair Tell of Spree

Natural Cause Held in Death

By BILL BUNGE
Melbourne Bureau Chief

MELBOURNE—Two men, his companions on a drinking bout, Saturday admitted they had put Carl Hill, 43, West Virginia visitor, from their automobile near the spot where his body was found.

Hill's body was found beside the Flemming-Grande road in Micco, an unincorporated community south of Melbourne, about 7 a.m. Saturday. An autopsy revealed his death was due to natural causes.

Deputy sheriffs identified the pair as Paul Withrow, 23, Eau Gallie, and William Washington, 51, of Melbourne. Both had known Hill in West Virginia.

They told officers that Hill "was mean and started fighting" Friday night while the three were on a drinking bout. They said they put him out of their car near the home of a sister, hwere he had been visiting.

The sister lives about 500 yards from the spot where Hill's body was discovered. The two men told deputies they didn't want to "take Hill home in that condition."

But, they insisted, he was alive about 10 p.m. Friday, when they put him out of the auto.

Dr. Cyrus Warden, who performed an autopsy on Hill's body, said death was due to "overwhelming pneumonia, or a hemmorhage in an old tubercular cavity in a lung" and the man had not been strangled, as was first believed.

The physician also reported at an inquest Saturday that cuts and bruises on the body were inflicted after death. His report fixed the time of death as between 4 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Saturday.

A person dying from the causes of Hill's death would gasp violently for breath and thresh about, the doctor told the inquest, which was conducted by County Judge Virgil Conklin.

Hill's body was discovered about 7 a.m. Saturday by Jack Byar of Micco, a mechanic, on his way to work. The West Virginia man had been in Brevard County two weeks.

He had been visiting a sister, Mrs. Roy Webster, and a brother, William Hill, both of Micco.

D. G. Gardner and Jim Drawdy, Brevard County deputy sheriffs assigned to the investigation, told the coronor's jury there were no signs of a struggle, or of a person "threshing about" at the spot where the body was found.

The only fresh marks at the scene, they said, were tire marks and footprints. Sheriff James Dunn said investigators have the name of a person who saw Hill alive at midnight Friday.

At that time Hill was with an as yet unidentified person, the sheriff reported.

The body was clad in light work clothing and there was no wallet or identification papers in any of the pockets. Identification was made by the brother and sister.

They told investigators they had last seen their brother Thursday.

The inquest was adjourned until additional evidence on how the body reached the side of the road is discovered. The body is at Brownlie Funeral Home at Melbourne. Arrangements are incomplete.

Artist Has Listing In Who's Who

Herald Bureau

EAU GALLIE — Beatrice B. Werley, Eau Gallie artist and wife of Van G. Werley, real estate broker is listed in the first edition of "Who's Who of American Women," just released by A. N. Marquis Co., for her accomplishments in the art world.

Although well-known here for her water colors and portraitures, little is known of her more serious works in the medical art field.

She has pioneered in producing colored animated movies, showing surgical technics and procedures. This required many hours of exacting drawings to illustrate the various technics. Mrs. Werley did this work as staff artist at a Cleveland, Ohio, clinic.

These medical films have been recommended by the American College of Surgeons, and attracted the attention of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York when he was coordinator of Inter-American Affairs during World War II.

His office ordered copies of the films for distribution in Latin-American countries.

Besides being listed in Who's Who of American Women, Mrs. Werley has been included in Who's Who of American Artists for a number of years.

State Pay Raise Tied To Costs

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Budget Director Harry Smith said Saturday he will recommend "cost of living" pay raises, not in excess of three per cent, for most state employes.

But Smith said, some raises proposed by state agencies are out of the question in view of the financial pinch.

Smith's recommendations weigh heavily with the Cabinet Budget Commission in making recommendations to the Legislature.

The commission will get down to the budget balancing job Jan. 28, and it apparently is going to have to pare about $140,000,000 off proposed budgets to fit spending to income from present taxes.

The big increase in most budgets is salaries. Smith said he does not plan to recommend any cross-the-board general salary increases, but will consider each agency separately.

He'll recommend raises for the average employe of about two and a half to three per cent. The cost of living index, he said, is up about two and a half per cent per year.

Smith said he probably will suggest larger raises for some professional personnel.

Deadline Set For New Laws

MELBOURNE — The Brevard County legislative delegation announced Saturday the deadline for submitting local legislation for introduction during the 1959 session would be April 1.

Although other Florida counties already have deadlines on when special bills can be given to their representatives, this year marks the first time Brevard has had to have its bills in the hands of the delegation before the opening of the session.

Municipal and county governments must meet this deadline, except in the case of where a special act is needed to cover an unexpected situation, said Sen. Douglas Stenstrom of Sanford.

The estimated 60 pieces of local legislation for this county are to be turned over to Rep. James H. Pruitt of Eau Gallie.

Stenstrom and Pruitt ask that the local governments also have their advertisements of intent on the special acts published by March 1.

Industrialist To Be Speaker

MELBOURNE — "Making Your Assets Pay Dividends" is the topic of an address by George R. Dempster, Knoxville, Tenn. industrialist, at the January meeting of the Pan American Management Club Monday at the Rockledge Country Club.

A multi-millionaire, Dempster is president of one of the largest steel fabricating plants in Tennessee.

Agree on 10 Years for Hoax

Sheriffs Hedge on Bombers

ORLANDO —(AP)— Florida Sheriffs debated the proper punishment for bomb terrorists without reaching a decision at the closing session of their mid-winter conference.

In mapping a general legislative program, the Sheriffs were undecided whether the death sentence or only imprisonment should be provided in a proposed law to punish persons who terrorize communities with bombings.

They agreed sentences up to 10 years in prison are proper for persons who perpetrate bomb hoaxes.

Several other subjects were proposed and will be taken up by officials of the Florida Sheriffs Association, in detailing recommendations to the legislature.

For one, the Sheriffs want to complete the program of putting themselves on a salary and budget basis. Twelve of the state's 67 sheriffs still operate on the fee basis.

Other proposed laws would require doctors, nurses and hospitals to report treatment of any gunshot wound; prohibit giving false information about a crime; return primary elections to May; provide a copy of Motor Vehicle Registrations to the Sheriff of the county where issued, and require monthly reports by pawnbrokers.

The Sheriffs elected Ross Boyer of Sarasota County president; Dave Starr, Orange, second vice president; Don McLeod director of the Florida Sheriffs Bureau, secretary, and John Hall, Clay, treasurer.

Directors named were Emmett Shelby, Escambia; Roy Roberson, Jackson; W. P. Joyce, Leon; Walt Pellicer, Putnam; Pete Reddish, Bradford; L. O. Davis, St. Johns; Rodney Thursby, Volusia; Luther Hobby, Seminole; Sam Joyce, Indian River; E. O. Carlton, Hardee; John Kirk, Palm Beach, and John Spottswood, Monroe.

Hose Streams Play on the Flaming Commodore Hotel at Stuart

... 33-year-old hostelry was a funeral pyre for two early Saturday

Early Morning Stuart Fire Fatal to Two Hotel Guests

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

STUART — Two men burned to death Saturday in a predawn hotel fire apparently caused by an ex-jockey smoking in bed.

Nine other persons, including the owner of the Hotel Commodore, ran from the flaming structure in their night clothes in 32-degree weather, only minutes before the roof of the 33-year-old structure collapsed.

One of the victims was identified as Donald A. Brice, 51, of Carbondale, Pa., an exercise boy at a horse training track here. He was a former jockey and was reported to have been a turf star of 30 years ago.

Smoke was noticed first boiling from a window in Brice's room. He jumped from the second floor window but his body already was a flaming torch. He apparently was dead by the time he hit the ground.

The other fire victim was identified as George W. Jackson, 31, of Cleveland, Ohio, the hotel bartender. He is survived by his wife, Margaret, a son and three daughters, all of Cleveland, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rupert F. Jackson of Jensen Beach.

Ernest Lee Daugherty, who came here Dec. 29 from Dublin, N.C., said a hotel employe came running down the corridor screaming that the hotel was on fire.

"I grabbed what clothes I could and got out," Daugherty said.

The hotel was built in this east coast city 100 miles north of Miami in 1926. The Miami Marlins baseball club of the International League trained here in 1957.

Three firemen, James Holt, Johnny Moore and Adolph DeLoach, were overcome by smoke and exhaustion. They were hospitalized for treatment.

Paul R. Bailey, 24, of Atlanta, who lived in the nearby St. Lucie Hotel, was hospitalized with shock after seeing Brice's body covered with flames hurtle from a second story window and land at his feet.

Bailey said the "human torch" only missed him by inches.

Only a few hours earlier, Bailey and his roommate, George Johnson, jerked Mrs. E. L. Tressler from the path of a freight train at a crossing in Rio, between Stuart and Jensen Beach. The train missed them "by three inches," an officer said.

Fire Chief Milton Griffin said Brice evidently fell asleep while smoking.

Damage was estimated at $100,000 by Griffin. The Martin County fire department, Stuart units and equipment from Salerno, Jensen Beach, Rio, Palm City, Jupiter Island and Fort Pierce fought the fire.

Man Held For Vero Blackmail

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — A 23-year-old New Yorker was held in the Palm Beach County jail Saturday in lieu of $10,000 bond on charges of blackmailing a Vero Beach school teacher.

U.S. Commissioner George Pink, before whom the suspect was arraigned, identified him as Raymond George Lanthier. He was arrested by postal inspectors in Vero Beach Friday when he picked up an envelope containing $100 that was taped to a door at the Chamber of Commerce building.

Commissioner Pink said Lanthier was charged with writing and placing a threatening letter in the mails to Walter Riddle, a faculty member at Vero Beach High school on Tuesday.

The letter, Pink said, demanded $100 in return for not revealing certain purported defamatory and scurrilious information bearing on the character and reputation of Walter Riddle Jr.

Pink said Lanthier did not know Riddle and apparently had picked his name at random.

On Jan. 16, Pink said, the suspect visited the specified spot and picked up an envelope, prepared by the victim, which contained the money demanded.

The postal inspectors moved into the case and seized Lanthier when the transaction was completed, the commissioner said.

Upon receipt of the letter Wednesday Riddle immediately reported it to school officials, who notified local police and the U.S. Postal Inspection Service, Chief Wallace Gossett of Vero Beach said.

Options Allowed Counties

Legislature May Balk at Reforms

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — A plan for the most complete revision of Florida's judicial system since the present state constitution was drawn up in 1885 was adopted Saturday by the State Judicial Council.

A product of years of work by the 17-member group of laymen and lawyers, the plan will be put before the 1959 Legislature as a proposed constitutional amendment and incorporated in several proposed laws.

The heart of the plan is the consolidation of all trial courts into a single system, made up of three tiers — Circuit Courts, County Courts and Magistrate Courts.

Counties of 100,000 or more population would have the option of combining the County Court, or parts of it, with their Circuit Courts.

Other main parts of the plan would:

PLACE ALL judges on salary and abolish the fee systems on which many now operate.

REWRITE the laws on jurors and witnesses and other laymen in the courts. Fees for jurors and witnesses would be raised to $10 a day and jury commissions would be established in all counties with population of 25,000 or more.

DESIGNATE the state attorney as chief prosecutor in all courts and authorize him to appoint his own assistants now appointed by the governor, and designate the Sheriff as the chief enforcement officer for all courts, abolishing the office of constable.

LAY DOWN minimum procedural rules for administrative boards and agencies having quasi-judicial powers to insure the right of due process of law for those appearing before them.

REMOVE the constitutional limitation of 16 judicial circuits but require any new circuit to have at least 100,000 persons.

AUTHORIZE one Circuit Judge for every 50,000 population or major fraction, as at present, but allow the Legislature to create additional circuit judgeships, or abolish them, upon the showing of a "permanent need."

REMOVE the constitutional limitation of three District Courts of Appeal of three judges each, allowing more districts and more judgeships if needed.

AUTHORIZE cities to operate municipal courts, but permit these to be combined with magistrate courts, if the city wishes.

Many features of the council's plan are expected to be controversial in the Legislature. Council Member W. A. Shands, retiring President of the Senate, commented that it would be hard to sell the Legislature on the need for removing restrictions on the number of Appellate Court districts and judges. He voted against that feature of the revision plan.

The council chairman, Supreme Court Justice Stephen C. O'Connell of Fort Lauderdale, says the council's aim is to eliminate the hodgepodge of existing trial courts for a single efficient system. The State Supreme Court would administer the three-court system.

Arthur Lundeen, council executive director, said special trial courts had been set up to meet needs when Florida began growing rapidly.

The legislature turned down the same proposal in authorizing a constitutional amendment to create the Appellate Courts in the 1955 session.

Some state attorneys, circuit judges and county judges have expressed opposition to parts of the plan.

Enforcement, Publicity Cut Iowa Traffic Deaths

DES MOINES —(AP)— Massive doses of law enforcement and publicity, prescribed by Iowa's traffic doctors, saved 95 lives on the streets and highways of this state last year.

Let's Stop Killing Ourselves

They consider their prescription only partly successful — but they believe they've found a formula for a more potent medicine.

The traffic toll in Iowa was 595 last year as against 690 in 1957 — a fall of about 17 per cent. That was the largest reduction in the midwest and one of the biggest in the nation.

Besides saving lives, it has sharply trimmed the economic losses of Iowans. Many auto insurance companies have cut their rates for Iowa.

The state's chief traffic diagnostician, state safety commissioner Russell Brown, credits these factors for most of the decrease:

1—A "point system" under which the safety department assessed varying numbers of points against persons convicted of traffic violations. When a motorist accumulated 10 points, his license was suspended.

2—Use of radar speed detectors on the highways — the first time radar had been used for traffic control in Iowa.

3—"Excellent cooperation" of newspapers, radio and television stations and the wire services in publicizing traffic problems and the activities of law enforcement officers.

4—Unrelenting efforts by the State Highway Patrol, county sheriff's officers and city police to enforce the traffic laws.

None of these is new, Brown admits, but they added up to a fairly effective program for Iowa.

There has been no favoritism shown in operation of the point system. Brown himself lost five points when he was caught exceeding the speed limit in Des Moines. Atty. Gen. Norman Erbe, Maj. Gen. Fred C. Tandy, adjutant general of Iowa and state comptroller Glenn Sarsfield also have points on their records.

But Iowa can't afford to rest on its laurels, Brown said. If further gains are to be made, new ingredients must be added to the medicine.

"You can't concentrate on just one thing in traffic enforcement," he said. "That is like holding a tight bandage over one cut while your life blood spurts out another wound that you can't even reach."

In Iowa, that second wound is the 90,000 miles of rural roads. While lives were being saved last year on primary highways and city streets, deaths on secondary roads took a jump.

Brown has asked the legislature to beef up the State Highway Patrol so it can patrol the secondary roads. He says the patrol needs at least 150 more men. It now has 250, excluding driver license examiners, and that means only about 80 men — fewer than one per county — can be on the road at any one time.

He also wants a law requiring completion of a state-approved driver education course before a person under 18 years old can be licensed. Under present law 16-year-olds are eligible for a license.

Blast Kills 3 Workmen

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— Three workmen were killed Saturday in an explosion at the nearby Duquesne works of U.S. Steel Corp.

A company spokesman identified the victims as Albert Chorey, 34, of Port Vue; Homer W. Maley, 57, of Duquesne, and Petra Jenca, 59, of Duquesne.

The victims were working in a pig machine building of the blast furnance department.

A company spokesman said a ladle of molten iron apparently upset, touching off an explosion of some type.

The blast apparently killed the three men instantly. Nobody else was in the building and there were no witnesses.

All Latin America Suffers Over Cuba

Prejudices vs. the Facts

For many years a lot of people in the U.S. have labored under the idea that Latin America is an unstable entity, with revolutions and counter-revolutions liable to burst forth at the drop of a sombrero.

The recent overthrow of the Batista government in Cuba has lent a lot of strength to the arguments of these people.

But generalizations in the political field are just as dangerous as they are in any other field and this article does a lot to explode many of our prejudices.

By WILLIAM G. GAUDET
Special To The Herald

There is one unfortunate aspect attached to the Cuban revolution that only time and increased knowledge of Latin America can overcome.

GAUDET

That unfortunate aspect is that many persons in the U.S. not only feel, but are expressing the opinion that the Cuban situation is proof that all of the various American republics are unstable and an investment, at the private enterprise level, is a risky and dangerous business.

Unquestionably the Cuban situation, despite the apparent success of Fidel Castro and his followers, remains fluid and does not represent the finest climate, at this moment, for an investment.

But the thinking applies not only to Cuba but to Ecuador, to Mexico, to Central America, and to deep South American countries such as Chile, Argentina and Brazil.

Probelm stems from the fact that all of the 170 million Latin Americans, living in their respective countries, are considered by North Americans as a single amorphous mass, grouped together as a single political, industrial, geographic, cultural entity.

On this basis of thinking then, when the political situation is shaky in Cuba, then all of the countries are facing political crises. Nothing could be more apart from the truth.

Actually the political record, based on revolutions as the criteria, has not been bad when the immensity of the area and time are considered. Currently the Cuban situation is being held up as an example of how Latin American countries change presidents, but during the past two years consider this record:

MEXICO: Adolfo Lopez Mateos was elected preisent to succeed Adolfo Ruiz Cortinez without any significant difficulties.

COSTA RICA: Mario Echandi was elected president of Costa Rica despite the opposition of the government party then in power under Jose (Pepe) Figueres.

GUATEMALA: Gen. Manuel Ydigoras Fuentes was elected president, also despite the opposition of the government party which had been founded by the late Carlos Castillo Armas.

VENEZUELA: Romulo Betancourt was elected president of Venezuela despite opposition from various groups, including the Venezuela army faction.

ARGENTINA: Arturo Frondizi, despite the fears of many who were in government position, was elected president.

In view of the outstanding record made by the above countries, the Cuban blow-off is a distinct setback for those who have been trying to sell the Latin American countries as an area in which to work, to trade, to invest and to visit as a tourist.

Even though it might be ignorance on the part of North Americans to judge all of the Americas by the single action of a single country, there can be no argument with the basic belief of the North American that regardless of the motivation and the justice thereof, the bullet can never replace the ballot.

The series of executions which have taken place since the success of Castro and his followers has not helped ease the feeling of concern. Some advance the theory that the mass executions will ever more act as a deterrent to anyone who would advocate corruption in government, or dictatorship. Again, only time can tell. But even now the price is high.

Rail Strike Cripples Guatemala

GUATEMALA —(AP)— A strike by 5,000 rail workers Saturday paralyzed operations on the International Railways of Central America.

The American-owned line is the only rail link with the Atlantic coast port of Puerto Barrios, which handles the bulk of Guatemala's imports and exports. It also links the Atlantic coast with neighboring El Salvador and is the only Guatemalan rail line to the Mexican border.

Labor union leaders said they called the strike because management has refused to meet wage and other demands made nearly a year ago.

The union asked wage increases ranging from five to 50 per cent according to wage classification, severance pay for workers with 30 years or more of tenure, a pension plan, and improved medical and commissary service.

Tanks, Tear Gas Rout Strikers

BUENOS AIRES —(AP)— Police used tanks and tear gas to rout about 9,000 workers on a sitdown strike at the government-owned meat-packing plant.

The workers barricaded themselves in the plant Thursday to protest a government decision to turn the business over to private operators.

Aid Recipients

VIENNA —(AP)— The International Atomic Energy Agency discloses it will give scientific aid to Brazil, Pakistan and Thailand as part of its technical assistance program for 1959.

Don't Judge Castro Yet, Wait and See--Smathers

By DAVID KRASLOW
Herald Staff Writer

WASHINGTON — Sen. George Smathers of Florida said Saturday it is "still too early for final judgment" of Fidel Castro and urged that the problem of Cuban-U.S. relations be left in the hands of the State Department.

SMATHERS

"Let us, for the time being at least, stop challenging and disparaging the new regime," Smathers said.

And in a broadside at his colleagues in Congress who have reacted violently to the executions, Smathers said:

"These belligerent assertions and imprecations from the safety of our desks and chambers don't make it easier for those poor Cubans caught in the cross-fire of changing governments."

Smathers said "a continuation of the preemptory executions of those who disagree with Castro would lead to the inevitable conclusion that the Cuban people have escaped from one form of dictatorship only to find themselves under a more virulent brand.

"The American people love the Cubans and suffer with them in this hour of torment. We would all like to help them. But what Solomon is there who knows the answer at this moment?

In view of the fact that some already went overboard too hastily on one side, would it not appear most sensible for us all to restrain ourselves, our statements, our judgments, until the picture gets a bit more clear?"

Smathers, long a leading voice in Congress on Latin American affairs, said he believes the State Department has "done a good job under extremely trying circumstances.

"They properly did not effusively clutch or attach us to the uncertain future of Castro. They have learned, as we all should have, that all dictators who come to power do so shouting 'freedom for the people' and 'democracy for all.'

Surely one wo so shouts has not proved thereby that he is a George Washington or a Simon Bolivar."

Smathers said he has closely followed Castro since he first heard of him in the revolt at Bogota, Colombia, in 1948.

"I have heard enough about him to cause me to reserve judgment on him," Smathers said. "There can be no question of his courage, nor love of his country.

"But there likewise can be no question of his youth, his inexperience, and the dubious reputations of some of his past associates.

Answers to Last Week's Puzzle

Across

1—An indulgent upbringing sometimes makes a youth INSOLENT (Indolent). — Such upbringing has a softening rather than a hardening influence; sometimes is too restrained with INDOLENT, lazy. INSOLENT, impertinent, is realistic; recall, it's only sometimes.

5—Our actions are often influenced by the wishes of one who is DEAD (Dear). — They're usually, if not always, influenced by one who is DEAR to us. Instances of being influenced by one who is DEAD are definitely fewer.

6—His having few possessions often tends to make a man NEAR (Neat). —The double qualification of often tends points to NEAR, stingy, because of his tendency to guard jealously the few possessions he has. If he is not NEAT by nature, the number of his possessions won't change his habits.

7—A person who apparently WAITS for nothing is often unduly self-centered (Wants). — WAITS, as used, suggests undue impatience and implies a lack of consideration for others. WANTS is weak because, with so much want in the world he's more than merely often unduly self-centered with all that he possesses if he wants for nothing.

9—Many soft hearted people object to wild animals being put in a CAGE for show (Rage). — To put them in a RAGE it's necessary to torment them. One does not have to be softhearted to protest. That CAGE fits better with the mildness of many soft hearted people; putting them in a cage is much less cruel.

10—As much as we can, most of us try to SHARE the feelings of those we love (Spare).—The weakness of SPARE is that it might not be in their best interests to SPARE their feelings. SHARE makes a matter-of-fact statement.

12—We seldom feel much pity for a person who gets SOCK through his own fault (Sack).—Not SACK because of seldom; the fault might be excusable; it might be just a temporary lapse that caused him to get fired. A SOCK, blow, rarely causes so much suffering. Recall, it was his fault.

13—Jealousy often makes a woman SULKY (Silky).—In some cases she might gain her ends by letting it be known that she is jealous so she's not so frequently as often likely to try to conceal it, as would be the case with SILKY, soft, smooth in action or manner. That it often makes her SULKY is more in character.

Down

1—Alas! many of us have high IDEAS which we do nothing to realize (Ideal).—Not IDEAL, a conception of something in perfect form. We're all working to some degree toward a goal. IDEAS doesn't go so far as ideal; while a few of us do something about those ideas, many of us just let the opportunity slip.

2—To help catch a criminal police often spread NEWS widely (Nets). —NEWS fits well with often. NETS is weak, because it implies that a lot is known about the particular criminal. That might not be correct.

3—It's seldom worthwhile to ENGAGE a quarrelsome fellow (Enrage).—Not ENRAGE; it implies that it's usually better to ignore or appease him! While a quarrelsome fellow might be competent enough, it's seldom worthwhile to ENGAGE, hire, him because of the strife he might cause.

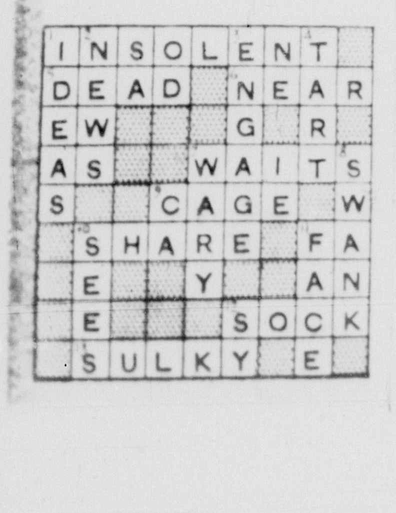
4—Self-consciousness sometimes makes a highly-strung person TART (Taut). — It's usually rather than merely sometimes that self-consciousness makes him TAUT. Sometimes is better with TART, acid, cutting, biting.

7—Children are sometimes embarrassingly WARY with strangers (Warm). — Parents will agree they're at least often embarrassingly WARM with strangers, particularly on trains and buses; their conversation is so uninhibited. Yet when we want them to be friendly they are sometimes embarrassingly WARY or cautious.

8—The average youngster is inclined to resent SWANK from one of his own age (Spank).—He'd definitely resent a SPANK from another youngster of his own age. SWANK, swaggering or showing off, is better; the swanking need not necessarily humiliate him.

10—As a rule, a shrewd boss is sorry when he SEES fellow-employes at odds with each other (Sets).—He's virtually always sorry when he SETS them at odds with each other; when he causes the quarrel. He's shrewd; it would have been unintentional. He's not to blame when he merely SEES them at odds.

11—We're apt to be resentful toward a person who causes us to lose FACE (Race).—We're not more than apt to be resentful toward a person who causes us to lose FACE, because he might do so through no fault of his own. RACE is weak; the direct cause might be the winner, and he might win fairly.



Recession Effect To Be Discussed

They're 'Riding It Out' in Little Rock

Little Rock Today

Despite the closing of four public high schools in Little Rock, Ark., four out of five of the city's 3,300 high school students are continuing their studies.

Some are attending hastily-opened private schools, some take correspondence courses and some take long bus rides to out-of-town schools.

Despite these hardships, there still has not been any massive public resistance to the closing of the schools by Gov. Orval Faubus last September rather than integrate as ordered by federal courts.

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)— This is high school education in Little Rock today:

Hastily - opened private schools. Correspondence courses. Or long bus rides to out-of-town schools.

Despite these handicaps to learning, four out of five of Little Rock's 3,300 high school students are continuing their studies.

A few, finding it more profitable to take jobs, have given up their studies completely. Another small number considers the free time a lark.

All attended Little Rock's four public high schools which Gov. Orval Faubus closed last September rather than integrate as ordered by federal courts.

A week ago a U.S. district judge in Little Rock laid down a 30 - day deadline for the school board to come up with a plan for integrating the closed high schools in the city.

Their closed schools apparently have brought home the importance of education. But have their attitudes changed on integration, in the face of these hardships?

Here are some representative comments:

Beverly Burks, a sophomore in private and segregated Raney High School, which was opened by the Little Rock Private School Corp., says:

"I'll never go back to Central as long as Raney is open."

She attended Central High School last year, which then had eight Negro students.

"It (Raney) is smaller, more friendly. You get to know everybody. And most everybody out there is in agreement on integration—we don't want it."

Billy Owen, 16, also attended Central High last year. But this year, along with 50 other students, he rides a chartered bus daily to Hazen High School, 50 miles from Little Rock.

He has to leave home at 6:30 a.m. and doesn't return until 5 p.m. "It's worth it, though," he says. "An education is worth anything you have to go through to get it."

Billy says he would not return to Central this year, even if it were reopened. He intends to go to Hazen next year "if they'll let me."

Students who criticize their new schools or the closing of the old ones, refuse to permit use of their names. One of these is a 16-year-old Negro girl, a sophomore, who says:

"I don't think it's fair. I was not involved in this controversy. I was very happy at Horace Mann (the Negro high school) and wanted to stay there. I don't think it's right that we should suffer for what others have done."

Another, a 14-year-old white girl who would have been a sophomore at Central this year, says:

"The way I see it, I'm being deprived of my constitutional right to attend public school. I wish they'd get this argument settled so kids could plan their futures."

Neither girl is enrolled in any school. Each is studying at home without any hope of receiving credit for her work.

Gayle Manor, a 17-year-old senior, also is remaining out of school.

"I'm missing one of the most precious things in life, my senior year in high school," she says. "But I'm resigned to it. I have enough credits and am taking a correspondence course so I can enter the University of Arkansas this summer."

Gayle says she would prefer to have Central open, even if it were integrated.

John Thomas, 18, also would be a senior at Central, but he does not plan to return to school at all.

"I'd have gone if the public schools were open," he says. "But I plan to become a carpenter, and I've already begun my apprenticeship, a year earlier than I would have.

"I don't think this has hurt me much, and I'll get to be a journeyman just that much sooner."

But all except those who gave up their studies completely have learned "just how valuable education is," says W. C. Brashears, who came out of retirement to head the Little Rock Private School Corp.'s Raney High.

In most cases, he says, interest and application by the teenagers will make up most of the educational deficit they face.

Of his own school, Brashears explains: "It is not the hand-fed education they're used to, but those students who really want to learn have the opportunity to do so."

Even before the Faubus-supported Raney High School was established with money raised in public drives, a Baptist high school and several smaller church - supported academies began operating. The University of Arkansas offered correspondence courses and flocks of students moved to other schools.

Now 830 are enrolled at Raney, 350 at Baptist, 150 in other church schools, 1,000 in public education outside of Little Rock and 400 are taking correspondence courses. This means that all but about 600 students have found their way to some type of education.

The 600 remaining are divided almost evenly between white and Negro. The total Negro enrollment before the integration struggle was 750.

The former public high school teachers, meanwhile, are being paid for a brief daily muster at the closed school buildings. They remain under federal injunction not to assist the private, segregated institutions as long as they remain on the Little Rock school district payroll.

While most students have found a way to continue studies, they have met only the first phase of their problem. For those who want to go to college there remains the question of whether their credits will be accepted at most colleges and universities.

Those attending classes have been forced to augment classroom instruction with correspondence courses and tutoring to prepare for rigorous college entrance exams.

"I don't doubt there will be a lot of students who will be unable to qualify for college," says one school official who asks that his name not be used. "By this I mean students with the funds and the inclination to go to college who could get in with an acceptable diploma but who never will be able to pass an entrance exam."

The private schools offer only the basic courses — English, mathematics, science, history—not Latin and other languages which colleges also like on high school transcripts. The Raney school, only one of the private institutions being set up as a permanent facility, plans to offer college preparatory courses, but they are a year away.

"I don't apologize for this school," Brashears says. "I think we've made marvelous progress in the eight weeks we've been open. And someday we'll be a school any student would be proud of. But you can't do it in eight weeks. I've opened new schools before, when the groundwork was well laid in advance, and it still took time to get things operating smoothly."

Retired Persons Spark The Boom

By BILL BUNGE
Melbourne Bureau Chief

MELBOURNE—It's been cheaper for retirees and rich folks to live in Florida for the last quarter of a century than anywhere else. And this situation is one of the major reasons why the state has had a population boom.

In fact, Florida's population has mushroomed to the point where the state is finding itself in the position of being unable to raise the finances to keep pace with the influx of people, says State Sen. Douglas Stenstrom, who represents Brevard and Seminole Counties.

The senator said the rush to Florida was started in the early 1930's, when "a senator in the northwestern section of the state wondered how retired people could be brought here.

"He came up with the successful idea of homestead exemption, and after the retired began to move in," Stenstrom recalled, "they began to wonder how the rich could be lured to Florida."

This question was answered with abolishment of the inheritance tax law — "making it cheaper to die in Florida than in most other states," Stenstrom commented.

Northern people of means started to establish residence in Florida during the winter season and then change their wills to read: "John Doe of Brevard County, Fla." This way their heirs escaped paying state inheritance tax.

However, Sen. Stenstrom said this growth has put a terrific drain on state finances, making it a typical example of what is happening to others who have called more and more on the federal government for help.

Stenstrom said Florida and other states are gradually reaching the limit of their taxing powers.

The lawmaker pointed out that, with every dollar of federal aid, it "probably can be assumed federal government influence in the state increases" another notch.

Stenstrom said the federal government one day could "tell us where to build our roads, or at least have much to do with how road funds are spent."

He also sees greater federal influence on the Florida school system, because the government continues to pour increased sums into new educational facilities to help the state meet tremendous enrollment demands.

Firemen Battle Pre-Dawn Blaze in Hotel Commodore at Stuart

. . . two persons died and nine others fled into 32-degree weather in night clothes

Guests Tell How They Fled As Flames Destroyed Hotel

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

STUART — How they fled from the flaming Commodore Hotel here early Saturday, after being awakened by smoke, or the fire sirens, was told by those who had been guests in the hotel.

Most were shaken by their narrow escape and by the news that two others had perished in the $100,000 blaze. Many lost virtually all of their baggage and personal belongings in the fire.

The fire was first seen by Homer Hudson of the Florida Power and Light Co., who with Conservation Officer Boots Byrd was driving past the hotel shortly after 4 a.m.

* * *

Sounded Siren

Hudson went to the fire station, only 20 feet from the hotel and sounded the siren. He then rushed into the hotel, but was turned back by the dense smoke.

At the sound of the siren, Paul Bailey, of Atlanta, Ga., who had a room on the third floor of the St. Lucie Hotel, about 100 yards south of the Commodore, awoke and noticed a glow in his window. "I saw smoke pouring from the room occupied by Daniel Brice," Bailey said.

"I was so nervous, following the near brush of death we had had earlier, that I couldn't sleep. When I saw the glow, and smoke, I ran downstairs to tell the night watchman so he could call the fire department.

"I had forgotten I wasn't dressed. I ran back upstairs, put on my pants and called my roommate, George Johnson.

* * *

Ran To Scene

"As I came back downstairs, I noticed Police Chief Sam Harless, who lives at the St. Lucie, was on his way downstairs.

"I rushed out the front door and down the alley toward the Commodore, where I had seen the fire through the second floor window . . . Just as I got below the window, a flaming figure came flying down and fell at my feet.

"It was a man, dressed in a robe and pajamas. He was burning all over. He made no sound. It was just an awful loud thump when his body hit the ground. I stood there stunned . . . Don't know exactly how I got back to the hotel. It was awful."

Bailey told how death brushed him just a few hours previously.

* * *

A Close Call

"Johnson and I decided to go to Jensen Beach to the bowling alleys. As we neared the Florida East Coach Railroad tracks on A1A near Rio the warning lights flashed on. A car directly in front of us slowed, stopped and then started across the tracks . . . just then the gates came down and the car was trapped.

"A woman jumped out and tried to push the car off the tracks . . . we ran to her aid and we saw the train coming. We grabbed the woman, (Mrs. Tressler of Jensen Beach) and pulled her from the track just as the train went by.

"The train hit the car and carried it along the tracks. We were missed by inches."

* * *

Tried Rescue

Two employes of the Commodore, Robert King, 23, of Scottdale, Pa., and Gene Panipinto, 23 of Rochester, N.Y., were apparently the last men to see the second fire victim, George Jackson.

"We had gone to the Stuart Hotel for coffee after the Commodore bar closed, and returned to our rooms," Panipinto said. "I woke up smelling smoke.

"I woke up Robert King and we pulled our pants on and ran out of our door into the hallway. It was filled with smoke. Robert and I shouted the hotel was on fire and got everyone awake and out of their rooms.

"We went toward the stairs and to room No. 1, where George Jackson was. He was in the doorway but pulled back when we tried to get him out . . . he dashed back in the room . . . by this time we were all running down the stairs . . . we couldn't see a thing. When we got out front we saw that Jackson was not with us.

* * *

Fell Nearby

"We tried to go back in . . . but by this time the stairs were in flames."

"I got a ladder and put it up by Jackson's window and started up," King said. Just then I saw a man hurtling down several feet from me. He was on fire. I kept climbing up the ladder and broke in the window.

"The room was filled with smoke and I couldn't see a thing. I couldn't find Jackson . . . So I crawled out of the window and down the ladder."

Mrs. Dorothea Routs, executive secretary of the Red Cross chapter here purchased clothing for the two. They had been here three weeks, and this was the second loss of their clothes. Just before leaving Pennsylvania for Florida their car was broken into and all their clothing stolen.

* * *

Nine In Hotel

Although hotel records were burned it has been established Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Harris; the victims, Jackson and Brice; King, Panipinto, Robert C. Schroth, Kenneth Johnson and Earl L. Stroud of Hampton, Va., were in the hotel at the time of the fire.

Whether there were more victims in the fire cannot be determined until the debris is cleared.

Brice was in room 27, and it was from his room the fire was first seen. His legs and right arm were charred, leading to the belief he was overcome with smoke while smoking in bed.

* * *

Others Aroused

Residents of the St. Lucie Hotel, managed by Mr. and Mrs. John M. Davis routed their 20 guests from bed when they spotted the fire. Mrs. Kathleen Peck and her two daughters, Mary and Susan, left their home, a few feet from the Commodore. Guests at Resthaven, a home for the aged, were taken from their quarters. The hotel was separated from the City Hall and fire station by a narrow alley.

Jailor Henry Hoyt tentatively identified Brice. A cash bond receipt paper was found on him, with the name Daniel Brice. A check at the sheriff's office indicated Brice was arrested Jan. 10 for drunkenness, and released from jail Jan. 15.

* * *

All For Blaze

Water supply was cut off in the city before 9 a.m. so water would be available to fight the fire. Pumpers also drew from the St. Lucie River.

One car, owned by Gustin Aubin was found, covered with wreckage, next to the hotel.

Brice's body could not be recovered for hours after he fell or jumped to his death. It was covered with wreckage from a wall that caved after his body was seen.

The Salerno Fire Department Auxiliary and the Rio Civic Club served coffee and food to the fire fighters during the long battle with the blaze. Clothing was supplied the guests of the burned hotel by the Martin County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Most of the Commodore guests lost all of their clothing and personal baggage in the blaze. Few were able to save their luggage.

Permit For Bulkhead Sought in Martin

STUART — Two applications have been made to the Department of the Army, U.S. engineers in Jacksonville, for permits to construct a bulkhead and pier in Martin county waters.

No public hearings will be held on the proposed projects.

J. G. DuPuis, Jr., of 6000 NW 32nd Ave., Miami, has applied for a permit to construct a pier and to place two fender piles in the St. Lucie Canal on the southerly shore, opposite the USE station, about three miles northeast of Port Mayaca.

The proposed pier will be eight feet wide, extending into the waterway 50 feet from the shoreline, and terminating in an irregular shaped-T-head eight feet wide and 28 feet long.

It is also proposed to place two fender piles a short distance channelward from each channelward corner of the T-head.

The second permit is requested by Nick Spensieri of Jupiter.

Spensieri proposed to construct a bulkhead and to dredge and fill, in the intracoastal waterway, about two miles north of the bridge to Jupiter Island.

Frozen Orange Juice Sales Gain

LAKELAND — (UPI) — Consumer purchases of frozen orange concentrate passed the one-million mark last week for the first time in 10 months, the Florida Citrus Commission reported.

The consumers purchased 1,022,000 gallons of concentrate at a price of almost five cents per six-ounce can more than a year ago, according to a report furnished by Market Research Corporation of America.

But season purchases so far this year are down 31 per cent from last year.

Stuart Asks 4-Laning Status

STUART — The Stuart Chamber of Commerce board will ask that immediate clarification be made on the status of plans for four laning U. S. 1 through Stuart by the Martin County Commission and the State Road Department.

The board also received a report from the projects committee on planning and zoning, roads and highways, directional signs, beautification and industrial development.

The board also voted to sponsor "Miss Stuart of 1959", Miss Cherry Hudgins, in the Florida Citrus Queen Contest, and accepted the resignation of Frank DeStefano from the board due to stress of business.

We Won't Leave Berlin, President Tells Mikoyan

Ike Declares U.S. Will Never Accept Khrushchev's Plan

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Eisenhower solemnly told Russia Saturday the U.S. never will accept Premier Nikita Khrushchev's plan to turn East Berlin over to the East German Reds May 27.

Eisenhower was reported to have given this notice during a 1¾-hour meeting with Deputy Soviet Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan.

The White House conference, climaxing Mikoyan's two-week visit to this country, ended with no sign of concession by either side on Berlin, Germany or disarmament.

Despite this, informed officials predicted a Big Four foreign ministers conference will be held sometime this spring before the date Russia has fixed for ending four-power Berlin rule.

The 63-year-old Mikoyan, relaxed and smiling, went immediately to the Soviet embassy. Presumably, he will draft a report to the Kremlin on his round of talks. First, however, he went for a drive in Washington's Rock Creek Park.

His morning meeting with Eisenhower capped 11½ hours of talks with administration leaders, four of them directly with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

In view of the continued East-West deadlock, Eisenhower was understood to be banking heavily on Mikoyan's personal insight into U.S. policy, gained by his talks and travel, to pave the way for what this government regards as a more reasonable attitude.

Authorities familiar with Mikoyan's talks said that despite his relatively mild language, he reaffirmed Russia's Berlin plan while disclaiming any thought it should be considered a peace or war ultimatum.

Eisenhower and Dulles were said to have met this by re-emphasizing that the U.S., with pledges of solid backing by its allies, will refuse to accept Soviet moves to scrap international agreements on Berlin's status.

Informants gave this point-by-point summary of the outcome of the confidential discussions with Mikoyan:

A SUMMIT MEETING — Neither side mentioned this, despite Mikoyan's advance public remarks urging a high-level conference without any formal agenda.

A BIG FOUR MEETING — No effort was made to set the time, place, or agenda. But U.S. authorities expressed confidence a foreign ministers meeting would be arranged.

DISARMAMENT — Dulles stressed there is an urgent American desire for an East-West ban on nuclear weapons explosions, provided adequate inspection is included. Eisenhower and Mikoyan agreed that modern armaments impose a crushing financial burden on governments.

GERMAN ELECTIONS — Mikoyan vigorously denounced the idea of free elections.

Sun-Shy Mikoyan Ditches Us

By ELVALEE SWIFT
Herald Staff Writer

Anastas I. Mikoyan, Russia's No. 2 man, abruptly canceled plans Saturday to visit Florida, reportedly because he feared too much sunshine.

An embassy spokesman in Washington said the Soviet Deputy Premier decided he might catch cold if he came here and then went directly back to Moscow's sub-zero winter.

Mikoyan was to be here Wednesday and Thursday after a fast look at Tampa and a tour of the citrus belt of Polk County.

Jubilant members of an anti-Communist refugee group Guardians of Liberty, ditched plans for protest Miami demonstrations when they heard of Mikoyan's cancellation.

The group, made up mostly of Hungarians, was to meet the Kremlin leader dressed in black, driving cars draped in black and carrying crosses.

They also had fashioned a black coffin to present to Mikoyan.

Mikoyan's fears about balmy Florida weather were well founded, Miami weathermen said. If he arrived Wednesday as scheduled, the cold snap would have been only a memory.

In Washington Saturday temperatures skittered down to 10 degrees and the snow was turning to ice.

In announcing his change of plans, Mikoyan also said he will leave for Moscow three days earlier than he had planned. He will attend a Washington reception given by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov Monday and leave Tuesday.

Archbishop Joseph Patrick Hurley of the St. Augustine diocese had suggested mass bell-ringing in defiance of Mikoyan's visit. A diocese priest said Saturday he thought the plans had been abandoned.

Flames Spew from Wing of $2½ Million Eastern Air Lines Luxury Liner
. . . blazing sky giant jolted to stop as landing gear gave way

Death Cheated at Miami Airport

17 Flee Blazing Airliner —Thanks to Heroic Pilot

An Eastern Air Lines Super G Constellation caught fire seconds after it took off from Miami Saturday but veered back for a safe landing before crumpling into a fiery heap when its landing gear collapsed.

Twelve passengers and five crewmen, bound non-stop for Detroit on Flight 704, slid to safety down a canvas emergency chute as flames engulfed the right side of the four-engine airliner.

More than a dozen pieces of fire fighting equipment battled for nearly an hour before subduing gasoline-fed flames that all but burned away half of the 2.5 million dollar luxury airliner.

An Eastern spokesman said the plane might be a total loss. An investigation began immediately to determine the cause of the engine fire.

One of the passengers, 69-year-old Henry Fiedler, suffering from a year-old back injury, was taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital for observation, and Mrs. Helen Wallace, of Detroit, received minor burns sliding down the canvas chute.

Eleven of the passengers, however, were put on another Eastern flight to Detroit two hours after the spectacular 4:20 p.m. mishap.

Hero of the emergency landing was the plane's pilot, Capt. J. W. Rush, of 6200 SW 133rd St.

Rush, notified by the control tower at Miami International Airport that his right inboard engine was on fire when the plane was barely airborne, wheeled the big ship through a steep 180-degree left turn.

He set it down on a paralled runway in the opposite direction just a mile from the one he used to make his west-bound take-off.

The Eastern plane took off on the same runway and used the same flight path as a Braniff Airways DC7C which crashed into the Everglades last March 28, killing nine of the 24 persons on board.

The Braniff plane, like the Eastern Constellation, had a fire in the No. 3 Engine. But the Braniff pilot turned his plane to the right instead of the left to make his emergency return to the airport, then lost altitude and crashed.

The Civil Aeronautics Board last week blamed the Braniff pilot's failure to maintain altitude during the emergency for the crash.

Bright flames and thick black smoke streamed from the stricken Constellation's right wing and from under its belly as it landed.

His hydraulic brakes burned out and unable to reverse his propellars, Capt. Rush coasted the lumbering plane some 200 yards beyond the end of the runway.

There, just as it rolled to a halt on rock-stubbled ground, the right landing gear crumpled, tilting the airliner crazily onto its flaming wing.

While fire trucks spewed chemical foam onto the flames, passengers escaped from the left side of the airplane.

The passengers were on the ground three minutes after the plane was airborne at

You Can Have One, Too

Look at Me, Fellas--I've Got an Ulcer!

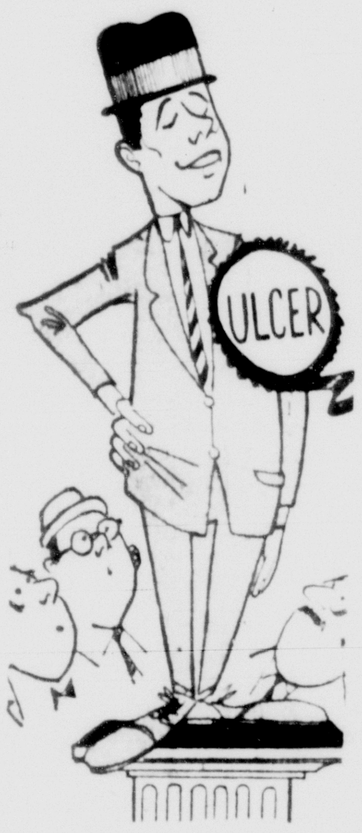
Proud--But Unhappy

Today's man of distinction is the man with an ulcer. He mentions it proudly while flashing his antacid pills. That's because he's supposed to be made of the stuff that lifts him above the flock. But there never lived an ulcer victim who was happy about his affliction. The writer, New York Newspaper Editor Herbert Kamm, can attest to this. He's had an ulcer for 22 years, and that makes him somewhat of an authority on the subject. In five articles, starting here, he tells about the causes, the "cures" and sundry facts concerning this pesky ailment.

By HERBERT KAMM
Special To The Herald

ONE SNAPPISHLY COLD afternoon in February some years ago, a lean young man entered the office of his doctor and announced, "Doc, I think I've got an ulcer."

A sour look, much like that induced by a swig of citrate of magnesia came over the doctor's face. You do not, as a rule, endear yourself by walking into a doctor's office and diagnosing your own case. He's supposed to tell you.



The Sufferer
. . . man of distinction

But the lean young man was not to be deterred.

"I've had this gnawing in my tummy for several weeks now," he went on. "It comes an hour or two after eating, and I also get it in the middle of the night. If I drink a glass of milk, it goes away. Besides, I've been working too hard and smoking too much, and I guess I haven't been too careful about what I've been eating, either."

"Well," the doctor said grudgingly, "they do sound like the classic symptoms."

So they took the lean young man to the hospital, and they had him drink a glass of white, chalky stuff called barium, and they took a bunch of X-rays, and they found an ulcer of the garden variety — a peptic ulcer of the duodenum, the small, valve-like organ which connects the stomach to the small intestine.

The case is significant for two reasons. While patients quite often will try to tell a doctor his own business, it isn't often that they score with such accuracy. Also, the patient was me.

I had, in a way, arrived. Not that ulcers are a rare ailment. A fat 10 per cent of the population in this country has them, and new cases turn up at the rate of 1.4 million a year.

Add to this the number of people who are troubled by acid distress, heartburn or general discomfort from eating, and you have a whole legion of people who figure that maybe they're getting ulcers.

Usually, however, there is no mistaking this pesky ailment, and studies have shown that, in the large majority of cases, the ulcer sufferer is a person of extremely high intelligence, of great urging to move ahead in this competitive world, and the stuff that lifts him above the flock.

* * *

He Wears Misery Like a Medal

Knowing this, he wears his misery like a badge of honor and takes a strange sort of pride in displaying his antacid pills at social gatherings. He also draws comfort from knowing that he's in pretty fast company.

It should not, however, be assumed that ulcers are solely a disease of modern, fast-moving civilization. In fact, they seem to be as old as civilization itself.

The traditional ulcer type, though, is supposed to be a hardworking, over-conscientious, ambitious, successful person who can't "take it easy."

* * *

'Thinker' Type Is Likely Victim

Much has been made of the prevalence of ulcers among those with the long, lean "thinker" constitution, their absence among primitives and Asiatics, and the greater frequency of ulcer in the postwar years of prosperity and nervous strain.

But let's keep one thing straight: Ulcers do not automatically confer business success on their victims.

An ulcer is a sore in the stomach or the duodenum caused by the secretion of more acid gastric juices than are needed to digest food. As with most ailments, it is accompanied by pain.

The pain is usually located right under the ribs and occurs in bouts of 15 minutes to an hour's duration. Food generally will relieve it, but the pain will return after the food has passed out of the stomach and those nasty juices can go to work again on your stomach lining.

* * *

Sore 'Perforates'—It Even Kills

If neglected, an ulcer can perforate the stomach or the duodenum, and death from such severe cases is not uncommon. Most ulcers, though, are manageable and need not be serious. In fact, living with them can be quite sporting if one is sensible about the things he eats and drinks and, more important, about his state of mind.

NEXT: More about the causes of ulcers — from A (aggravation) to Z (zeal).

Accused of 20 Holdups

Holding Family Hostage, Youth Gives Up to Police

GARDEN GROVE, Calif. —(AP)— Wounded and afraid, a teenager accused of more than 20 holdups surrendered meekly Saturday a few minutes after he entered a home here and demanded refuge at knife point.

The capture of 19-year-old Charles Averill climaxed an all-night, house-to-house search by 300 police officers.

Begging for mercy, Averill stumbled from the bathroom in the home of Robert Reines, pleading: "Don't shoot, don't shoot. I'm unarmed. Have some respect for my mother."

Reines, his wife and three young sons watched as a dozen armed men took Averill into custody.

Averill, of nearby Long Beach, gained entrance to the Reines home when six-year-old David Reines innocently admitted him at a rear door.

"He was blustery at first," said the father, relating that the young fugitive grabbed a butcher knife from the kitchen table after learning the family had no guns.

"But gradually he became more polite," Reines said. "The kid was obviously frightened out of his wits . . . He told us he had wounded a police officer and was afraid the police would kill him."

Police said Averill shot his way out of a trap in this Los Angeles suburb Friday night when he and an accomplice called at the home of a young girl friend. Acting on a tip, police were waiting. The pair had been sought for a week in connection with an Anaheim liquor store holdup.

But Averill spotted the officers as they entered the girl's house. Police said he fled, his gun blazing, but was wounded in the side. George Laughter, an Anaheim detective, suffered a superficial wound in the exchange of fire.

Averill rushed to a car driven by Joseph E. Armstrong, 20, of Long Beach, and they tried to escape, police said, but the car failed to make a turn and crashed into a curb.

Averill fled through a citrus grove but Armstrong was flushed from a nearby house and captured. Armstrong was carrying a rifle, but did not use it, the officers said.

Jets to Italy In 2 Jumps

UDINE, Italy—(AP)—Eighteen supersonic fighter planes completed a flight from America Saturday in two jumps, landing at Aviano Air Base near this northern Italian city.

The fighters — F100 Supersabres of the 356th Tactical Squadron — set off Tuesday from Myrtle Beach Air Force Base in South Carolina.

They were refueled by air-tankers over Bermuda and the Azores, but bad weather forced the planes down at an airbase in Morocco. The squadron took off from there Saturday morning and the planes landed at Aviano Air Base at two-minute intervals.

The first was piloted by Col. Francis Gabreski, famous fighter pilot who brought down 37 enemy planes during the Korean war.

D.C. Bandit Chickens Out

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A man stepped up to the ticket booth of a movie theater and handed the cashier this note: "Don't let me kill you."

Then, holding his hand in his pocket as if it clutched a gun he said, "Give me the greenbacks."

The cashier, Mrs. Katherine S. McDonald, 56, looked at him for a moment, turned around, opened the booth's backdoor and calmly called to an usher: "There's a holdup going on."

The would-be robber dashed away.

Oh, Well, When It's Gotta Snow, It's Gotta Snow

Cold-Numbed East Busy Digging Out

NEW YORK —(P)— Itense cold numbed much of the eastern half of the nation Saturday on the heels of crippling snowstorms in parts of the Midwest and East.

Emergency crews took advantage of clearing skies to dig through snowdrifts that halted auto production and closed schools in northwestern Indiana and stalled traffic in western New York state. Snow forced suspnesion of racing for the second straight day at Charles Town, W.Va.

Parts of Michigan were buried under four to 18 inches of snow.

A state of emergency was ended at noon Saturday in South Bend and Mishawaka, Ind. brisk winds had whipped an 18-inch snowfall into mountainous road-blocking drifts throughout the area.

Stores reopened with the end of emergency status but the Studebaker - Packard Corp. plant and University of Notre Dame remained closed. The main roads and streets were reopened after an all night battle with the drifts.

New York state had at least eight traffic deaths attributed to the storm. An infant died of exposure in Georgia when the mercury fell to 12 degrees at Athens.

Five-foot drifts stalled traffic on South Buffalo's Fuhrmann Boulevard along Lake Erie shoreline. Many cars remained bogged down overnight.

The snowfall was reported 21 inches on the level near Pulaski, N.Y., east of Lake Ontario.

Highways were slippery and travel was hazardous in parts of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Millinocket, Maine, and Tallahassee, Fla., had identical temperatures of 34 degrees Saturday afternoon.

But upper areas of the Midwest bore the brunt of the Arctic blasts. Bemidji, Minn., had an overnight low of 30 below and midday readings in northern Minnesota were 12 to 16 below zero. The subzero afternoon cold extended southward into Iowa.

Your Teeth Will Still Chatter

The tail-end of a crop-withering cold wave that gripped North Florida early Sunday will keep Miamians' teeth chattering at least until Monday.

Freezing weather was expected early Sunday as far south as the lower East Coast farmlands. Farmers in central and North Florida had smudge pots burning furiously in an effort to save their crops.

And the warmup that the Miami Weather Bureau predicted earlier has been postponed until after Monday morning, the forecasters said.

The Frost Warning Service predicted the mercury would nosedive sharply early Sunday, dropping even lower than the low 20s in several North Florida spots Saturday.

Although frost was forecast for most farming areas, the service said it would be mostly light because of dryness of the air.

The temperature was expected to skid to as low as 13 in pockets and mucklands.

Telephone Operator Wins $800

Sunny Helps Pay Doctor

By SUNNY FORTUNE

Herald Puzzle Editor

A 50-year-old Miami telephone operator with a broken leg and a collection of doctor bills won my $800 jackpot last week.

SUNNY

Mrs. Mildred Eysmont, of 742 NW 52nd St., said she started working the Sunny Fortune puzzles when she broke her leg nine months ago.

"But I never thought I'd win," said the flabbergasted woman. "I'm so surprised I think I'll drop dead."

I talked Mrs. Eysmont out of any such drastic reaction and praised her for getting the word "NEAR" in last week's puzzle where so many others missed and put "NEAT."

Incidentally, that was the only word missed by Patty Motta, Miami; Edward Zwicker, North Miami, and H. F. Keller, Titusville.

I've been swamped with opinions about the new puzzle as compared to the old, and frankly, readers, so far it looks like a toss-up.

Some of you have complained the new one is too easy.

If that's the case, dig in. I'm willing to give you $300 if you solve my puzzle this week. It's on page 14C.

TWA Airliner Lands on Belly

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — (UPI) — A Trans World Airline Super Constellation screeched to a smooth and safe belly landing over a foam covered runway Saturday after the fate of the 33 persons aboard hung in the balance for more than five hours when the landing gear failed to function.

Sparks spewed out behind the huge craft as it glided along for 2,000 feet with fire trucks and ambulances racing alongside, but there was no fire and no one was injured.

Cries of "beautiful landing" and "thank God" rang out over the crowded Olathe Naval Air Station on the southwest edge of metropolitan Kansas City where the four-engined, three-tailed aircraft had been diverted.

The first passenger off said, "it couldn't have been a better landing if we had been on wheels."

All passengers paid tributes to Capt. Norman Schaeffer, a veteran TWA pilot from Kansas City who maintained control and kept panic from erupting during the ordeal.

Schaeffer's wife watched from her backyard as the plane circled. "I was scared at first — shaking and upset. But . . . Norm and I are both Christians and I knew that if it was the Lord's will, the whole plane would come down safely and if it wasn't it was supposed to be taken that way."

The passengers also told how Flight Engineer O. W. Mollohan of Ivydale, W. Va., and John Probey, 24, a mechanic for Capital Airlines who was a passenger, worked for almost the entire five hours to raise the left landing gear.

They poured coffee and water into the hydraulic system to build up pressure. If they had not succeeded, a much more dangerous landing attempt would have been in prospect with only one gear down.

It was the right gear that failed to lower as the Washington-Indianapolis-St. Louis-Kansas City airliner tried to make its regular landing at St. Louis.

When it failed to function, Capt. Schaeffer continued on to Kansas City to use up fuel and lessen the fire hazard while attempts were made to repair it.

He asked all women passengers to donate their lipstick and liquid cosmetics in an attempt to pressurize the hydraulic system on the right side but failed.

The plane had developed a leak in the hydraulic system and dimes and lipstick cases used in an attempt to stop it also failed.

The crew had been in continuous communications with mechanics on the ground who pored over blueprints to help find the trouble.

The passengers in the plane huddled over the wing section, considered the safest part, and braced and cushioned themselves with pillows.

A veteran Navy chief in charge of the control tower said he had witnessed more than a million landings and added that he had never seen a better one, "wheels up or down."

4:21 p.m., an airline spokesman said.

"We took the quickest way down. We couldn't waste time," said the cool-headed Rush.

Co-pilot was R. P. Harkless. The other crewmen were R. E. Eshbach, flight engineer, and Stewardesses Pat Tharpe and Wanda Carr.

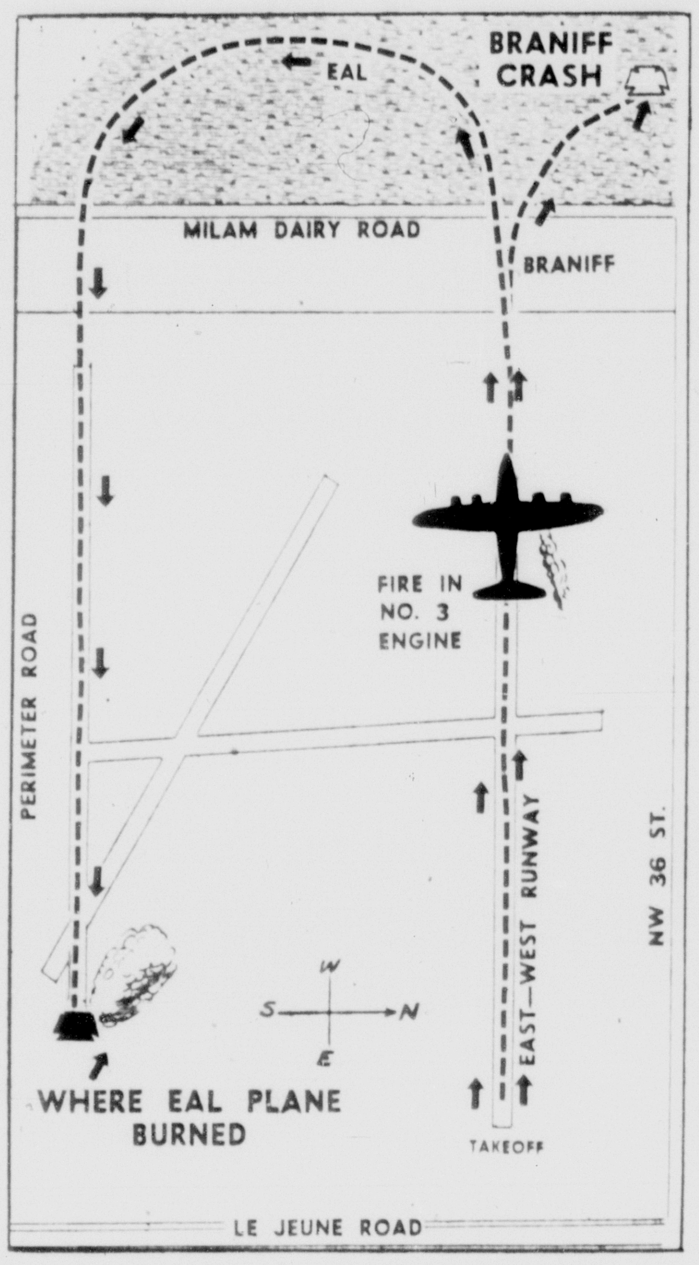
The Eastern plane was between 500 and 800 feet off the ground when Rush started his circle back to the airport, standing the plane on its left wing to keep the flames from the right side away from the cabin.

A control tower observor said Rush "didn't say much when he was coming in. I guess he was busy. But he told us to have the fire equipment ready."

Trucks from the Port Authority's fire station at the airport, Miami, Hialeah, Miami Springs and Dade County rushed to the scene of the flaming plane.

Some witnesses said there appeared to be a shortage of foam to douse the fire. They said when the flames were almost out, they suddenly broke out again.

But the Port Authority fire captain said "we didn't use all of the foam we had on hand."



Japanese Drag Yank To Police

YOKOHAMA, Japan—(UPI)—Five irate Japanese citizens dragged an American soldier from a train and carted him to the police on charges of defiling a Japanese flag, authorities said.

SP-4 Cedric E. Nelson, 21, of Alexandria, Minn., was accused of draping a Japanese flag over a shelf aboard a passenger train and deliberately setting fire to it with a cigaret lighter.

An army spokesman said the Japanese planned to accuse Nelson of larceny and unlawful display and destruction of the flag.

Frondizi's U.S. Trip Slanted to Investors

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — (UPI) — President Arturo Frondizi said Saturday he will take a long list of projects to the U.S. today in hopes of attracting huge new amounts of U.S. government and private capital to Argentina.

The projects — involving waterworks, steel and oil production, transportation and agriculture — are regarded by the 50-year-old president as necessary to pull Argentina out of the economic shambles left by ousted Dictator Juan D. Peron.

Frondizi will meet with President Eisenhower Tuesday. He will be the first Argentine president to visit the U.S.

Aside from his talks with Eisenhower and other government officials, Frondizi will carry his campaign for investment in Argentina directly to businessmen and bankers in Chicago, Detroit and New York.

He said he was confident the 12-day trip and the talks would result in a "new era of mutual understanding and cooperation in all fields" between the U.S. and Argentina.

He said his meetings before his inauguration last February with the heads of government of Brazil, Chile, Uruguay and Peru already had proved invaluable in dealing with these states.

Frondizi made it plain that the main objective of the trip was to impress the U.S. with the soundness of his economic policies.

U.S. Gets Warning From Fidel

HAVANA, Cuba — (P) — Fidel Castro has warned the U.S. against attempting to use "cannon diplomacy" to halt the executions of Batistans. At the same time he is starting a campaign of pressure against the U.S. to "return the war criminals."

These attitudes were outlined as revolutionary officials discounted reports that former Dictator Fulgencio Batista had landed a counterattacking force, or was planning to do so, somewhere in Cuba.

Maj. Victor Borden, acting commander at La Cabana, the fortress across the bay from Havana, told newsmen such an attack from Batista's refuge in the Dominican Republic was improbable.

"When he had 55,000 troops he couldn't hurt us," said Borden. "What can he do with 10,000?"

He apparently was referring to a report from revolutionary military intelligence that Batista was trying to organize an invasion force of 10,000 men.

Borden said, however, that his chief at La Cabana, Maj. Ernesto Guevara, had departed for the central province of Las Villas because revolutionary units were somewhat disorganized. He declined to explain further.

It was announced that Maj. Eloy Guttierrez Menoyo, who commanded 4,000 to 5,000 men in spearhead fighting in Las Villas, had led his men back to the province from Havana for demoblization. There was speculation, however, that the move was a precaution against any Batista counterblow.

Chief of CIA Doubts A-Plane

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Allen W. Dulles, director of the super - secret Central Intelligence Agency, has told congressional leaders he does not believe the Soviet Union now has a flyable nuclear-powered plane, it was learned Saturday.

The CIA chief feels that the Russians are ahead of the U.S. in certain phases of missile development — notably in the range of intercontinental ballistic missiles. But he believes we also lead in some phases.

These, according to informed sources, were the highlights of a closed-door briefing Dulles gave a Senate armed services subcommittee Friday.

Revision Abolishes Constables

Three-Tier Court System Adopted by Judicial Council

Options Allowed Counties

Legislature May Balk at Reforms

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — A plan for the most complete revision of Florida's judicial system since the present state constitution was drawn up in 1885 was adopted Saturday by the State Judicial Council.

A product of years of work by the 17-member group of laymen and lawyers, the plan will be put before the 1959 Legislature as a proposed constitutional amendment and incorporated in several proposed laws.

The heart of the plan is the consolidation of all trial courts into a single system, made up of three tiers — Circuit Courts, County Courts and Magistrate Courts.

Counties of 100,000 or more population would have the option of combining the County Court, or parts of it, with their Circuit Courts.

Other main parts of the plan would:

PLACE ALL judges on salary and abolish the fee systems on which many now operate.

REWRITE the laws on jurors and witnesses and other laymen in the courts. Fees for jurors and witnesses would be raised to $10 a day and jury commissions would be established in all counties with population of 25,000 or more.

DESIGNATE the state attorney as chief prosecutor in all courts and authorize him to appoint his own assistants now appointed by the governor, and designate the Sheriff as the chief enforcement officer for all courts, abolishing the office of constable.

LAY DOWN minimum procedural rules for administrative boards and agencies having quasi-judicial powers to insure the right of due process of law for those appearing before them.

REMOVE the constitutional limitation of 16 judicial circuits but require any new circuit to have at least 100,000 persons.

AUTHORIZE one Circuit Judge for every 50,000 population or major fraction, as at present, but allow the Legislature to create additional circuit judgeships, or abolish them, upon the showing of a "permanent need."

REMOVE the constitutional limitation of three District Courts of Appeal of three judges each, allowing more districts and more judgeships if needed.

AUTHORIZE cities to operate municipal courts, but permit these to be combined with magistrate courts, if the city wishes.

Many features of the council's plan are expected to be controversial in the Legislature. Council Member W. A. Shands, retiring President of the Senate, commented that it would be hard to sell the Legislature on the need for removing restrictions on the number of Appellate Court districts and judges. He voted against that feature of the revision plan.

The council chairman, Supreme Court Justice Stephen C. O'Connell of Fort Lauderdale, says the council's aim is to eliminate the hodgepodge of existing trial courts for a single efficient system. The State Supreme Court would administer the three-court system.

Arthur Lundeen, council executive director, said special trial courts had been set up to meet needs when Florida began growing rapidly.

The legislature turned down the same proposal in authorizing a constitutional amendment to create the Appellate Courts in the 1955 session.

Some state attorneys, circuit judges and county judges have expressed opposition to parts of the plan.

Around The Island

'Invasion Barge' Waits For Owner

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST — Anyone missing a rowboat?

If you are, maybe it's one the Navy has on its hands and would gladly relinquish.

CAICEDO

The Navy — which has enough boats of its own to worry about — has had this humble craft on its hands since Jan. 1 at the naval station here.

The rowboat was "captured," you might say, on its way to battle.

Its skipper and sole occupant was an aggressive Australian youth hell-bent on adding his weight to the Castro crew in Cuba.

His plan was to row—yes, that's right—row the 90 miles across the Florida Straits to Cuba.

As fate would have it, the young admiral and would-be warrior barely managed it around the northeast corner of this island before drifting into the naval station.

* * *

HIS JOURNEY was interrupted with a good 89 miles still ahead of him.

The youth, 20-year-old Alan M. Howden, freely admitted to authorities he commandeered the 16-foot rowboat at Garrison Bight for the last leg of his long voyage to join the Castro forces.

He also admitted coming from Canada, where he has legal residence, with the intention of getting over to Cuba. To get into the U.S., he told officers, he misrepresented himself at the border as a tourist going to New York for a two-week vacation.

Howden, broke and baggageless when picked up, was soon bundled off to Miami for U.S. authorities there to arrange his deportation.

But his would-be invasion barge lingers on at the Navy Yard, unclaimed and dishonored, waiting to return to such menial tasks as fishing.

Moose House

FOUR YEARS after coming to Key West, the Loyal Order of the Moose is putting up its own lodge house.

The contract has been let to complete a building already started by the Moose at the corner of Eisenhower Dr. and Angela St.

Members expect to move into their new $20,000 headquarters by April, a good portion of which has been built by the Moose themselves on a volunteer work basis.

Too Soon

Asked one day early last week, "How's everything going?" one of the City Commissioners answered:

"It's not too bad, we haven't had a new lawsuit filed against us for several days."

The very next day a suit was filed in Circuit Court to force the City Commission to recognize the validity of the repeal-the-utility-tax petition.

Artist Has Listing In Who's Who

Herald Bureau

EAU GALLIE — Beatrice B. Werley, Eau Gallie artist and wife of Var G. Werley, real estate broker is listed in the first edition of "Who's Who of American Women," just released by A. N. Marquis Co., for her accomplishments in the art world.

Although well-known here for her water colors and portraitures, little is known of her more serious works in the medical art field.

She has pioneered in producing colored animated movies, showing surgical technics and procedures. This required many hours of exacting drawings to illustrate the various technics. Mrs. Werley did this work as staff artist at a Cleveland, Ohio, clinic.

These medical films have been recommended by the American College of Surgeons, and attracted the attention of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York when he was coordinator of Inter-American Affairs during World War II.

His office ordered copies of the films for distribution in Latin-American countries.

Besides being listed in Who's Who of American Women, Mrs. Werley has been included in Who's Who of American Artists for a number of years.

PTA Will Meet

EAU GALLIE — Teachers and school officials will discuss the curriculm for this year and for the 1959-60 term at a general meeting of the Eau Gallie Junior High school Parent-Teachers Association, at 8 p.m. Monday at the school.

State Pay Raise Tied To Costs

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Budget Director Harry Smith said Saturday he will recommend "cost of living" pay raises, not in excess of three per cent, for most state employes.

But Smith said, some raises proposed by state agencies are out of the question in view of the financial pinch.

Smith's recommendations weigh heavily with the Cabinet Budget Commission in making recommendations to the Legislature.

The commission will get down to the budget balancing job Jan. 28, and it apparently is going to have to pare about $140,000,000 off proposed budgets to fit spending to income from present taxes.

The big increase in most budgets is salaries. Smith said he does not plan to recommend any cross-the-board general salary increases, but will consider each agency separately.

He'll recommend raises for the average employe of about two and a half to three per cent. The cost of living index, he said, is up about two and a half per cent per year.

Smith said he probably will suggest larger raises for some professional personnel.

Deadline Set For New Laws

MELBOURNE — The Brevard County legislative delegation announced Saturday the deadline for submitting local legislation for introduction during the 1959 session would be April 1.

Although other Florida counties already have deadlines on when special bills can be given to their representatives, this year marks the first time Brevard has had to have its bills in the hands of the delegation before the opening of the session.

Municipal and county governments must meet this deadline, except in the case of where a special act is needed to cover an unexpected situation, said Sen. Douglas Stenstrom of Sanford.

The estimated 60 pieces of local legislation for this county are to be turned over to Rep. James H. Pruitt of Eau Gallie.

Stenstrom and Pruitt ask that the local governments also have their advertisements of intent on the special acts published by March 1.

Industrialist To Be Speaker

MELBOURNE — "Making Your Assets Pay Dividends" is the topic of an address by George R. Dempster, Knoxville, Tenn. industrialist, at the January meeting of the Pan American Management Club Monday at the Rockledge Country Club.

A multi-millionaire, Dempster is president of one of the largest steel fabricating plants in Tennessee.

Agree on 10 Years for Hoax

Sheriffs Hedge on Bombers

ORLANDO —(AP)— Florida Sheriffs debated the proper punishment for bomb terrorists without reaching a decision at the closing session of their midwinter conference.

In mapping a general legislative program, the Sheriffs were undecided whether the death sentence or only imprisonment should be provided in a proposed law to punish persons who terrorize communities with bombings.

They agreed sentences up to 10 years in prison are proper for persons who perpetrate bomb hoaxes.

Several other subjects were proposed and will be taken up by officials of the Florida Sheriffs Association, in detailing recommendations to the legislature.

For one, the Sheriffs want to complete the program of putting themselves on a salary and budget basis. Twelve of the state's 67 sheriffs still operate on the fee basis.

Other proposed laws would require doctors, nurses, and hospitals to report treatment of any gunshot wound; prohibit giving false information about a crime; return primary elections to May; provide a copy of Motor Vehicle Registrations to the Sheriff of the county where issued, and require monthly reports by pawnbrokers.

The Sheriffs elected Ross Boyer of Sarasota County president; Dave Starr, Orange, second vice president; Don McLeod director of the Florida Sheriffs Bureau, secretary, and John Hall, Clay, treasurer.

Directors named were Emmett Shelby, Escambia; Roy Roberson, Jackson; W. P. Joyce, Leon; Walt Pellicer, Putnam; Pete Reddish, Bradford; L. O. Davis, St. Johns; Rodney Thursby, Volusia; Luther Hobby, Seminole; Sam Joyce, Indian River; E. O. Carlton, Hardee; John Kirk, Palm Beach, and John Spottswood, Monroe.

Hose Streams Play on the Flaming Commodore Hotel at Stuart
. . . 33-year-old hostelry was a funeral pyre for two early Saturday

Early Morning Stuart Fire Fatal to Two Hotel Guests

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

STUART — Two men burned to death Saturday in a predawn hotel fire apparently caused by an ex-jockey smoking in bed.

Nine other persons, including the owner of the Hotel Commodore, ran from the flaming structure in their night clothes in 32-degree weather, only minutes before the roof of the 33-year-old structure collapsed.

One of the victims was identified as Donald A. Brice, 51, of Carbondale, Pa., an exercise boy at a horse training track here. He was a former jockey and was reported to have been a turf star of 30 years ago.

Smoke was noticed first boiling from a window in Brice's room. He jumped from the second floor window but his body already was a flaming torch. He apparently was dead by the time he hit the ground.

The other fire victim was identified as George W. Jackson, 31, of Cleveland, Ohio, the hotel bartender. He is survived by his wife, Margaret, a son and three daughters, all of Cleveland, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rupert F. Jackson of Jensen Beach.

Ernest Lee Daugherty, who came here Dec. 29 from Dublin, N.C., said a hotel employe came running down the corridor screaming that the hotel was on fire.

"I grabbed what clothes I could and got out," Daugherty said.

The hotel was built in this east coast city 100 miles north of Miami in 1926. The Miami Marlins baseball club of the International League trained here in 1957.

Three firemen, James Holt, Johnny Moore and Adolph DeLoach, were overcome by smoke and exhaustion. They were hospitalized for treatment.

Paul R. Bailey, 24, of Atlanta, who lived in the nearby St. Lucie Hotel, was hospitalized with shock after seeing Brice's body covered with flames hurtle from a second story window and land at his feet.

Bailey said the "human torch" only missed him by inches.

Only a few hours earlier, Bailey and his roommate, George Johnson, jerked Mrs. E. L. Tressler from the path of a freight train at a crossing in Rio, between Stuart and Jensen Beach. The train missed them "by three inches," an officer said.

Fire Chief Milton Griffin said Brice evidently fell asleep while smoking.

Damage was estimated at $100,000 by Griffin. The Martin County fire department, Stuart units and equipment from Salerno, Jensen Beach, Rio, Palm City, Jupiter Island and Fort Pierce fought the fire.

Man Held For Vero Blackmail

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — A 23-year-old New Yorker was held in the Palm Beach County jail Saturday in lieu of $10,000 bond on charges of blackmailing a Vero Beach school teacher.

U.S. Commissioner George Pink, before whom the suspect was arraigned, identified him as Raymond George Lanthier. He was arrested by postal inspectors in Vero Beach Friday when he picked up an envelope containing $100 that was taped to a door at the Chamber of Commerce building.

Commissioner Pink said Lanthier was charged with writing and placing a threatening letter in the mails to Walter Riddle, a faculty member at Vero Beach High school on Tuesday.

The letter, Pink said, demanded $100 in return for not revealing certain purported defamatory and scurrilious information bearing on the character and reputation of Walter Riddle Jr.

Pink said Lanthier did not know Riddle and apparently had picked his name at random.

On Jan. 16, Pink said, the suspect visited the specified spot and picked up an envelope, prepared by the victim, which contained the money demanded.

The postal inspectors moved into the case and seized Lanthier when the transaction was completed, the commissioner said.

Upon receipt of the letter Wednesday Riddle immediately reported it to school officials, who notified local police and the U.S. Postal Inspection Service, Chief Wallace Gossett of Vero Beach said.

Church Group Purchases Land

INDIALANTIC — The Ascension Lutheran Church, serving the beach area, has purchased a three-acre tract of land from the Canton Co. as a church building site, it was announced Saturday by the steering committee.

The property, purchased with a loan from the Board of American Missions of the American Lutheran Church, is on Pinetree Dr. in Indian Harbour Beach, north of Eau Gallie causeway.

Enforcement, Publicity Cut Iowa Traffic Deaths

Let's Stop Killing Ourselves

DES MOINES —(P)— Massive doses of law enforcement and publicity, prescribed by Iowa's traffic doctors, saved 95 lives on the streets and highways of this state last year.

They consider their prescription only partly successful — but they believe they've found a formula for a more potent medicine.

The traffic toll in Iowa was 595 last year as against 690 in 1957 — a fall of about 17 per cent. That was the largest reduction in the midwest and one of the biggest in the nation.

Besides saving lives, it has sharply trimmed the economic losses of Iowans. Many auto insurance companies have cut their rates for Iowa.

The state's chief traffic diagnostician, state safety commissioner Russell Brown, credits these factors for most of the decrease:

1—A "point system" under which the safety department assessed varying numbers of points against persons convicted of traffic violations. When a motorist accumulated 10 points, his license was suspended.

2—Use of radar speed detectors on the highways — the first time radar had been used for traffic control in Iowa.

3—"Excellent cooperation" of newspapers, radio and television stations and the wire services in publicizing traffic problems and the activities of law enforcement officers.

4—Unrelenting efforts by the State Highway Patrol, county sheriff's officers and city police to enforce the traffic laws.

None of these is new, Brown admits, but they added up to a fairly effective program for Iowa.

There has been no favoritism shown in operation of the point system. Brown himself lost five points when he was caught exceeding the speed limit in Des Moines. Atty. Gen. Norman Erbe, Maj. Gen. Fred C. Tandy, adjutant general of Iowa and state comptroller Glenn Sarsfield also have points on their records.

But Iowa can't afford to rest on its laurels, Brown said. If further gains are to be made, new ingredients must be added to the medicine.

"You can't concentrate on just one thing in traffic enforcement," he said. "That is like holding a tight bandage over one cut while your life blood spurts out another wound that you can't even reach."

In Iowa, that second wound is the 90,000 miles of rural roads. While lives were being saved last year on primary highways and city streets, deaths on secondary roads took a jump.

Brown has asked the legislature to beef up the State Highway Patrol so it can patrol the secondary roads. He says the patrol needs at least 150 more men. It now has 250, excluding driver license examiners, and that means only about 80 men — fewer than one per county — can be on the road at any one time.

He also wants a law requiring completion of a state-approved driver education course before a person under 18 years old can be licensed. Under present law 16-year-olds are eligible for a license.

Blast Kills 3 Workmen

PITTSBURGH —(P)— Three workmen were killed Saturday in an explosion at the nearby Duquesne works of U.S. Steel Corp.

A company spokesman identified the victims as Albert Chorey, 34, of Port Vue; Homer W. Maley, 57, of Duquesne, and Petra Jenca, 59, of Duquesne.

The victims were working in a pig machine building of the blast furnance department.

A company spokesman said a ladle of molten iron apparently upset, touching off an explosion of some type.

The blast apparently killed the three men instantly. Nobody else was in the building and there were no witnesses.

We Won't Leave Berlin, President Tells Mikoyan

You Can Have One, Too

Look at Me, Fellas--I've Got an Ulcer!

Proud--But Unhappy

Today's man of distinction is the man with an ulcer. He mentions it proudly while flashing his antacid pills. That's because he's supposed to be made of the stuff that lifts him above the flock. But there never lived an ulcer victim who was happy about his affliction. The writer, New York Newspaper Editor Herbert Kamm, can attest to this. He's had an ulcer for 22 years, and that makes him somewhat of an authority on the subject. In five articles, starting here, he tells about the causes, the "cures" and sundry facts concerning this pesky ailment.

By HERBERT KAMM
Special To The Herald

ONE SNAPPISHLY COLD afternoon in February some years ago, a lean young man entered the office of his doctor and announced, "Doc, I think I've got an ulcer."

A sour look, much like that induced by a swig of citrate of magnesia came over the doctor's face. You do not, as a rule, endear yourself by walking into a doctor's office and diagnosing your own case. He's supposed to tell you.

The Sufferer
. . . man of distinction

But the lean young man was not to be deterred.

"I've had this gnawing in my tummy for several weeks now," he went on. "It comes an hour or two after eating, and I also get it in the middle of the night. If I drink a glass of milk, it goes away. Besides, I've been working too hard and smoking too much, and I guess I haven't been too careful about what I've been eating, either."

"Well," the doctor said grudgingly, "they do sound like the classic symptoms."

So they took the lean young man to the hospital, and they had him drink a glass of white, chalky stuff called barium, and they took a bunch of X-rays, and they found an ulcer of the garden variety — a peptic ulcer of the duodenum, the small, valve-like organ which connects the stomach to the small intestine.

The case is significant for two reasons. While patients quite often will try to tell a doctor his own business, it isn't often that they score with such accuracy. Also, the patient was me.

I had, in a way, arrived. Not that ulcers are a rare ailment. A fat 10 per cent of the population in this country has them, and new cases turn up at the rate of 1.4 million a year.

Add to this the number of people who are troubled by acid distress, heartburn or general discomfort from eating, and you have a whole legion of people who figure that maybe they're getting ulcers.

Usually, however, there is no mistaking this pesky ailment, and studies have shown that, in the large majority of cases, the ulcer sufferer is a person of extremely high intelligence, of great urging to move ahead in this competitive world, and the stuff that lifts him above the flock.

* * *

He Wears Misery Like a Medal

Knowing this, he wears his misery like a badge of honor and takes a strange sort of pride in displaying his antacid pills at social gatherings. He also draws comfort from knowing that he's in pretty fast company.

It should not, however, be assumed that ulcers are solely a disease of modern, fast-moving civilization. In fact, they seem to be as old as civilization itself.

The traditional ulcer type, though, is supposed to be a hardworking, over-conscientious, ambitious, successful person who can't "take it easy."

* * *

'Thinker' Type Is Likely Victim

Much has been made of the prevalence of ulcers among those with the long, lean, "thinker" constitution, their absence among primitives and Asiatics, and the greater frequency of ulcer in the postwar years of prosperity and nervous strain.

But let's keep one thing straight: Ulcers do not automatically confer business success on their victims.

An ulcer is a sore in the stomach or the duodenum caused by the secretion of more acid gastric juices than are needed to digest food. As with most ailments, it is accompanied by pain.

The pain is usually located right under the ribs and occurs in bouts of 15 minutes to an hour's duration. Food generally will relieve it, but the pain will return after the food has passed out of the stomach and those nasty juices can go to work again on your stomach lining.

* * *

Sore 'Perforates'-It Even Kills

If neglected, an ulcer can perforate the stomach or the duodenum, and death from such severe cases is not uncommon. Most ulcers, though, are manageable and need not be serious. In fact, living with them can be quite sporting if one is sensible about the things he eats and drinks and, more important, about his state of mind.

NEXT: More about the causes of ulcers — from A (aggravation) to Z (zeal).

Flames Spew from Wing of $2½ Million Eastern Air Lines Luxury Liner

Death Cheated at Miami Airport

17 Flee Blazing Airliner —Thanks to Heroic Pilot

An Eastern Air Lines Super G Constellation caught fire seconds after it took off from Miami Saturday but veered back for a safe landing before crumpling into a fiery heap when its landing gear collapsed.

Twelve passengers and five crewmen, bound non-stop for Detroit on Flight 704, slid to safety down a canvas emergency chute as flames engulfed the right side of the four-engine airliner.

More than a dozen pieces of fire fighting equipment battled for nearly an hour before subduing gasoline-fed flames that all but burned away half of the 2.5 million dollar luxury airliner.

An Eastern spokesman said the plane might be a total loss. An investigation began immediately to determine the cause of the engine fire.

One of the passengers, 69-year-old Henry Fiedler, suffering from a year-old back injury, was taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital for observation, and Mrs. Helen Wallace, of Detroit, received minor burns sliding down the canvas chute.

Eleven of the passengers, however, were put on another Eastern flight to Detroit two hours after the spectacular 4:20 p.m. mishap.

Hero of the emergency landing was the plane's pilot, Capt. J. W. Rush, of 6200 SW 133rd St.

Rush, notified by the control tower at Miami International Airport that his right inboard engine was on fire when the plane was barely airborne, wheeled the big ship through a steep 180-degree left turn.

He set it down on a paralled runway in the opposite direction just a mile from the one he used to make his west-bound take-off.

The Eastern plane took off on the same runway and used the same flight path as a Braniff Airways DC7C which crashed into the Everglades last March 28, killing nine of the 24 persons on board.

The Braniff plane, like the Eastern Constellation, had a fire in the No. 3 Engine. But the Braniff pilot turned his plane to the right instead of the left to make his emergency return to the airport, then lost altitude and crashed.

The Civil Aeronautics Board last week blamed the Braniff pilot's failure to maintain altitude during the emergency for the crash.

Bright flames and thick black smoke streamed from the stricken Constellation's right wing and from under its belly as it landed.

His hydraulic brakes burned out and unable to reverse his propellars, Capt. Rush coasted the lumbering plane some 200 yards beyond the end of the runway.

There, just as it rolled to a halt on rock-stubbled ground, the right landing gear crumpled, tilting the airliner crazily onto its flaming wing.

While fire trucks spewed chemical foam onto the flames, passengers escaped from the left side of the airplane.

The passengers were on the ground three minutes after the plane was airborne at

Accused of 20 Holdups

Holding Family Hostage, Youth Gives Up to Police

GARDEN GROVE, Calif. — (AP) — Wounded and afraid, a teenager accused of more than 20 holdups surrendered meekly Saturday a few minutes after he entered a home here and demanded refuge at knife point.

The capture of 19-year-old Charles Averill climaxed an all-night, house-to-house search by 300 police officers.

Begging for mercy, Averill stumbled from the bathroom in the home of Robert Reines, pleading: "Don't shoot, don't shoot. I'm unarmed. Have some respect for my mother."

Reines, his wife and three young sons watched as a dozen armed men took Averill into custody.

Averill, of nearby Long Beach, gained entrance to the Reines home when six-year-old David Reines innocently admitted him at a rear door.

"He was blustery at first," said the father, relating that the young fugitive grabbed a butcher knife from the kitchen table after learning the family had no guns.

"But gradually he became more polite," Reines said. "The kid was obviously frightened out of his wits . . . He told us he had wounded a police officer and was afraid the police would kill him."

Police said Averill shot his way out of a trap in this Los Angeles suburb Friday night when he and an accomplice called at the home of a young girl friend. Acting on a tip, police were waiting. The pair had been sought for a week in connection with an Anaheim liquor store holdup.

But Averill spotted the officers as they entered the girl's house. Police said he fled his gun blazing, but was wounded in the side. George Laughter, an Anaheim detective, suffered a superficial wound in the exchange of fire.

Averill rushed to a car driven by Joseph E. Armstrong, 20, of Long Beach, and they tried to escape, police said, but the car failed to make a turn and crashed into a curb.

Averill fled through a citrus grove but Armstrong was flushed from a nearby house and captured. Armstrong was carrying a rifle, but did not use it, the officers said.

Jets to Italy In 2 Jumps

UDINE, Italy—(AP)—Eighteen supersonic fighter planes completed a flight from America Saturday in two jumps, landing at Aviano Air Base near this northern Italian city.

The fighters — F100 Supersabres of the 356th Tactical Squadron — set off Tuesday from Myrtle Beach Air Force Base in South Carolina.

They were refueled by air-tankers over Bermuda and the Azores, but bad weather forced the planes down at an air-base in Morocco. The squadron took off from there Saturday morning and the planes landed at Aviano Air Base at two-minute intervals.

The first was piloted by Col. Francis Gabreski, famous fighter pilot who brought down 37 enemy planes during the Korean war.

Ike Declares U.S. Will Never Accept Khrushchev's Plan

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Eisenhower solemnly told Russia Saturday the U.S. never will accept Premier Nikita Khrushchev's plan to turn East Berlin over to the East German Reds May 27.

Eisenhower was reported to have given this notice during a 1¾-hour meeting with Deputy Soviet Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan.

The White House conference, climaxing Mikoyan's two-week visit to this country, ended with no sign of concession by either side on Berlin, Germany or disarmament.

Despite this, informed officials predicted a Big Four foreign ministers conference will be held sometime this spring before the date Russia has fixed for ending four-power Berlin rule.

The 63-year-old Mikoyan, relaxed and smiling, went immediately to the Soviet embassy. Presumably, he will draft a report to the Kremlin on his round of talks. First, however, he went for a drive in Washington's Rock Creek Park.

His morning meeting with Eisenhower capped 11½ hours of talks with administration leaders, four of them directly with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

In view of the continued East-West deadlock, Eisenhower was understood to be banking heavily on Mikoyan's personal insight into U.S. policy, gained by his talks and travel, to pave the way for what this government regards as a more reasonable attitude.

Authorities familiar with Mikoyan's talks said that despite his relatively mild language, he reaffirmed Russia's Berlin plan while disclaiming any thought it should be considered a peace or war ultimatum.

Eisenhower and Dulles were said to have met this by re-emphasizing that the U.S., with pledges of solid backing by its allies, will refuse to accept Soviet moves to scrap international agreements on Berlin's status.

Informants gave this point-by-point summary of the outcome of the confidential discussions with Mikoyan:

A SUMMIT MEETING — Neither side mentioned this, despite Mikoyan's advance public remarks urging a high-level conference without any formal agenda.

A BIG FOUR MEETING — No effort was made to set the time, place, or agenda. But U.S. authorities expressed confidence a foreign ministers meeting would be arranged.

DISARMAMENT — Dulles stressed there is an urgent American desire for an East-West ban on nuclear weapons explosions, provided adequate inspection is included. Eisenhower and Mikoyan agreed that modern armaments impose a crushing financial burden on governments.

GERMAN ELECTIONS — Mikoyan vigorously denounced the idea of free elections.

Sun-Shy Mikoyan Ditches Us

By ELVALEE SWIFT
Herald Staff Writer

Anastas I. Mikoyan, Russia's No. 2 man, abruptly canceled plans Saturday to visit Florida, reportedly because he feared too much sunshine.

An embassy spokesman in Washington said the Soviet Deputy Premier decided he might catch cold if he came here and then went directly back to Moscow's sub-zero winter.

Mikoyan was to be here Wednesday and Thursday after a fast look at Tampa and a tour of the citrus belt of Polk County.

Jubilant members of an anti-Communist refugee group, Guardians of Liberty, ditched plans for protest Miami demonstrations when they heard of Mikoyan's cancellation.

The group, made up mostly of Hungarians, was to meet the Kremlin leader dressed in black, driving cars draped in black and carrying crosses.

They also had fashioned a black coffin to present to Mikoyan.

Mikoyan's fears about balmy Florida weather were well founded, Miami weathermen said. If he arrived Wednesday, as scheduled, the cold snap would have been only a memory.

In Washington Saturday, temperatures skittered down to 10 degrees and the snow was turning to ice.

In announcing his change of plans, Mikoyan also said he will leave for Moscow three days earlier than he had planned. He will attend a Washington reception given by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov Monday and leave Tuesday.

Archbishop Joseph Patrick Hurley of the St. Augustine diocese had suggested mass bell-ringing in defiance of Mikoyan's visit. A diocese priest said Saturday he thought the plans had been abandoned.

Oh, Well, When It's Gotta Snow, It's Gotta Snow

Cold-Numbed East Busy Digging Out

NEW YORK —(AP)— Intense cold numbed much of the eastern half of the nation Saturday on the heels of crippling snowstorms in parts of the Midwest and East.

Emergency crews took advantage of clearing skies to dig through snowdrifts that halted auto production and closed schools in northwestern Indiana and stalled traffic in western New York state. Snow forced suspension of racing for the second straight day at Charles Town, W.Va.

Parts of Michigan were buried under four to 18 inches of snow.

A state of emergency was ended at noon Saturday in South Bend and Mishawaka, Ind. Brisk winds had whipped an 18-inch snowfall into mountainous road-blocking drifts throughout the area.

Stores reopened with the end of emergency status but the Studebaker - Packard Corp. plant and University of Notre Dame remained closed. The main roads and streets were reopened after an all night battle with the drifts.

New York state had at least eight traffic deaths attributed to the storm. An infant died of exposure in Georgia when the mercury fell to 12 degrees at Athens.

Five-foot drifts stalled traffic on South Buffalo's Fuhrmann Boulevard along Lake Erie shoreline. Many cars remained bogged down overnight.

The snowfall was reported 21 inches on the level near Pulaski, N.Y., east of Lake Ontario.

Highways were slippery and travel was hazardous in parts of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Millinocket, Maine, and Tallahassee, Fla., had identical temperatures of 34 degrees Saturday afternoon.

But upper areas of the Midwest bore the brunt of the Arctic blasts. Bemidji, Minn., had an overnight low of 30 below and midday readings in northern Minnesota were 12 to 16 below zero. The subzero afternoon cold extended southward into Iowa.

Your Teeth Will Still Chatter

The tail-end of a crop-withering cold wave that gripped North Florida early Sunday will keep Miamians' teeth chattering at least until Monday.

Freezing weather was expected early Sunday as far south as the lower East Coast farmlands. Farmers in central and North Florida had smudge pots burning furiously in an effort to save their crops.

And the warmup that the Miami Weather Bureau predicted earlier has been postponed until after Monday morning, the forecasters said.

The Frost Warning Service predicted the mercury would nosedive sharply early Sunday, dropping even lower than the low 20s in several North Florida spots Saturday.

Although frost was forecast for most farming areas, the service said it would be mostly light because of dryness of the air.

The temperature was expected to skid to as low as 15 in pockets and mucklands.

Telephone Operator Wins $800

Sunny Helps Pay Doctor

By SUNNY FORTUNE
Herald Puzzle Editor

A 50-year-old Miami telephone operator with a broken leg and a collection of doctor bills won my $800 jackpot last week.

SUNNY

Mrs. Mildred Eysmont, of 742 NW 52nd St., said she started working the Sunny Fortune puzzles when she broke her leg nine months ago.

"But I never thought I'd win," said the flabbergasted woman. "I'm so surprised I think I'll drop dead."

I talked Mrs. Eysmont out of any such drastic reaction and praised her for getting the word "NEAR" in last week's puzzle where so many others missed and put "NEAT."

Incidentally, that was the only word missed by Patty Motta, Miami; Edward Zwicker, North Miami, and H. F. Keller, Titusville.

I've been swamped with opinions about the new puzzle as compared to the old, and frankly, readers, so far it looks like a toss-up.

Some of you have complained the new one is too easy.

If that's the case, dig in. I'm willing to give you $300 if you solve my puzzle this week. It's on page 14C.

TWA Airliner Lands on Belly

KANSAS CITY, Mo. —(UPI)— A Trans World Airline Super Constellation screeched to a smooth and safe belly landing over a foam covered runway Saturday after the fate of the 33 persons aboard hung in the balance for more than five hours when the landing gear failed to function.

Sparks spewed out behind the huge craft as it glided along for 2,000 feet with fire trucks and ambulances racing alongside, but there was no fire and no one was injured.

Cries of "beautiful landing" and "thank God" rang out over the crowded Olathe Naval Air Station on the southwest edge of metropolitan Kansas City where the four-engined, three-tailed aircraft had been diverted.

The first passenger off said, "it couldn't have been a better landing if we had been on wheels."

All passengers paid tributes to Capt. Norman Schaeffer, a veteran TWA pilot from Kansas City who maintained control and kept panic from erupting during the ordeal.

Schaeffer's wife watched from her backyard as the plane circled. "I was scared at first — shaking and upset. But . . . Norm and I are both Christians and I knew that if it was the Lord's will, the whole plane would come down safely and if it wasn't it was supposed to be taken that way."

The passengers also told how Flight Engineer O. W. Mollohan of Ivydale, W. Va., and John Probey, 24, a mechanic for Capital Airlines who was a passenger, worked for almost the entire five hours to raise the left landing gear.

They poured coffee and water into the hydraulic system to build up pressure. If they had not succeeded, a much more dangerous landing attempt would have been in prospect with only one gear down.

It was the right gear that failed to lower as the Washington-Indianapolis-St. Louis-Kansas City airliner tried to make its regular landing at St. Louis.

When it failed to function, Capt. Schaeffer continued on to Kansas City to use up fuel and lessen the fire hazard while attempts were made to repair it.

He asked all women passengers to donate their lipstick and liquid cosmetics in an attempt to pressurize the hydraulic system on the right side but failed.

The plane had developed a leak in the hydraulic system and dimes and lipstick cases used in an attempt to stop it also failed.

The crew had been in continuous communications with mechanics on the ground who pored over blueprints to help find the trouble.

The passengers in the plane huddled over the wing section, considered the safest part, and braced and cushioned themselves with pillows.

A veteran Navy chief in charge of the control tower said he had witnessed more than a million landings and added that he had never seen a better one, "wheels up or down."

4:21 p.m., an airline spokesman said.

"We took the quickest way down. We couldn't waste time," said the cool-headed Rush.

Co-pilot was R. P. Harkless. The other crewmen were R. E. Eshbach, flight engineer, and Stewardesses Pat Tharpe and Wanda Carr.

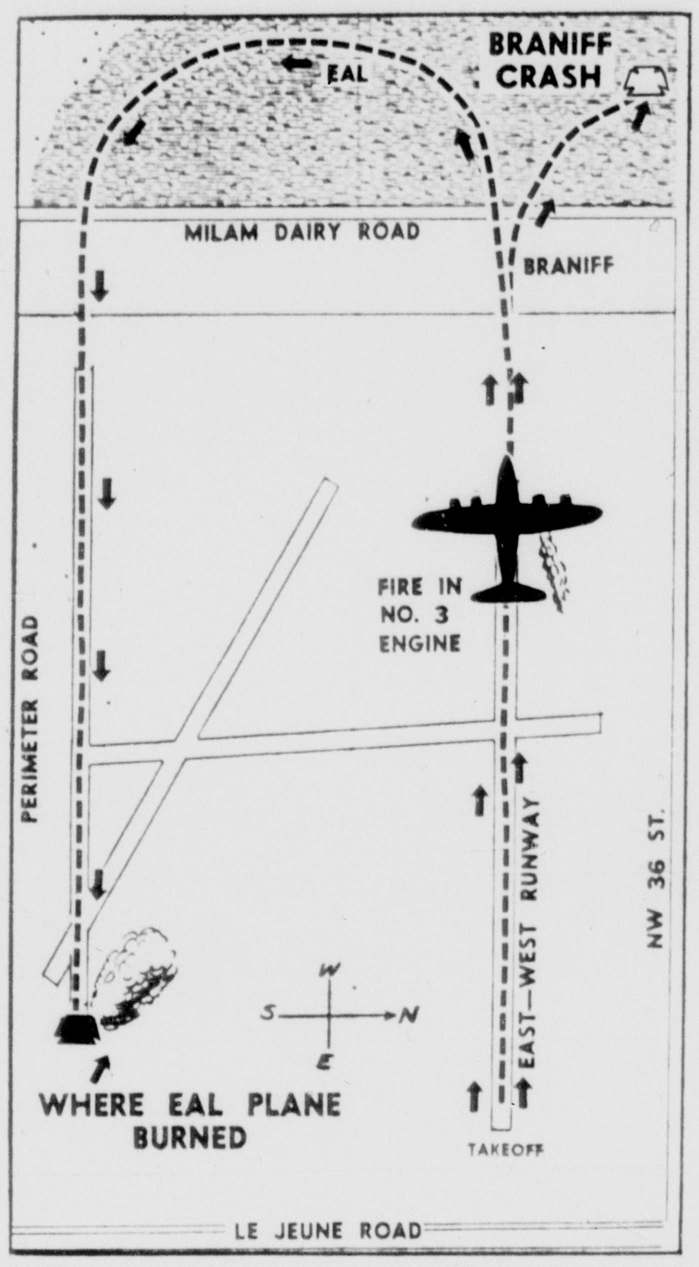
The Eastern plane was between 500 and 800 feet off the ground when Rush started his circle back to the airport, standing the plane on its left wing to keep the flames from the right side away from the cabin.

A control tower observer said Rush "didn't say much when he was coming in. I guess he was busy. But he told us to have the fire equipment ready."

Trucks from the Port Authority's fire station at the airport, Miami, Hialeah, Miami Springs and Dade County rushed to the scene of the flaming plane.

Some witnesses said there appeared to be a shortage of foam to douse the fire. They said when the flames were almost out, they suddenly broke out again.

But the Port Authority fire captain said "we didn't use all of the foam we had on hand."



Japanese Drag Yank To Police

YOKOHAMA, Japan—(UPI)—Five irate Japanese citizens dragged an American soldier from a train and carted him to the police on charges of defiling a Japanese flag, authorities said.

SP-4 Cedric E. Nelson, 21, of Alexandria, Minn., was accused of draping a Japanese flag over a shelf aboard a passenger train and deliberately setting fire to it with a cigaret lighter.

An Army spokesman said the Japanese planned to accuse Nelson of larceny and unlawful display and destruction of the flag.

Frondizi's U.S. Trip Slanted to Investors

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — (UPI) — President Arturo Frondizi said Saturday he will take a long list o. projects to the U.S. today in hopes of attracting huge new amounts of U.S. government and private capital to Argentina.

The projects — involving waterworks, steel and oil production, transportation and agriculture — are regarded by the 50-year-old president as necessary to pull Argentina out of the economic shambles left by ousted Dictator Juan D. Peron.

Frondizi will meet with President Eisenhower Tuesday. He will be the first Argentine president to visit the U.S.

Aside from his talks with Eisenhower and other government officials, Frondizi will carry his campaign for investment in Argentina directly to businessmen and bankers in Chicago, Detroit and New York.

He said he was confident the 12-day trip and the talks would result in a "new era of mutual understanding and cooperation in all fields" between the U.S. and Argentina.

He said his meetings before his inauguration last February with the heads of government of Brazil, Chile, Uruguay and Peru already had proved invaluable in dealing with these states.

Frondizi made it plain that the main objective of the trip was to impress the U.S. with the soundness of his economic policies.

U.S. Gets Warning From Fidel

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — Fidel Castro has warned the U.S. against attempting to use "cannon diplomacy" to halt the executions of Batistans. At the same time he is starting a campaign of pressure against the U.S. to "return the war criminals."

These attitudes were outlined as revolutionary officials discounted reports that former Dictator Fulgencio Batista had landed a counterattacking force, or was planning to do so, somewhere in Cuba.

Maj. Victor Borden, acting commander at La Cabana, the fortress across the bay from Havana, told newsmen such an attack from Batista's refuge in the Dominican Republic was improbable.

"When he had 55,000 troops he couldn't hurt us," said Borden. "What can he do with 10,000?"

He apparently was referring to a report from revolutionary military intelligence that Batista was trying to organize an invasion force of 10,000 men.

Borden said, however, that his chief at La Cabana, Maj. Ernesto Guevara, had departed for the central province of Las Villas because revolutionary units were somewhat disorganized. He declined to explain further.

It was announced that Maj. Eloy Guttierrez Menoyo, who commanded 4,000 to 5,000 men in spearhead fighting in Las Villas, had led his men back to the province from Havana for demoblization. There was speculation, however, that the move was a precaution against any Batista counterblow.

Chief of CIA Doubts A-Plane

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Allen W. Dulles, director of the super - secret Central Intelligence Agency, has told congressional leaders he does not believe the Soviet Union now has a flyable nuclear-powered plane, it was learned Saturday.

The CIA chief feels that the Russians are ahead of the U.S. in certain phases of missile development — notably in the range of intercontinental ballistic missiles. But he believes we also lead in some phases.

These, according to informed sources, were the highlights of a closed-door briefing Dulles gave a Senate armed services subcommittee Friday.

National Summary

Another cold morning is in store for the eastern half of the nation with below freezing temperatures extending over most of Florida and sub zero cold from the northern plains south of the Great Lakes into Pennsylvania and New York State.

Today, however, should find warmer weather from the eastern slopes of the Rockies into the plains and the Gulf States reaching the Carolinas with partly cloudy skies spreading from the southern plains across the Gulf regions.

Snow flurries from the Great Lakes into New England with locally heavy squalls along the lee shores of the lakes will maintain near blizzard conditions in upstate New York.

Fair skies are expected to continue over the southwest but the pattern of scattered rains in the Pacific northwest may spread a few showers into northwest California.

Scattered snows are expected in the high central Rockies with occasional light snow from eastern portions of the plains into adjacent portions of the mid and upper Mississippi Valley.

Temperatures at Tallahassee stood at 34 degrees shortly after noon Saturday for the frigid blast covering the eastern half of the nation was just beginning to fasten its grip.

National Howls Over Airport Cancellation

Never Used Space, Wagener Explains

By PETER LAINE
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — National Airlines unleased a howl of protest Saturday to the County Commission's termination of its lease on space at the Broward International Airport Terminal.

But the protest failed to arouse sympathy among officials who feel that National brought the cancellation on itself.

The four-year lease with a 16-year option began in 1955, but the airline never moved into the old terminal building.

It was terminated in November when another airline, Northeast, announced it would be the first to start non-stop service to the north.

"The commission does not have the authority to rescind the lease in this manner," replied H. B. Taylor, assistant to National's treasurer, in a letter to the board.

The airline is not in default, he added.

Referring to the Civil Aeronautics Board's approval of service by National, Northeast and Eastern airlines, Taylor added: "The CAB did not give anyone priority. We must enforce the lease if necessary."

"We're confident there's some misunderstanding," he noted.

Airport Director Lee Wagener said Saturday: "National never used its space, never paid for it, and never pursued its application to start service."

The new terminal building will be occupied next month, Wagner added.

"We won't have enough space to give everyone all they want," he warned.

FORT LAUDERDALE — Northeast Airlines Tuesday will provide a second daily flight in and out of Broward International Airport, this one to and from Washington and New York.

It will originate in Miami, leaving there at 8:45 a.m. and arrive here at 9:10. It will leave Broward at 9:45 a.m. and and arrive in Washington at 1:20 p.m. and New York Idewild Airport at 2:55 p.m.

The southbound flight will leave Idlewild at 4:15 p.m., Washington at 5:55 p.m., reaching Broward at 9:40 p.m. and Miami at 10:30 p.m.

The company expects the bulk of the passengers to get on and off at Broward and is allowing about a half-hour for the plane at Broward International on each flight.

The airline said the northbound flight will make a direct connection at Washington for Boston. Passengers can also make connections for other sections of the U.S.

The airline will fly DC6BS, the plane now used on the daily roundtrip to Idlewild. This flight arrives at Broward International at 2:25 p.m., and leaves at 4:30 p.m.

Revision Abolishes Constables

Three-Tier Court System Adopted by Judicial Council

Options Allowed Counties

Legislature May Balk at Reforms

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — A plan for the most complete revision of Florida's judicial system since the present state constitution was drawn up in 1885 was adopted Saturday by the State Judicial Council.

A product of years of work by the 17-member group of laymen and lawyers, the plan will be put before the 1959 Legislature as a proposed constitutional amendment and incorporated in several proposed laws.

The heart of the plan is the consolidation of all trial courts into a single system, made up of three tiers — Circuit Courts, County Courts and Magistrate Courts.

Counties of 100,000 or more population would have the option of combining the County Court, or parts of it, with their Circuit Courts.

Other main parts of the plan would:

PLACE ALL judges on salary and abolish the fee systems on which many now operate.

REWRITE the laws on jurors and witnesses and other laymen in the courts. Fees for jurors and witnesses would be raised to $10 a day and jury commissions would be established in all counties with population of 25,000 or more.

DESIGNATE the state attorney as chief prosecutor in all courts and authorize him to appoint his own assistants now appointed by the governor, and designate the Sheriff as the chief enforcement officer for all courts, abolishing the office of constable.

LAY DOWN minimum procedural rules for administrative boards and agencies having quasi-judicial powers to insure the right of due process of law for those appearing before them.

REMOVE the constitutional limitation of 16 judicial circuits but require any new circuit to have at least 100,000 persons.

AUTHORIZE one Circuit Judge for every 50,000 population or major fraction, as at present, but allow the Legislature to create additional circuit judgeships, or abolish them, upon the showing of a "permanent need."

REMOVE the constitutional limitation of three District Courts of Appeal of three judges each, allowing more districts and more judgeships if needed.

AUTHORIZE cities to operate municipal courts, but permit these to be combined with magistrate courts, if the city wishes.

Many features of the council's plan are expected to be controversial in the Legislature. Council Member W. A. Shands, retiring President of the Senate, commented that it would be hard to sell the Legislature on the need for removing restrictions on the number of Appellate Court districts and judges. He voted against that feature of the revision plan.

The council chairman, Supreme Court Justice Stephen C. O'Connell of Fort Lauderdale, says the council's aim is to eliminate the hodgepodge of existing trial courts for a single efficient system. The State Supreme Court would administer the three-court system.

Arthur Lundeen, council executive director, said special trial courts had been set up to meet needs when Florida began growing rapidly.

Broward Port Chief Leads Harbor Group

FORT LAUDERDALE — The appointment of Port Everglades Manager R. T. Spangler as temporary president of the newly-formed Florida Ports and Foreign Trade Council was announced here Saturday.

The non-profit organization will operate as an independent division of the State Chamber of Commerce with headquarters at the FSCC Building in Jacksonville.

Some 14 state ports will be represented on the board. Other members will be the FSCC executive vice president and the executive director of the Florida Development Commission.

The council's objectives are to increase the flow of cargos through Florida ports, improve facilities and promote cooperation between operators and users.

The council's first meeting will be Feb. 16, Spangler said. Application for membership can be made through the FSCC.

Weekend Spent Relocating Police

By PAT MANGAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Police Department will be open for business in its new W. Broward Blvd. building at 7 a.m. Monday.

Moving operations began Friday. Truckloads of records and furniture were taken from the old, building to the new, but the department will contigue to function in its present location through tonight.

The portion of city hall now occupied by the jail and police offices will be remodeled.

The city attorney, credit union, and purchasing, recreation and planning departments will move in after the remodeling is completed.

Space vacated by the departments which are moving will be used to enlarge personnel, finance and the city manager's offices.

The Beach office now occupied by the Recreation Department will be used for storage.

City Manager William J. Veeder said the official opening of the new police building will be postponed until it is completed.

He said police are moving in slightly in advance of completion because the department must be functioning at W. Broward Blvd. by Monday to give the telephone company time to make alterations in the city hall telephone system.

All calls will be routed through a switchboard in the police building. The system must be in effect by Jan. 26 as the new telephone book comes out on that date with new numbers listed for city departments.

Two Killed As Train Rams Auto on Tracks

DANIA — At least two men were killed late Saturday when their car, stalled on the tracks, was struck by a northbound Florida East Coast Railroad passenger train and knocked into the deep waters of the Dania Cut-Off Canal.

One of the victims was tentatively identified as Stephan Murphy, 32, of 4862 SW 44th Ter., Fort Lauderdale, at Memorial Hospital in Hollywood. The men were pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital.

The engineer of the train told highway patrolmen he saw the machine on the tracks and it lurched once or twice, as if the driver were trying to start it.

The engineer said he applied the train brakes in emergency, but the distance was too short for the train to come to a halt. The locomotive struck the auto and hurled it 30 yards into the canal.

Divers were called to search the canal on the possibility more people had been in the auto.

Hallandale To Ask For Annexation

By TOM VINCIQUERRA
Herald Staff Writer

HALLANDALE — Annexation, commission raises, higher ceiling on street assessments and a municipal pension plan are among six charter changes the city fathers will ask the state legislature for this year.

Hearings on the proposed changes will be held by the Broward legislative delegation Wednesday at the court house in Fort Lauderdale.

The annexation bid calls for extending the west city limits about one mile to State Road 9, pending approval by voters in Hallandale and the new area.

Commission salaries, now $50 a month, would be raised to $100.

The city fathers, under the proposed street assessment hike, could levy as much as 100 per cent of improvement costs against benefited property owners. The maximum permitted now under the city charter is two thirds.

Other charter changes, besides the pension plan, call for:

ALLOWING benefited property owners to pay sewer installation charges monthly instead of quarterly.

AUTHORIZING the vice mayor to sign checks in the mayor's absence.

The Next 10 Years? Our Best Youngsters Know Their Goals

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — What do you hope to accomplish over the next 10 years?

Have you set any goals?

The young men who accomplished the most in recent years — and were honored for it when the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce selected them among the nation's 10 most outstanding young men — have their futures definitely in mind.

They regard their honored, brief pasts as groundwork for the goals they still seek. None will change his field, but each will pioneer for better things in it.

Dr. Hugh Wilson III, cardiac and thoracic surgeon, Dallas, Tex.:

"My goal is to have a part in increasing the effectiveness in treating heart disease — the nation's greatest killer. It's a big job and a surgeon's role is most important. But teamwork is essential. We could do little without the cooperation of many people."

Lt. Shepherd Jenks, navigator of the USS Nautilus:

"My ambition is to stay with nuclear - powered submarines and have a part in developing one from which guided missiles can be fired while the sub is submerged. It would provide our nation with a major weapon."

Dr. Richard Smith, pediatrician, University of Florida medical research center:

"My ambition is to help develop one of the world's finest, if not the finest, Departments of Pediatrics, at the University of Florida."

Dr. Gus Turbeville, president of Northland College, Ashland, Wisc.:

"My goal is to see Northland College become the world's finest liberal arts school. I want it to have the best teachers, students and alumni. I want to see more emphasis placed on teaching. I want good salaries and more freedom for our teachers."

Judge Loren Schnack, former county and probate judge in Quincy, Ill.:

"I should like to see people everywhere take more interest in public affairs, an active interest operation on the bottom level. So many formal programs are initiated and never get beyond meetings, conferences and publicity."

Dr. James Grace, cancer research surgeon:

"My goal is to be part of an era which sees the control of preventive and malignant diseases become a reality. That's my only goal."

Warren Phillips, managing editor of Wall Street Journal: "I hope to continue to have a part in the dissemination of news."

Dr. Donald Glaser, nuclear physicist: "I hope to come up with some of the many unanswered and underlying factors important to those of us in the field of physics."

'Idle Talk,' Collins On Keynoting

FORT LAUDERDALE — Governor LeRoy Collins said Saturday that reports he may be keynote speaker for the 1960 Democratic National Convention were "just idle talk."

"That kind of talk is just going in one ear and out the other as far as I'm concerned," said Collins.

"It's far too early to start talking about who's going to be the keynote speaker," he said.

However the greying, distinguished-looking governor said that he would be honored if chosen as the speaker.

"Any Democrat would," he said.

The governor is here for the presentation of awards to ten outstanding young men of the nation, who are being honored here by the Jaycees.

Reports boosting Collins as keynote speaker originated in New Orleans.

Two National Democratic Site committeemen, apparently charmed by Collins' eloquence in attempting to have Miami Beach host the convention, began to speak of him as a keynoter.

Camile Gravel of Alexandria, La., chairman of the site committee and Louisiana's National Democratic Committeeman, said, "Gov. Collins is an excellent man to open the convention and the campaign."

Rebuilding Grandpa's Old Bridge

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — A grandson will finish what his grandfather started.

Acting County Engineer Bob Davis is about ready to advertise for bids for the widening of the Old Dixie Hwy. bridge over the North Fork of Middle River.

The bridge was designed by his grandfather, H. C. Davis, when he was county engineer. When it was built, in 1928, it was the main road to Miami — 16 feet wide.

A subsequent widening gave it paving 20 feet across and brought the bridge to 24 feet.

The projected widening will make it 28 feet wide, enough room for two full traffic lanes and a sidewalk.

The work will cost an estimated $10,000. The cities of Fort Lauderdale and Wilton Manors will pay $3,000 each and the county, the remainder.

Women's Club Says:

Job For Salvino Draws GOP Fire

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Republican Woman's Club of Broward County announced Saturday it unanimously opposes appointment of Tony Salvino, former county commissioner, to "a new specially created position at the expense of the taxpayers."

Salvino's former colleagues, including three Republicans, are considering making the veteran Democrat county director of roads and bridges. His experience should not be wasted, they claim.

The commission invited the public to express its ideas on the issue. Several pro and con opinions have been filed.

Action on the appointment is not expected for some weeks. Chairman George Petersen said a complete survey of personnel needs is under way — one department at a time.

"We're starting with building and zoning, then we'll do the Welfare Department," Petersen said. "Roads and Bridges will probably be next."

Appeal Due On Laundry Ruling

Herald Bureau

WILTON MANORS — More legal action is scheduled in the city's bitter fight over coin-operated laundries.

Attorney Paris Singer said he's served notice on combatants that he is appealing last week's Board of Adjustment ruling against his client, Henry Reibling, 2400 NE Eighth Ave.

Pyro Inc., represented by Municipal Judge William Leonard, is trying to install a laundry in a business 1 zone on Wilton Dr. near Riebling's home. Laundries are in the city's business 2 category.

Last year the City Council approved Leonard's request to put coin-operated laundries in the business 1 class. The ordinance making the change was never read in public.

Singer attacked the ordinance in Circuit Court, and it was thrown out.

The Board of Adjustment compromised on the issue, granting Leonard's rquest with limitations.

The new suit will be filed in Circuit Court as soon as the five days' appeal notice has elapsed, he said.

Enforcement, Publicity Cut Iowa Traffic Deaths

DES MOINES —(AP)— Massive doses of law enforcement and publicity, prescribed by Iowa's traffic doctors, saved 95 lives on the streets and highways of this state last year.

Let's Stop Killing Ourselves

They consider their prescription only partly successful — but they believe they've found a formula for a more potent medicine.

The traffic toll in Iowa was 595 last year as against 690 in 1957 — a fall of about 17 per cent. That was the largest reduction in the midwest and one of the biggest in the nation.

Besides saving lives, it has sharply trimmed the economic losses of Iowans. Many auto insurance companies have cut their rates for Iowa.

The state's chief traffic diagnostician, state safety commissioner Russell Brown, credits these factors for most of the decrease:

1—A "point system" under which the safety department assessed varying numbers of points against persons convicted of traffic violations. When a motorist accumulated 10 points, his license was suspended.

2—Use of radar speed detectors on the highways — the first time radar had been used for traffic control in Iowa.

3—"Excellent cooperation" of newspapers, radio and television stations and the wire services in publicizing traffic problems and the activities of law enforcement officers.

4—Unrelenting efforts by the State Highway Patrol, county sheriff's officers and city police to enforce the traffic laws.

None of these is new, Brown admits, but they added up to a fairly effective program for Iowa.

There has been no favoritism shown in operation of the point system. Brown himself lost five points when he was caught exceeding the speed limit in Des Moines. Atty. Gen. Norman Erbe, Maj. Gen. Fred C. Tandy, adjutant general of Iowa and state comptroller Glenn Sarsfield also have points on their records.

But Iowa can't afford to rest on its laurels, Brown said. If further gains are to be made, new ingredients must be added to the medicine.

"You can't concentrate on just one thing in traffic enforcement," he said. "That is like holding a tight bandage over one cut while your life blood spurts out another wound that you can't even reach."

In Iowa, that second wound is the 90,000 miles of rural roads. While lives were being saved last year on primary highways and city streets, deaths on secondary roads took a jump.

Brown has asked the legislature to beef up the State Highway Patrol so it can patrol the secondary roads. He says the patrol needs at least 150 more men. It now has 250, excluding driver license examiners, and that means only about 80 men — fewer than one per county — can be on the road at any one time.

He also wants a law requiring completion of a state-approved driver education course before a person under 18 years old can be licensed. Under present law 16-year-olds are eligible for a license.

Blast Kills 3 Workmen

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— Three workmen were killed Saturday in an explosion at the nearby Duquesne works of U.S. Steel Corp.

A company spokesman identified the victims as Albert Chorey, 34, of Port Vue; Homer W. Maley, 57, of Duquesne, and Petra Jenca, 59, of Duquesne.

The victims were working in a pig machine building of the blast furnance department.

A company spokesman said a ladle of molten iron apparently upset, touching off an explosion of some type.

The blast apparently killed the three men instantly. Nobody else was in the building and there were no witnesses.

'You Put on Long Underwear . . . Stand in the Cold for Hours . . . and Watch the Happy Workers'

Two Years in Moscow

Attache Lifts Iron Curtain

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Getting any military information out of the Russians is a grim job requiring attendance at an average of three parties a week.

"You also have to get out for the parades and see the equipment," said Air Force Col. Thomas W. Wolfe, who's just back from two years as a military attache in the American embassy at Moscow.

"On Nov. 7, the anniversary of the revolution, you have to put on long underwear and stand in the cold for hours and watch the happy workers march by.

"They have a fly-by and you get a glimpse of their aircraft."

His role in Moscow was to assess Russian air force capabilities and provide information to Washington on new technical developments.

He had to go to diplomatic functions at the various embassies to meet and talk with Russian officials and officers. His job was to pick up any information they might be ready to drop. They dropped very little.

"It's the most security-ridden place in the world," he said. "Even the telephone books are registered and kept under lock and key . . .

"Pictures of their aircraft aren't published until they begin to obsolesce, and that's usually when they start selling them to the satellites."

Although he can't comment on military matters, he can comment on those that interested him as a citizen.

He doesn't feel the Russian educational system is better than ours.

"Basically, they're training a technical generation and giving them a somewhat narrower training than their equivalents are getting in the U.S.

"Here we're training a more rounded citizen . . . They're getting a specialist, but this is not necessarily something we want to substitute for the broader goals of our educational system."

His observations on the Russian educational system are based partly on the experience of his son, Tony, 18, who attended Moscow State University for one semester.

He couldn't comment on whether Russians appeared to be ahead of this country in missile or aircraft development or whether they have a nuclear-powered bomber. But from what little he saw of their equipment, he said it appeared to be good.

A military attache's job is a delicate one — he's a kind of official spy and part of his problem is to get information legitimately without embarrassing his government.

"I'd say the difference between a spy and a military attache is that a spy in the classical sense pretends to be something that he isn't," said the colonel.

An attache, on the other hand, takes pains to identify himself whenever he strikes up a conversation so that he can't be accused of spying.

Another part of his job was to try to determine how much of the Russian budget goes for defense. This takes study, because the published figures don't paint a true picture.

Price schedules on materials differ according to their priority. For instance, metals for consumer goods are charged for at much higher rates than they are when used for submarines or aircraft.

Also part of the money allocated to education is used for research in fields related directly to defense and is in reality part of defense spending.

What he found out about Russian defense spending compared with ours he couldn't divulge, but it's a lot more than the Russian peace lovers admit.

He, his wife and their three children traveled extensively within limits imposed by the Russians and, whenever they stopped, their American car drew a crowd. There were large areas to which they were denied access.

"People wanted to know first about the engine and the car and how much it cost," he said. "Then they wanted to know if people like them in America could buy them.

"When you tell them how much it costs in their money and that, yes, people in America on the same economic level can buy cars, then they're likely to get mad because your answers contain an implied criticism of their country. They think you're lying.

"So you have to be very, very careful."

The two younger children, Timothy, 11, and Ellen, 9, weren't enthusiastic about life in Moscow and were glad to get home.

Col. Wolfe prepared for his Russian assignment by taking a master's degree in Russian studies at Columbia University and a doctorate at Georgetown University. He's fluent in the Russian language.

He and his wife are staying at 311 N. Gordon Rd. His next assignment is at the Pentagon.

Outstanding Young Man Says: Teenagers Spoon-Fed

12-Month School Year? Top Educator Says It Will Cut Juvenile Delinquency

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

TURBEVILLE

FORT LAUDERDALE — One of the nation's leading educators declared here that a 12-month school year would, among other things, reduce juvenile delinquency and possibly eliminate sex crimes.

Dr. Gus Turbeville, president of Northland College in Ashland, Wis., and one of the nation's 10 outstanding young men, as selected by the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce, made the observation.

He also proposed that 18-year-old youths be permitted to vote in city, county, state and federal elections.

"We're spoon-feeding our teenagers," Dr. Turbeville declared. "They aren't as mature as their European counterparts, and immaturity is principally responsible for delinquency and sex crimes."

Among other proposals, he recommended marriage for 15 and 16-year-old youths.

Under a 12-month school year, Dr. Turbeville said, youngsters could complete high school at the age of 15 and be graduated from college when they're 20 or 21.

"Youngsters who don't go to college," he explained, "would go to work, increasing our labor force and stepping up productivity. This, in turn, would enhance our wealth."

He said permitting 18-year-olds to vote would "give them an added sense of responsibility and increase their interest and knowledge in government."

A 12-month school year, Dr. Turbeville added, would mean full-time jobs and higher salaries for school teachers.

Touching on integration, he said: "Acceptance of a person should be based on the merits of the individual, not on the color of his skin."

He termed intramural sports "vital," but was critical of interscholastic sports "in which 10 or 20 athletes perform for 80,000 spectators".

Declaring sports are overemphasized, the president declared: "We don't have a gymnasium at my school. But our classrooms are the finest."

Our Schools Rate High Too

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Structurally, Broward County schools are among the best in the state.

That's the opinion of the man who has been building them, School Planner Charles Lowery, and he gets plenty of support in his opinion.

Lowery made the remark in commenting on a recent Time magazine article which labeled Sarasota schools a "showcase of school architecture."

"Sarasota has some excellent schools," Lowery commented. "And they've got some bad ones too."

He said the same situation exists in Broward County.

"I wouldn't say the schools we're building are superior to those in Sarasota, but they're as good when everything is taken into consideration."

He said Sarasota has more money to build schools, and added that architects there are among the best in the country.

In some instances, he said, Broward County schools are being built for half the money spent in Sarasota.

Referring to a Sarasota School Board member's claim that its modern architecture has "reduced truancy drastically — kids enjoy going to school now," Lowery said:

"It may be true, but I doubt it. A school's curriculum, I'd think, would influence attendance more than a building."

Charles Forman, chairman of the Broward County Taxpayers Association's committee on education, concurred with the planner.

"One of the most popular schools in the county is the old Naval Air Base school," Forman said. "The kids love it. I know. Several of mine have gone there."

Forman, who spearheaded a successful campaign for an $18.5 million school construction bond issue here several years ago, has been one of Lowery's staunchest supporters.

School Board members are behind him too, and frequently boast that schools here cost less than they do elsewhere.

Lowery said he hasn't been over the state much since coming here three years ago.

"About the only schools I've seen elsewhere are those in Dade County, and I feel we're doing a better job up here. Our classrooms are larger and we're building them for less money."

Lowery said he once asked the local chapter of the American Institute of Architects to submit ideas that might improve county schools.

"They were interested, but apparently got busy and didn't get around to it," he explained. "I still think it's a good idea and perhaps it could be done this spring or summer."

Architect Clinton Gamble feels Broward Schools compare favorably with those of any other county, including Sarasota.

"We are getting every dollar's worth out of our school money that anybody could expect to get," he said.

"There are undoubtedly places where people have thought of things that we haven't, but I think we're getting all we pay for."

Gamble said the school planner's office helps the county get better buildings at lower cost than it otherwise would.

Breathalyzer

This Little Machine Can Send You to Jail
. . . operator Bill Spitler holds Breathalyzer

It Can Take Your Breath Away . . . Also Your Freedom

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Broward courts are now being asked to accept the word of a strange little machine on whether a driver is drunk.

It's called a breathalyzer, and it's replacing an earlier and cruder machine called a drunkometer. The sheriff's office and Hollywood and Pompano Beach police departments are equipped with it.

A large number of drivers, insisting they were sober as judges, already have challenged it, been bested and pleaded guilty.

For the first time last week, a breathalyzer reading was entered as evidence in a Court of Crimes jury trial. The trial concerned a motorist arrested on the turnpike who denied he was drunk.

But the breathalyzer said he was drunk and the jury agreed. His driving record obtained from Tallahassee, showed he was convicted of the same thing last February in Ohio. He got the standard second offender sentence — a fine of $300 or 90 days in jail, plus a mandatory 10 days in jail, which he is now serving.

The defense attorney did not challenge the machine's reading.

"I know of no cases in Florida where the machine has been tested in court," said Judge Thomas F. Tompkins Jr. "It wasn't an issue in this trial."

The drunkometer, however, has faced a challenge in court.

"We accept the evidence of the drunkometer, but only as corroborate evidence," Tompkins said.

"It's not conclusive proof in itself that a driver was drunk."

The results of the breath test go on a standard form on which great deal of other evidence is also entered. The form by itself can convict a driver.

On one part of it, police or deputies fill in blanks indicating odor of breath, color of face (normal, flushed), condition of clothing, any unusual actions, reaction of eye pupils to light, whether eyes were watery or bloodshot, ability to walk, then turn and speak.

There are series of questions for the officer to ask, and places to record the answers. The form thus gives a good indication of the suspect's awareness of his surroundings, whether he's ill, or just plain drunk.

Results of standard physical tests are recorded on the form. One test: Subject stands with feet together, arms outstretched, index finger extended, and touches nose three times with both index fingers.

Before taking the breath test he signs a statement agreeing to the test. The statement is witnessed.

Last week's driver scored .30 on the machine. The percentage figure indicates blood alcohol, and is a remarkable reading. At .40 you're practically dead. At .15 you're legally drunk.

If the driver's attorney had challenged the evidence of the machine, Judge Tompkins would have had to make a ruling which would set a precedent for future cases.

He Jumped From Police To Politics . . . Proudly

By FRAN LESLIE
Herald Staff Writer

MIRAMAR — Charles Knapp made the jump from police to politics.

The new mayor of Miramar, a man who has battled hoodlums and corrupt government, stretched his six-foot, two inch frame and said:

"I'm the proudest man in the world."

He wasn't speaking of his victory in Miramar's first municipal election.

He was boasting of the voting record this trim little community piled up last Tuesday. About 92 per cent of the registered voters turned out.

"I've never seen anything like the interest people here have shown in their government. It's amazing," he said.

Four years ago Knapp and his wife retired to a pleasant, white bungalow on one of Miramar's palm-lined streets.

He thought he had put all the elements of politics behind him then.

After 25 years as a patrol officer in Detroit, Mich., he turned in his helmet for a fishing cap and planned to spend his days in golf sessions — not caucuses.

But Miramar's "high standards of government" prompted him to enter his first race, he said.

"I never dreamed I would go into politics. As a patrolman I steered clear of the game."

Knapp started his law enforcement career as the depression began sobering up the roaring 20s. He was an inside observer when some city officials fell to cries of corruption.

Knapp recalled the municipal "vice payoff" investigations that riddled Detroit's police department and made headlines across the U.S. during the late 30s.

"The mayor and police chief were indicted," Knapp said.

Although Knapp's record and that of his superior were untouched by scandal, the shakeup started Knapp thinking about the inner workings of good government.

"When I retired I looked for a clean town with a top-grade standard. I found it in Miramar."

Tuesday that town elected him to a four-year term in its highest office.

And he wouldn't trade the honor for any career in a larger municipality.

Knapp believes his community is setting an example for other small areas considering incorporation.

"From the beginning we've been out of the red. We have no ad volorem taxes and elected officials serve without pay."

The town's pay-as-you-go policy rules out improvements that place a tax burden on the homeowner, Knapp said.

Under this system, Miramar has paved its streets, constructed a recreation center with shuffleboard courts, has a three-man police force, and a fine volunteer fire department.

Miramar has 937 registered voters and 863 of these cast ballots in the Town Council election.

This record is unparalleled, the mayor believes.

Dr. Boyd Checks Good Sorghum
. . . birds ate type at left

'Ideal' Feed for Cattle Studied by Local Lab

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Plantation field laboratory has found two varieties of sorghum which will grow all year around in Florida, will repel birds and are disease resistant.

The discovery is important to the dairy and beef cattle industries, which have long sought a grain that can be grown satisfactorily in Florida.

It can mean cheaper feed costs for dairies and higher quality beef.

Just one planting will produce four crops a year and may be good for two or more years, Dr. Frederick T. Boyd, in charge of the Plantation field station, said.

He has been growing the two varieties successfully for more than a year. Formerly sorghum usually failed to mature more than once a year in Florida because of the attacks on it from birds, which devour all of the grain.

When harvested even close to the ground, the stalks sprout again without delay and within three months are mature and ready for harvesting again.

One of the varieties, Leotl Red, is unaffected by the varying periods of daylight in the course of a year. It just goes right on producing.

Both can be harvested for grain and the entire stalk can be cut up and stored as silage. Sorghum syrup or molasses can be made from the stalks.

Sorghum has one bad feature for cattle growers — if cattle get into it before it matures, it can make them sick.

The second variety is a Cuban guinea corn.

The reason birds leave both varieties alone is that they grow a spine over each kernel.

The kernels of the bird repellent varieties are not as big and don't have as much food value as those grown in the Middle West, but this Dr. Boyd hopes to remedy.

He has started a program of crossbreeding which within a few years should produce a hybrid with the two most desirable characteristics — the anti-bird spines and the thick kernels of Midwestern sorghums.

However, even now farmers can profitably grow the two types with spines. Four cattle raisers, including the Arthur Vining Davis Velda Ranch, are growing them at Dr. Boyd's recommendation.

Fattening steers, given a diet of pasture grass for bulk, plus sorghum grain, will gain 2½ to three pounds a day instead of the one pound a day which is normal for a diet of just grass, Dr. Boyd says.

Florida beef cattle have always been of poor quality because of the lack of a suitable grain for fattening. In quality, they can't compete with Midwestern cattle fattened on corn or sorghum.

Until recent years the best quality Florida beef was fattened on grain grown in other states, which added to the cost of growing cattle.

The Plantation laboratory found some varieties of corn that could be grown here and began a program to develop a wholly new strain adapted to South Florida climate and soil conditions. This work isn't completed.

Meantime, growers can plant sorghum, which will provide a grain as good in many respects as corn.

As for its effect on the dairy industry, Dr. Boyd's work will mean greatly reduced feed costs if it's generally adopted. Milk producers now must buy grains and other diet supplements for their cattle.

In the long run, sorghum could mean cheaper milk, but Dr. Boyd doesn't like to speculate about this.

Registering To Vote Lags In Pompano

POMPANO BEACH — Voter re-registration is lagging, according to Mrs. Winifred Sharp, city clerk.

She said only about 1,750 persons have re-registered, thus assuring their rights to vote in the February municipal elections.

Registration books close Jan. 30.

Mrs. Sharp estimated there would probably be as many voters registered as last year — about 2,500.

Search On For Killer Since '55

By PAT MANGAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The search for the murderer of Mrs. Jane Barley is still going on after nearly four years.

Police are investigating a new suspect in the June 1955 killing of the 81-year-old woman who was stabbed 10 times and left to die in her home at 519 SW Second St.

The man currently under investigation has been wanted for questioning for some time, but police were unable to locate him until recently. He is now out of the country, but expected back shortly and will be questioned as soon as possible.

The man also is wanted by Philadelphia police for questioning about the April 1957 murder of a woman there. The Philadelphia victim also died of multiple stab wounds.

The suspect could have been here in June 1955 and in Philadelphia in April 1957.

Police have others reasons to believe there may be a connection between the suspect and the two killings. He has a record of crimes of violence.

The Barley slaying is Fort Lauderdale's "biggest" unsolved murder.

The widowed victim was killed by a man who went to her home purportedly to rent a room. She lived nearly a day and a half after he stabbed her, but lay in her house alone for many hours before the crime was discovered by neighbors.

She gave police a brief description of her killer which started an investigation plagued, among other things, by too many clues.

The murderer was registered in a downtown hotel here under the name "Robert Wilson." He was seen by, and talked to, many people in town. They said he was "polite."

His movements after the killing were traced to Jacksonville, but police were about two days behind him because a taxi driver who had vital information failed to realize its importance and delayed in bringing it to police.

Dozens of persons have been questioned, hundreds of leads investigated, but the murderer has not been found.

VA Cautions Vets, Widows

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Veterans Office has cautioned disabled veterans and veterans' widows to report their annual income promptly.

They can avoid the risk of having their monthly pension payments stopped by doing so, said Phil Campbell of the VA Office. The office is now mailing to all pension recipients a card on which the income report should be tabulated.

'Welcome' Signs Not Welcome

POMPANO BEACH—The city can't say "welcome" to travelers—at least not on city-limit signs.

The State Road Department has given tentative approval to the city entrance signs, but with reservations.

The signs can't contain the word "welcome," nor the slogan, "Gem of the Gold Coast." The signs can't be placed in the center parkway of Federal Hwy., either.

The watered-down version will probably carry the city seal, a picture of some boats, and the words "Pompano Corporate Limits."

It'll be placed at the side of the road, James Hughes, city manager, said.

Alaskan Finds This Florida Sun Nice

Cold? Not to Teacher Here From Fairbanks

By PAT MANGAN
Herald Staff Writer

DANIA — Cold spell here? Jean Burke didn't notice it.

Two days before she left home for Florida it was 50 below. Jean lives in Fairbanks, Alaska, where the temperature took a distinct turn for the worse on New Year's Eve.

"When I left it had gotten warmer, though," she said. "Ten above."

Jean arrived here Jan. 4 for five weeks of practice teaching at Dania Elementary School. She's an education major at Brigham Young University in Utah.

Florida's a long way from either Alaska or Utah, "but I love to travel," explained 21-year-old Jean.

She decided to travel here for her teaching practice when she met a Fort Lauderdale girl, Erin Gardner, at Point Barrow, Alaska, last summer.

Erin works for a travel agency. Jean works part-time for Wien-Alaska Airlines.

The two girls had more than an interest in travel in common. Erin's sister, Mrs. Katherine Wrinkle, teaches at Dania Elementary.

Jean's doing her practice teaching under the direction of Mrs. Wrinkle and Mrs. Justine Black, and she's staying at the Wrinkle home, 200 Bryan, Fort Lauderdale.

Jean likes it here.

"I always thought I wanted to teach in Alaska, but this weather's pretty nice."

Jean will be graduated from college next summer. She has been at Brigham Young for two years. The first two she spent at the University of Alaska, "a real terrific school." It's known for its engineering and geology courses, she said. There are between 600 and 800 students.

She's lived in Alaska for seven years. Her father is in charge of construction of four Nike and radar missile sites.

"We went to Alaska on a two-year contract and stayed seven," she said.

Her father's construction work has meant a lot of travel for the Burkes. They've lived in Arizona, California, Texas and Idaho.

Student Rate Dips

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — New students are enrolling in Broward County schools at a rate of 20 a day, but the increase isn't as great as officials expected.

"Current figures indicate our growth is tapering off, but the decrease isn't significant," Superintendent Raymond Maxwell said Saturday.

Officials predicted last summer that the peak enrollment would hit 54,000 this month. The figure was based on percentage increases over the last three years.

Now it appears the total won't exceed 52,500.

Hal Levy, director of student personnel, said enrollment figures have risen sharply at several schools this week.

One school, Boulevard Heights Elementary in West Hollywood, reported 45 new pupils Monday. He said 20 and 30-pupil increases have occurred at several schools in outlying areas.

Greater increases are expected later this month and early in February when the winter tourist season reaches its peak.

It's 'Safety Factor'

Deerfield to Light Up Beach Lovers' Lane

DEERFIELD BEACH — Lighting up a "lover's lane" can be construed as a "safety factor," the City Commission has decided.

A taxpayer questioned the expenditure of money for street lights along 21st Ave. (the ocean front).

"Why is it necessary?" asked Wilson Livor, director of the Broward County Taxpayers League. "Are there that many people swimming at night?"

"There's too much parking there," Mayor Barney Chalker explained, hinting at a lover's lane.

And Commissioner Russell Willis admitted the lights would be a "safety factor."

Dedication Set by Unity

FORT LAUDERDALE — Dedication for the Unity Church of Christ Building will be Wednesday at 8 p.m. The new building is at 210 SE 10th Ter.

The church was organized in February, 1951, with Mrs. Ruth Guitteau as minister. Mrs. Elizabeth Sand Turner succeeded Mrs. Guitteau as minister, and the building project continued under her.

Mrs. Guitteau will assist in the dedication services.

High Speed Limit Blamed

School Bus Law Violators Top Arrest List in Margate

MARGATE — Margate police arrested 76 during 1958 and issued 212 warning tickets, according to an annual report by Police Chief Roy Gardner.

There were 19 accidents in town during the year, resulting in eight injuries. There were no fatalities.

Fines collected in Municipal Court totaled $2,460.

There were more traffic arrests for passing a stopped school bus (19) than for any other single charge.

Gardner attributed that to the high (65 mph) speed limit on State Rd. 7, where most of the offenses occurred.

The police assisted 81 persons and 12 other departments during the year; found 29 open doors on routine patrol; discovered 14 brushfires; and made 19 arrests for other agencies.

There were 22 juvenile cases (none since August, however), four stolen cars recovered, 72 investigations of suspicious persons, and 121 investigations of suspicious cars.

Indian Chief 'Old Hand'

LESTER MANOR, Va.—(AP)—Chief Walter S. Bradley of the Pamunkey Indians is still getting his ducks and geese despite almost complete loss of use of his right hand.

The chief's Chesapeake retriever tripped over his gun and the discharge almost severed the Indian's right wrist.

It looked like the end of 50 years of hunting for the chief, who used that right hand to pull the trigger of his gun.

He didn't think he could learn to shoot from his left shoulder.

But with an ingenious device on the forearm he can now pull the trigger with his left hand.

Treasures Found In Israel Foxholes

HERZLIA, Israel —(UPI) — Millions of soldiers have set out to dig foxholes and trenches, but very few find buried treasure along the way.

Recently, an Israel army unit on an exercise near this Mediterranean seaside resort was ordered to dig in.

A soldier's spade unearthed a granite statue of a mother and child that had been buried some 2,100 years ago.

The army unit quickly vacated the area and called in the experts.

Further exploration of the site by the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and the Tel Aviv museum revealed the existence of a Phoenician temple, many statuettes and necklaces of semiprecious stones.

Determined

MONTPELIER, Vt. —(UPI) — Lt. Gov.-elect Robert S. Babcock was forced to hitchhike to the Vermont Statehouse to attend budget hearings when the bus he was riding in broke down.

Extra on Water Bill Is Charge for Sewer

By PAT MANGAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Sewer charges will be added to the water bills of Las Olas Islands and Harbor Beach area residents next month.

Homeowners were notified in December that they could connect their houses to the city's new sewers. The charges begin 60 days after notification.

There is no requirement that householders use the new sewers, but they'll pay for the service anyway.

The city must make the charge because the sewers are financed by revenue bonds which will be repaid from revenue derived from the operation of the system, Roger Line, administrative assistant to the city manager, explained.

"Though the city has no power under present ordinances to force anyone to connect to the system, officials want homeowners to connect because of the health problem created by septic tanks in the areas," Line said.

"Connections are being made every day, but it will probably be a year before they're all in," said City Engineer E. L. Patterson.

Sewer assessment rolls for the Las Olas Islands section will be ready next month and for the Harbor Beach area the following month, Patterson said. The rolls are being computed now.

Early estimates put the cost of the sewer lines at $10 a front foot, though the cost to property owners is computed on square footage.

The sewer service charge for single family dwellings is $1 per month for each toilet room plus $1 for the kitchen. Minimum is $2.

In other than single family houses, the cost is based on water which is metered. The charge is 15 cents per 1,000 gallons up to 750,000 gallons per meter with a minimum of $2 per meter. For all water metered over 750,000 gallons, the charge is 10 cents for each additional 1,000 gallons.

The charge for waste water from air conditioning units which is discharged into the sewer system is $3 per month per ton unit of air conditioning.

In cases where a separate water meter registers water used in lawns or gardens, no charge is made for that meter.

Hard Way ...To Pave

By RICK TUTTLE

Hollywood Bureau Chief

THE CIRCUS CLOWN who puts his head in a lion's mouth knows the odds on decapitation. They are greatly in his favor.

City commissioners decided to do something along the same lines when they forced the beach access issue to a head with a "let's-find-out" attitude on whether they will be sued.

McMORROUGH

Mayor E. L. McMorrough, an attorney, was skeptical but he voted to pave Greenbrier Ter. from State Road A1A to the Broadwalk anyway. City Attorney August Paoli warned the board what could happen.

The city wants control of the street ends for the public (it's nearing election time again), even though the south beach property owners hold legal title and have been upheld in federal courts.

The circus clown knows the odds. City commissioners don't — but they'll find out.

Winter Population: 74,000 Now

THE THINGS I don't know about the Hollywood area would fill volumes; so the 1957-58 annual financial report was intriguing.

Don't misunderstand. I know less about liabilities and surpluses, reserves for encumbrances-contracts, and unaccumulated discounts on bonds sold than I know about Hollywood.

It was the last two pages that were fascinating.

For example, I'd bet few residents know:

There are 12,004 water meters in the city.

242 miles of water mains.

The average annual rainfall is 65.19 inches.

Mean annual temperature is 75.2 degrees.

The city is seven feet above sea level (except when it rains. Then it seems to be seven feet below sea level.)

The winter population is 74,000.

City Manager Joseph Watson says this latter figure isn't rigged.

"The Chamber of Commerce was claiming a 75,000 winter population when the city's true population was 20,000," he said. "Now the population is very close to 40,000, so the 75,000 isn't far off."

* * *

Hollywood Owes $2,155,440

THE FINANCIAL REPORT said the city was $6,627,266 in debt as of Sept. 30, 1958.

"But $4,471,826 is overlapping debt," Col. Watson pointed out as if I would have some idea what he meant.

He said the Hollywood direct debt is actually just $2,155,440, but a percentage of the debts of the county, port, school and hospital districts were credited to the city since 40,000 taxpayers live in Hollywood.

"We have nothing to do with it, but it is considered when we try to finance projects," Watson said.

Loud Noise Over Anti-Noise Rule

ALTHOUGH CITY commissioners successfully withstood the assault last Tuesday by the Chamber of Commerce industrial committee, watch for further maneuvers.

The committee doesn't like the city's new anti-noise ordinance which prohibits loud and unusual noises from factories between midnight and 7 a.m. when the plants are beside residential sections.

The ordinance will murder potential industrial development, the committee charges.

DUANE JONES

She Sews Fine Seam...for Queen

IF IN YOUR travels about the country you should run across my wife, please tell her I'm well and that I plan to ask for a pay raise next week.

I see my wife every day, but she's been riding on a cloud and ignoring me since Tuesday.

That's the day she was asked to mend a cape for Lela Harris.

Mrs. Harris, the wife of a Baptist minister, is going to England in a couple of weeks, and she wants to wear the cape to a tea being given by Queen Elizabeth for the lord mayor of London.

I'm pretty sure it's the queen, and I can visualize what will happen.

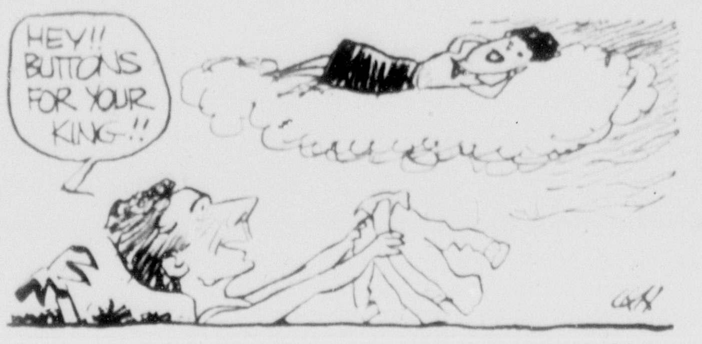
* * *

'Who Is This Mrs. Jones?'

AS MRS. HARRIS is presented to the queen, Her Highness will notice the cape and want to know more about it.

"It's divine," the queen will smile. "Just precious."

Mrs. Harris will blush, thank the queen, and then explain that it isn't new and that she couldn't have worn it if Mrs. Jones hadn't mended the lining.



HEY!! BUTTONS FOR YOUR KING!!

"Extraordinary," the queen will marvel. And then she'll ask:

"Who is this Mrs. Jones? Is she one of those 'have needle, will travel' seamstresses?"

* * *

Accomplishments? Well...

YOU'VE GUESSED it.

The queen will insist that this young seamstress come to England and be put in charge of her personal wardrobe.

"But she's married," Mrs. Harris will explain. "And I don't imagine her husband would let her come."

Then the queen will ask if Mr. Jones has any talent, and Mrs. Harris will be forced to admit I have none.

"His only accomplishment," she'll explain, "is the lawn sprinkling system he installed at his home last year."

* * *

Threadbare Problems at Home

THAT COULD present a problem. I don't know, but I imagine the palace has a sprinkling system and plenty of good yardmen who are as smart as I am.

Well, I'm not going to worry about it now. I've got other problems.

One of my biggest concerns at the moment is how I can get my paltry wardrobe in shape.

Half of my four shirts need buttons, my trousers are shot, and I have six or eight pairs of socks that need darning.

If you know of a good seamstress — one who isn't tied up with the queen of England—give me a ring.

HENRY KINNEY

Broward Home Buyers Need More Protection

THE BELIEF increases that there isn't sufficient protection for the newcomer to Broward County who sets out to acquire property and put down roots.

The question is one that involves the responsibility of government, the responsibility of certain business people, such as builders and real estate salesmen, and the responsibility of the individual to protect himself in every way possible. It's broad and complicated, but seems to be worth some airing.

KINNEY

Currently, the lack of protection is being demonstrated in Pompano Beach, where a number of people bought three-unit apartment houses in a duplex zone and now are in trouble with the City Building Department.

It is alleged that the builder took out permits for duplexes, but sold them on the basis of three units, which were illegal in that zone. Some of the buyers may lose some money. If the city declines to rezone the street, as they have asked, some will be stuck with properties they don't want. At best, they have a headache on their hands even if the matter should at last be settled in their favor.

* * *

Blame Is Widespread

THE BUILDER is to blame, certainly. The buyers are somewhat to blame for not making certain of the zoning restrictions before they bought. The community and the county are to blame for permitting this sort of thing to take place year in and year out.

We need, it appears, controls tight enough to make a builder or a real estate salesman afraid to misrepresent anything. We need also some sort of regulations requiring the buyer to investigate such things as zoning, the status of the title, the status of liens and the tax assessment on a property before he buys, whether he feels the need of it or not.

Even the exact location should be checked. People have been known to buy property which they thought was in a city and later proved to be in the county, and vice versa.

For example, could we have a statute requiring every buyer of a house to obtain a statement covering all these things and certifying that he is aware of them? Perhaps it should be the rule that he couldn't make a down payment, let's say, unless he exhibited such a statement to some governmental department.

It might be cumbersome, inconvenient and require the department, whichever one it might be, to put on extra help. Perhaps this is not even the way to tackle the problem.

It probably would cause even some buyers to grumble about "red tape" and complain, "We've got too many regulations as it is." It can serve, however, to illustrate the kind of control that seems to be needed.

Mr. Average Buyer, only too often, must be protected not only against unethical sellers but also against his own tendencies to be careless and slipshod, and against his ignorance of local procedures.

* * *

Rules Can't Cure All

OBVIOUSLY, it's impossible to make rules covering every way in which a buyer can get into trouble. At some point it's necessary to stop legislating and leave the rest to the integrity and common sense of the seller and the buyer.

It's very well, also, to say that a lawyer, a good broker, an architect or a tital insurance company can protect the buyer against almost everything.

Any of these avenues, however, is an added expense, and the retired person on a tight budget, for example, can't be blamed for wanting to save a fee wherever he can.

This is a new land. Lots of things are being done in a hurry. People are arriving in a hurry and buying in a hurry. Builders are building and selling in a hurry, and in addition to the honest hurriers we have a few types who try to speed things up even more for the sake of a faster buck.

In an older, more stable and slower moving community, extra protection for the buyer possibly is not necessary. Under the conditions which now prevail in South Florida, however, double precautions of some kind seem advisable.

Has County Employe Right to Campaign?

By PETER LAINE

Herald Staff Writer

COUNTY EMPLOYES may not have a bed of roses, but they do have one enviable freedom that some government workers are losing around here.

They are free to say what they like about elections and candidates.

They can knock on doors and pass out campaign cards if they're so inclined.

Not many of them do, but the privilege is there if they wish to exercise it. County Attorney John Lloyd says there's nothing to stop them.

Employes usually know their bosses pretty well. They can give outsiders a good steer about what's going on in government.

Free discussion about government is to be preserved at all costs.

They don't allow it everywhere. Russia, for instance.

Wakeley's Job Endangered?

SO LET'S consider the case of Wallace Wakeley, a long-time superintendent in the Wilton Manors City Hall.

Wakeley's a mild, inoffensive man who does a multitude of jobs for the city. He does a lot on his own time.

When there's a fire, he's out there with the other volunteers — risking his neck.

A week before election, four members of the council — three of them with another year to go — passed an ordinance stopping employes from taking any part in campaigns.

An employe who expresses an opinion about a candidate could lose his job.

* * *

He Cites Right Of Free Speech

THE MOVE aroused a lot of interest, and this reporter called Wakeley to see how he felt about it.

Wakeley said frankly he didn't think much of it. He felt it infringed on his right to free speech.

The three holdovers are said to be mad with Wakeley for questioning their wisdom. They are Robert Schmidt, now elevated to council president, Vern Burnell and Carl Beimly.

They're said to be planning to put Wakeley on the carpet Tuesday night.

It promises to be interesting.

Most Voters Oppose Gag

OF COURSE, the trio may not be looking forward to the session quite so much now. The carpet talk started the day before the election.

Seven out of every nine residents who took part in that election voted for Harold Price who had opposed the gag.

Six out of nine voted for "unknown" Howard Goll Jr., who also spoke against it.

Two and a half out of nine voted for Earle Middleton, who got dumped. Middleton had favored the backfiring ordinance.

Why Wait On Judge?

By CLARENCE ZAITZ

North Broward Bureau

POMPANO BEACH—Why all this reluctance to name a new municipal judge in Pompano?

The city has had an acting judge, Stephen D. Martin Jr., since Nov. 13.

The city has had about 10 judgeship applications for more than a month.

But no one seems eager to do anything about it.

It's all well and good that things may be running smoothly in court. If that's the case, let's name the judge.

Either the man is doing such a good job, he should be named the judge; or he's on trial. And if he's going to be given a trial period, it would seem fair for every other applicant to have a similar chance.

Martin mentioned the other day that the caseload is getting mighty heavy for only two days of court a week. He has given some thought to holding court three times weekly. But he hesitates to make such a change without knowing who the judge is going to be.

Tax Climate Healthy This Year

PROPERTY OWNERS enjoying the tax-free climate of Lighthouse Point are becoming "spoiled," Mayor Russell Clarke said last week.

He said many people are laboring under the illusion that the tax-free status will continue indefinitely.

But the mayor made a sobering statement. He said, "I don't think we'll need a tax for another three or four years. But the idea of us never imposing a tax is impossible."

* * *

Erosion Blamed on Boatmen

EROSION ALONG the Intracoastal Waterway is a deadly serious problem. Residents in Hillsboro Beach are unhappy at the carefree abandon displayed by boat owners who "open it up" between Deerfield and Pompano Beach. One commissioner there, Frank Neaville, said it takes 15 tons of rock annually to fill in the waterfront holes caused by wave action along 150 feet of waterway frontage.

* * *

School Misses Another Assembly

SOME CHAMBER of Commerce men in Pompano were mapping a clean-up, paint-up, fix-up campaign to get under way Feb. 15. Someone suggested assembly programs be held at the elementary school to stir up interest among the students.

But someone quickly put a stop to that idea. "We don't have any place to hold an assembly — there's no auditorium." He pointed out the speakers would have to trudge from portable to portable to get across their sales pitch.

That idea was dropped.

* * *

450 Drunks Arrested in 1958

DURING 1958 450 persons were arrested in Pompano for public drunkenness. The monthly totals range from the 20s to as high as 60.

But there was a strangely conspicious drop during one month, August. Only five drunks were arrested that month. But preceeding and succeeding months registered about 25.

No one can come up with an explanation.

A 'Pro' To Head Welfare

EDITOR: I am writing you because our chapter is interested and concerned with the problems facing the Welfare Department in Broward County.

The South Florida Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers represents professionally trained social workers in the eight counties of South Florida. A large group of our members are working and living in Broward County. We have had a representative from our association serving on the subcommittee which worked on the survey of welfare services.

We have been interested in your recent articles regarding the qualifications proposed for the new county director, and the question of the caliber of welfare program Broward County is prepared to support. As you suggest in your articles, public welfare is becoming "big business" and as such needs expert direction.

Accordingly, our chapter wrote to the chairman of the County Commission Nov. 17, 1958. We strongly endorsed the recommendation for securing a trained social work staff for the County Welfare Department, and expressed further our belief that the employment of a professionally qualified social worker as director of the department was a primary step for improving public welfare services.

We are pleased to see your newspaper's continued interest in this subject and trust you will continue to keep the community informed of developments.

Sincerely Yours,
Maxwell Fassler
Chairman

Bishop Forgot Our Lights

EDITOR: Sure enjoyed that column Jim Bishop did the other day on the retired couple in Pompano Beach. Stories like that will attract more retired people here.

But I take exception to a remark Mr. Bishop made down near the bottom of the column.

He said if the couple wanted bright lights they could go 35 miles to the north to Palm Beach, or 35 miles south to Miami.

I've got news for Mr. Bishop. We've got bright lights in Fort Lauderdale that are all he can handle, and probably a whole lot brighter than any retired couple wants or needs.

And Fort Lauderdale is less than 10 miles away.

You'll be glad to learn that almost 1,200 Broward County adults have registered for these courses since . . . We have been so rushed that the above total includes only the Fort Lauderdale centers. Reports from Hollywood and Pompano Beach show the same enthusiastic activity.

Surprise Package Readied in Nassau

GILL HOTELS announces that its island outpost, the British Colonial in Nassau, is scheduling a big entertainment package coincidental with the opening of the inn's new addition, Governor's Hall, now nearing completion.

Room will be formally christened Feb. 9 with "The King and I," first of four musical comedies and four plays to be presented over an eight-week period by a New York repertory company.

Area, to be dubbed the British Colonial Playhouse for the duration of the productions, fronts the hotel; has a seating capacity of 500, a full stage and a plaid rug.

Rusty Warren

Lenny Herman
. . . Tuesday opening

MISS RUSTY WARREN, the Beach Club's newest attraction (if that's the word), caused a minor flurry at last Thursday's opening — some of the lady patrons thought they'd wandered into a stag party by mistake.

Miss Warren's specialty is entendre — and with her it's double or nothing. The busty redhead lays it right on the line without flinching, approaching her subject with the finesse of a bulldozer attacking a large concrete wall.

Miss Warren is completely preoccupied with l'amour — l'amour le merrier—and theorizes on same in song and patter, ad infinitum. Portions of the repertoire are not new, some of it dating back to the old English music hall. Regardless of the vintage, the net result is a performance that is unrestrained, uninhibited, and (for the most part) un-funny. Gal chooses to beat the customers over the head with a shovel instead of a moonbeam.

Scene of the mayhem is the hotel's downstairs pub, the Lulubelle Room, one of the most attractive oases in town with or without any extra decor. Management is reported to have quietly removed a half-dozen ribald songs complementing the act just prior to opening.

Incidentally, Miss Warren has a new album release called "Songs for Sinners," incase you prefer the privacy of your own parlor-bedroom-and-bath for the mood indigo.

Lounge also welcomes the return of popular Barmar Al Falato; and spots a new manager, Al Faver, formerly at Lago Mar.

ROY FINK checked bar receipts at Tale O'The Tiger last week and decided to resign Bonnie Baker. Canary closed Sunday after a three-day "farewell" (she was originally scheduled to close Thursday) with the final blast bringing out seads of show-biz folk. Bonnie is expected back Monday night from her trip to New York for star billing on TV's Hit Parade.

GRANDMA'S now spots entertainment in addition to the farm-style dinners — piano team of Chick and Chuck, plus "Smiling" Fritz and singing Waiters Al Olsen and Harry Dunne.

Group works individually and collectively. Chick and Chuck back the show and play for dancing, with Chick using an electric piano tricked up with a lot of gadgets for special effects.

Fritz and his pals take over for solos, harmony and comedy bits with Al's rookie cop number a high spot of the routine. The genial Fritz is a fugitive from Hallandale's Old Heidelberg — he opened with the place 10 years ago.

TV 'Pastures' Ready Again

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Casting a TV show such as "The Green Pastures" is like Christmas shopping:

To avoid disappointment, do it early.

When Mildred Freed Alberg, executive producer of "The Hallmark Hall of Fame," decided to repeat the original Oct. 17, 1957, production of "Pastures" next March 23, she immediately began rounding up the original all-Negro cast of 80 performers.

That was last summer. By now, she has "almost 100 per cent" success in regrouping the original cast. Thomas Anderson, who plays the "master of ceremonies," wrote Mrs. Alberg:

"Let the fish fry proceed," quoting a line from the play.

Muriel Rahn, "Zipporah" in the show, wrote: "When the contracts are ready and the Saints go marchin' in, I want to be in that number."

"I am asking Divine intelligence for even a greater vision than we had before," said Rhoda Biggs, who played Cook, in her letter of acceptance.

For the first "live" repeat of one of their productions, the Hallmark producers also are bringing back William Warfield to play "The Lord" and Eddie "Rochester" Anderson to play "Noah."

Weather Slows Fish Festival

FORT LAUDERDALE — Dania Angler Eddie Linberg posted a 55-pound wahoo last week for the only change in the Fort Lauderdale Winter Fishing Festival.

Linberg fished from the private boat Kitty Jane in bettering the catch of former leader C. R. Kahn by four pounds.

Inclement weather early in the week held down entries in the 13th week of festival action.

Tournament director Buck Kinnaird clarified eligibility rules for boat fishermen by explaining that fish must be caught from a craft sailing from Fort Lauderdale, and must be weighed at an official station the day of the catch.

Shore anglers must enter catches within 24 hours. Fish must have been taken in waters between Boynton Inlet and Baker's Haulover.

The competition is open to visitors as well as residents. There is no entry fee.

Official weight stations are:

Bahia Mar, Boyd's Tackle Shop, Harbor Beach Tackle Shop, Harbor Beach Marina, Lauderdale Marina, Gateway Charter Dock, Pier 66 service dock, the Tackle Box and the Beach Bait and Tackle Shop.

Flying L's Face Dragons Friday

Trouble comes in big doses this week for the Fort Lauderdale High basketball team.

The Flying L's, off to a slow start, can atone for early misfortunes with a "giant killing" weekend.

FLHS visits the new Stranahan gym Friday to test Bud Marcum's Dragons, who are trying to start another win streak after being upended by South Broward.

The following evening the L's host the tall and talented Pompano Beach Golden Tornadoes, one of the state's top drawer aggregations. The Tornadoes' Don Hughes has been averaging close to 20 points a game and teammate Frank Budka also hits consistently in double figures.

Defense-minded Delray Beach Seacrest calls on Pompano Monday, and McArthur visits Pahokee Tuesday.

McArthur invades the South Broward floor Thursday in a neighborhood contest.

In addition to the "L"-Stranahan game, Friday action lists Clewiston at Pompano Beach, South Broward at West Palm Beach, Central Catholic at McArthur and Pine Crest at Okeechobee.

While Pompano appears in the FLHS gym Saturday, Central Catholic will trade shots with Seacrest in Delray and Moore Haven will test Pine Crest, on the Stranahan hardwoods.

FORT LAUDERDALE — Aged but avid.

This rather aptly sums up a good percentage of Fort Lauderdale's shuffleboard players.

The average disc stroker disgruntledly pounds one of the 6-foot-3 cues against a cement court when someone suggests shuffleboard is "just and old folks game."

The activity does require shot-planning, accuracy and pretty fair reflexes.

Younger people find the game a relaxing interlude between more strenuous activities. The sport's history goes back to the 15th century, when Henry VIII decreed that his soldiers should stop shuffling because they were neglecting archery. Today, shipboard shuffleboard is popular with young and old.

Every so often there's a cry that the 32 courts at Stranahan Park should be torn out so the space can be transformed into other municipal use.

Politicos have found that the suggestion can be tantamount to political suicide.

There are 800 members of the Stranahan - Lauderdale Shuffleboard Club, and they along with non-member guests feel the club is a definite attribute to the city's well-being.

George Merz, a club member for more than a generation, points out that the late Frank Stranahan, Fort Lauderdale pioneer, deeded the park to the city as a recreation center, and not for other use.

A couple dozen courts proposed for Holiday Park would be added to the number of downtown city courts.

SLSC President George Bergstrom says the centrally-located club courts were a prime factor in the decision of many retired couples to settle in Fort Lauderdale. (Almost all club members are over 50.)

A 67-year-old retired St. Louis bank clerk, Chester Hilton of 901 N. Birch Rd., is a typical member.

Hilton took up shuffleboard when a mild heart attack kept him off the golf fairways.

He plays "every night" at Stranahan Park. It's an inexpensive recreation, costing about a penny a visit (annual dues are $3.50).

The city built the courts and pays for the lights. The 35 cents a day charge paid by non-members of the SLSC goes for court maintenance and equipment.

There are bleacher seats for a thousand persons, and that many spectators are likely for a "big match" with an out-of-town team. Hollywood, Little River and Lummus Park are in the same league with the Stranahan-Lauderdale shufflers.

Teams play twice weekly, on a home-and-home basis. There are two divisions—one the best players, and one for for "juniors." The latter doesn't apply to age, but relative ability.

Club tournaments, open to all, bring long entry lists. Husband-wife tourneys are of particular interest, as are special meets for attractive trophies put up by individual members.

For instance, Tom Sarandis will salute the women Monday by sponsoring a ladies' singles competition. It's Tom's 75th birthday; Each Jan. 19 he spends his birthday watching members scramble for silverware commemorating that he is a year older.

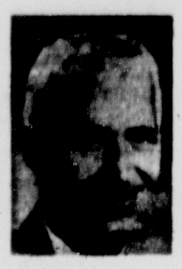
FISHING IN BROWARD



Scales Tip Age of Fish

By GEORGE H. CROWLEY

Herald Staff Writer

WOMEN ARE not the only creatures reluctant to reveal their ages. Careful study is also required to learn the age of a fish. But, unlike women, the secret of the age of a fish is not wrapped up in its mind. It's in scales.

The scales which cover a fish not only protect him from harm, just as the skin protects a human being, but carry little marks that indicate age. An inquisitive angler often questions just how the scale will show the fish's age. The problem of determining the age from scales is quite similar to counting the growth rings on the trunk of a tree.

Fish belong to a group of creatures known as cold-blooded animals. This is in contrast to the warm-blooded animals which include birds, humans, bears, deer and dogs. This cold-blooded characteristic is significant because the body temperature of the fish is regulated in part by the temperature of the water in which he lives.

In the summer when the water is warm, the fish's temperature goes up and he stays hungry, eats a lot and grows fast. But in the winter when the water temperature drops to below 50 degrees, he gets cold and sluggish and loses his interest in eating. Naturally when he doesn't eat, he doesn't grow.

A fish always has the same number of scales from the time of birth till he is caught or dies. To be adequately protected with scales, each scale must grow as the fish gets larger. Whenever a slow-down in growth occurs, a mark or ring is left on the scale. This is called an annulus.

To study a scale from a fish whose age we wish to know, we put the scale under a microscope. We find that it looks remarkably like the cross section of a tree trunk. There are many small rings starting in the center of the scale and radiating to the outside. On checking carefully, we see a little mark or check in the rings which indicates that the fish has passed another year. Counting these rings tells us the age of the fish.

And so, we see that although a fish will never say a word, there are ways of deriving the secret of his age. In fact, every little scale on his back is a sign that tells you that secret, if you know how to read it.

Amberjack Entered at Hollywood

THREE CHANGES in leadership plus the first entries in the amberjack and jack crevalle divisions sparked the activity last week in the sixth annual Hollywood Fishing Tourney.

Foster Doane, visitor from Gary, Ind., won the distinction of entering the first amberjack, a 21¼-pounder caught angling from the Leatherneck.

A trip on the Early Bird III paid dividends to Ed Goebel, Philadelphia, when he decked a 22-pound jack crevalle.

Veteran Hollywood sportsman G. G. Guydos copped another first place with his entry of a 22½-pound wahoo. His catch replaced the 12½-pound wahoo of M. D. Welch, Lexington, Ky., on the display board. Guydos now holds first place in three divisions.

Other changes in leadership occurred in the dolphin and mackerel divisions.

Economy Water Conditioners Produce Fine End Product

Recently returned to the United States from the Far East where he served three years with the Corps of Engineers, United States Army, Howard E. Cameron, Jr., has rejoined his father, Howard E. Cameron, owner of Economy Walter Conditioners, in the operation of that business.

Sent to Korea after training as a water specialist at the Engineers' school at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, he was loaned to the Korean Military Advisory Group to train Army engineers in rebuilding water plant installations and teach water purification methods.

In commenting upon water conditions in South Florida as they pertain to the use of individually owned wells Cameron, senior, said: "Here we have an unlimited underground water supply. Due however, to the porous coral rock sub-structure, particularly on the east coast, there always is the possibility of contamination, especially in the closely built residential areas where septic tanks are used and household water is pumped from private wells. Odors, bad taste, hardness and algae are the principal offenders in this area.

"Economy Water Conditioners filter, chlorinate and soften well water, producing an end product with a high rating. Raw well water is frequently cloudy and dirty; filtering and chlorinating correct this condition. Adding the softening process, water from the faucet not only is crystal-clear, clean and pure, but it also is rain-soft.

"Chlorine used in our conditioners is found in ordinary household bleach. This purifies the water, eliminating algae and other bacteria. These undesirable elements are then caught in the filter. All musty or sulphurous odors disappear. The water tastes good and is good for you."

"What my father has said about chlorination and filtration," said young Cameron, "follows precisely the rules and regulations laid down by the U. S. Army Medical Corps. Troops in the field are forbidden to use water for any purpose whatsoever until it has been chlorinated. Filter tanks also are used when turbid water is found. Chlorination is a sure safeguard against infection from bacteria.

"We frequently rebuild conventional iron filters adding our water softener equipment. If the customer has a water softener, usually it is necessary to add only the chlorinator to produce excellent results. Cost of chlorinator alone is approximately $50.

"The initial cost of our complete systems is considerably less than many other types of so - called conditioners. We manufacture, install and service every item sold by our company. Prices for complete units in the family sizes, including softener and chlorinator, start at approximately $200.

"Industrial, motel and hotel units are built to order to fill each particular need. Economy Conditioners may be purchased under FHA financing which requires no initial cash outlay and provides a long-term payment plan."

The company's plant is located at 5717 Taft St., Hollywood. The telephone number is YUkon 3-2332.

Custom-Built Shaw Mattresses Give Years of Customer Satisfaction

PICTURED ABOVE the operator is stapling ticking on a hand-tied box spring, (shown upside down), upon which padding already has been placed. Addition of dust cloth will completely cover springs which are shown exposed.

"Every customer, as well as every visitor who is 'just shopping around,'" said Leonard Uhr, president of Shaw Mattress Co., "is urged to watch how work moves through our factory.

"We want all who are interested to see how orders are filled, how every care is taken to custom-build to each customer's exact specifications, beds, mattresses, lounges and chairs which have been selected from samples in our salesroom.

"There are very few places in Florida where such a factory-to-consumer plan is in effect. Here all customer purchases are freshly made. We provide a wide selection of fabrics for lounges, Bahama beds and chairs, and fast service is assured.

"Mattresses, foam rubber and inner spring, of every type and degree of firmness, are available. We ask every customer to take plenty of time in making his choice by trying out various samples on hand in our salesroom for this purpose.

"Foam rubber mattresses come in four and one-half and six-inch thickness. There are five different degrees of firmness for body support. It is of the utmost importance that the right firmness be selected for comfort-giving, restful hours of sleep. That is why we insist that the cutomer take time to decide what is best suited to his needs.

"This matter of firmness is just as important with inner spring bedding. Cotton and acetate padding likewise have varying degrees of firmness. Again let me emphasize how necessary it is to be deliberate in making a choice of bedding, whether it be foam rubber or inner spring design.

"We manufacture all standard sizes of bedding, that is, mattresses and inner springs. We also make king-size beds which are extra wide, extra long or both. On rare occasions we have built round beds.

"Bahama beds are made in 30- and 33-inch widths. These provide comfortable lounges by day and a full measure of sleeping comfort at night. All of our box springs and frames are built for us to our specifications and the springs are known as the eight-way hand-tied type.

"When we tell a customer that every product made in our factory contains only top quality materials, has been made by experienced workmen under the personal supervision of Joseph A. Zeno, production manager and top-flight expert in the manufacture of fine bedding, our guarantee of complete satisfaction means exactly that."

Factory and salesroom of the Shaw Mattress Co. are located at 720 N. Flagler Dr. The firm is open daily until 5:30 p.m. On Monday and Friday the sales room is open evenings until 9 p.m.

Brentwood Estates Is Spreading Eastward Toward U.S. 1 - Retired Couples Like Suburban Living Close to 'City Life'

Developer Retired--Then He Built 1,200 Homes in Brentwood Estates

By DICK MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Ben Biegelsen, who came to Florida on doctor's orders to retire, traces an improvement in his health to the day five years ago when he decided to build 1,500 homes in a secluded area north of Fort Lauderdale.

Biegelsen envisioned the tract, which extends eastward from the Seaboard Railroad tracks to NE Ninth Ave. and northward from 50th to 56th Sts., as a surburban community for retired and semi-retired couples.

He claims cows grazed on part of the property when he bought it, confident that the area between Fort Lauderdale and Pompano Beach would "fill in" with low and medium-priced residences.

Today, about four of each five families in the community, called Brentwood Estates, are retired or "almost so." There are 1,200 occupied homes, all built by Biegelsen's firm, Starrett Homes.

Biegelsen is glad that he styled Brentwood Estates to the tastes of "older folks," for "I feel I know what a retiree wants in a retirement home.

"My long illness convinced me that people past middle age need to have fresh interests," the 61-year-old builder-developer said. "They find those interests when they are together. That's why my subdivision has developed so quickly."

Starrett Homes sells to persons in their 70s under mortgages of up to 20 years.

Life expectancy scales don't interest Biegelsen so long as the buyer has a suitable income.

BIEGELSEN

He knows from experience that relatives will take over payments in case of the mortgagee's death, and that anyway property values continue to spiral. So far he hasn't had to take back a home with a foreclosure action.

Dealings with older couples fit precisely into the continuing development plan for Brentwood Estates, which seems destined to sometime be incorporated into Oakland Park or Fort Lauderdale.

Biegelsen doesn't take under $2,000 as a downpayment on his homes, and generally asks $3,000, "too much for the average young married couple to come up with."

The high downpayments enable Starrett Homes to have a large number of homes under construction. The company sells dwellings "ready to be occupied."

Retired persons are noted for being neater and cleaner with property than some others, and that factor aids in retaining Brentwood Estates' suburban atmosphere, although the location no longer is secluded. N. Andrews Ave. Extension, which divides the community, is heavily trafficked these days, and will be extended to Pompano Beach.

Through Brentwood, the extension becomes a divided parkway, with ficus and rubber trees gracing landscaped islands.

Each Starrett-built home comes with about 25 shrubs, provided by Biegelsen to help keep the subdivision "garden like."

There are homeowners here who once lived in Biegelsen-constructed homes on Long Island. Ben's father, Louis, founded the company there in 1885.

Starrett Homes constructs houses to two basic models. A two-bedroom, one-bath style has a $10,995 tag; a three-bedroom, two-bath dwelling sells at $13,500. Exteriors vary, not the floor plan.

Broward County Water Co. supplies the water, and the section is on a city bus line.

Brentwood will be fully populated in about a year, Biegelsen expects, and then he wants to keep on dealing "with people who appreciate the same things in a home that I do."

Then, he proposes to construct the same type homes in "some fairly secluded tract north of Fort Lauderdale — the sort of place where retired workers would like to live out their days."

Recession Not Felt By 'Big Operators'

"BIG DEALS" in Broward County real estate have fallen through during the last uncertain year—some of them deservedly so, no doubht—but the recession caused no great decline in the activities of major investors.

Real estate men have noted that the big operators kept on buying, largely in acreage, and the turnover in large parcels in Broward, Palm Beach and the Cocoa-Melbourne section seems to bear out their observations.

This was supported also by the experiences of Joe Rimmington and Homer King of Key Realty, who sold George Farkas' 2,600 acres north of Plantation last week to Edward Gerber. All last year, they found activity in acreage quite good, to the tune of several million dollars, and like other agents often found themselves with not enough good listings to satisfy the demand.

Acreage purchases accounted in some measure for the fact that last year's total real estate sales in the county reached 306 million—not as good as the previous year's 344, but still nothing to be sneezed at.

It was rather eloquent testimony that money-wise people were not particularly disturbed over the slump which Florida suffered last year.

* * *

THE PURCHASER of the Farkas property, Edward Gerber, is not widely known here, but he undoubtedly will be even though he might not want to.

Gerber is only 36, but he's chairman of the board of the Great Northern Life Insurance Co. in Fort Wayne, Ind., executive vice president of the Imperial Wire Co. of Indiana, vice president of the North Western Investment Co. of Indiana, owner of a furniture store, a motel and a utilities company in the Hoosier state, as well as the owner of the Key Groves in Davie and the Key Groves Packing Co. here, and president of the Plantation Public Service Corp., which holds a franchise to service 3,500 homes in Plantation.

He also owns the land on which Plantation Park is being developed, and is building some 700 houses there under the name of Milestone Homes.

* * *

THE DAY when the 67-mile strip between Miami and Palm Beach will blend into a panorama of solid development, without gaps of unpopulated tracts, could be nearer than some expect.

Area building permit totals show plainly that Broward County municipalities with room left for expansion are centers of construction activity.

Although 1958 construction was "down" compared with 1957 (a bumper year), the North Broward cities of Deerfield Beach and Margate surpassed '57 figures.

* * *

HOME CONSTRUCTION in the south end of Palm Beach County also is raising some eyebrows. Boca Raton had a marked increase over '57 ($7,490,890 against $5,323,684) and Delray Beach and Boynton Beach easily topped their '57 aggregates.

This home features a patio which is screened from the street, and decorative grillwork and a brick wall enhance the exterior appearance. Bank Nears Completion Of Building

HOLLYWOOD — Construction of the Home Federal Savings and Loan Association, savings building on Young Circle will be completed within 60 days, said Thomas Wohl, president.

The building will include five teller stations, two officers' rooms, a directors' room, an employes' lounge, dining room and kitchen.

An overhead passageway, 80 feet long, will connect the building with Home Federal's other office, at 1819 Van Buren St.

Palm Lane Erecting Building

WEST HOLLYWOOD — Palm Lane Development Co., which is developing six subdivisions in South Florida, has broken ground on a two-story store and office building at 5701 Hollywood Blvd.

There will be two stores on the ground level and six air-conditioned offices upstairs. Construction will take about four months.

Parking will be provided for 30 cars.

Co-Op Dwellers Getting Refunds

FORT LAUDERDALE — Occupants of one Fort Lauderdale cooperative building are receiving refund checks for a portion of monthly maintenance charges since taking occupancy.

R. B. Kemper, secretary-treasurer of the Riverview Garden Apartments owner's organization, said checks cover 20 per cent of the amount each resident paid into the operating fund.

White Development Corp., the builder-developer, listed the largest check at $172.80.

Terms of the Riverview Garden charter provide that the apartment owners' cooperative on a nonprofit basis, collecting as assessments only an amount sufficient to maintain and operate the 78-unit property, at 1000 SE Fourth St.

Kemper says that operating costs should continue to be less than revenue during 1959 but the monthly assessments will remain the same: $38 and up on one-bedroom units and from $52 up for two-bedroom units.

'Housewives Feel Guilty'

Psychology Boosts Sales of Builders

DALLAS — (UPI) — Dave Fox and Ike Jacobs have sold 15 million dollars worth of new homes in Dallas this year by learning the psychology of the home buyer—and putting it to use.

Fox and Jacobs salesmen, for instance, never tell a housewife that a built-in dishwasher, clothes dryer and washing machine will give her more time for bridge.

"You have to handle it more delicately," Fox said. "If you tell her the built-ins will give her more time for bridge, it will kill a sale right away.

"She already feels guilty about not spending as much time with her kids as her mother did with her."

Fox and Jacobs went into business eleven years ago, but things were slow until they began researching the reasons people buy homes and why they buy particular homes. That was two years ago.

Since then, they haven't been able to keep up with the demand. They sold 500 homes for eight million dollars in three weeks this fall.

"We always have an 'X-ray house' — a cutaway of walls, roofs and bathroom. If we have it, people will walk right by it. But if it isn't there, they always worry about it," Jacobs said.

The builders have found a trend toward contemporary homes and a desire for more built-in features. Like bedroom desks and appliances. They think the time even may come when people will want to buy a home completely furnished.

"Home buyers also want privacy, not only from their neighbors, but also from each other," according to Fox. "They won't admit it, but they want privacy from their kids.

"Houses designed for privacy give them the feeling of having a larger living area. If you back up patios together on neighboring houses, it gives the owners a continual sense of eating together. It won't work at all."

Fox and Jacobs are already going a long way toward the completely furnished theme. Every house they sell — and they range from $13,950 to $30,000 in price — is air-conditioned, completely carpeted, and has built-in closets, stove, oven, dishwasher and garbage disposer.

Jacobs said the major market in the next few years is going to be in the $8,000-$12,000 class. He said the babies of World War II will provide it.

Michelson Reappointed

POMPANO BEACH — Stanley Michelson has been reappointed to a three-year term on the Planning and Zoning Board by the City Commission.

Michelson was appointed last May to fill out the unexpired term of W. J. Patrick.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

New Coral Ridge Bank's Deposits Reach $2,294,000 Since December

DEPOSITS in Fort Lauderdale's newest bank, the Coral Ridge National have reached $2,294,000 since it was opened Dec. 8. Resources now exceed three million.

The bank's new building on Oakland Park Beach Blvd. probably will be ready for occupancy early in April, it was announced. It now is in temporary quarters.

R. H. Gore Jr., president of the North American Co., was elected to ghe board.

THE FORT LAUDERDALE National Bank announced, following its shareholders meeting, that resources stood at $29,707,424 at the end of 1958, a "substantial increase" over the previous year.

J. N. Morris, executive vice president of the bank since its organization, was made president as J. D. Camp, the president, was elevated to the chairmanship of the board.

Acton of directors of the affiliated Broward National Bank in making Camp chairman of the board after many years as president was announced earlier. Arthur W. Saarinen, executive vice president, was named president.

Deposits of Broward National increased by more than seven million dollars during 1958, shareholders were told.

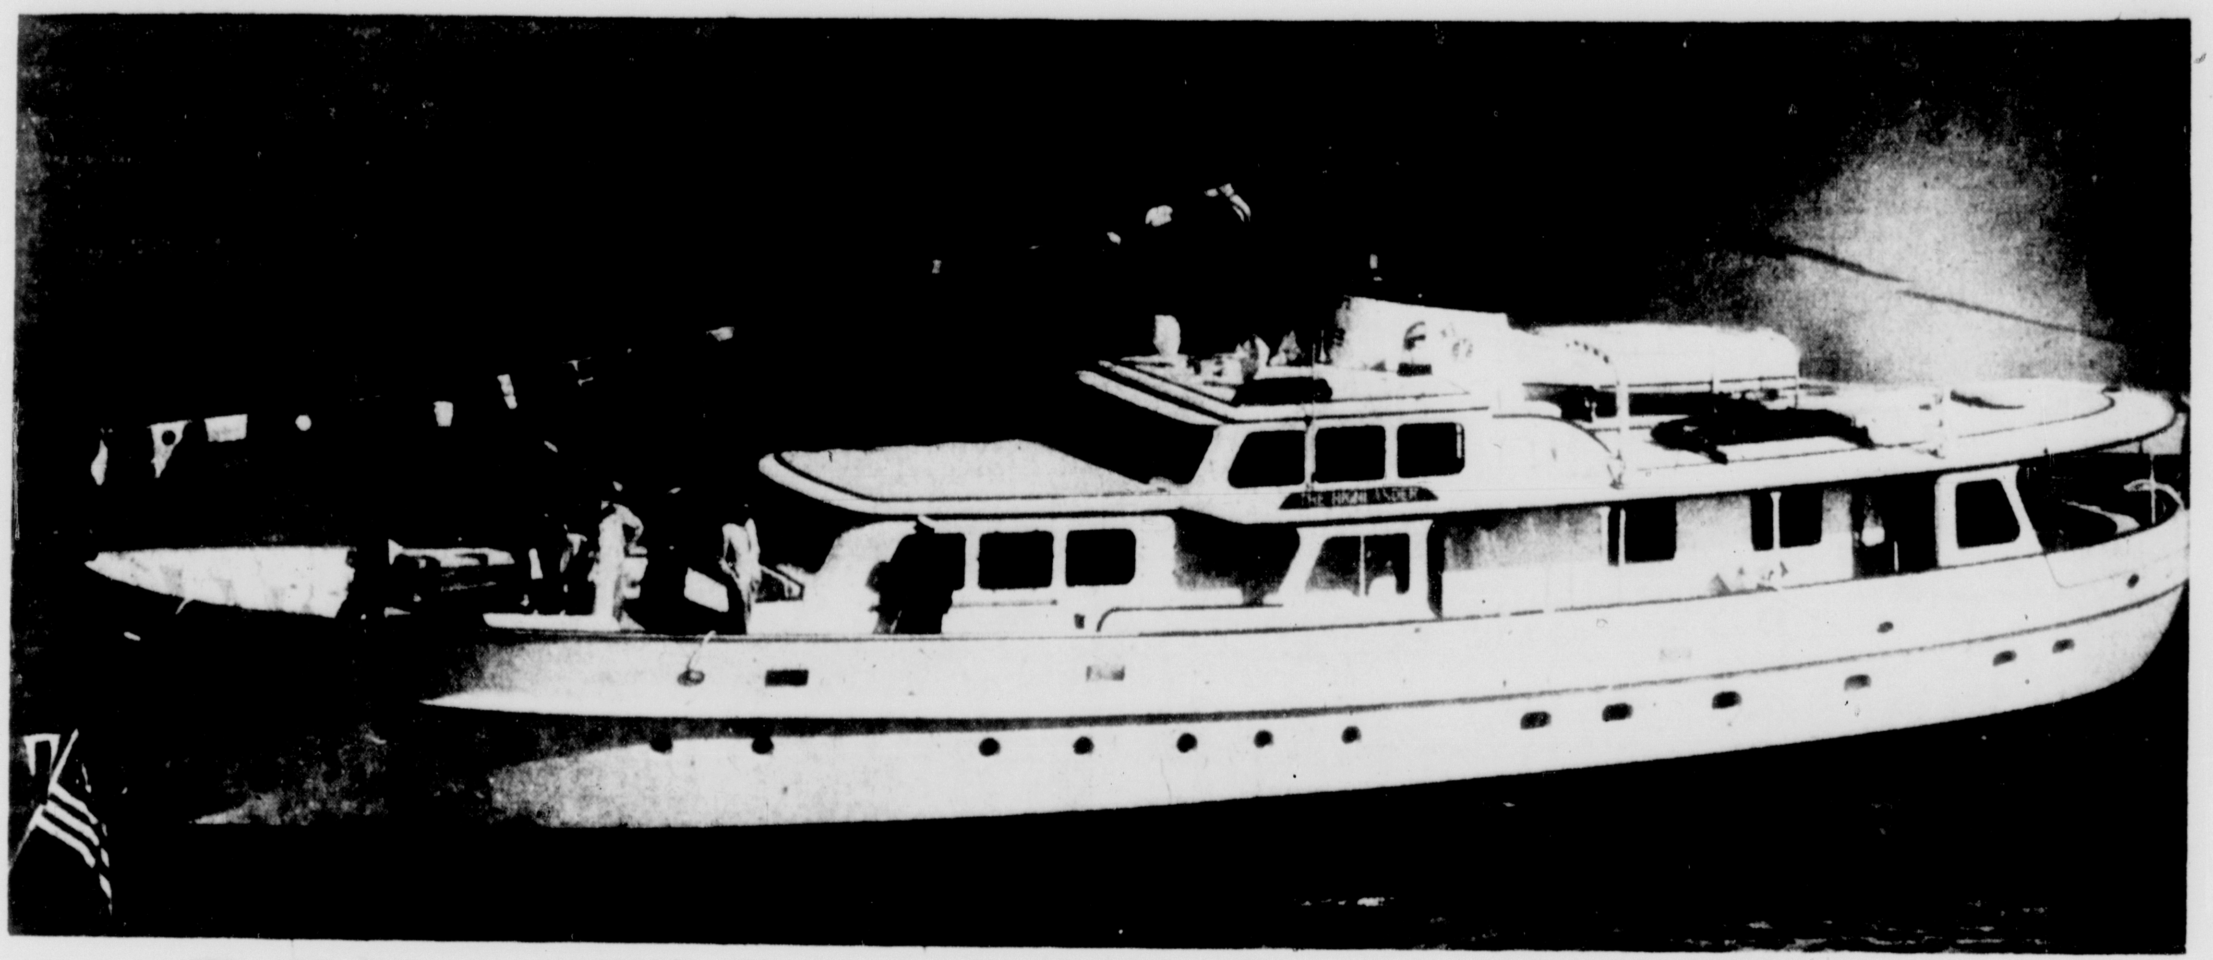
They Float Away From Cares of Winter



The Highlander, 100-Foot Forbes Yacht, Berths at Boca Raton Hotel and Club Docks

Heart and Home Of the Forbeses On Highlander

By MARGARET WALKER
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The most glamorous winter homes afloat are back at their berths at Bahia Mar this season.

One of the big beauties is The Highlander, 100-foot yacht of Bruce Forbes, president of Forbes Inc. (the magazine and other financial services), and Mrs. Forbes of New York.

For the last four years Mr. and Mrs. Forbes have divided their seasonal stays between Fort Lauderdale and the Boca Raton Hotel and Club, where they dock for a day or spend a week golfing or cruising from the club's new docks.

Their handsome yacht, one of the sleekest seen in these waters, was completed last year in Amsterdam and brought across the Atlantic by Capt. A. K. Sylvia. She carries a crew of five.

Luxurious throughout, she is the epitome of comfort, with all the beautiful detailing of Dutch-built craft and the latest American equipment. In the spacious mahogany-paneled salon TV, high fidelity player and a tape recorder are set in the wall.

Beige leather-covered swivel chairs, a built-in mahogany desk and built-in book shelves offer ease and every convenience.

* * *

THE AFT DECK opening off the main salon is the real living area when the Forbeses and their guests are cruising or having cocktails aboard.

On the deck below are beautifully-furnished staterooms with full baths. The master stateroom is exceptionally roomy. Its huge closet is teak-painted to match the walls. The adjoining bath, in marbelized tiling, has a regulation-size tub.

There are two guest staterooms, each with full shower, attractively decorated and carpeted.

"The galley is my pride and joy," remarked Mr. Forbes, as he led the way down carpeted stairs to as roomy and fully-equipped a kitchen as one ever sees at sea or on land. A door in the wall opens to reveal tier after tier of ice trays—48 of them. This wall icebox makes 84 pounds of ice every three hours.

The galley boasts two gas ranges, a huge deep freeze and another ice box.

AS PRESIDENT of the famous magazine founded by his father, the late B. C. Forbes, Bruce Forbes is one of the busiest men in New York. His company publishes many financial services and a weekly stock market letter. He also heads the Forbes Marketing Research Division.

Coming to Florida during the winter breaks up big city tensions, but frequently Mr. Forbes combines business with pleasure. He and Mrs. Forbes, who spent last week at the Boca Raton Club, are back at their Fifth Ave. apartment. They plan to return next month in time for Mr. Forbes to attend the National Association of Manufacturers association at the Boca Raton Hotel.

He and Mrs. Forbes will stay down for the Miami Boat Show, in which The Highlander will lead the parade of boats and Mr. Forbes will be parade marshal. After the show the couple will fly home.

In March they will cruise from Bahia Mar to the annual commodore's party at the Key Largo Anglers Club, thence to Palm Beach where Mr. Forbes will attend a convention of the American Bar Association.

In April, business will again bring the good-looking publisher and his charming wife, Ruth, to Florida. Mr. Forbes will attend the Southeastern Electric Exchange convention at the Boca Raton Hotel, which will afford them another opportunity to live aboard their handsome Highlander.

Women Can Now Lose Their Heads—in Color

By MARY RUNYAN

Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Women who once used their heads now are losing them in puffs of color.

It's a wonderfully giddy feeling to know that you can spend a day at the beach and still turn up for a romantic evening with a delightfully different hair style.

All you need is a wig, and some gumption. If you still aren't so brave, just an artificial hair piece will do.

But, if you're going to use false hair for a flirtatious night on the town, you might as well go all the way.

Match you gown. Wigs still come in the staid colors of light to auburn brown, black and platinum, but there are wigs for the more aventursome too — lemon yellow, salad green, peacock pink — the newest of the lush candy box shades, to violet and pale blue.

Once manufactured of real hair at $175 to $250 a throw, wigs have come down a peg or two.

Classed simply as cosmetics, rather than the startling creations they are, the newest wigs are made of nylon and sell at about the same price you'd pay for a chic chapeau.

And, speaking of hats, these wigs aren't something that slip all over the head. Instead, they fit snugly — thanks to elastic. They're bound to be a boon to the gal with straight hair or the hard to manage variety.

According to Lela Wielt, distributor in this area, the wig hair syle can be changed just as quickly as your own. A little brushing and setting, even cutting if you wish, will turn it into a completely new style.

If you're still daring to be different, you might want to add a frosting of color to your make-up job. Along with the colorful wigs come eyelashes with a hint of color — just a bit more artistic than blue or green mascara at night.

But what's more important, women now can match up with their poodles and their little sports cars.

Lucille Luebke Relaxes at Winter Home

She Turned Club Work Into Her 'Easy Money'

By MARY RUNYAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Club work has paid off for Lucille Luebke.

Almost without realizing it, she has wrapped up years of experience in her book, "Easy Money," which contains some 150 fund-raising ideas adaptable to men, women and youth organizations in church, civic, social, fraternal and educational fields.

The result is, making capital gain for not only Lucille but organizations across the nation.

"Easy Money" is a result of many fund-raising projects, which the author herself undertook as president and ways means chairman of some dozen clubs throughout her 20 years of club work in her native Wisconsin. So successful were her projects that she began receiving requests for ideas from club presidents all over the U.S.

"One has to be so explicit when jotting down this kind of direction that, on the suggestion of a friend, I found myself making a complete format."

This is how "Easy Money" was born. Although Mrs. Luebke says there is nothing new under the sun, her book contains a wealth of fresh approaches and novel twists on old projects such as auctions, teas, fashion shows and luncheons.

Lucille, who with her husband, George, has a winter home at 372 NE 48th Ct., began her first venture in writing last winter in Fort Lauderdale. She completed her project back in Fort Atkinson, Wis., last summer and saw the first book off the press Oct. 27.

She says that the ideas in her book may not be just what an organization wants but, with a little more imagination, things can be juggled to fit the area and the type of group.

Mrs. Luebke, through experience, emphasizes enthusiasm as the No. 1 factor in carrying out a successful fund-raising plan.

She claims that fund-raising is just as much fun as any planned program and in one chapter expresses the opinion that it's not always necessary to have a luncheon following a fashion show or fair, if the event in itself is planned uniquely.

The book contains 10 chapters and is treated in the lighter conversational vein.

It has sprightly illustrations in color and is actually an offshoot of Mrs. Luebke's personal feeling that there is an acute need for this phase of organizational planning.

Although she has been an active clubwoman, Mrs. Luebke never has forgotten her first duty to her husband and son, Ricky, now a freshman at Wayland Academy in Beaver Dam, Wis.

Still state disarmament-chairman for the Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Luebke serves on the board of the Fort Atkinson Woman's Club, of which she is a past president.

She considers herself semi-retired from active club work, even though she still holds memberships in such groups as garden, Masonic and a number of civic organizations.

Show Business Couple Finds Dream Home

By MARGARET WALKER
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — There may be no business like show business, but, after bowing offstage to lead a more leisurely life, there's no place like home in Fort Lauderdale.

This opinion is shared by Mr. and Mrs. James Burrell, an attractive couple who left their log cabin in Westchester County, N.Y., a few months ago seeking sun and a "fun" house, one not too different from their rustic home up North. Still, they wanted a home suitable to the Florida climate.

They found a house finally that filled the bill — natural cypress paneling, a fireplace, a den which they have made an interesting gun room for their collections, and a sunny, typically Florida living room.

Tucked away at the end of Mola Ave. is their trim white house, secluded, bounded by two canals. The Burrells have found just the right places for some treasured antiques, which they have combined successfully with modern, simple furniture.

Jim Burrell has a fine collection of weapons he has picked up in out of the way spots throughout the world — India, Egypt, various parts of Europe, China and Japan. He has swords, scimitars, daggers, wicked knives exquisitely sheathed and displayed in racks on the walls. It's a man's room, one in which the former Broadway singing star and night club singer finds relaxation. Here, Jim, who's only 39, is occupied every hour of the day.

He and Mrs. Burrell, the former Sally Billings, met when they were both in the cast of a Broadway show, "American Jubilee."

They are among a growing group who have invested in Florida and intend to make a living here as well as an interesting life.

Jim's career began at the age of 16 when he appeared in Alfred Drake's first show, "Two Bouquets." He took bit parts in a number of Broadway plays and had a standout singing role in "Yokel Boy," which marked Phil Silvers' first fling in the theater. . . . From then on, his singing career was assured. Jim enjoyed most his role in Irving Berlin's "This Is The Army," for which he was recruited from the Army Engineers during World War II. After Broadway, the show hit Europe and played behind the front lines for many months. Jim's featured song was "I'm Getting Tired So I Can Sleep."

He has appeared on Arthur Godfrey's show and has co-starred with Teresa Brewer in "Pick and Pat," a minstrel TV show.

For the last two years, Jim has been in TV engineering in New York. As one of the camera crew at NBC, he has handled both audio and camera work for many big shows. They include Jack Parr's first show, Perry Como, Jerry Lewis and others.

This year, Mr. and Mrs. Burrell enjoyed the first family Christmas they can remember.

"And what a wonderful New Year's," exclaimed Jim, "no extra shows to do!"

Hot Dog . . . In a Hurry

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Hot dog! A new cooking gadget turns out the frankfurters at the rate of half a dozen in just 90 seconds.

The cooker works this way. Each end of each wiener is attached to an electrode in the bottom half. When the cooker lid is closed, the current passes through the meat, cooking it from the inside out.

The manufacturer said that for easy cleaning, the lid is removable and the bottom portion can be immersed completely in water.

No Drips

Alaskan Family Lived History, Here for Reunion

By ALICE FOSTER
Herald Staff Writer

WALLACE AND CLINTON DUCKER, brothers, had not seen each other for 15 years.

Friday they were reunited. Wallace and Thelma live here in Hollywood; Clinton and Laura live in Alexander Creek, Alaska.

ALICE FOSTER

About 20 years ago, according to Thelma, Clinton and his wife sold their farm in Michigan and with their two youngest children pioneered in Alaska. A Jack London novel couldn't tell a more fascinating tale than the actual experiences.

Walking 10 miles on snow shoes is not unusual for the Duckers, and dog sleds are a popular winter conveyance. During the summer they fish for salmon, returning to their modern home only at the end of the season. They trap beaver, and hunt wild geese and moose for their meat supply.

How do they like Alaska and the different life they lead?

They love it.

The Duckers will be here with their Florida family for 10 days visiting and touring the Gold Coast.

PEOPLE IN OUR TOWN

"I COLLECT pigs because pigs are so human," said T. D. (Dave) Ellis Jr., a Hollywood attorney.

He now has more than 275 pigs of every type and description from all over the world — and all inanimate.

He started his collection about 18 years ago when he visited a wood carving school in the mountains of North Carolina.

One of his most interesting pigs comes from Moscow and is made of stone found in the Ural Mountains of Russia. His smallest one is about a quarter of an inch in size and is made of coral. It comes from Naples, Italy.

A most unusual pig — and the largest — came from an antique French carousel. It is bigger than life-size, made of wood and dates between the years of 1800 and 1810.

This exciting collection boasts of a pig that came from the temple of Karbak in Luxor, Egypt. It is of stone and the Bureau of Antiquities of Luxur issued Ellis a certificate verifying that it dates back 3,000 years.

He has silver pigs, venetian glass, carved wood from Bali and old ivory pigs from Hong Kong. None of his pigs is banks.

Housework Helping Your Self Esteem

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — (UPI) — Psssst, Husbands.

Half the nation's married women say housework helps their self esteem.

But the yen for dusting isn't necessarily a natural instinct, say sociologists at the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research.

The Instutute conducted a nationwide survey and found that most teen-aged girls admit they want to marry, but fewer than one in 10 said they want to become housewives.

Marriage brings about the change of attitude toward household chores, the Institute said.

Taking Stock at Blood Bank Means Listing Future Donors

By FRAN LASLIE
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — A middle-aged father, his body crushed in an automobile accident, was wheeled into the emergency room at Hollywood Memorial Hospital.

Seven pints of blood were urgently needed to save his life.

A young man who lost his leg to a rare bone disease had to have 24 pints of blood to stay alive.

In surgery, unexpected complications developed during an operation on a young woman. Unless she had six pints of blood within 15 minutes she was doomed.

Supplying fresh human blood, sometimes in a matter of minutes, is the job—and the problem—of the hospital blood bank.

"About three times a week we're caught short and must make hurried calls to volunteer donors," said Director Mary O'Connor.

The bank may be depleted of its reserve in one morning.

No more than 40 points can be stocked at one time because blood spoils after 21 days and must be thrown away if not used within that period.

To meet the demands, the hospital is seeking a list of organizations whose members will pledge to give blood in critical periods.

"In case of an emergency one call to a club would bring in the necessary donors."

Miss O'Conner said only 10 per cent of the clubs on her list are answering pleas for blood now.

"The remaining 90 per cent are able but have not become active in our program."

The hospital is setting up a "walking blood bank" at the Hollywood Home Show Jan. 24-28 at National Guard Armory. Donors can be typed and classified at the booth.

Emergency victims who can neither replace the blood they use or pay the $25 fee create the biggest problem, Miss O'Connor said.

Records from a four-hour period showed that one patient required five pints of blood and could replace only three; another, 23 pints and could replace none; and an accident case, four pints and could replace two.

"One or two emergencies can use up our supply," Miss O'Connor added.

"If we can get full cooperation from club members who will offer blood in a group, we will be well off throughout the year.

Donors she said, get credit for each pint of blood.

"A blood bank can't afford to have feast or famine. We need a steady source."

Flip Light for New Mood

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Quick as a flick, you can make a room as bright as high noon or as soft and intimate as moonlight.

A "dimmer switch" brings mood-control within finger-tip range.

According to the American Home Lighting Institute, the switch works like the transformer that runs toy electric trains. Turn it on full tilt and you get enough juice to make lights burn at their brightest. Turn the other way and you get almost darkness.

Top-Flight Talent Due At PBA Charity Show

FORT LAUDERDALE — The annual Police Benevolent Association Show, one of the biggest collections of talent hereabouts, will be presented Feb. 27 and 28 in War Memorial Auditorium.

Already signed up to appear are Vaughn Monroe; Betty Johnson, singing star of the Jack Paar Show; the Fontane Sisters of television fame; and Comedian Henny Youngman, who just finished an engagement at the Diplomat Hotel.

Capt. Paul Mc Mahan, in charge of arrangements for the show, said that at least three other "name" performers are expected. In addition there will be other acts — "maybe not so famous, but real good entertainment."

Tickets for the show will go on sale this week.

The proceeds finance the PBA's many charitable activities. Largest expenditure this year was to provide school clothes for more than 100 needy youngsters who sometimes had to stay home for lack of proper apparel.

Machines to Do Work

Traffic Counters Expect No Answer

FORT LAUDERDALE — State Road Department crews will be counting traffic again soon, but you won't have to stop and answer questions.

The count will be made by machines, SRD Engineer Robert Donovan said.

About 20 key locations will be tabbed around the first of the month to compare winter with summer figures, he said.

"We already have travel habits," Donovan added.

The SRD is working on a $140,000 survey to help the county plan its long-term road needs. The cost was shared by the county and the state.

Data will be given to a consultant this summer. Recommendations should be ready for presentation in about a year, Donovan said.

We're now trying to estimate land use in the county for the next 20 years," he said.

Pikes Need More Safety --Expert

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Expressways and turnpikes are not solving all the nation's traffic problems and should be modified to make them safer, according to Commissioner Bernard R. Caldwell of the California highway patrol.

Caldwell wrote in Traffic Safety the National Safety Council magazine, that unexpected increases in motor vehicle travel and automobile registrations have overloaded modern highways.

They have presented many problems that designers of so-called "safety roads" couldn't have anticipated, Caldwell said.

He said existing expressways need better access lanes, elimination of vision obstructions and continued improvement of signs.

He also suggested turnouts for disabled vehicles, cross-over points which police could use to reverse traffic direction and to pursue motorists in opposing traffic lanes and improved surveillance points for police.

No Need To Climb Flag Pole

NEW YORK — (UPI) — How do you paint a flag pole without climbing it?

Kamco Corp. of East Cleveland, Ohio says it has the answer with it's Pole Cat — a 25-pound painting device which holds three spray guns in a canister hinged to fit around a pole.

The machine is hoisted to the top of the pole with the flag rope. As it descends, it sprays paint.

The maker says the Pole Cat also can be used on such things as lamp posts and bridge cables.

Demo Club To Install

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Broward Democratic Club will hold its red-carpet installation dinner Jan. 31 at The Reef restaurant.

James M. Milligan, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, will be installing officer. Master of ceremonies will be Boyce Royal Jr., chairman of the Sixth Congressional District.

Former speaker of the Florida House, Ted David, will be speaker.

Employes Form Blood Bank

FORT LAUDERDALE — Through Broward General Hospital, employes of First Federal Savings and Loan Association have formed their own blood bank.

The organization, founded by Z. H. Pilcher Jr., is to benefit employes and their immediate families. Other groups may borrow from the bank, with approval from an employe committee.

Arizin Arose

PHILADELPHIA — (UPI) — Paul Arizin of the Philadelphia Warriors recently became the fifth player in National Basketball Association history to score over 10,000 points. Arizin is a two-time scoring champion.

Catch Displayed

OKEMAH, Okla. — (AP) — Jack Strong's cat, Buffy, likes to catch rats and mice. And does very well, too. But the cat does not eat them. Just spreads them out on the porch for the family to admire.

Key Club President To Speak

HOLLYWOOD — Mike Crews of Wauchula, governor of the Florida District Key Club organization, will address a meeting of the Hollywood Beach Kiwanis Club Monday at 6:30 p.m. at Chrest's Restaurant.

The 18-year-old is in charge of 107 clubs throughout the state and more than 2,600 members.

Ted Sorin, president of the Kiwanis Club, said Crews will discuss the 21st annual district Key Club convention April 9-11 at Hollywood Beach Hotel.

Soviet Anti-Semitism Hit by Daytona Rabbi

FORT LAUDERDALE — Anti-Semitism behind the Iron Curtain is "covert and corrosive," Rabbi J. Marshall Taxay, Daytona Beach, told Fort Lauderdale Jews.

Dr. Taxay, speaking at the inauguration of the 1959 Fort Lauderdale Jewish Welfare Federation fund drive, said a "great challenge has been offered by Russia — an opportunity for us to take 300,000 Jews to Israel" where "the door is open to all Jews."

He called on local people to "help brothers in need."

The meeting was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur O. Stone, 1120 SE Ninth St. Officers of the federation are Michael Fridovich - Martin, president; Stone and Louis Sterling, vice presidents; Elliot Barnett and Charlotte Lansky, secretaries, and Paul Epstein, treasurer.

Vic D. Zeve and Dr. Jules Silverman are co-chairmen of the drive. Stone heads the initial gifts committee.

Youth Leader Wyrtzen To Open 3-Day Rally Here

FORT LAUDERDALE — Jack Wyrtzen, an international youth leader, will conduct a three-day rally at the Fort Lauderdale Armory starting Jan. 29.

Open to the public, the event is being sponsored by the city's Christian Businessmen's Association.

A former bandleader, Wyrtzen directs a weekly coast-to-coast youth broadcast, and at one time had his own television program.

A layman, Wyrtzen is said to have a dynamic personality. He contends that Jesus Christ and the Bible are the answer to juvenile delinquency.

Wyrtzen directs three large youth camps at Schroon Lake, N.Y., Brazil and Yucatan, Mexico. An estimated 13,000 persons, including Buddhists, Hindus and Moslems, attended the New York camp last summer.

Paul Wackes, a builder, is chairman of the Fort Lauderdale association.

He said the group is comprised of "men who have banded together to explore ways and means by which we may influence other businessmen to accept the Lord Jesus Christ as personal saviour. We are men of varous denominations."

Troubles Saddled At Pompano Stables

POMPANO BEACH—Peace is reigning at last at the city-owned Sand and Spurs Stables.

Two weeks ago the City Commission agreed a night watchman was needed. Stables Supervisor Sam Rayburn even pointed out the need.

So a new horse-owners agreement was drawn up, providing for a stable owners association, to which all would belong. Each member would be assessed the necessary money to hire a night watchman.

Everyone said they were happy. The commission breathed a sigh of relief—after more than six months of controversy, the matter was "settled."

But another group game in and convinced te commission the agreement was no good and there was no need for a watchman. The commission approved another new agreement.

The people were happy.

The commission is happy. It figures the matter is closed now.

But that's what they thought once before.

Runnals To Conduct Mission

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Rev. C. Bertram Runnals will conduct a four-day Christian healing mission at All Saints Episcopal Church starting today.

The Rev. Runnals, canon of the Cathedral Church of St. Luke, Orlando, begins with the morning service at 9 today.

He also will hold services at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday there will be morning sessions at 10, and evening sessions at 7:30 on Monday and Tuesday.

We Won't Leave Berlin, President Tells Mikoyan

You Can Have One, Too

Look at Me, Fellas--I've Got an Ulcer!

Proud--But Unhappy

Today's man of distinction is the man with an ulcer. He mentions it proudly while flashing his antacid pills. That's because he's supposed to be made of the stuff that lifts him above the flock. But there never lived an ulcer victim who was happy about his affliction. The writer, New York Newspaper Editor Herbert Kamm, can attest to this. He's had an ulcer for 22 years, and that makes him somewhat of an authority on the subject. In five articles, starting here, he tells about the causes, the "cures" and sundry facts concerning this pesky ailment.

By HERBERT KAMM
Special To The Herald

ONE SNAPPISHLY COLD afternoon in February some years ago, a lean young man entered the office of his doctor and announced, "Doc, I think I've got an ulcer."

A sour look, much like that induced by a swig of citrate of magnesia came over the doctor's face. You do not, as a rule, endear yourself by walking into a doctor's office and diagnosing your own case. He's supposed to tell you.

The Sufferer
. . . man of distinction

But the lean young man was not to be deterred.

"I've had this gnawing in my tummy for several weeks now," he went on. "It comes an hour or two after eating, and I also get it in the middle of the night. If I drink a glass of milk, it goes away. Besides, I've been working too hard and smoking too much, and I guess I haven't been too careful about what I've been eating, either."

"Well," the doctor said grudgingly, "they do sound like the classic symptoms."

So they took the lean young man to the hospital, and they had him drink a glass of white, chalky stuff called barium, and they took a bunch of X-rays, and they found an ulcer of the garden variety — a peptic ulcer of the duodenum, the small, valve-like organ which connects the stomach to the small intestine.

The case is significant for two reasons. While patients quite often will try to tell a doctor his own business, it isn't often that they score with such accuracy. Also, the patient was me.

I had, in a way, arrived. Not that ulcers are a rare ailment. A fat 10 per cent of the population in this country has them, and new cases turn up at the rate of 1.4 million a year.

Add to this the number of people who are troubled by acid distress, heartburn or general discomfort from eating, and you have a whole legion of people who figure that maybe they're getting ulcers.

Usually, however, there is no mistaking this pesky ailment, and studies have shown that, in the large majority of cases, the ulcer sufferer is a person of extremely high intelligence, of great urging to move ahead in this competitive world, and the stuff that lifts him above the flock.

* * *

He Wears Misery Like a Medal

Knowing this, he wears his misery like a badge of honor and takes a strange sort of pride in displaying his antacid pills at social gatherings. He also draws comfort from knowing that he's in pretty fast company.

It should not, however, be assumed that ulcers are solely a disease of modern, fast-moving civilization. In fact, they seem to be as old as civilization itself.

The traditional ulcer type, though, is supposed to be a hardworking, over-conscientious, ambitious, successful person who can't "take it easy."

* * *

'Thinker' Type Is Likely Victim

Much has been made of the prevalence of ulcers among those with the long, lean "thinker" constitution, their absence among primitives, and Asiatics, and the greater frequency of ulcer in the postwar years of prosperity and nervous strain.

But let's keep one thing straight: Ulcers do not automatically confer business success on their victims.

An ulcer is a sore in the stomach or the duodenum caused by the secretion of more acid gastric juices than are needed to digest food. As with most ailments, it is accompanied by pain.

The pain is usually located right under the ribs and occurs in bouts of 15 minutes to an hour's duration. Food generally will relieve it, but the pain will return after the food has passed out of the stomach and those nasty juices can go to work again on your stomach lining.

* * *

Sore 'Perforates'-It Even Kills

If neglected, an ulcer can perforate the stomach or the duodenum, and death from such severe cases is not uncommon. Most ulcers, though, are manageable and need not be serious. In fact, living with them can be quite sporting if one is sensible about the things he eats and drinks and, more important, about his state of mind.

NEXT: More about the causes of ulcers — from A (aggravation) to Z (zeal).

Flames Spew from Wing of $2½ Million Eastern Air Lines Luxury Liner
. . . blazing sky giant jolted to stop as landing gear gave way

Death Cheated at Miami Airport

17 Flee Blazing Airliner —Thanks to Heroic Pilot

By CHARLES TAYLOR
and JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writers

An Eastern Air Lines Super G Constellation caught fire seconds after it took off from Miami Saturday but veered back for a safe landing before crumpling into a fiery heap when its landing gear collapsed.

Twelve passengers and five crewmen, bound non-stop for Detroit on Flight 704, slid to safety down a canvas emergency chute as flames engulfed the right side of the four-engine airliner.

More than a dozen pieces of fire fighting equipment battled for nearly an hour before subduing gasoline-fed flames that all but burned away half of the 2.5 million dollar luxury airliner.

An Eastern spokesman said the plane might be a total loss. An investigation began immediately to determine the cause of the engine fire.

One of the passengers, 69-year-old Henry Fiedler, suffering from a year-old back injury, was taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital for observation, and Mrs. Helen Wallace, of Detroit, received minor burns sliding down the canvas chute.

Eleven of the passengers, however, were put on another Eastern flight to Detroit two hours after the spectacular 4:20 p.m. mishap.

Hero of the emergency landing was the plane's pilot, Capt. J. W. Rush, of 6200 SW 133rd St.

Rush, notified by the control tower at Miami International Airport that his right inboard engine was on fire when the plane was barely airborne, wheeled the big ship through a steep 180-degree left turn.

He set it down on a paralled runway in the opposite direction just a mile from the one he used to make his west-bound take-off.

The Eastern plane took off on the same runway and used the same flight path as a Braniff Airways DC7C which crashed into the Everglades last March 28, killing nine of the 24 persons on board.

The Braniff plane, like the Eastern Constellation, had a fire in the No. 3 Engine. But the Braniff pilot turned his plane to the right instead of the left to make his emergency return to the airport, then lost altitude and crashed.

The Civil Aeronautics Board last week blamed the Braniff pilot's failure to maintain altitude during the emergency for the crash.

Bright flames and thick black smoke streamed from the stricken Constellation's right wing and from under its belly as it landed.

His hydraulic brakes burned out and unable to reverse his propellars, Capt. Rush coasted the lumbering plane some 200 yards beyond the end of the runway.

There, just as it rolled to a halt on rock-stubbled ground, the right landing gear crumpled, tilting the airliner crazily onto its flaming wing.

While fire trucks spewed chemical foam onto the flames, passengers escaped from the left side of the airplane.

The passengers were on the ground three minutes after the plane was airborne at

Accused of 20 Holdups

Holding Family Hostage, Youth Gives Up to Police

GARDEN GROVE, Calif. —(AP)— Wounded and afraid, a teenager accused of more than 20 holdups surrendered meekly Saturday a few minutes after he entered a home here and demanded refuge at knife point.

The capture of 19-year-old Charles Averill climaxed an all-night, house-to-house search by 300 police officers.

Begging for mercy, Averill stumbled from the bathroom in the home of Robert Reines, pleading: "Don't shoot, don't shoot. I'm unarmed. Have some respect for my mother."

Reines, his wife and three young sons watched as a dozen armed men took Averill into custody.

Averill, of nearby Long Beach, gained entrance to the Reines home when six-year-old David Reines innocently admitted him at a rear door.

"He was blustery at first," said the father, relating that the young fugitive grabbed a butcher knife from the kitchen table after learning the family had no guns.

"But gradually he became more polite," Reines said. "The kid was obviously frightened out of his wits . . . He told us he had wounded a police officer and was afraid the police would kill him."

Police said Averill shot his way out of a trap in this Los Angeles suburb Friday night when he and an accomplice called at the home of a young girl friend. Acting on a tip, police were waiting. The pair had been sought for a week in connection with an Anaheim liquor store holdup.

But Averill spotted the officers as they entered the girl's house. Police said he fled, his gun blazing, but was wounded in the side. George Laughter, an Anaheim detective, suffered a superficial wound in the exchange of fire.

Averill rushed to a car driven by Joseph E. Armstrong, 20, of Long Beach, and they tried to escape, police said, but the car failed to make a turn and crashed into a curb.

Averill fled through a citrus grove but Armstrong was flushed from a nearby house and captured. Armstrong was carrying a rifle, but did not use it, the officers said.

Jets to Italy In 2 Jumps

UDINE, Italy—(AP)—Eighteen supersonic fighter planes completed a flight from America Saturday in two jumps, landing at Aviano Air Base near this northern Italian city.

The fighters — F100 Supersabres of the 356th Tactical Squadron — set off Tuesday from Myrtle Beach Air Force Base in South Carolina.

They were refueled by airtankers over Bermuda and the Azores, but bad weather forced the planes down at an airbase in Morocco. The squadron took off from there Saturday morning and the planes landed at Aviano Air Base at two-minute intervals.

The first was piloted by Col. Francis Gabreski, famous fighter pilot who brought down 37 enemy planes during the Korean war.

D.C. Bandit Chickens Out

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A man stepped up to the ticket booth of a movie theater and handed the cashier this note: "Don't let me kill you."

Then, holding his hand in his pocket as if it clutched a gun, he said, "Give me the greenbacks."

The cashier, Mrs. Katherine S. McDonald, 56, looked at him for a moment, turned around, opened the booth's backdoor and calmly called to an usher: "There's a holdup going on."

The would-be robber dashed away.

Ike Declares U.S. Will Never Accept Khrushchev's Plan

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Eisenhower solemnly told Russia Saturday the U.S. never will accept Premier Nikita Khrushchev's plan to turn East Berlin over to the East German Reds May 27.

Eisenhower was reported to have given this notice during a 1¾-hour meeting with Deputy Soviet Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan.

The White House conference, climaxing Mikoyan's two-week visit to this country, ended with no sign of concession by either side on Berlin, Germany or disarmament.

Despite this, informed officials predicted a Big Four foreign ministers conference will be held sometime this spring before the date Russia has fixed for ending four-power Berlin rule.

The 63-year-old Mikoyan, relaxed and smiling, went immediately to the Soviet embassy. Presumably, he will draft a report to the Kremlin on his round of talks. First, however, he went for a drive in Washington's Rock Creek Park.

His morning meeting with Eisenhower capped 11½ hours of talks with administration leaders, four of them directly with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

In view of the continued East-West deadlock, Eisenhower was understood to be banking heavily on Mikoyan's personal insight into U.S. policy, gained by his talks and travel, to pave the way for what this government regards as a more reasonable attitude.

Authorities familiar with Mikoyan's talks said that despite his relatively mild language, he reaffirmed Russia's Berlin plan while disclaiming any thought it should be considered a peace or war ultimatum.

Eisenhower and Dulles were said to have met this by reemphasizing that the U.S., with pledges of solid backing by its allies, will refuse to accept Soviet moves to scrap international agreements on Berlin's status.

Informants gave this point-by-point summary of the outcome of the confidential discussions with Mikoyan:

A SUMMIT MEETING — Neither side mentioned this, despite Mikoyan's advance public remarks urging a high-level conference without any formal agenda.

A BIG FOUR MEETING — No effort was made to set the time, place, or agenda. But U.S. authorities expressed confidence a foreign ministers meeting would be arranged.

DISARMAMENT — Dulles stressed there is an urgent American desire for an East-West ban on nuclear weapons explosions, provided adequate inspection is included. Eisenhower and Mikoyan agreed that modern armaments impose a crushing financial burden on governments.

GERMAN ELECTIONS — Mikoyan vigorously denounced the idea of free elections.

Sun-Shy Mikoyan Ditches Us

By ELVALEE SWIFT
Herald Staff Writer

Anastas I. Mikoyan, Russia's No. 2 man, abruptly canceled plans Saturday to visit Florida, reportedly because he feared too much sunshine.

An embassy spokesman in Washington said the Soviet Deputy Premier decided he might catch cold if he came here and then went directly back to Moscow's sub-zero winter.

Mikoyan was to be here Wednesday and Thursday after a fast look at Tampa and a tour of the citrus belt of Polk County.

Jubilant members of an anti-Communist refugee group, Guardians of Liberty, ditched plans for protest Miami demonstrations when they heard of Mikoyan's cancellation.

The group, made up mostly of Hungarians, was to meet the Kremlin leader dressed in black, driving cars draped in black and carrying crosses.

They also had fashioned a black coffin to present to Mikoyan.

Mikoyan's fears about balmy Florida weather were well founded, Miami weathermen said. If he arrived Wednesday, as scheduled, the cold snap would have been only a memory.

In Washington Saturday, temperatures skittered down to 10 degrees and the snow was turning to ice.

In announcing his change of plans, Mikoyan also said he will leave for Moscow three days earlier than he had planned. He will attend a Washington reception given by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov Monday and leave Tuesday.

Archbishop Joseph Patrick Hurley of the St. Augustine diocese had suggested mass bell-ringing in defiance of Mikoyan's visit. A diocese priest said Saturday he thought the plans had been abandoned.

Cold-Numbed East Busy Digging Out

NEW YORK —(AP)— Intense cold numbed much of the eastern half of the nation Saturday on the heels of crippling snowstorms in parts of the Midwest and East.

Emergency crews took advantage of clearing skies to dig through snowdrifts that halted auto production and closed schools in northwestern Indiana and stalled traffic in western New York state. Snow forced suspension of racing for the second straight day at Charles Town, W.Va.

Parts of Michigan were buried under four to 18 inches of snow.

A state of emergency was ended at noon Saturday in South Bend and Mishawaka, Ind. Brisk winds had whipped an 18-inch snowfall into mountainous road-blocking drifts throughout the area.

Stores reopened with the end of emergency status but the Studebaker - Packard Corp. plant and University of Notre Dame remained closed. The main roads and streets were reopened after an all night battle with the drifts.

New York state had at least eight traffic deaths attributed to the storm. An infant died of exposure in Georgia when the mercury fell to 12 degrees at Athens.

Five-foot drifts stalled traffic on South Buffalo's Fuhrmann Boulevard along Lake Erie shoreline. Many cars remained bogged down overnight.

The snowfall was reported 21 inches on the level near Pulaski, N.Y., east of Lake Ontario.

Highways were slippery and travel was hazardous in parts of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Millinocket, Maine, and Tallahassee, Fla., had identical temperatures of 34 degrees Saturday afternoon.

But upper areas of the Midwest bore the brunt of the Arctic blasts. Bemidji, Minn., had an overnight low of 30 below and midday readings in northern Minnesota were 12 to 16 below zero. The subzero afternoon cold extended southward into Iowa.

Your Teeth Will Still Chatter

The tail-end of a crop-withering cold wave that gripped North Florida early Sunday will keep Miamians' teeth chattering at least until Monday.

Freezing weather was expected early Sunday as far south as the lower East Coast farmlands. Farmers in central and North Florida had smudge pots burning furiously in an effort to save their crops.

And the warmup that the Miami Weather Bureau predicted earlier has been postponed until after Monday morning, the forecasters said.

The Frost Warning Service predicted the mercury would nosedive sharply early Sunday, dropping even lower than the low 20s in several North Florida spots Saturday.

Although frost was forecast for most farming areas, the service said it would be mostly light because of dryness of the air.

The temperature was expected to skid to as low as 15 in pockets and mucklands.

Telephone Operator Wins $800

Sunny Helps Pay Doctor

By SUNNY FORTUNE

A 50-year-old Miami telephone operator with a broken leg and a collection of doctor bills won my $800 jackpot last week.

SUNNY

Mrs. Mildred Eysmont, of 742 NW 52nd St., said she started working the Sunny Fortune puzzles when she broke her leg nine months ago.

"But I never thought I'd win," said the flabbergasted woman. "I'm so surprised I think I'll drop dead."

I talked Mrs. Eysmont out of any such drastic reaction and praised her for getting the word "NEAR" in last week's puzzle where so many others missed and put "NEAT."

Incidentally, that was the only word missed by Patty Motta, Miami; Edward Zwicker, North Miami, and H. F. Keller, Titusville.

I've been swamped with opinions about the new puzzle as compared to the old, and frankly, readers, so far it looks like a toss-up.

Some of you have complained the new one is too easy.

If that's the case, dig in. I'm willing to give you $300 if you solve my puzzle this week. It's on page 14C.

TWA Airliner Lands on Belly

KANSAS CITY, Mo. —(UPI) — A Trans World Airline Super Constellation screeched to a smooth and safe belly landing over a foam covered runway Saturday after the fate of the 33 persons aboard hung in the balance for more than five hours when the landing gear failed to function.

Sparks spewed out behind the huge craft as it glided along for 2,000 feet with fire trucks and ambulances racing alongside, but there was no fire and no one was injured.

Cries of "beautiful landing" and "thank God" rang out over the crowded Olathe Naval Air Station on the southwest edge of metropolitan Kansas City where the four-engined, three-tailed aircraft had been diverted.

The first passenger off said "it couldn't have been a better landing if we had been on wheels."

All passengers paid tributes to Capt. Norman Schaeffer, a veteran TWA pilot from Kansas City who maintained control and kept panic from erupting during the ordeal.

Schaeffer's wife watched from her backyard as the plane circled. "I was scared at first — shaking and upset. But . . . Norm and I are both Christians and I knew that if it was the Lord's will, the whole plane would come down safely and if it wasn't it was supposed to be taken that way."

The passengers also told how Flight Engineer O. W. Mollohan of Ivydale, W. Va., and John Probey, 24, a mechanic for Capital Airlines who was a passenger, worked for almost the entire five hours to raise the left landing gear.

They poured coffee and water into the hydraulic system to build up pressure. If they had not succeeded, a much more dangerous landing attempt would have been in prospect with only one gear down.

It was the right gear that failed to lower as the Washington-Indianapolis-St. Louis-Kansas City airliner tried to make its regular landing at St. Louis.

When it failed to function, Capt. Schaeffer continued on to Kansas City to use up fuel and lessen the fire hazard while attempts were made to repair it.

He asked all women passengers to donate their lipstick and liquid cosmetics in an attempt to pressurize the hydraulic system on the right side but failed.

The plane had developed a leak in the hydraulic system and dimes and lipstick cases used in an attempt to stop it also failed.

The crew had been in continuous communications with mechanics on the ground who pored over blueprints to help find the trouble.

The passengers in the plane huddled over the wing section, considered the safest part, and braced and cushioned themselves with pillows.

A veteran Navy chief in charge of the control tower said he had witnessed more than a million landings and added that he had never seen a better one, "wheels up or down."

Airport Firemen Wash Down Blackened Wing of Wrecked Plane After Crash

4:21 p.m., an airline spokesman said.

"We took the quickest way down. We couldn't waste time," said the cool-headed Rush.

Co-pilot was R. P. Harkless. The other crewmen were R. E. Eshbach, flight engineer, and Stewardesses Pat Tharpe and Wanda Carr.

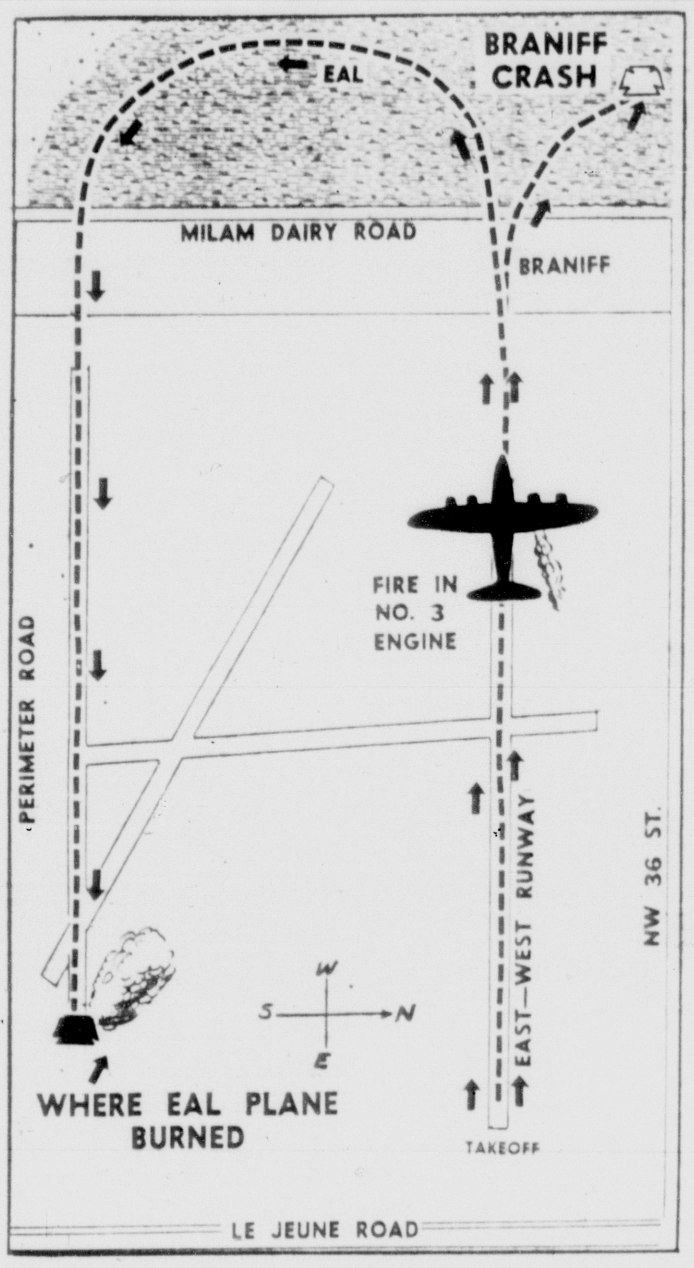
The Eastern plane was between 500 and 800 feet off the ground when Rush started his circle back to the airport, standing the plane on its left wing to keep the flames from the right side away from the cabin.

A control tower observer said Rush "didn't say much when he was coming in. I guess he was busy. But he told us to have the fire equipment ready."

Trucks from the Port Authority's fire station at the airport, Miami, Hialeah, Miami Springs and Dade County rushed to the scene of the flaming plane.

Some witnesses said there appeared to be a shortage of foam to douse the fire. They said when the flames were almost out, they suddenly broke out again.

But the Port Authority fire captain said "we didn't use all of the foam we had on hand."



Japanese Drag Yank To Police

YOKOHAMA, Japan—(UPI)—Five irate Japanese citizens dragged an American soldier from a train and carted him to the police on charges of defiling a Japanese flag, authorities said.

SP-4 Cedric F. Nelson, 21, of Alexandria, Minn., was accused of draping a Japanese flag over a shelf aboard a passenger train and deliberately setting fire to it with a cigaret lighter.

An Army spokesman said the Japanese planned to accuse Nelson of larceny and unlawful display and destruction of the flag.

Frondizi's U.S. Trip Slanted to Investors

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — (UPI) — President Arturo Frondizi said Saturday he will take a long list o. projects to the U.S. today in hopes of attracting huge new amounts of U.S. government and private capital to Argentina.

The projects — involving waterworks, steel and oil production, transportation and agriculture — are regarded by the 50-year-old president as necessary to pull Argentina out of the economic shambles left by ousted Dictator Juan D. Peron.

Frondizi will meet with President Eisenhower Tuesday. He will be the first Argentine president to visit the U.S.

Aside from his talks with Eisenhower and other government officials, Frondizi will carry his campaign for investment in Argentina directly to businessmen and bankers in Chicago, Detroit and New York.

He said he was confident the 12-day trip and the talks would result in a "new era of mutual understanding and cooperation in all fields" between the U.S. and Argentina.

He said his meetings before his inauguration last February with the heads of government of Brazil, Chile, Uruguay and Peru already had proved invaluable in dealing with these states.

Frondizi made it plain that the main objective of the trip was to impress the U.S. with the soundness of his economic policies.

U.S. Gets Warning From Fidel

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — Fidel Castro has warned the U.S. against attempting to use "cannon diplomacy" to halt the executions of Batistans. At the same time he is starting a campaign of pressure against the U.S. to "return the war criminals."

These attitudes were outlined as revolutionary officials discounted reports that former Dictator Fulgencio Batista had landed a counterattacking force, or was planning to do so, somewhere in Cuba.

Maj. Victor Borden, acting commander at La Cabana, the fortress across the bay from Havana, told newsmen such an attack from Batista's refuge in the Dominican Republic was improbable.

"When he had 55,000 troops he couldn't hurt us," said Borden. "What can he do with 10,000?"

He apparently was referring to a report from revolutionary military intelligence that Batista was trying to organize an invasion force of 10,000 men.

Borden said, however, that his chief at La Cabana, Maj. Ernesto Guevara, had departed for the central province of Las Villas because revolutionary units were somewhat disorganized. He declined to explain further.

It was announced that Maj. Eloy Guttierrez Menoyo, who commanded 4,000 to 5,000 men in spearhead fighting in Las Villas, had led his men back to the province from Havana for demobilization. There was speculation, however, that the move was a precaution against any Batista counterblow.

Chief of CIA Doubts A-Plane

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Allen W. Dulles, director of the super - secret Central Intelligence Agency, has told congressional leaders he does not believe the Soviet Union now has a flyable nuclear-powered plane, it was learned Saturday.

The CIA chief feels that the Russians are ahead of the U.S. in certain phases of missile development — notably in the range of intercontinental ballistic missiles. But he believes we also lead in some phases.

These, according to informed sources, were the highlights of a closed-door briefing Dulles gave a Senate armed services subcommittee Friday.

National Summary

Another cold morning is in store for the eastern half of the nation with below freezing temperatures extending over most of Florida and sub zero cold from the northern plains south of the Great Lakes into Pennsylvania and New York State.

Today, however, should find warmer weather from the eastern slopes of the Rockies into the plains and the Gulf States reaching the Carolinas with partly cloudy skies spreading from the southern plains across the Gulf regions.

Snow flurries from the Great Lakes into New England with locally heavy squalls along the lee shores of the lakes will maintain near blizzard conditions in upstate New York.

Fair skies are expected to continue over the southwest but the pattern of scattered rains in the Pacific northwest may spread a few showers into northwest California.

Scattered snows are expected in the high central Rockies with occasional light snow from eastern portions of the plains into adjacent portions of the mid and upper Mississippi Valley.

Temperatures at Tallahassee stood at 34 degrees shortly after noon Saturday for the frigid blast covering the eastern half of the nation was just beginning to fasten its grip.

Revision Abolishes Constables

Three-Tier Court System Adopted by Judicial Council

Options Allowed Counties

Legislature May Balk at Reforms

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — A plan for the most complete revision of Florida's judicial system since the present state constitution was drawn up in 1885 was adopted Saturday by the State Judicial Council.

A product of years of work by the 17-member group of laymen and lawyers, the plan will be put before the 1959 Legislature as a proposed constitutional amendment and incorporated in several proposed laws.

The heart of the plan is the consolidation of all trial courts into a single system, made up of three tiers — Circuit Courts, County Courts and Magistrate Courts.

Counties of 100,000 or more population would have the option of combining the County Court, or parts of it, with their Circuit Courts.

Other main parts of the plan would:

PLACE ALL judges on salary and abolish the fee systems on which many now operate.

REWRITE the laws on jurors and witnesses and other laymen in the courts. Fees for jurors and witnesses would be raised to $10 a day and jury commissions would be established in all counties with population of 25,000 or more.

DESIGNATE the state attorney as chief prosecutor in all courts and authorize him to appoint his own assistants now appointed by the governor, and designate the Sheriff as the chief enforcement officer for all courts, abolishing the office of constable.

LAY DOWN minimum procedural rules for administrative boards and agencies having quasi-judicial powers to insure the right of due process of law for those appearing before them.

REMOVE the constitutional limitation of 16 judicial circuits but require any new circuit to have at least 100,000 persons.

AUTHORIZE one Circuit Judge for every 50,000 population or major fraction, as at present, but allow the Legislature to create additional circuit judgeships, or abolish them, upon the showing of a "permanent need."

REMOVE the constitutional limitation of three District Courts of Appeal of three judges each, allowing more districts and more judgeships if needed.

AUTHORIZE cities to operate municipal courts, but permit these to be combined with magistrate courts, if the city wishes.

Many features of the council's plan are expected to be controversial in the Legislature. Council Member W. A. Shands, retiring President of the Senate, commented that it would be hard to sell the Legislature on the need for removing restrictions on the number of Appellate Court districts and judges. He voted against that feature of the revision plan.

The council chairman, Supreme Court Justice Stephen C. O'Connell of Fort Lauderdale, says the council's aim is to eliminate the hodgepodge of existing trial courts for a single efficient system. The State Supreme Court would administer the three-court system.

Arthur Lundeen, council executive director, said special trial courts had been set up to meet needs when Florida began growing rapidly.

The legislature turned down the same proposal in authorizing a constitutional amendment to create the Appellate Courts in the 1955 session.

Some state attorneys, circuit judges and county judges have expressed opposition to parts of the plan.

Lake Worth Ready to Sell Sewer Bonds

By PETE WEITZEL
WPB Bureau

LAKE WORTH—The city commission is expected Monday to authorize the sale of $2.5 million in revenue certificates.

The certificates, validated recently by Circuit Judge Culver Smith, will finance the proposed sewer improvement program.

An ocean outfall system with a recreation prier, a lift and pumping station, and a city-wide network of force and interceptor mains will be built.

The project is estimated to take 30 months.

The commission is also set to discuss requiring general contractors on the sewer project to submit a list of all subcontractors.

Another longtime issue may also be settled Monday with the consideration of establishing a bulkhead line.

The city initiated a bulkhead line study in 1956, but no action was ever taken although two lines were proposed.

Several weeks ago, at the suggestion of Vice Mayor Lynn F. Myers, Jr., the commission held an administrative meeting to consider the proposals.

Monday night, a report on the status of the bulkhead line will be received from K. C. Mock and Associates, consulting engineers. A request the line be established will also be made.

In other action, the board is scheduled to:

CONSIDER the appointment of a superintendent for the nearly completed water treatment plant.

DEBATE a proposed ordinance requiring swimming pools within the city limits be fenced.

RECEIVE the annual audit report, and the engineer's report on the power expansion program, delayed pending an appeal of the Circuit Court decision denying validation of $2.1 million in bonds.

AUTHORIZE the use of certain public places for re-registration of voters.

Braves To Be Indians

By ED PFISTER
WPB Bureau Chief

PFISTER

PLANS are underway by the sun dance committee to make the Milwaukee Braves honorary members of the Seminole Indian Tribe when they play the Kansas City Athletics in West Palm Beach March 18.

The idea brings back fond memories of the old Philadelphia Athletics — who technically at least, have been members of the Indian tribe for lo, these many yars.

And of Connie Mack, Jimmy Dkyes, a lumbering big white elephant and a set of blisters that to this day have puzzled medical science by their enormity.

* * *

IT WAS in 1949 when everybody was working hard to revive the long dormant sun dance. The Athletics had arrived, so had Connie Mack and so had Dykes—the latter liking the cellar position no more this time then any other year.

Bob Delaney, who was giving a helping hand to the sun dancers, started to kid Dykes about the tail end position of the Athletics. He called the team a white elephant.

Some thing prompted Dykes to snort, "You get a white elephant and I'll ride it in the sun dance parade."

* * *

DELANEY communicated Dykes' remark to the sun dance committee and the old wheels began to go 'round to make it work.

Now, elephants are not easy to come by under any circumstances and the idea of obtaining a white elephant at first glance appeared out of this world.

But only a couple of years before John Randolph Hopkins, Palm Beach heir to a patent medicine fortune, had created a sensation by letting it be known that his Bengal tiger "Tillie" had managed to get loose in the area.

The excitement over Tillie is another story, but it was brought out at the time that Hopkins once had kept an elephant in a garage in Palm Beach.

* * *

LET IT be said that the impossible happened. Hopkins had the white elephant shipped down from the Atlanta zoo and when the parade started, Jimmy Dykes climed on its back.

There was visible evidence that the rough, swaying back of the elephant was chafing up a king-sized crop of blisbers on the seat of Dykes' baseball uniform.

Before the parade was halfway to Currie Park, Dykes was practically up between the elephant's ears.

They had to help the baseball manager down off the back of the big elephant when the parade arrived at the park.

It is not known if Dykes looked for Delaney that night but it is known that Delaney got out of there fast.

Medical science probably hasn't decided yet in what bracket Dykes' crop of blisters belong but it is a matter of record that it was more than a week before we could sit down.

State Pay Raise Tied To Costs

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Budget Director Harry Smith said Saturday he will recommend "cost of living" pay raises not in excess of three per cent for most state employes.

But Smith said, some raises proposed by state agencies are out of the question in view of the financial pinch.

Smith's recommendations weigh heavily with the Cabinet Budget Commission in making recommendations to the Legislature.

The commission will get down to the budget balancing job Jan. 28, and it apparently is going to have to pare about $140,000,000 off proposed budgets to fit spending to income from present taxes.

The big increase in most budgets is salaries. Smith said he does not plan to recommend any cross-the-board general salary increases, but will consider each agency separately.

Smith said he probably will suggest larger raises for some professional personnel.

Mayor, Police Chief, And Parking Board Plans Review Due

By ED PFISTER
WPB Bureau Chief

WEST PALM BEACH—The question of whether West Palm Beach should have an elected mayor and council type of government is scheduled to be revived, at least briefly, at a city commission meeting Monday.

Commissioner L. W. Kelloway, long time foe of the city manager form of government presently in effect here, is slated to bring the question before the board.

Kelloway is also expected to present arguments as to why such a proposed change should be presented to one of the legislative clinics scheduled here as a prelude to the spring meeting of the legislature.

Members of the board Monday are to put their final okay on a resolution which will set up a referendum in the spring election to determine if the office of police chief should be made appointive.

West Palm Beach voters on three earlier referendums, have voted down efforts by city commissioners to change the present elected status of the chief. This city is one of the few in the country which elect heads of their police department.

With the support of the Merchants Division of the West Palm Beach Chamber of Commerce, Commissioner Sylvan Burdick will propose that the city set up a parking authority.

He will also bring up whether terms of city commissioners should be extended from two to four years.

Lantana Replaces SRD Signs

LANTANA —(AP)— The fight over a community's right to regulate speed on a state highway within its city limits has spread.

This Palm Beach County town has removed signs installed on U.S. 1 24 hours earlier by State Road Department crews.

Manalapan, near here, last week was refused permission by the State Road Board to regulate speed on the state rights of way.

On orders of Lantana Mayor Irving Ashauer, town crews replaced state signs with the original town signs. The state signs had called for speeds of 10 miles per hour more than town ordinances permit.

Ashauer said he obtained legal advice that "the arbitrary action of the State Road Department in removing the signs from Dixie Highway is contrary to law."

Man Held For Vero Blackmail

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — A 23-year-old New Yorker was held in the Palm Beach County jail Saturday in lieu of $10,000 bond on charges of blackmailing a Vero Beach school teacher.

U.S. Commissioner George Pink, before whom the suspect was arraigned, identified him as Raymond George Lanthier. He was arrested by postal inspectors in Vero Beach Friday when he picked up an envelope containing $100 that was taped to a door at the Chamber of Commerce building.

Commissioner Pink said Lanthier was charged with writing and placing a threatening letter in the mails to Walter Riddle, a faculty member at Vero Beach High school on Tuesday.

The letter, Pink said, demanded $100 in return for not revealing certain purported defamatory and scurrilious information bearing on the character and reputation of Walter Riddle Jr.

Pink said Lanthier did not know Riddle and apparently had picked his name at random.

On Jan. 16, Pink said, the suspect visited the specified spot and picked up an envelope, prepared by the victim, which contained the money demanded.

The postal inspectors moved into the case and seized Lanthier when the transaction was completed, the commissioner said.

Upon receipt of the letter Wednesday Riddle immediately reported it to school officials, who notified local police and the U.S. Postal Inspection Service, Chief Wallace Gossett of Vero Beach said.

Stumpf Sick, Told to Rest

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Edward F. Stumpf, editor of the Palm Beach Post-Times, was reported ill at his home at 932 Omar Rd. Saturday of complications that developed from a severe cold.

Members of the family said he had been directed by his physician to take a two weeks rest. Colleagues said it was feared at first Stumpf had suffered a mild stroke, but explained that a minor paralysis of facial muscles apparently resulted from the cold infection.

Stumpf several years ago suffered a heart attack while he was manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

Foster Bakes, Wife Watches Fights

By ROSE ALLEGATO
WPB Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Chubby County Commissioner Kenneth Foster relaxes over a hot kitchen stove.

"I can come home plumb tired and bake four apple pies and feel all relaxed," Foster says.

And he boasts the best apple pie in the county.

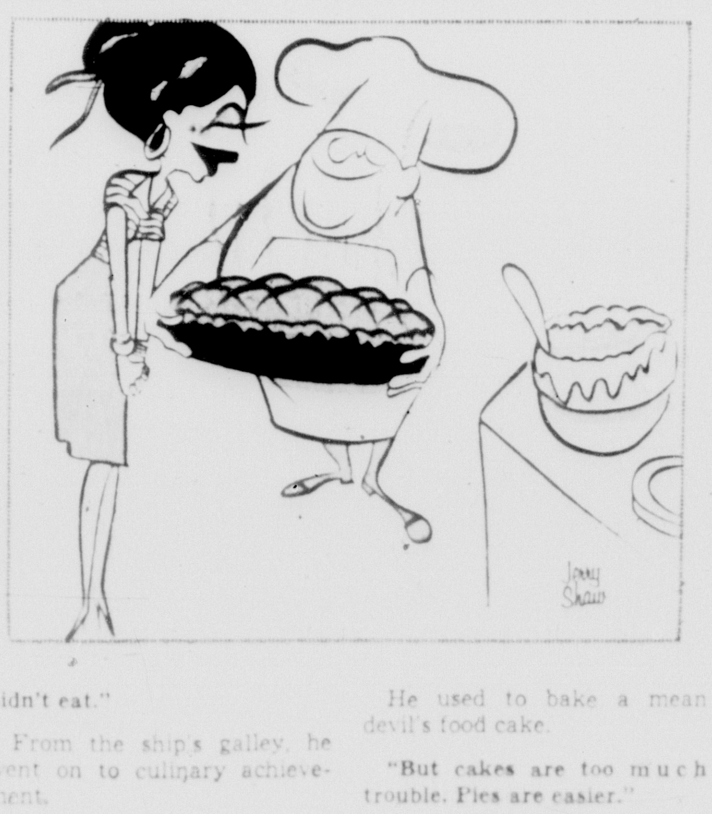
"You wouldn't believe it," Foster said, "but in my house, I'm in the kitchen baking pies and my wife, Virginia, is in the living room watching the fights."

What's more, he swears the Fosters had 18 people to dinner last week and "I cooked for them all."

"No kidding, I love to cook," he adds.

His cooking days started back in the 1930's and early '40's.

"I was in the sports fishing racket and you cooked or you didn't eat."



From the ship's galley, he went on to culinary achievement.

He used to bake a mean devil's food cake.

"But cakes are too much trouble. Pies are easier."

Ready-mixes?

Not for Foster. He's a strictly from scratch man and nix on the mixes. His favorite is apple pie but occasionally he'll condescend to bake a mince meat pie.

If you want to add a tasty filip to your apple pie, just ask Foster.

"You make a latticed top crust. When the pie is 10 minutes from finished, you pull it out. Sprinkle chopped almonds and pecans on it and some butter," he explained, his mouth watering slightly. "Delicious, really."

His talents are not limited to baked goods. He whips up a neat crawfish shiskabob.

"Don't boil the crawfish," he emphasized. "Cut it up raw and marinate over night. Then put it on the skewer with chunks of corn-on-the-cob, bell peppers, and mushrooms . . . Oh, boy."

Enforcement, Publicity Cut Iowa Traffic Deaths

Let's Stop Killing Ourselves

DES MOINES —(P)— Massive doses of law enforcement and publicity, prescribed by Iowa's traffic doctors, saved 95 lives on the streets and highways of this state last year.

They consider their prescription only partly successful — but they believe they've found a formula for a more potent medicine.

The traffic toll in Iowa was 595 last year as against 690 in 1957 — a fall of about 17 per cent. That was the largest reduction in the midwest and one of the biggest in the nation.

Besides saving lives, it has sharply trimmed the economic losses of Iowans. Many auto insurance companies have cut their rates for Iowa.

The state's chief traffic diagnostician, state safety commissioner Russell Brown, credits these factors for most of the decrease:

1—A "point system" under which the safety department assessed varying numbers of points against persons convicted of traffic violations. When a motorist accumulated 10 points, his license was suspended.

2—Use of radar speed detectors on the highways — the first time radar had been used for traffic control in Iowa.

3—"Excellent cooperation" of newspapers, radio and television stations and the wire services in publicizing traffic problems and the activities of law enforcement officers.

4—Unrelenting efforts by the State Highway Patrol, county sheriff's officers and city police to enforce the traffic laws.

None of these is new, Brown admits, but they added up to a fairly effective program for Iowa.

There has been no favoritism shown in operation of the point system. Brown himself lost five points when he was caught exceeding the speed limit in Des Moines. Atty. Gen. Norman Erbe, Maj. Gen. Fred C. Tandy, adjutant general of Iowa and state comptroller Glenn Sarsfield also have points on their records.

But Iowa can't afford to rest on its laurels, Brown said. If further gains are to be made, new ingredients must be added to the medicine.

"You can't concentrate on just one thing in traffic enforcement," he said. "That is like holding a tight bandage over one cut while your life blood spurts out another wound that you can't even reach."

In Iowa, that second wound is the 90,000 miles of rural roads. While lives were being saved last year on primary highways and city streets, deaths on secondary roads took a jump.

Brown has asked the legislature to beef up the State Highway Patrol so it can patrol the secondary roads. He says the patrol needs at least 150 more men. It now has 250, excluding driver license examiners, and that means only about 80 men — fewer than one per county — can be on the road at any one time.

He also wants a law requiring completion of a state-approved driver education course before a person under 18 years old can be licensed. Under present law 16-year-olds are eligible for a license.

Blast Kills 3 Workmen

PITTSBURGH —(P)— Three workmen were killed Saturday in an explosion at the nearby Duquesne works of U.S. Steel Corp.

A company spokesman identified the victims as Albert Chorey, 34, of Port Vue; Homer W. Maley, 57, of Duquesne, and Petra Jenca, 59, of Duquesne.

The victims were working in a pig machine building of the blast furnance department.

A company spokesman said a ladle of molten iron apparently upset, touching off an explosion of some type.

The blast apparently killed the three men instantly. Nobody else was in the building and there were no witnesses.

Cold Snap May Ditch Us Today

But It Will Be Slow in Going

The second weekend chiller to hit South Florida since the first of the year probably will start its exit today.

It lathered some car tops with frost in the pre-dawn hours Sunday, but spared crops in this area.

The warmup forecast for Monday will be gradual, according to Forecaster Leonard Pardue.

A high in the mid-60s was expected Monday in South Florida, and readings in the high 50s and low 60s were forecast for northern parts of the state.

Monday night should be considerably warmer than the frigid Saturday and Sunday nights, the weather bureau said.

However, the forecast for pre-dawn Monday was for more of the cold which blanketed the state Sunday morning, bringing lows in the mid-20s to some areas of North Florida and sending the mercury into the 20s in Central Florida.

Warren O. Johnson, head of the frost warning service at Lakeland, said "variable cloudiness over the state Saturday night held crop damage to a minimum in several sections."

He said it would be several days before the extent of damage could be determined. Johnson said, however, little if any damage was done to citrus.

In Greater Miami, early morning lows Sunday ranged from a 38 at South Miami to 43 at Miami Beach. There were reports of frost on cartops in some suburban areas.

Confessed Slayer Of Two Executed; Companion Jailed

Following is an account by a correspondent of a "war crimes" trial conducted by rebel officers in their early 20s. Their verdict was death for a Batista man.

By CHARLES SCHUMAN
UPI Staff Writer

MATANZAS, Cuba — Two former Batista men went before a revolutionary tribunal on charges of murder here Saturday while a mob outside shouted for their heads.

The prosecutor was a 25-year-old rebel, the military head of all Matanzas Province. The court consisted of three rebel officers ranging in age from 20 to 22. Their verdict was guilty.

One defendant was sentenced to death. The other was sentenced to 13 years in prison.

Neither had a lawyer. But the condemned man confessed to murder.

"These are revolutionary days," the prosecutor said later.

"Our government is in flux. We may not observe all the niceties but we are just. The man we condemned is a murderer. He will die."

He did so Sunday before a firing squad.

The trial took place in San Sêverino castle, a 17th century Spanish fortress overlooking the bay at this provincial capital.

Soldiers manned the ramparts and held back a crowd of 5,000 outside which screamed for the death penalty.

"Kill them!" the mob clamored. "Shoot them! Hang them!"

It was a mob of changing moods, sometimes there was laughter and gaiety, then the mood would change and again there would be shouts of "kill them."

Five former Army men, collectively accused of killing 100 persons, were to have been tried. But only two, Cpl. Jose Rodriquez and Cpl. Damasio Ponce, faced the court. The other three still are held in Havana.

More than 100 newsmen, cameramen, soldiers and civilians crowded a 30-foot-by-30-foot room where the trial took place. At the far end, behind two gray tables the rebel officers, sat as judges. There was a small clearing, six feet by five feet, before the makeshift bench.

Here the prosecutor, Maj William Galvez, 25, command-

Dade County's United Fund, bolstered by an estimated $317,921 from the 18½-hour UF-Cerebral Palsy telethon, set out Sunday on a two-week crash program aimed at reaching an over-all goal of $3,477,000.

With the telethon pleges, UF now has about $2,553,260.

The eighth annual telethon, held at Miami Beach municipal auditorium and telecast over WCKT, had a goal of $341,000.

The next two weeks, UF officials said, will be devoted to a concentrated effort in those areas and divisions where collections are far below normal.

The $3,477,000 goal is the absolute minimum required to maintain the 55 health and welfare agencies associated with United Fund.

Fund officers are hopeful the goal will be met.

Professional people have averaged far less in contributions, as a total group, than the employes in Fair Share Division groups.

"We hope," said Lantaff, "to stimulate heavier response

FORT ORD, Calif. — (AP) — A 21-passenger Army helicopter with four or five men aboard was hunted Sunday in the fog-bound Pacheco Pass area between Gustine and Gilroy.

The H21 was last heard from Saturday on a flight from Stockton to Fort Ord when it contacted a naval air facility and was told to proceed over Gustine through the pass.

Mikoyan Is Firm On Berlin

City's Merger Held Impossible

By Herald Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan Sunday night rejected as "impossible" any thought of merging East and West Berlin into a single free city.

But he vigorously renewed Russia's demand that West Berlin alone be converted into a free city, contending this is needed to keep the area from becoming "a possible hotbed of war."

The 63-year-old Soviet leader, perspiring freely under television lights, defended Russia's plan to end four-power Berlin rule during an hour-long coast-to-coast radio-TV interview (Meet the Press).

Without retreating from Kremlin stands, Mikoyan answered a barrage of questions about Communist policies in Hungary, Germany, Asia and inside the Soviet Union. He mixed his replies with charges the American press "imagines facts" about Russia and "spreads untruths."

Speaking from a studio heavily guarded by police, Mikoyan made these main points:

1. Russia favors new diplomatic talks with the West even though he said American leaders have failed to offer him a "constructive counter-proposal" during his meeting with them. He has conferred with both President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, among others.

2. Premier Nikita Khrushchev is not trying to build a Stalinist-type dictatorship for himself. Soviet decisions are made not by one person but by a group.

3. American forces should be withdrawn immediately from Formosa to ease tensions. Russia has "no reason to restrain the Chinese (Communists) because we regard them as being very restrained."

4. Vice President Richard M. Nixon, or any other top American official would meet "the best reception" if he visits the Soviet Union.

5. American troops did not leave Lebanon voluntarily but

Strike Ends At Jalousie Firm Here

By CHARLES TAYLOR
Herald Staff Writer

Two months of strike violence, marked by bullets and brawls, ended Sunday night with the signing of a new two-year contract by the United Steelworkers Union and the Adams Engineering Co.

Charles Silver, president of the aluminum jalousie and furniture manufacturing firm, announced the new contract and said it will mean a 15-cent-an-hour package pay raise for Adams' 500 employes.

The new contract, which runs through Jan. 31, 1961, also gives workers longer rest periods, vacation pay figured on length of service and other benefits, Silver said.

The contract was signed by company and union officials Sunday night.

Steelworkers walked off their jobs at the Admas plant, 19300 Biscayne Blvd., Nov. 13, and almost immediately the walkout erupted into violence.

Four women were injured Nov. 17 when a human chain of pickets tried to bar strikebreakers and trucks from entering the big plant. A court order later prohibited the union from posting more than two pickets at each plant entrance.

There were more than 20 cases of violence in all during the strike, including two cases of vandalism at the plant.

Adams makes ABC jalousies and aluminum furniture and fixtures.

The contract provides for an immediate eight-cent-an-hour pay raise for Adams employes, and an additional seven-cent increase Feb. 1, 1960.

You Can Have an Ulcer, Too

Tycoon or Stoic, None Ruled Out

When New York newspaper editor Herbert Kamm was diagnosed as an ulcer victim some 20 years ago, his doctor sought out the cause. Leading a double life? the doc asked Kamm. Taken aback, Kamm assured the doctor that his wife and children took up all of his time off his job. But Kamm learned then that the causes of ulcers are many and varied. He discusses them in this article, the second in a series.

By HERBERT KAMM

AN INTERVIEWER recently asked Milton Berle why he worked at such a frenetic pace in preparing his television and night-club shows.

"I'm a ham, but more than that, I'm a perfectionist," he said with disarming candor. "The show's got to be perfect. I don't care if I'm performing in a bathroom. I want to make it good. The star who doesn't fret and pace and feel feathers in his stomach isn't a star or a perfectionist."

No. 2, In A Series

Yet, despite the abuse he has inflicted on his nervous and digestive tracts for more than half of his 50 years, Uncle Miltie rarely has suffered anything more serious than an upset stomach — certainly nothing like a peptic ulcer.

On the other hand, there is the case of the equally frenetic, equally perfectionist Jerry Lewis. Almost 20 years Berle's junior, he was dragged off to a hospital last November with an ulcer so advanced it had perforated.

Which only goes to show that, as with hot dogs and hassenpfeffer, one man's meat can be another man's poison.

This being the case, doctors rule out no one when it comes to enumerating the types of people likely to develop an ulcer. Harried, frantic tycoons get ulcers, but so do stoics. Generals get them, but so do privates.

The causes also run a wide gamut. With some victims, the cause can be traced to imprudent eating or excessive drinking, or a combination of the two. Others can be abstemious about both food and drink and still come down with a whopping bellyache.

Further, while improper diet and nervous tension usu-

Final OK Is Due in February

By Herald Wire Services

NEW ORLEANS — The Democratic site committee selected Los Angeles "in the friendly Democratic country" of California Sunday as the site of the Democrats' 1960 national convention.

The committee's action is subject to approval of the full Democratic National Committee — expected to be a mere formality, since the national committee in the past always has gone along with the site committee's selection.

The national committee is expected to take up the matter during its semi-annual meeting on Feb. 27 in Washington.

It would be the first time that a Democratic convention has been held in Los Angeles.

The decision, reached after two and a half days of deliberation here, was based on "30 to 40 factors," according to Committee Chairman Camille F. Gravel.

Chief among them, Gravel said, "but by no means the sole reason," is the fact that Los Angeles offered to donate $350,000 to the party for the opportunity of being host to the convention.

Three other cities, Miami Beach, San Francisco and Philadelphia, matched Los Angeles' bid. New York, with a bid of $300,000, and Chicago, bidding $250,000, were also in the running.

Atlantic City also sought the convention, but later withdrew its bid because it found it could not accommodate the conven-

No Incision – No Blood – Quick Recovery

'Atomic Knife' Revolutionizes Brain Surgery

STOCKHOLM — (AP) — Swedish surgeons using an American-invented "atomic knife" report they have successfully performed the first brain operation in history without opening the skull.

Members of the operating team gave this account:

A 55-year-old man, suffering from serious mental depression, was cured and a piece of brain tissue removed without a scalpel or other traditional instruments. All were replaced by the invisible atomic knife — a proton ray.

The operation was performed by a team of brain surgeons and nuclear scientists at the Gustaf Werner Institute for Nuclear Chemistry at Upsala.

Experiments with the use of a proton ray as a surgical instrument were first made at the University of California, Berkeley. In 1953, American research workers reported they had succeeded in removing cancer tumors from mice by the means of proton rays.

The Swedish team — working at the Gustaf Werner Institute under the leadership of Prof. Theodor Svedberg, Sweden's top nuclear scientist and Nobel Prize winner — made a long series of experiments on animals before the method was applied to man.

Rays of protons, the positive charged unit of the atom nucleus, penetrated the brain of the ill man in 18 different directions during the two-hour operation, said Prof. Bror Rexed, of Upsala University, one of the six-man team.

The proton rays were focused on the tissue which caused the disease.

A piece of brain tissue three millimeters thick was destroyed by the concentration of rays, this expert explained. Not a drop of blood was spilled and no incision in the skin or bone was made.

Prof. Lars Leksell of Lund University led the operation through television from an isolated room next to the operation room to avoid the risk of atomic radiation. The atomic knife, the proton ray, was supplied by the synchrocyclotron of the institute, one of the only two in the world suitable for this kind of operation. The other is at Berkeley.

During the operation, the patient was alone in the operating room under the "eye" of the proton beam, watched on television by the chief surgeon and his assistants.

The patient recovered quickly after the operation and could leave the hospital two days later. A similar operation carried out by orthodox means required weeks of preparation and a long period of recovery.

Prof. Leksell said he expects the new method can be applied in special cases to ease chronic pains, for treatment of Parkinson's disease and certain mental illnesses.

Enforcement, Publicity Cut Iowa Traffic Deaths

Let's Stop Killing Ourselves

DES MOINES —(AP)— Massive doses of law enforcement and publicity, prescribed by Iowa's traffic doctors, saved 95 lives on the streets and highways of this state last year.

They consider their prescription only partly successful — but they believe they've found a formula for a more potent medicine.

The traffic toll in Iowa was 595 last year as against 690 in 1957 — a fall of about 17 per cent. That was the largest reduction in the midwest and one of the biggest in the nation.

Besides saving lives, it has sharply trimmed the economic losses of Iowans. Many auto insurance companies have cut their rates for Iowa.

The state's chief traffic diagnostician, state safety commissioner Russell Brown, credits these factors for most of the decrease:

1—A "point system" under which the safety department assessed varying numbers of points against persons convicted of traffic violations. When a motorist accumulated 10 points, his license was suspended.

2—Use of radar speed detectors on the highways — the first time radar had been used for traffic control in Iowa.

3—"Excellent cooperation" of newspapers, radio and television stations and the wire services in publicizing traffic problems and the activities of law enforcement officers.

4—Unrelenting efforts by the State Highway Patrol, county sheriff's officers and city police to enforce the traffic laws.

None of these is new, Brown admits, but they added up to a fairly effective program for Iowa.

There has been no favoritism shown in operation of the point system. Brown himself lost five points when he was caught exceeding the speed limit in Des Moines. Atty. Gen. Norman Erbe, Maj. Gen. Fred C. Tandy, adjutant general of Iowa and state comptroller Glenn Sarsfield also have points on their records.

But Iowa can't afford to rest on its laurels, Brown said. If further gains are to be made, new ingredients must be added to the medicine.

"You can't concentrate on just one thing in traffic enforcement," he said. "That is like holding a tight bandage over one cut while your life blood spurts out another wound that you can't even reach."

In Iowa, that second wound is the 90,000 miles of rural roads. While lives were being saved last year on primary highways and city streets, deaths on secondary roads took a jump.

Brown has asked the legislature to beef up the State Highway Patrol so it can patrol the secondary roads. He says the patrol needs at least 150 more men. It now has 250, excluding driver license examiners, and that means only about 80 men — fewer than one per county — can be on the road at any one time.

He also wants a law requiring completion of a state-approved driver education course before a person under 18 years old can be licensed. Under present law 16-year-olds are eligible for a license.

Blast Kills 3 Workmen

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— Three workmen were killed Saturday in an explosion at the nearby Duquesne works of U.S. Steel Corp.

A company spokesman identified the victims as Albert Chorey, 34, of Port Vue; Homer W. Maley, 57, of Duquesne, and Petra Jenca, 59, of Duquesne.

The victims were working in a pig machine building of the blast furnance department.

A company spokesman said a ladle of molten iron apparently upset, touching off an explosion of some type.

The blast apparently killed the three men instantly. Nobody else was in the building and there were no witnesses.
